AEC Unable to Take Any Big Decision

Politics Splits Board 1 to 1, With Third Member Abstaining

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

WASHINGTON (UP)—A voting stalemate has made the Atomic Energy Commission impotent to act on controversial issues.

Informed sources said Saturday that the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee is acutely aware of the situation and plans to do something about it soon.

The stalemate stems from fundamental differences between AEC chairman Lewis L. Strauss and Commissioner Thomas E. Murray.

It is aggravated by the fact that the commission is not up to its full statutory strength of five members.

Under the law, three commissioners constitute a quorum for making policy decisions.

The AEC has three voting members—Strauss, Murray, and Dr. Willard F. Libby.

But Libby, a newcomer to the capital, has taken a neutral position on all issues controversially tinged with politics. Stated as a human equation, the situation is: Strauss vs. Murray equals stalemate.

Dr. John Von Neumann is serving on the commission under a recess appointment by President Eisenhower, but he has been sidelined since the new Congress convened by the fact that he has not yet been confirmed by the Senate.

The fifth AEC membership has been vacant since Joseph Campbell resigned to accept a presidential nomination to the post of comptroller general.

The voting stalemate could be broken by Senate confirmation of Von Neumann.

But the congressional atomic committee has not yet held a hearing on Von Neumann. Chairman Clinton P. Anderson (D-N.M.), fully aware of the AEC's current impotence, has given high priority for such a hearing.

The committee may set a date for it next week. Quick approval of Von Neumann is expected.

For the AEC to be beset by political discord is a relatively new thing. All concerned deplore it. The major villain in the piece is the Dixon-Yates power contract which President Eisenhower last year ordered the commission to negotiate.

Strauss himself, although he supports the contract, has said he would be happier if the AEC had not got involved in this issue.

Murray has stated in congressional hearings that he deplores the injection of politics—the issue of public vs. private power—into AEC business.

He is known to feel the commission's main business, perfection of nuclear weapons and development of peaceful uses of the atom, is more important than any squabble over who provides the electrical energy it needs.

Evacuation of Tachen Isles Believed Set

Pacific Naval, Air Commanders Confer on Formosa Bastion

By SPENCER MOOSA

TAIPEH (Sunday) (AP) — America's Pacific naval and air force commanders flew to Taipeh today, reportedly to coordinate plans to evacuate Nationalist troops and civilians from the Red-threatened Tachen islands, already reported under Communist artillery fire.

Adm. Felix B. Stump arrived in a military transport plane from Honolulu with Maj. Gen. Sory Smith, commander of Pacific air forces. A Navy spokesman said the admiral would leave tonight to return to his Pearl Harbor headquarters.

Stump lunched with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and scheduled a new conference for 4:30 p.m.

He also met with Nationalist Defense Minister Yu Ta-wei. A high Chinese source said his meetings with the Nationalist leaders "could not have been more harmonious." This was taken to indicate that evacuation plans for the Tachens were virtually complete and that no last minute balking by the Chinese Nationalists has developed.

"Everything is going according to plan," one high Chinese said.

A group of high-ranking Nationalist officers from Formosa arrived at the Tachens today to direct the coming withdrawal of Gen. Liu Lien-yi's 15,000-man garrison, it was stated.

The official Nationalist Central News Agency said one of the Tachen islands was under Communist artillery fire twice Saturday from Yikiangshan Island, which the Communists captured recently. Yikiangshan lies eight miles north of the Tachen group.

Saturday night Nationalist bombers took up the retaliatory fire and in different waves during the night continued to bomb Red military targets along Yikiangshan's rocky coast. Nationalist Air Force headquarters announced. All planes returned safely, the Air Force said.

War Powers Bill Signed by President

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the signing of his own name, President Eisenhower Saturday attained complete, push-button power to fight Red China if necessary in defense of Formosa. He called this a step for peace in the war-charged area.

Rhonda Says Mate Broke Into Boudoir

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Red-haired Rhonda Fleming Saturday accused her estranged husband of breaking down her bedroom door after she returned home from Europe Friday night and declared she would seek court action Monday to throw him out of the house.

The beautiful actress said she took possession of the bedroom and locked the door in a fury because Dr. Lou Merrill, she insisted, wasn't even supposed to be in the house.

But the doctor claimed he owned half the bed and battered down the door with his shoulder, she said.

"I had to sleep on the couch," wailed the shapely actress.

She explained she had planned to seek a long-delayed divorce from the handsome surgeon in Switzerland, where she was resting from picture-making, but that he asked her to return to California for the divorce.

"Before I came home, my attorney informed Lou that he would have to move out of the house," she said. "When I walked in, last night, with my luggage and 12-year-old son, Kent, Lou was in the house. I told him I was tired and going to bed.

"I took a shower, locked the door and jumped into bed. Suddenly he shouted that it was his bedroom and he was going to sleep in it. He broke down the door and came in. I was so tired, I took a pillow and slept on the living room couch."

She said she had instructed her attorney, Jerry Lipske, to seek court action Monday to put Merrill out of the home.

"I bought the house and everything in it," Rhonda said. "He claims he has a certain equity in the house, so I guess we have a battle on our hands."

TEXANS OF THE TIDELANDS

Black Gold Again Floods Beach City

By BERT RESNIK and JIM COMBS

Cadillac Lane is a sleepy street right off the main shopping district of Huntington Beach. In less than a month it has out-Texased oil-wealthy Texas.

For this onetime palm-tree-lined side street has become the center of what the community Chamber of Commerce manager describes as "the biggest oil boom we've ever had."

And Huntington Beach had two multi-million-dollar booms in the '20s.

Along Cadillac Lane, officially designated as 2nd St. in the city map books, drilling rigs bloom like dandelions.

Drilling crews stand behind house wreckers waiting for the homes to tumble. Apprehensively, they eye the rigs across the street.

Time is money here, big money. No one knows how extensive is the new oil pool, but everyone knows the quicker they hit it the more they'll get.

There's a story going around town about a man who signed a lease on his place after dinner one evening, then was awakened the same night by the sound of the wreckers pulling off his roof.

If the '20s were fabulous, the year 1955 cannot be considered anything but fantastic for this beach community.

But it's a profitable fantasy for Mr. Average Householder who was fortunate enough to acquire the mineral rights to his property when he bought his home.

Louis J. Fraser, the town barber, overnight became one of the principal owners of two backyard wells.

"Got to move, of course," he said, "but maybe I can get on the other side of Main St. Figure the boom's moving that way.

"Alice, my wife, is a little disturbed at the idea of moving, but she'll get over it.

"Wait until she sees that first check next month."

Fraser figures it could be a five or six-figure sum. Not bad for an average size householder lot.

And he figures there's more from where that came, enough to allow him to hang up his clippers for the rest of his life.

"I ought to get a decent living out of this," he said.

He's given his share of the barber shop at 106 Main St. to his partner, Web Conklin.

Along with the influx of excited oil workers from Oklahoma, Texas, Arizona and from other parts of California, has come another breed.

"Lease hounds," says H. Lee Norris, a realtor at 205 Main St. "All of a sudden we have hundreds who have entered the real estate business.

"State law requires anybody in the brokerage or lease business to have a license—but these

Bay Woman's Death Dream Comes True!

OAKLAND (AP) — Mrs. Jennie Terrell, 38-year-old elevator operator, "dreamed" three weeks ago of the death that came to her Saturday—the death circumstances recorded by her own camera.

The woman's husband, Hardesty, told police that his wife, about three weeks ago, said she "dreamed" she was sitting on a window sill to have her picture taken and fell to her death.

Saturday during lunch hour on the sixth floor of the Medical Building at 3022 E. 14th St., she asked Mrs. Clara Young, 33, of Oakland, another elevator operator, to "take some pictures of me" seated in an open window.

Mrs. Young took one. She cranked the film roll and looked through the viewfinder for another — but Mrs. Terrell was gone. Her body fell in a parking lot six floors below. The developed snapshot showed her sitting in the window, apparently at ease.

Homicide Inspector Leonard Fake said Mrs. Terrell suffered from a heart ailment and had dizzy spells.

Trunk Lid Falls, Child's Head Cut

All Britt Watson, 4, of 1058 Olive Ave., wanted to see Saturday afternoon was the interior of the trunk compartment of his dad's auto.

Dad, Orville Watson, stood by at Seaside Hospital when doctors took five stitches in Britt's head to close the wound caused when the lid crashed down on the tyke. He was sent home after treatment.

Man Rescued From Blazing Bathroom

Trapped in the bathroom of his blazing apartment, a 43-year-old Long Beach man was rescued Saturday night by heroic neighbors who crashed through a locked door and dragged him to safety.

Unhurt in his brush with death was Fred L. Bower, of 502 E. 11th St.

His rescuers were Mr. and Mrs. William Rix, who live downstairs in the same building. They told firemen that they had heard Bower pounding on the floor, but thought he was pulling down a wall bed in his apartment.

"Then a woman came to the door and shouted that the whole upstairs was on fire," Rix said. "We ran up the back stairs and broke down the kitchen door.

"We heard Fred yelling 'Here I am, here I am,' but we couldn't find him in the smoke."

Groping through the smoke and searing heat, they finally located the almost unconscious Bower in the bathroom, where he had crawled in desperation after missing the front door.

The Rixes were aided by an unidentified man, who left soon after Bower's rescue.

Battalion Chief U. L. Monroe said the blaze was started by a cigarette smouldering in the couch where Bower slept.

Only casualty in the blaze was Bower's pet parakeet, Butch.

Snow-Sport Fans Flock to Heights

Southland snow fans were jamming mountain resorts this weekend to take advantage of excellent skiing conditions and sunny weather as the weather bureau predicted a return to normal January coolness in the next few days.

Reports from Lake Arrowhead, Big Bear and Camp Baldy indicated perfect winter sport weather, with no chains required on main roads and snow sufficiently hard packed for skiing.

Big Bear, Blue Jay and Green Valley all reported 36 to 54 inches of packed snow, with temperatures ranging in the 60's with similar conditions listed for other areas.

For the Long Beach region, the weatherman forecast increasing high cloudiness today, becoming mostly cloudy Monday with a drop in temperature.

Public Cautioned of Atomic Tests in Nevada Area

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission warned Saturday that persons near the boundaries of the Nevada test site when a new series of atomic tests is conducted in mid-February "may expose themselves to serious danger."

"The area of danger may extend throughout the portions of the Las Vegas Bombing and Gunnery Range from southeast to northwest of NTS Nevada Test Site," said the AEC announcement.

"Caution is also advised for individuals in the general area. The flash of light, for instance, can cause temporary eye damage under some circumstances to observers who are off-site but who are looking directly at the fireball. The use of binoculars or rifle scopes intensifies the danger."

Ranchers, prospectors, miners, migrants, private fliers and hunters were particularly warned to stay away from the area of the tests.

Young Spaniards' Blood Boils at 'Invasion' by Yankee Bucks

By TOM STONE

MADRID (AP)—Twelve thousand U. S. airmen and sailors are coming to Spain. And the senoritas are blushing coyly.

"This is no good," said a hot-blooded Madrid youth, mad enough to fight a bull. "The Americano, he has much money and the Spaniard he is poor but proud.

"What can I do? I make not many pesetas a day. The Americano makes much much more. I think all that money will turn the head of my sweetheart."

The senoritas are less excited—outwardly, anyway. One, asked what she thought about the Americans coming to Spain, fluttered her long black eyelashes and smiled sweetly.

"We shall wait and see, no?"

The Americans will run five air bases, now under construction or planned, in partnership with the Spanish air force. Six hundred Americans have arrived. Others will come as the bases get nearer completion.

The U. S. Army is not sending troops to Spain, so the airmen won't have to worry about GI competition.

The code of Spanish romance is strict. Duennas (chaperones) accompany senoritas on all dates. The girls play for keeps—a lifetime of wedded bliss. Carefree Yanks are forewarned.

There have been six marriages between young Americans and Spanish girls. Many more are expected.

The United States and Spain are coming together on a mutual agreement concerning such marriages.

Military weddings here are no more difficult to arrange than they are in England, France and Germany, unless one or the other principals is a Catholic and one is not. In that case, dispensation has to be obtained from Spanish Roman Catholic authorities.

Two Catholics or two non-Catholics getting married present little or no problem.

The whole question is so touchy, pending completion of the agreement, that the U. S. Air Force's top chaplain in Spain, Lt. Col. Raymond Stadta, has been asked by his superior officers not to comment.

The Joint U. S. Military Group has issued a statement that "the religious rights of American military personnel in Spain will be fully protected."

A JUSMG spokesman adds: "We're guests of Spain and we must follow her customs."

L.A.C. SAYS:

Slums in the Forest

Visitors to any of our national parks will be interested in the recent Reader's Digest article referring to them as "slums." If the visitors spend most of their time around the swanky hotels in the parks they will not see this slum condition. But if they rent a tent or cabin among hundreds of others, they will recognize the condition described by the Digest article.

It is a controversial discussion of what our national parks should provide. The Digest writer would have all frills such as swimming pools, tennis courts and cocktail bars abolished. He would even stop the continued improvement of roads with six-lane highways right up to the main hotel door. The Digest writer believes national parks should be maintained for nature lovers who go to see the trees and waterfalls. He is against the summer resort atmosphere and big business that controls the great national parks such as Yosemite.

It is a challenging approach to an important subject. Far too many of our people do make slums of our national parks. They are the kind of people who throw beer cans around and who cut down live trees when there are dead branches, suitable for firewood, in abundance. There are far too many people who go to national parks for the sole purpose of sports such as tennis, golf and social evenings. The Digest article writer insists these people should not be subsidized in enjoyment of their vacations.

The Digest writer gives evidence of what he opposes. He shows that at Yellowstone Park on a given day last year 16,435 tourists arrived. Many of them stood in line most of the day seeking accommodations. When the final decision was made some 6,000 had to sleep in their cars.

There were only 116 rangers for that entire great area. That is 20 less than in 1932. But the visitors were there. Traffic jams were serious throughout the park. Fewer rangers, who are the police force of our national parks, were available than when we had only a sixth as many people visiting these parks.

One who loves these national parks is depressed to realize the Digest writer is correct. Each lover of these parks can visualize the beer cans, the garbage thrown into beautiful pools and streams, and the papers scattered in all directions.

Certainly one cannot credit the people who cause this degradation of the forest with being lovers of nature. They are defilers of all that is clean and beautiful. They are the arsonists who burn this beauty by their wanton carelessness.

Why then should these people be lured to the forests by government-financed tennis courts and golf courses? That is the challenging point made by the January Digest article entitled, "The Shocking Truth About Our National Parks."

As individuals we may not agree with the reasoning. But it should cause each of us to be more careful of our conduct when visiting these beautiful places. This writer would not restrict the many recreational facilities, but he would advocate doubling the ranger force and that severe penalties be given to anyone who contributed to making slums of our last great reservations of national beauty. —L.A.C.

U.N. to Press for Stop-Fire Despite Snubs

UNITED NATIONS (U.P.)—The western powers went ahead Saturday with plans for a United Nations Security Council meeting Monday to discuss a Formosa area cease-fire despite flat rejection of the idea by both the Chinese Nationalists and the Communists.

Communist China will be invited to send representatives to New York to argue the case before the United Nations, which has repeatedly voted against seating the Chinese Reds as U.N. members.

Peiping radio broadcast another tirade against the United States Saturday, vowing to "strike back with heavy blows" if U.S. armed forces "dare attack" Communist forces attempting to "liberate" Formosa.

At the same time the Nationalists reiterated their "irrevocable" oppostion to U.N. attempts to bring about an armistice in the Formosa area, maintaining that they had the right to reconquer the Chinese mainland—the same way the Reds do it—by force.

Despite the flat opposition of both belligerents, there was no let up in U.N. efforts to get a cease-fire. Sir Leslie Knox Munro of New Zealand, Security Council president for January, was expected to take the lead in inviting the Reds to send representatives to the debate, with India playing a prominent role as go-between.

Munro made it clear that the U.N. debate does not involve Formosa or the nearby Pescadores islands, which President Eisenhower has been given congressional permission to defend. He said the debate will be confined to the "question of hositilities in the area of certain islands off the coast of mainland China."

Three Children Die in Blazing Residence

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Three small children were burned to death Saturday and the sobbing mother said the oldest, 4-year-old Ima Jean, probably started the fire while playing with matches.

The charred bodies of Ima Jean; Russhel Boston Jr., 3; and Clarence Earl, 1, were found in the ruins of their two-room home. Both parents were away when the fire started and returned when the blaze was out of control.

Big Developments Due in Atom-Weapon Field

By ED CREAGH

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission Saturday held out the prospect of new "major developments" in the field of atomic weapons.

AEC said, in a semiannual report to Congress, that "new areas of research" were opened by last spring's "Operation Castle" tests in the Pacific.

It said also new tests to start in about two weeks at the Nevada test site are needed "to obtain scientific knowledge essential to development and utilitization of nuclear weapons for defense of this nation and the free world."

AEC gave no details in the report and officials declined to elaborate on it.

There was unofficial speculation, however, that the "new areas" might have to do with (1) long-range hydrogen-bomb guided missiles, (2) shorter-range missiles aimed at knocking down atomic-armed aerial invading craft, or (3) better ways of making atomic weapons.

Another possibility—that some sort of super-hydrogen-bomb might be in the works—appeared less likely.

The AEC report gave these other progress highlights of the nation's atomic energy program, which it said has cost $13,200,000,000 since its beginning in World War II:

1. "Added emphasis" on peacetime uses of atomic energy as a result of new authority given by the Cole-Hickenlooper act of 1954.

2. Greater participation by private industry in atomic development, especially in experimental production of atomic power for commercial use. The report said AEC now has "evolved a pattern for research and development from which it believes will come nuclear power plants that will compete with other sources of energy."

3. Continued stress on research into the uses of radioactive materials to treat cancer and other diseases.

Trial Dates Reset for 5 in Santa Ana

SANTA ANA—Superior Court trial dates of five men accused under two Orange County Grand Jury indictments charging liquor license manipulations were on new schedules today, as two others won continuance of their arraignments under another true bill.

Judge Franklin G. West vacated the Feb. 7 trial date of Herman Pause, A. G. Eldred and Takeo Takekoshi and reset it for March 21.

Pause, suspended liquor-control chief for Orange County; Eldred, onetime million-dollar-a-year realty operator now in prison for grand theft and forgery of trust deeds, and Takekoshi, a Los Angeles man accused of manipulating liquor licenses in Eldred's El Robert Co., are charged with conspiracy.

Retrial of Charles E. (Red) Devine, executive secretary of the Orange County Central Labor Council, and Harry Lehman, business agent for the Culinary Workers' Union at Long Beach, will be March 28. A trial jury disagreed on the conspiracy-to-commit-grand-theft count linking the two labor leaders.

Arraignment of Al Tossas and Louis Trapani on three counts, one charging conspiracy to bribe liquor officials and the other two alleging conspiracy to commit grand theft from William A. McClure of Dana Point, was continued until March 25.

Tossas, 51, of 924 Dawson St., Long Beach, a cafe man; and Trapani, 40, a beer salesman now in Chino Prison under San Diego County conviction of similar charges, have three times won continuances of their arraignment.

AEC Manager Resigning, He Says, to Boost Earnings

WASHINGTON (U.P.) — Maj. Gen. Kenneth D. Nichols disclosed Saturday that he is resigning as general manager of the Atomic Energy Commission, effective May 1, to go into private business as a consulting engineer.

R. W. Cook, now deputy general manager, is considered a likely candidate to succeed him as operating head of the nation's $13,200,000,000 atomic production complex.

Nichols, a career Army officer who played a leading role in the pioneering of the wartime Manhattan District atomic bomb project, has been general manager since Nov. 1, 1953.

In his letter of resignation, submitted to AEC Chairman Lewis L. Strauss on Jan. 17, he said he wanted to go into private business for "personal reasons."

Elaborating on that statement, Saturday, he told a reporter that, after 30 years of government service, he feels he has an obligation to "earn more money" to provide for the education of his two children. His AEC salary is $20,000 a year.

He emphasized that his departure was not motivated by "any conflict of any kind" over policies or programs. He thanked Strauss warmly for the chairman's "support and confidence during the time I have been general manager."

Nichols and Strauss have been closely allied on both of the two big controversies that have shaken the commission in the past year. Both favored revoking the security clearance of the noted physicist, Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, and both supported the Dixon-Yates power contract.

The AEC has not yet formally acted on Nichols' resignation.

to end the present hostilities in the area, but we also are united in our determination to defend an area vital to the security of the United States and the free world."

Eisenhower, Secretary of State Dulles and the Joint Chiefs of Staff had already worked out orders for initial use of the special authority—overwhelmingly voted by Congress.

Informants said the first problem was use of the U. S. 7th Fleet with air cover for evacuation of the division of Chinese Nationalist troops from the Tachen islands, and that this operation would now proceed.

The President read a statement after affixing his signature at 8:42 a. m. to the joint congressional resolution. He stressed both the warlike and the peaceful aspects of the unprecedented action, which began Monday when he asked Congress to endorse his Formosa policy and establish beyond question his power to carry it out.

The House first approved the joint resolution Tuesday by a vote of 409-3. Friday night, after a bitter argument over the extent of the Presient's powers and whether he could order a "preventive war" against Communist China, the Senate adopted the resolution 85-3.

Under it Eisenhower now has clear authority through his own constitutional powers and from Congress to use American armed forces to defend Formosa against any attack in the island itself or on any island off the Red China shore. He also has authority to use American forces against any concentration of troops assembled on the Communist mainland for the presumed purpose of invading Formosa.

The evacuation of the Tachen Islands 200 miles north of Formosa will involve grave risks of some American losses, administration officials believe, and so will the redeployment of Chiang Kai-shek's forces to Formosa or to such key offshore positions as the Quemoys and Matsus. It was understood here that American pilots will have the right of "hot pursuit" if Chinese jets attack and then run back over the China mainland, a right denied them during the Korean war.

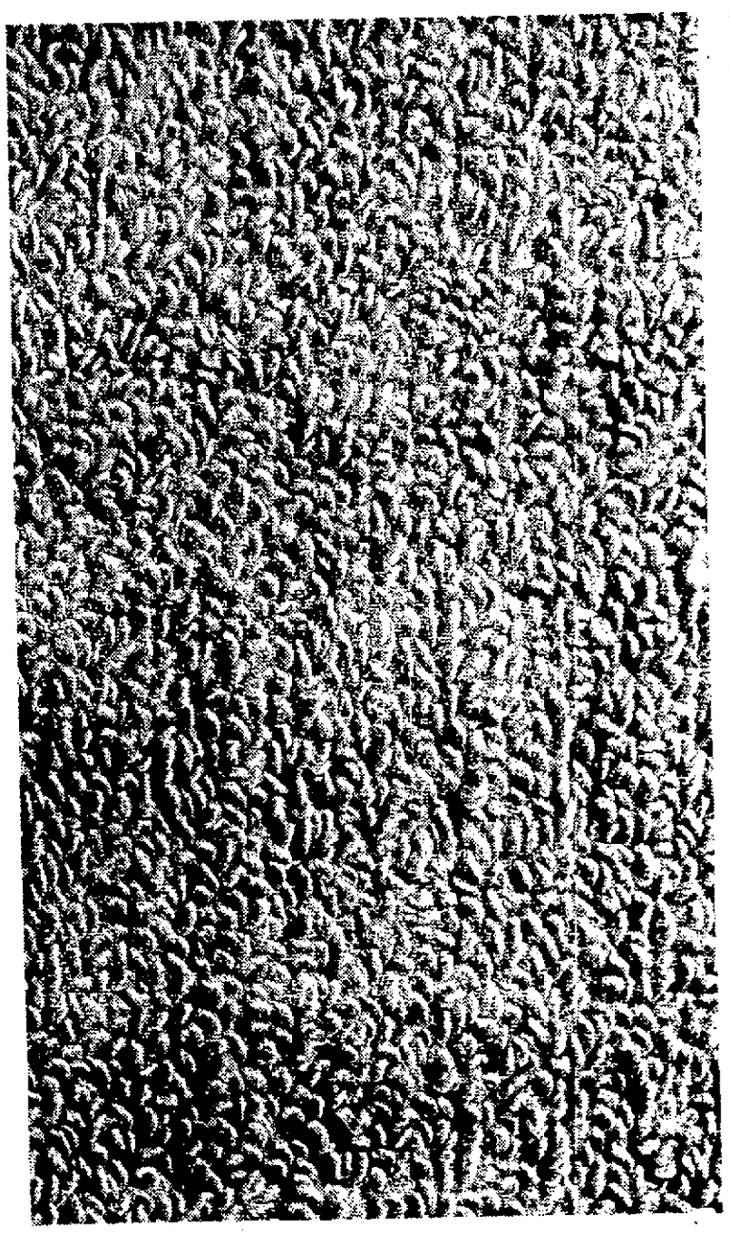

The Eisenhower administration apparently felt no sense of emergency as a result of the signing of the resolution and the imminence of 7th Fleet operations under it.

At 11:09 a.m. the President arrived in Augusta, Ga., for a golfing weekend, and Secretary of State Dulles left about the same time for a week's fishing and rest in the Bahamas.

Aides said both men would be quickly available if officials standing by in Washington needed them.

U.S. Must Use U.N., Dr. Chen Warns Here

This is a year of decision not only in the Far East but in the world with momentous happenings probable in the next few months, warned Dr. Theodore Hsi-en Chen, USC professor, Saturday when he addressed the first Southern California convention of the American Assn. for the United Nations.

Dr. Chen, head of the USC Department of Asiatic Studies and professor of international relations, who recently returned from a trip to Formosa, spoke at the convention in Lafayette Hotel. More than 100 delegates from 24 chapters from Santa Barbara to the Southern California border attended.

Formosa, Indo-China and Thailand all constitute "explosive situations," he said, with at the moment the spotlight on Formosa.

"The United States must take leadership with the United Nations," he said, "It can not shirk that leadership. The United Nations has a wonderful opportunity to go into Formosa with education, culture and ideology and give Formosa a life that is not only better but very different from that of the Red China mainland."

Even though it pours out billions in aid over the world, the luncheon meeting of the one-day United States meets not only lack of appreciation but downright suspicion unless it acts through the United Nations, he said.

"I rejoice," he said, "that in Korea the United States acted as part of the United Nations. . . Unfortunately, in Indo-China where the United States has spent millions of dollars, the United States is suspected of sustaining French colonization."

Dr. Chen expects important decisions from the forthcoming Southeastern Asia conference in Bangkok and the Asia-Afro conference in Indonesia.

Eastern Asia countries principally want three things, he said: national independence, economic betterment and reform and modernization. "Reform and modernization, broadly speaking, mean democracy," he said.

The menace, he said, is that communism promises these things.

He believes that aid first should be given on a military level," for without military might we have nothing—we invite aggression." Then he thinks it should be given on an economic level then on an ideological level.

Applause greeted his statement "A democracy can not afford to support the status quo."

Egypt and Iraq Wrangle Anew at Arabs' Parley

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — A fresh outburst of wrangling between Egypt and Iraq over the western-supported Turkish-Iraqi defense pact prolonged the Arab League premiers' conference Saturday night.

The Arab League nations other than Iraq had been expected to bypass an invitation to join Turkey and Iraq and instead ask for American arms to be used in a pan-Arabic security system. Turkey is non-Arab and a partner in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Egyptian officials emerging from what was to have been a final conciliatory session were quoted as saying a new crisis had developed and the expected communique ending the conference would not be issued Saturday night.

QUEEN WILL REIGN

Heart Fund Drive Opens With 'Kick-Off' Luncheon

Leaders among business and professional men in the Long Beach area will meet with the women's division of the Heart Fund campaign in the kick-off luncheon of the Long Beach Heart Assn. Tuesday noon at Virginia Country Club.

Keynote speaker will be Rabbi Elliot L. Grafman, and a featured guest will be Columbia Pitcures starlet Lucy Marlow, who is Queen of Hearts for Los Angeles County.

She will crown the Long Beach Heart Queen, to be announced at the luncheon. Mayor George Vermillion will proclaim February as Heart Fund month.

The heart fund committee will provide information, education, research and other services in the fight to reduce the toll taken each year by heart disease, the nation's number one killer according to W. G. (Bill) Wilson, general chairman of the campaign.

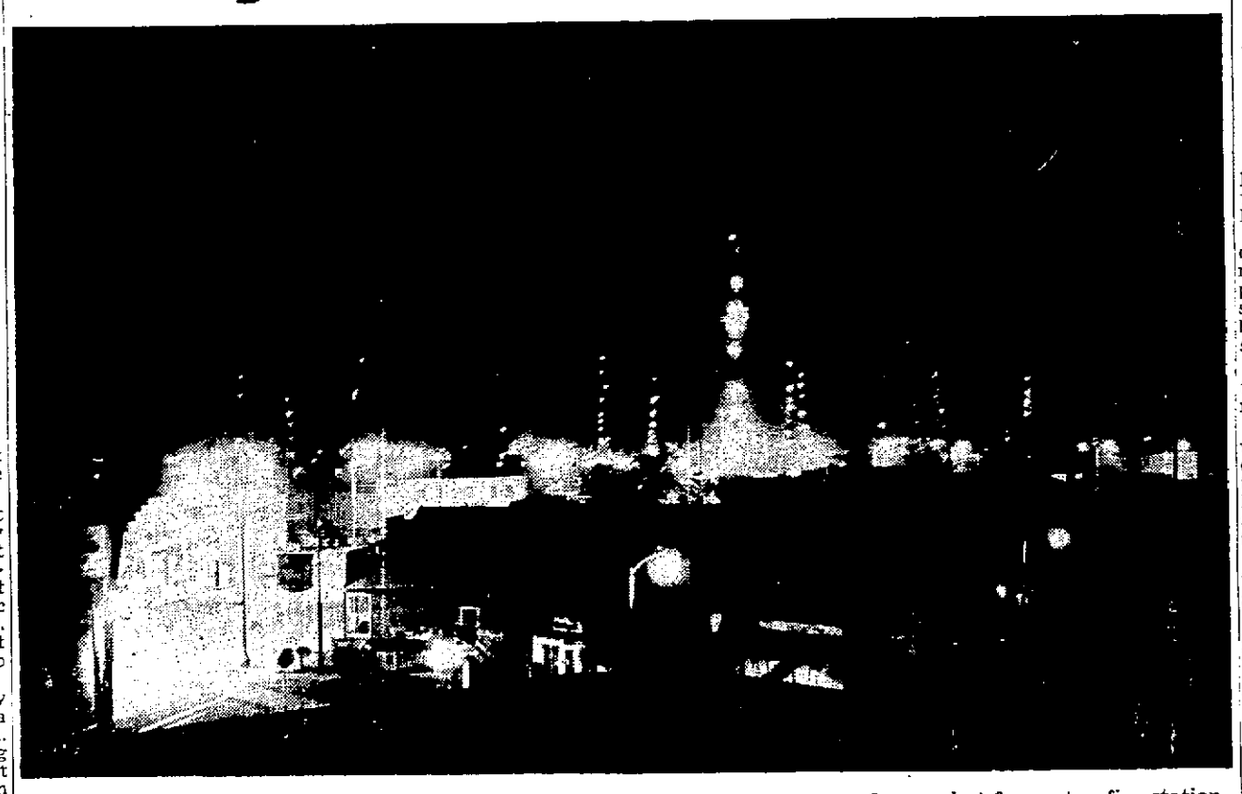

Members of the advisory committee include George Badenhousen, co-chairman; Mrs. J. Roscoe Howell, women's division and Aubrey Edwards, advance gifts.

Other committee chairmen include Robert McNulty, Ken Jackson, Leonard L. Bendinger, Edward W. Sheridan, Don Comfort, Dr. Harold Morris, Mrs. Edith Klein, Ralph Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Killingsworth, Dr. Elmer Clark, Dr. Paul Wilkins, Mrs. Ruth Light and Dr. Pettus G. Secrest, president of the Long Beach Heart Assn.

Huntington Beach Booms Night, Day

'Biggest Oil Boom Yet' Dazzles, Jolts, Begrimes Huntington Beach

follows are getting away without them.

"They'll come in and maybe buy one per cent of a lease for $6,000, then turn it over the next day for twice that amount."

For it's not only Cadillac Lane that's petroleum plated.

Sixth, Seventh and Eighth Sts. are beginning to enter the picture.

Reginald Pate, mailman, lives at 522 14th St. He figures to be in on the boom.

"They're drilling a half block from me now," he said. "I'm keeping my fingers crossed.

Pate's regular delivery route carries him along Cadillac Lane.

"Regular jungle of derricks now," he said. "Used to be packed solid with houses.

Two motel-courts still stand on the street. As Pete spoke, the "Vacancy" sign on one vibrated with the tempo of the drilling rig next to it.

But it was no longer a sign of the times. The motel rooms have been converted to keep pace with the tremors. They are now field offices for oil companies.

The new boom started when a young Long Beach trumpet player with a college degree in geology hit a layer of oil-rich sand at 3800 feet.

The trumpeter, Jack B. Crawford, 23, has interests in five producing wells in Huntington Beach now and the sound of the pumps is sweet music to his ears.

William Gallienne, secretary-manager of the Huntington Beach Chamber of Commerce, is one of those who was in the community during the oil booms of 1920 and 1925.

"I don't know where this one will end," he said. "This is the biggest one we've ever had."

And it looks big—and dirty.

Streets are torn up. Gardens are lakes of mud. Rubble of the wrecked homes litters the sidewalks.

There's tension, distrust.

There's the fever that comes with being newly rich.

And there is the jealousy of those who haven't. They have dire predictions for the city's decline.

The Huntington Beach News, pen in cheek, editorially answered them. It said:

"We have no social aspirations which towering million-dollar oil derricks embarrass."

If Red Flashers of School Bus Are On, Do Not Pass

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Put your foot on the brakes when you see a stopped school bus with flashing red lights, the California Highway Patrol warned Saturday.

"The law requires all drivers approaching a school bus from either direction to stop if the red lights are flashing and wait until they stop flashing," said Commissioner B. R. Caldwell.

The only exception, said Caldwell, is when the bus is on the opposite portion of a divided highway.

HOLY SMOKE!

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y. (AP) — For 12 years the Jesuit hermitage at St. Andrews-on-Hudson has had its own fire engine waiting for a possible fire. Friday night the barn burned down and the fire engine was destroyed.

NEW RECORDS AT CITY LIBRARY

Suites, ballets and sonatas make a selection of delightful listening easy. The Public Library suggests these new recordings from their collection:

"The Ballet" (conducted by Fiedler, Munch, Monteaux, Toscanini and Stokowski); Rachmaninoff, "Sonata in G Minor" (Joseph Schuster, 'cello, and Leonard Pennario, piano); Rossini, "La Boutique Fantasque" (Philharmonic Orchestra); Stravinski, "Pulcinella," with Respighi, "Old Dances and Airs for the Lute" and Tartini, "Sonata in G Minor for Violin and Clavier" Oistrakh, violin) with Beethoven, "Sonata in F Major for Violin and Piano."

Trained Shepherd Dogs Offered by Tex for Adoption

Albert (Tex) Schuepbach, noted dog and reptile expert, Saturday offered for adoption his two black, German shepherd dogs, Little Boy Blue and Bonnie Blue.

Tex has been under the weather lately with a combination of miseries, including asthma and heart trouble. He feels he doesn't have the energy properly to care for the animals.

The dogs are well trained and obedient.

Those desiring to discuss the matter with Tex can find him at his apartment, 1251½ Locust Ave.

KIN'S BLESSING STILL SOUGHT

Yacht Broker, Heiress in Honeymoon Home

NEWPORT BEACH—John A. Miller, local yacht broker, and his new wife, a young English heiress who defied parental wishes to marry Miller last Thursday in Las Vegas, were in their island honeymoon home Saturday, vowing to make their marriage work.

"We're hoping my parents will change their attitude toward our marriage," said the former Josephine Stuart Henderson, of Horsham, Eng., daughter of Birmingham hotel owner C. S. Henderson.

The couple met last June after the pretty, brunette heiress arrived here to visit relatives.

A trip to England several weeks ago failed to win parental consent of the match. Only 18, the girl could not be married in England without her parents' approval, so the pair decided on the Nevada wedding.

Mrs. Miller said her father was "very much against" the wedding. Her mother, Mrs. John Burroughs, London and Horsham, also opposed the union but in lesser degree, she said.

Miller, 32, divorced by his first wife in San Diego in 1953, plans to sail in the Honolulu yacht race next July and his wife said she would fly to the islands to meet him.

Red-Fascist Clash Injures 18 in Italy

ROME, Italy (AP)—Eighteen students were injured, six seriously, in a battle between Communists and Fascists with clubs and bricks at Rome University Saturday night.

Police broke it up. They said the fight started when the Communists waylaid the young Fascists returning from a rally.

PARTY-LINE HOG ARRESTED IN NEW YORK

RHINBECK, N. Y. (AP)—A woman who reportedly refused to get off a party line in an emergency was arrested Saturday under a state law which went into effect only four months ago.

Mrs. Mary L. Kayes, 43, was charged with a misdemeanor for allegedly refusing to hang up and let Fire Warden Donald Townsend report a grass fire which subsequently destroyed a barn. She was released on $500 bail.

A 1955 auto stolen early Saturday from in front of 2708 Rutgers Ave.—by a thief who overlooked $790 in cash and traveler's checks left in the car—was recovered by police later in the day several blocks away.

Officers said the car had been abandoned in the 4700 block on Sunfield Ave. Clothing left in the auto had not been taken.

Earlier, a hatbox which had been in the car was found on the front lawn of a home at 4826 Faculty Ave. Officers said the thief apparently had not looked closely enough in the box to notice it contained $490 in cash and $300 in traveler's checks.

The owner of the car was listed as Frank I. Tyler, a St. Paul, Minn., police sergeant. Tyler and his wife, Eugenia, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Lannon of the Rutgers Ave. address. Lannon is a retired St. Paul detective.

Seaman Ends Life by Gas

Survivors include the wife, Anneliese, of 328 Elm Ave., Long Beach.

Johnson, a merchant seaman aboard the tanker SS Santa Rosa, was found in a hotel room at 736½ Avalon Blvd., by the landlady, Mrs. Helen Brown. Police said he had turned on a gas jet, and put a blanket over his head as he inhaled the fumes.

Italian Star Has Son

ROME (U.P.)—Sultry Italian Movie Actress Silvana Mangano Saturday gave birth to a son at the Louisana clinic in the fashionable Rome residential district of Parioli. It was the actress' third child. She married Producer Dino Di Laurentiis in 1949 and they have two daughters.

How to Live Through Auto Crash; Learn How to 'Roll With Punch'

By RENNIE TAYLOR
Associated Press Science Reporter

LOS ANGELES (AP)—You can greatly increase your chances of surviving an automobile crash by learning how to "roll with the punch," says a bone surgeon who has spent years studying the fine points of traffic accidents.

If you see it coming, or even if it looks only like it is going to be a close shave, put your arms on the dashboard and cradle your head in them, he advises. If you're in the rear seat, use the back of the front seat the same way.

How these simple ways of cushioning the head against sudden impact can save life or prevent serious injury was illustrated in an exhibit at a meeting of the American Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons.

The exhibit, a series mainly of graphs and pictures of mangled bodies and automobile wrecks, shows strikingly how a little bit of cushioning helps a lot.

One picture shows how an egg can survive a drop of a foot or more to the hard surface of a table if it is taped to a piece of corrugated paper and lands with the paper between it and the table.

Cushioning can do a similar thing for the skull, said Dr. Jacob Kulowski of St. Joseph, Mo., who made the over-all study.

The head gets 63 per cent of the injuries in car crashes, he added. Legs and arms get 54 per cent, the chest 28, the trunk and pelvis, 17, and the abdomen only 3.

So it is the head, legs and arms that need the most protection. The figures add up to more than 100 per cent because in some instances two or more body areas are hurt.

Quoting studies made at Cornell University, Dr. Kulowski said the average pressures at the instant of an auto crash range from 50 to 400 pounds per square inch.

This far outstrips sample figures given by civilian defense officials for the blast wave of an atom bomb which they put at 5 pounds per square inch. The difference is that the pressure in an auto crash is applied to only a few square feet, where the atom bomb may cover many square miles.

Some things needed in automobiles to reduce injury, Dr. Kulowski said, are scientifically padded dashboards, windshields which will give a little before they break and steering posts which will telescope instead of impaling the body of the driver.

Reduced engine power would help greatly, he added.

"Increased engine power," he said, "is an invitation to higher speed and it is speed which boosts the death rate. We don't need all that extra power. It is not right. It is silly."

Sierra Snow Deeper, but Low on H2O

FRESNO (AP)—The U. S. Forest Service, reporting on the first snow survey of the season in the Sierra National Forest, says the pack is generally deeper and with a higher water content than last year but the water content figures still are slightly below normal.

Rangers Arnold Snyder and George Priest gave these representative findings after a four-day, 80-mile trip by snow tractor and snow shoes:

Chilkoot Lake, elevation 7,500 feet, 67 inches of snow with a water content of 19.6 inches; this compares with last year's 48 inches of snow and 16 inches of water content.

Poison Meadow, elevation 6,850 feet, 55.9 inches of snow with 16.2 inches of water. Last year the figures were 32 and 12 inches.

Cora Lakes, 8,500 feet elevation, 74 inches of snow and 20.7 inches of water. In 1954 the snowpack was 56 inches and the water content measured 14.

Kin of Jailed Airmen Gather, Thank President

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Wives and mothers of U. S. Airmen held in Communist China, some of them choked with tears, Saturday night thanked President Eisenhower for efforts to get their loved ones out of Red prisons.

It was the first time that relatives—13 in all—had been able to get together to share common emotions and experiences. The gathering was made possible by a group of businessmen here.

The women agreed with the State Department that it would be impractical—even foolish—to try to accept the Reds' offer to permit them to visit their jailed relatives, and Herman Talmadge, former governor of Georgia who was principal speaker at a dinner for the group, agreed with them.

In his prepared speech, Talmadge had criticized U. S. foreign policy as wavering but switched from this to say "I'm glad to see that our policy in recent days has changed from one of 'keep 'em guessing' to one that says 'You may go so far and no farther.'"

It brought applause from the 100 persons in the hotel dining room.

Each of the airmen's relatives spoke for less than a minute to express gratitude for being able to meet one another.

As Mrs. Una Schmidt of Boise, Idaho, wife of Airman Daniel C. Schmidt said: "Bringing all of us here has helped settle our minds."

Mrs. Charline Benjamin of Worthington, Minn., wife of Capt. Harry Benjamin, said "I hope you all will pray for us and hope we can get our loved one back with us soon."

Mau Mau Chief Held

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Police made a surprise raid on the servants' quarters of an Asian girls' school in Nairobi Saturday and captured "General" Karioki Chapara. He is the reputed commander of all Mau Mau terrorists in the city.

Reps. Vinson, Short Favor Superships

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy had the support of the two top members of the House Armed Services Committee today in its plans to build a fifth supercarrier of the 60,000-ton Forrestal class.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ga) said that while the carrier already has been authorized, his committee will hold formal hearings on the project with a view of lending its "moral support" when a request is made for funds.

Rep. Short of Missouri, senior Republican on the committee, also said a formal recommendation by the armed services group might help offset reported opposition to the new supercarrier by Chairman Cannon (D-Mo) of the Appropriations Committee.

The Forrestal cost nearly 200 million dollars. Cannon said recently he had been informed that big carriers are highly vulnerable to enemy attack.

Three-State Kidnap Hunt Nets No Clue

SAN GABRIEL (UP) — Suspected kidnaper Harold Wayne Lewis, 28, eluded police Saturday in a three-state hunt which began Thursday when he allegedly abducted his 20-month-old son.

Los Angeles police alerted authorities in Pennsylvania and Illinois after a complaint charging Lewis with kidnaping and child-stealing was issued in the disappearance of his son, Gary Wayne.

The complaint was filed by Lewis' former wife, Olga Marie Lewis, 25. Mrs. Lewis told police her estranged husband forcibly took the child from her four months ago and that she regained custody of him in Chicago with the help of police.

Officers said the suspect had relatives in Illinois and Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Lewis said her husband and another man pulled up next to her car Thursday night. She declared Lewis threatened her with a vial of nitroglycerin.

Dealer Displays Competitor Cars, Too; Hails Experiment

DETROIT (UP)—A motorist in the market for a new car some day may be able to shop for it in an "automobile supermarket," an enterprising Detroit dealer says.

The dealer, Thomas T. Petzold, gave the supermarket plan a test in his showroom this week and pronounced it "a howling success."

Petzold, owner and merchandising manager for the Petzold Motor Sales Co., lined up his chief competitor's cars beside his and invited prospective customers to shop around.

"The public response has been terrific," the businessman beamed. "We were sold out within three days and had to send out an S.O.S. to the factory for more cars."

Petzold instructed his 15 salesmen to make no criticism of the other makes. "We'll conduct this campaign on a high plane without knocking the other man's product," he told them.

More than 200 persons milled about the big showroom at times, comparing styling and prices. Price tags on the three models differed by only a few dollars.

"I'm the first dealer in automobile history to try this method of selling cars," Petzold explained.

"Some day, many car dealers may display competitive products to let the customers choose for themselves in a sort of supermarket for automobiles."

MODEL PLANE DOWNS PILOT

SUNNYDALE (UP) — A model plane caused the grounding Saturday of a 28-year-old Navy pilot of Moffett Field with 3,500 hours of flying time.

Lt. Ernest Callaway, flying the model near his home at 788 Lois Ave., was flattened when the plane hit a high voltage wire. Physicians at the Moffett Field infirmary, where he was taken, said he was "slightly burned."

Four Miners Feared Dead in Cave-in

RAVENSDALE, Wash. (UP)—Four miners were presumed dead today, trapped under 450 feet of water, sand and gravel from a cave-in at the Landsburg mine here.

John Morris, president of the Palmer Coke and Coal Co., said there was "no chance" the four trapped men could still be alive. He identified them as Nathan D. Russell of Carbonado, Frank Stebley of Black Diamond, Louis Valentia of Ravensdale and John Kovash of Maple Valley.

All four reportedly were between 45 and 50 year old and all four were married.

The men were buried only 2,000 feet from the spot where miner Harry J. English was entombed at the same time about one year ago. A monument to English stands on the surface above the spot where he was trapped.

Morris said the cave-in apparently occurred about 4 a.m. Saturday.

Brownell Asks Better Safeguards for Workers Accused as 'Risks'

WASHINGTON (UP) — Atty. Gen. Brownell has ordered federal agencies to give more legal safeguards to accused employes in a move to counteract unfavorable publicity on the administration's security program, the Sunday Star said Saturday night.

The newspaper said also that apparently in anticipation of the forthcoming congressional investigation of the security program, Brownell and his legal staff told the agencies that they are not required to spell out to Congress the processes by which they arrived at a decision in any security case.

The agencies also were told, the Star said, to inform the Justice Department immediately of any request by a congressional committee for information in security cases. A Justice Department spokesman declined comment on the story.

The changes in policy, the story said, were laid down at a special meeting called by Brownell with the general counsels of the various departments and agencies.

The Star said the general counsels were told that steps must be taken to offset the unfavorable publicity on the program from the press, various professional and citizens groups and Democratic members of Congress, who are preparing an investigation of the entire program.

The Star said Brownell informed the agency legal representatives that the following procedures should be followed:

1. Witnesses should be required to testify in person at the hearing of an employe on security charges, rather than file a written statement as is done in many cases at present. This would give the employe a chance to confront his accuser.

2. A legal adviser should be furnished by the agency at all hearings conducted by the employe security boards to make sure that the legal rights of the accused employe are observed.

3. Employes in these cases should be given a hearing within 15 days after suspension wherever possible, instead of letting the matter drag for months.

4. Agency heads should be informed of details of a case before any employe is suspended.

5. The rule that employes be furnished with written charges detailing the accusation against them should be closely adhered to.

6. There should be greater adherence to ordinary legal rules of evidence than in the past.

Air Defense Drops Radar Station Plans

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UP) — The Continental Air Defense Command reported Saturday that technical improvements in radar and other electronics equipment have resulted in cancellation of plans to construct new radar sites at eight locations.

These were to have been built near Elizabethtown, Pa.; Bowling Green and Nevada, Mo.; Sioux City, Iowa; Falls City, Neb.; Berlin, Md.; and Shafter and Ferndale, Calif.

The command said deletion of these sites will save $4,139,000 in construction costs and about two million dollars in equipment. Radar coverage needed for defense of the United States against air attack has been obtained without the additional construction, it said.

Rubinstein's Mother, 78, Says She Heard Ired Voices Night of Killing

NEW YORK (AP)—Serge Rubinstein's mother told reporters Saturday she heard angry voices of strange men in their home a few hours before the financier was found bound, gagged and slain.

Mrs. Stella Rubinstein, 78, spoke to reporters at the funeral home where the body of the dead financier lay.

Later an official said she had told authorities about the voices on Thursday, the day of the murder.

The official quoted Mrs. Rubinstein as saying that when the voices woke her up, in her bedroom one flight above her son's, she turned the light on.

Then, hearing nothing further, she turned the light off and went back to sleep.

Mrs. Rubinstein spoke to reporters at the funeral home while two women companions were urging her to be silent.

She said that although her hearing is impaired, she could clearly hear several male voices.

Sitting near the casket, the elderly woman seemed grief-stricken but in command of herself as she told of returning home from the opera at 11:45 Wednesday, the night before the killing.

As she entered the 5th Ave. mansion, she said she noticed the elevator light was out, and "that always meant that Serge was home."

She said she passed his room on the third floor and went on to her own one flight above.

Mrs. Rubinstein said she heard the voices about 1 a. m.

But according to one of Rubinstein's girl friends, he did not leave a night club until 1:30, and it was 2 a. m. before he and the girl finished a nightcap at his home and she left.

In her statement to newsmen Saturday, the mother said she heard the voices coming from her son's study.

"From their voices, there was an argument," she said. "I went into the hall. I called: 'Serge! Serge!' several times. There wasn't any answer.

"I called again: 'Serge! Serge!' but there wasn't any answer."

She said she did not raise any alarm "because he sometimes brought men home," and when the voices stopped, she returned to her room.

GOT A MINK FROM RUBINSTEIN

Rosemary Peters, 19, an aspiring and bosomy actress with no light to shed on Serge Rubinstein's slaying, exudes charm Saturday as she conducts a Hollywood press conference at which she shed none. She did reveal that Rubinstein once had given her a mink coat—which she returned.—(AP Wirephoto.)

Strike Suspends Brooklyn Eagle

NEW YORK (UP)—The American Newspaper Guild (CIO) went on strike against the Brooklyn Eagle Saturday, and the 114-year-old newspaper suspended publication when mechanical workers refused to cross the picket lines set up by editorial workers.

The strike was called as the result of a contract dispute. The guild asked for a $5.80 package increase for a two-year contract, with workers receiving $3.40 weekly this year and $2.40 more next year.

The Eagle offered a package of $1.40 weekly this year and $1 next year.

Chinchilla Djsplay

Southern California Division, Chinchilla Association of America, will hold a one-day open show in the Teen Age Community Center Auditorium, 1651 Market St., Gardena, Feb. 27. Registration for the show will begin at 7:30 a.m. and judging will start at 10:30 a.m. No unhealthy animals will be allowed in the building.

Girl Tells of Serge's Dates, Gift

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A shapely brunette who aspires to be an actress held a news conference Saturday to tell about her platonic relationship with murdered Serge Rubinstein.

"Serge gave me a mink stole on what he called our 'first anniversary' but I thought too much of him to keep it. I gave it back," said Rosemary Peters, who was Miss Pomona, (Calif.) of 1952. She is 19.

Rosemary didn't add much to the Rubinstein story, except insofar as she was concerned.

Rosemary met him a year ago Christmas at Palm Springs and had several dates with him, she said. Last November, she went to New York to visit him. When Rubinstein was here last Christmas, she saw him also. She was asked if the draft dodger ever said anything about putting her in his will.

Rosemary coyly replied: "Not anything definite, although he would say things like remembering me and the like."

Miss Peters went to the Los Angeles Airport with Rubinstein last Dec. 29 when he returned to New York.

She said he telephoned her last week to say he would be returning to see her. Serge, she insisted, wanted to put her in pictures, but she refused to sign a contract.

She was asked if Serge had any pet names for her. Rosemary blushed nicely, looked to her attorney, who had arranged the conference, and then said:

"Well, yes, but I won't tell."

Hoover Urges Birth Control on Red Tape

WASHINGTON (UP)—Former President Herbert Hoover Saturday night recommended "birth control of federal documents" to eliminate some of the 25,000,000,000 pieces of paper the government circulates each year.

He discussed this and related problems of "big government" in a good-humored speech at the annual dinner of National Business Publications where he received the organization's Silver Quill award for distinguished public service.

The 80-year-old former chief executive predicted that "some people will dislike" the recommendations for federal economy and efficiency that will soon be made by his new Commission on Government Reorganization. But he said he will be comforted, in the face of any criticism, by the knowledge that "old reformers never die . . . they get thrown out."

This was an allusion to Gen. Douglas MacArthur's famous remark that "old soldiers never die, they just fade away."

Mr. Hoover's prescription for "birth control of federal documents" was offered during discussion of a survey recently completed by his Commission of Government Paper Work.

He said the study showed it costs the government about $4,000,000,000 a year to prepare, send out and file 18,000,000,000 forms and questionnaires and 7,000,000,000 letters, reports and other documents.

He said his commission will recommend reforms that should save about $250,000,000 a year in this area, but he admitted that this is "perhaps peanuts as government expenditures go these days."

Ex-Son-in-Law of Texas Murder-Bomb Victim Held

SAN ANGELO, Tex. (UP)—Texas Rangers and police routed wealthy Mrs. Helen Harris Weaver's former son-in-law and a jobless carpenter's helper from bed in Houston, Saturday and arrested them on charges of murdering Mrs. Weaver with a bomb planted in her automobile.

An informer turned in the two suspects. They got a quick questioning in Houston and were rushed to San Angelo and locked up in the Tom Green County jail. A Ranger plane flew them part of the way.

The ex-son-in-law is Harry L. Washburn, 38, who was indicted three years ago on a charge of threatening Mrs. Weaver, 52, with a gun. The unemployed carpenter's helper is Carlton G. Henninger, 37. Both are charged with murder.

Houston police held John McKinnis, 45, an air-conditioning installer, and James Fife, 35, a construction worker, but did not charge them immediately. McKinnis was the informer and may get a $10,000 reward offered by the Weaver family.

Mrs. Weaver, a descendant of pioneer west Texas settlers and a social leader, was murdered Jan. 19. When she pushed on the starter, Nitrogel, packed around the floorboards and wired to the ignition, blew parts of her car half a block and horribly mutilated her.

Suspicion first alighted on Washburn, because of his trouble with Mrs. Weaver three years ago. He apparently was cleared and investigators told Harry L. Weaver, 67 an archeologist, rancher and architect who was her second husband, that he was their No. 1 suspect.

But the facts Saturday indicated that Weaver, far from being a suspect, was the intended victim and that Mrs. Weaver got killed because she tried to start an automobile that the killers suspected her husband would try to drive away.

"That's wonderful, wonderful" Weaver said at his ranch home, 20 miles north of San Angelo when he heard the news. "I suspected Washburn did it.

"I was the intended victim. Washburn wanted me out of the way. I was a man. He couldn't handle me. If he could have killed me, he could have bullied Mrs. Weaver out of all the money she had.

"I am positive that was the reason."

French Chief Causes Duel Cancellation

PARIS (UP)—The duel between Foreign Minister Edgar Faure and the prominent leftist newspaper editor he challenged has been called off, their seconds announced Saturday night.

A joint statement said the seconds decided at a meeting that the incident is to be "considered closed."

Faure, 47, had challenged Jean-Jacques Servan-Schreiber.

Almost coincidentally with the release of the statement, Premier Pierre Mendes-France's office issued a communique on the affair which admittedly had caused considerable concern in government circles.

The communique said that Mendes-France declared that the article in question "gives a fallacious relationship between the facts mentioned and the meaning attributed to them."

There had been reports that Mendes-France had been prepared to intervene personally to prevent any duel, if requested. Faure is regarded as the premier's right-hand man; the 31-year-old newspaperman is a former member of his "brain trust."

The statement issued by the seconds after their meeting mentioned that the Premier's communique had played a major role in their amicable decision.

Crackdown Launched on Smoky Vehicles

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Smog violators are due for tougher penalties in a new 10-point crackdown begun Saturday by enforcement officials.

Arthur J. Will, temporary director of district air pollution control, made the announcement. Motorists with excessive exhaust discharges will be vigorously prosecuted as one of the corrective measures.

Oranges Steady, Shipments Gain

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Sales of California navel oranges spurted last week and prices held steady at about $4 a box F.O.B., Sunkist Growers reported.

More than 700 cars of navel oranges were shipped, an increase of 50 over the preceding week. This week's prorate has been set at 550 cars of Central California navels and 450 of Southern California navels.

Lemon sales were up about 200 cars, unchanged from last week. Prices averaged slightly under $5.75 a box F.O.B., Sunkist said. This week's prorate was set at 250 cars, 25 fewer than last week.

U.S. Will Sell Butter to Asians

WASHINGTON (UP) — The United States is working out plans to sell melted-down butter to India and Pakistan in an attempt to reduce the government's large stock of surplus butter.

The butter would be sold in the form of ghee — a white, mushy substance made by melting butter and pouring off the more liquid part.

HOW DO I GET OUT OF HERE?

Mighty perplexed bird pauses briefly on filing cabinet Saturday in Municipal Utilities Bldg. on Broadway, unable to find its way back to the great outdoors. The bird and a companion darted into an office in the rear of the building Friday. Employes tried hard, but were unable to guide the skittish creatures back to the door through which they entered. Birds, dining on flowers in a vase, probably will remain in their informal coop over the week end.—(Staff Photo by Bryan Hodgson.)

Red Unionists Ducking for Cover, AFL Declares

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Officials expressed belief Saturday that suspected Communist labor leaders of now-independent unions are trying to "duck for cover into the AFL or CIO until the heat's off."

They privately expressed the opinion that Red labor leaders have received party instructions to dissolve their labor groups or merge them into AFL or CIO unions to hide their identity.

They feel the move was prompted by the high degree of anti-Communist feeling prevailing over the nation and by the new subversive control law passed by Congress last year.

The new law contains provisions for penalizing labor organizations determined to be Communist-dominated. But it carries a specific reservation saying that unions affiliated with the AFL or CIO are to be presumed non-Communist.

One group of AFL officials appeared to feel the allegedly Red-controlled unions could be taken in and suspected leaders then gradually weeded out. Another group contends the AFL should proceed more cautiously to avoid the danger of taking in Reds.

Many of the unions in question were ousted from the CIO five years ago for alleged Communist domination. Their membership has dwindled from more than a million to about half that figure as various groups have drifted back to the CIO or into the AFL.

AFL leaders regard a currently proposed merger of the 70,000-member Fur and Leather Workers International Union with the 282,000-member AFL Amalgamated Meat Cutters Union as an initial step in dissolving the Red-led unions. The fur-leather group is one of the CIO-ousted unions.

Patrick Gorman of Chicago, the meat cutters' secretary-treasurer, told reporters Saturday he was confident that sufficient precautions have been taken in merger arrangements to assure that any Reds in the fur-leather organization can be quickly ousted.

Vote $37,500 Award for Crash Injury

Debating four hours after hearing evidence three days, a jury in Superior Judge Joseph M. Maltby's court late Friday awarded a Marine Corps sergeant $37,500 for a fractured right hip joint he suffered in an auto accident.

Aubrey Chasteen, the sergeant, now on limited duty at Corona Naval Hospital and scheduled to be discharged because of the injury, was hurt July 18, 1953, at 7th St. and Pacific Coast Hwy.

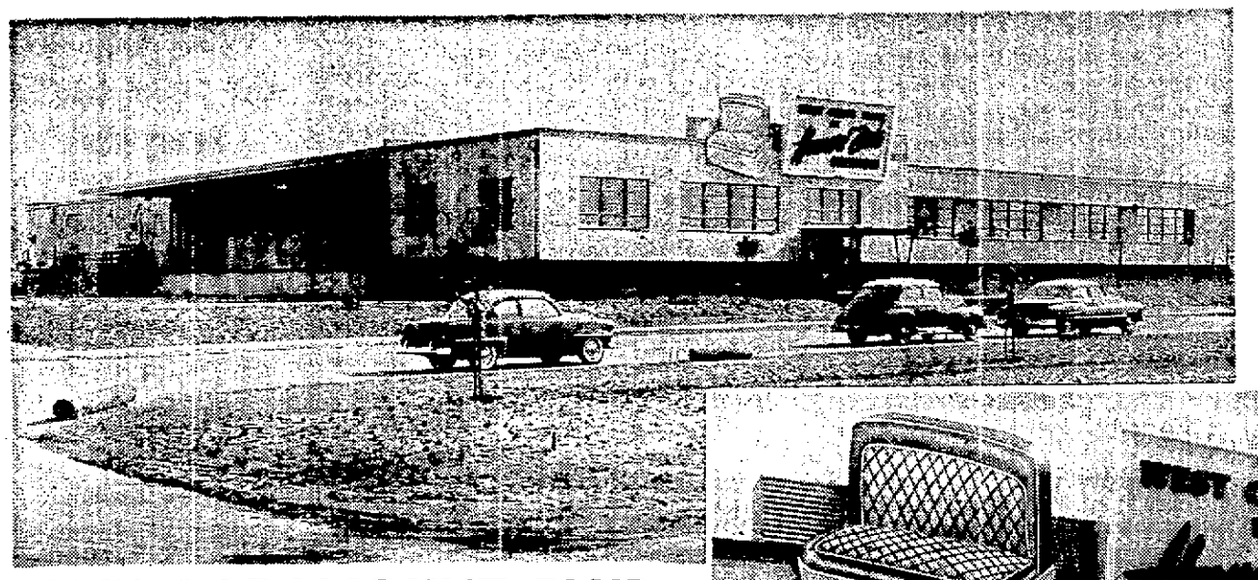

Chasteen's attorney, J. Merrill Lilley, introduced evidence that a defendant in the action, Marvin Snyder, had been drinking and was driving his auto 60 miles an hour when it struck Chasteen's machine.

Snyder filed suit for $30,000 against Chasteen, who had demanded $100,000. The suits were consolidated for trial.

PMF Defiant in Plan for North Africa

PARIS (AP)—Premiere Pierre Mendes-France Saturday night said his government is going ahead with its program for North Africa although it may be kicked out of office on the issue.

In his weekly radio address to the French people, the premier said:

"At this moment the attention of the assembly and public opinion is centered on North Africa. On this subject, various circles have shown an emotion, even an agitation, which might, it has been said, endanger the existence of the government. The government duty, nevertheless, to go ahead with its task which it has often outlined to the assembly and which has been approved each time up to now."

Oil Slick From Tanker Traps Thousands of Sea Birds

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP)—A 600-square-mile oil slick that trapped thousands of sea birds and threatened to ruin beach resorts on the west coast of Jutland, was blown out to sea Saturday by a light easterly wind.

The oil slick, which was half the size of the state of Rhode Island, spread after the Danish tanker Gerd Maersk jettisoned 6,000 tons of crude oil when it was grounded on a Danish beach.

The oil spread along the coastline and trapped thousands of gulls and other seabirds when their feathers became gummed up when they landed.

Gas Station Robber Gets 5-to-Life

SANTA ANA—For robbing a Garden Grove gas station attendant with a sawed-off shotgun last March, David W. Bremer, 21, of 4823 Ashworth St., Lakewood, must serve a term of from five years to life in prison.

Superior Judge John Shea denied probation to the young man, who had pleaded guilty to the holdup of Earl Ward at the gas station, when he seized $309.

China Gaining Industrial Power at Cost of Famine

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP) — A Syracuse University professor who has just completed a study of China's first five-year plan says Mao Tze-tung's Communist regime is making substantial gains in changing China from a backward agricultural nation to an industrial one.

But, adds Dr. George B. Cressey, the price paid for the change has been a high one.

Cressey is a professor of geography in the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs. He says he based his report on three decades of research. According to Cressey's published report:

Although Red China has made significant progress toward an industrial buildup, an artificial famine has been created through exportation of food to Russia and her satellites in payment for industrial equipment.

But if China's economic potential is fully realized, she may eventually overtake Japan and become the dominant power in eastern Asia, although it's unlikely that China ever will attain the material level of Western Europe or North America. Her chances are limited because of inadequate resources.

Cressey forecasts considerable progress for China in mining, industry, communications and urban growth within the next 10 years, if the period is a peaceful one.

He says the apparent industrial boom stems from China's hard push to reach her five-year-plan goal of having industry produce 70 per cent of the gross national product.

Cressey says improved transportation has been given top priority.

Russ Propose West German Diplomatic Ties at Once

BERLIN (AP)—Russia, through the Communist East German government, Saturday night put out feelers to Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's West German government on resumption of diplomatic relations.

The East Germans in an official statement said the Soviet action ending the state of war with Germany "makes it possible for the federal republic immediately to take up normal relations with the Soviet Union if it (West Germany) wants to."

The German Communists also said that East-West German negotiations on free elections unifying the nation could be held this year if the Paris German rearmament treaties are dropped.

The Communist statement was issued after Soviet Ambassador to East Germany Georgi M. Pushkin conferred with East German leaders. Pushkin recently returned from a Kremlin conference in Moscow.

The Soviets earlier this month said normal diplomatic relations could be established with West Germany if the Paris treaties were dropped.

However, Saturday's East German statement did not call for the giving up of the Paris pacts but said Soviet West German relations could be established immediately.

Western observers said that Saturday's East German statement was just another Soviet tactic to block ratification of the Paris pacts.

Russ Confirm Envoy's Peace Offer to Japan

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet Union announced Saturday night it has formally notified Japan of readiness to start talks aimed at normalizing Soviet-Japanese relations, Moscow radio reported.

The broadcast told of a call by Andrei Dominitsky, chief Soviet representative in Japan, on Prime Minister Ichiro Hatoyama on Jan. 25. It said the Russian, on instructions of the Soviet government, made this statement:

"Being guided by the striving to normalize relations with Japan, the U.S.S.R., as is unknown, has invariably favored a settlement. Its readiness to normalize Soviet-Japanese relations has been expressed in particular in the well-known joint declaration of the governments of the U.S.S.R., and the Chinese People's Republic of 17th October as well as in the statement of the U.S.S.R. Minister of Foreign Affairs Molotov of 16th December, 1954. It is known that Premier Hatoyama in his recent speeches expressed himself in favor of a settlement of Soviet-Japanese relations.

"The wish to normalize relations between Japan and the U.S.S.R. was expressed by the minister for foreign affairs, Shigemitsu, in his statement of 11th December, 1954, as well as in his subsequent statements.

"In view of the aforementioned circumstances, the Soviet side considers that it would be apposite to exchange views on the question of talks aimed at normalizing Soviet-Japanese relations.

"The Soviet side is prepared to appoint representatives for negotiations which could be held in Moscow or Tokyo, by agreement with the Japanese side on this question."

Moscow Radio said that at the end of the interview, Prime Minister Hatoyama informed Dominitsky that the Japanese government would consider the Soviet statement.

199,375 More Cars on Roads

SACRAMENTO (AP) — So you think there are more cars on the highway? Well, you're right.

The Department of Motor Vehicles gave these figures Saturday for the most motor-minded state of all:

Motor vehicle registrations went up by 199,375 to 6,158,183 in the year ending last Nov. 31.

And there were 264,509 more licensed drivers, for a total of 6,250,509.

The department listed its 1954 revenue as $175,023,584, up from $147,737,444 in 1953.

16,000 Vets Await Psychotherapy

WASHINGTON (UP) — Harvey V. Higley, Administrator of Veterans Affairs, said Saturday that 16,000 veterans are on a waiting list for beds in mental hospitals.

Higley made the statement in a discussion of veterans affairs on the CBS radio program "Capitol Cloakroom."

Higley said one of the great problems facing his agency is hospitalization for mentally-disturbed patients. He said there are 55,000 beds now available for this type of illness, but the end of the hospital-building program is in sight.

"The peculiar part of it is, building new hospitals isn't going to solve our problem, because what we lack are psychiatrists, psychologists and trained therapists, who know how to handle this problem of the mentally disturbed," he said.

WHAT CONGRESS DID

WASHINGTON (AP)—The status of major legislation at the end of this week:

FOREIGN AFFAIRS: Congress has passed and the President signed a resolution authorizing the chief executive to commit U. S. forces to the defense of the Formosa area. A mutual assistance treaty with Formosa is pending in the Senate foreign relations committee.

MILITARY — Bills to extend the draft law, to establish a new program of reserve strength and to continue dependency allotment laws are pending in committees.

VETERANS — The House has passed and sent to the Senate a bill continuing GI educational rights for men in the armed services by Jan. 31.

RECIPROCAL TRADE — The House ways and means committee is conducting hearings on a bill to continue the reciprocal trade agreements program three additional years.

SCHOOL CONSTRUCTION—Legislation to provide federal aid for school construction is pending in the House education and labor committee.

STATEHOOD—The House interior committee is conducting hearings on bills to admit Alaska and Hawaii to statehood.

PAY RAISES—The House judicial committee is readying for early House action a bill to raise the pay of Congress members and federal judges. The House civil service committee starts hearings next week on bills to raise the pay of postal and civil service employes.

POSTAL RATES—Legislation to increase postal rates, including a one-cent boost in letter-mailing costs, is pending in the House postoffice committee.

TAXES—The House ways and means committee is expected soon to recommend continuance of wartime excise and corporate tax rates due to expire in April.

WAGES—A bill to boost the minimum wage from 75 cents to 90 cents or more is pending in the House labor committee.

FARM PRICES — The House agriculture committee starts hearings next week on a bill to restore farm price props to 90 per cent of parity.

Story Hours Booked for Preschool Tots

A series of story hours for preschool-age children will be presented at 10:30 a.m. each Thursday, beginning this week and ending May 5, at East Branch Library, 4036 E. Anaheim St. Mrs. Jackie Bannon, children's librarian, will conduct the program.

While their youngsters are attending story hours, mothers are invited to attend a program featuring talks and films centered around books and the problems of the preschool child. Louise Bolton, branch librarian, will direct this program.

Interested mothers are advised to register their children by calling 8-9200.

Woman Dies in Fire

LOS ANGELES (UP) — Mrs. Janilou Hawkins, 60, a semi-invalid, burned to death Saturday in a fire at her home in Firestone Park, police reported. Firemen who extinguished the blaze said it apparently was caused by a dropped cigarette.

Denmark's Prime Minister Hedtoft Dies in Sweden

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—Denmark's prime minister, Hans Hedtoft, 51, a leader in his country's resistance movement during the Nazi occupation and later a strong supporter of western defense against Communism, died unexpectedly Saturday.

Hedtoft, here for a meeting of the Nordic Council, was found dead in his bed at a hotel. He apparently had suffered a heart attack. His wife died 2½ months ago while he was on the Scandinavian airlines system's inaugural trans-Arctic flight from Copenhagen to Los Angeles. Since then, his friends said, Hedtoft had been depressed.

In Copenhagen, the press agency of Denmark's Social Democratic Party which Hedtoft headed said he would be succeeded as prime minister by Foreign Minister H. C. Hansen.

Hedtoft's death was discovered when he failed to show up at Saturday's session of the Nordic Council.

Hedtoft visited the United States several times in the postwar years. His party's declared support of NATO in February, 1949, clinched Denmark's membership in the western defense alliance. He was a strong advocate of adequate defense for his own country and its allies.

His successor, Foreign Minister Hansen, is a shoemaker's son and a compositor by trade. Hansen also was active in the wartime resistance movement, serving as one of the publishers of its secret newspaper.

INCOMPATIBLE

Bitter Arctic Blasts Boost Deaths to 15

By Associated Press.

Deaths from exposure and overexertion mounted to at fewest 15 Saturday as winter's worst cold wave kept an unyielding grip on most of the eastern half of the nation.

Slight moderation in the abnormal cold was in prospect for the immediate gulf region and the great plains, but elsewhere no relief was in sight.

Subzero cold extended from northern New England westward across the northern lakes region and the upper Mississippi valley and as far south as northeast Missouri and central Illinois.

International Falls, Minn., achieved the national "ice box" ranking for the second time in three days with a -34 degree temperature.

This is the death count from causes attributed to cold and snow since Thursday, when the cold wave struck:

Ohio 6, Michigan 3, Missouri 2 and Illinois 1.

Other minimum temperatures included La Porte and Greensburg, Ind., -16; Duluth, Minn., and Green Bay, Wis., -10; Moline, Ill., -9; Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minn., and Chicago, -8; Milwaukee and Madison, Wis., -5; Columbus, Ohio, -4; Des Moines, Ia., and Springfield, Ill., -3; Cincinnati and Sault St. Marie, Mich., -2.

The U. S. Weather Bureau in Chicago blamed upper level winds 30,000 feet high for the marathon cold wave. These winds have been flowing steadily in a southeasterly direction, draining cold Arctic air into the United States.

Several small low pressure systems following the same southeasterly path have aided in pulling down the Canadian air.

However the presence of dry Arctic air has prevented any blizzards or heavy snows during the cold spell. These occur when Arctic air collides with warm moist air from the Gulf of Mexico.

Trial of Girl as Narcotics Addict Slated

Trial of Donna M. Howland, 19, of 6032 Pimenta Ave., Lakewood, on a charge of narcotics addiction was set for Feb. 7 when she pleaded innocent in Los Cerritos Municipal Court, Thursday.

Miss Howland recently was placed on three year's probation when she pleaded guilty in Superior Judge Joseph M. Maltby's court to possession of marijuana.

She and Robert M. Corr, 22, of 12801 Alamitos Way, Garden Grove, were arrested last Nov. 15. Corr swallowed two marijuana cigarets Miss Holland pulled from her bra when officers approached to question them.

Corr was convicted on the charge to which Miss Howland pleaded guilty.

On Sept. 4, 1953, Corr swallowed 35 benzedrine tablets when he and a companion were stopped by police. At that time he was booked for possession of hypnotic drugs.

Navy Man Rites Monday Evening

Rosary for MEC Francis F. Ryan, USN, 38, of 2742 E. 219th St., killed in an automobile accident on Guam Jan. 17, will be at 8:30 p.m. Monday in Sheelar-McFadyen Chapel.

Requiem mass will be at 9 a.m. Tuesday in St. Lucy's Church. Interment will be in All Souls Cemetery.

He was a native of Hyde Park, Mass., and he had lived here six years. Surviving are his wife, Gertrude; sons, David and Phillip; daughters, Patricia, Dolores and Sharon, all of Long Beach; his father, Joseph; and six brothers and three sisters.

Tumble off Canyon Wall Hurts Hiker

SANTA ANA—A 22-year-old Anaheim man was in Community Hospital Saturday recovering from shock and a broken ankle suffered Friday night when he fell from a ledge in Holy Jim Canyon, 30 miles east of here.

Donald R. Howard, of 12370 Ball Rd., lay in water for five hours, his ankle caught between rocks, waiting for a rescue party. His wife, Shirley, was with him.

State Division of Forestry officers said Howard, hiking with his wife and another couple, fell from the ledge to the top of a waterfall.

Wife of Former Edison Manager, Mrs. Lynch, Dies

Mrs. Florell Jane Lynch, 66, wife of James A. Lynch, retired manager of Southern California Edison Co., died Friday.

Mrs. Lynch, of 4333 Linden Ave., was a member of First Baptist Church, Women's Music Club, Loyalty Club and charter member of Merret Temple 103, Daughters of the Nile.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by a brother, Loren R. Chesebrough, and two sisters, Mrs. Britta E. Cross and Mrs. Evelyn B. Berardini.

Service will be Tuesday at 2 p.m. in Mottell's and Peek Chapel, Dr. Bryant Wilson officiating. Entombment in Sunnyside Mausoleum will be private.

REGIONAL POLITICS

Rep. Hosmer to Address Young GOP

By THE LOOKOUT

Congressman Craig Hosmer will return from Washington to inspect the home front fences and attend the state convention of Young Republicans in San Diego next week end.

He is one of a group of party leaders, including U. S. Deputy Attorney General William P. Rogers, who will address the Young GOP meeting.

Hosmer will speak at the convention Feb. 5, and be available here in the home precincts on Feb. 4 and 6.

The Long Beach lawmaker is expected to discuss the Formosan situation in his speech. He recently toured the Far East on a Naval Reserve cruise.

In Washington Saturday, Rep. Hosmer called the joint defend-Formosa resolution "a sign of unity and determination."

The people have confidence in the President, he said. "They realize he knows how to use the military tools available, and they believe he will always use them wisely, not rashly. And they know his aim is to prevent rash action on the part of others."

Hosmer will make his home visit by plane. While here, he will hold informal "open-office" sessions in both Lakewood City and Long Beach.

He will appear in Lakewood City Hall, 5044 Faculty Ave., Friday, Feb. 4, between 1 and 3 p.m. Arrangements for space were made by Lakewood City Mayor Angelo Iacoboni.

Between 3 p.m. and 5 p.m. Hosmer will be in his Long Beach office, 115 Security Building.

His field representative, Robert F. Rife, said these office hours were announced "for the convenience of any citizens desiring to present problems to their Congressman."

Rep. Hosmer will occupy a suite at the Wilton Hotel while in Long Beach. Rife said friends of the Congressman are invited to visit him there from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. next Sunday.

DEMO MEETING

"What do we want to do in politics this year?"

That's the question for discussion before the Long Beach Democratic Luncheon Club when it meets Tuesday noon at the Wilton Hotel.

Walter Desmond will preside.

The public is invited. But reservations have to be made not later than Monday p.m., with Mary Rence, Secretary, at 5-6601.

Film Portrays Lincoln's Era

The documentary film, "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," based on Robert E. Sherwood's Pulitzer Prize play, will be shown Friday at 7:30 p. m. at Bay Shore Branch Library, 5590 E. Second St. The public is invited.

The picture tells the story of Lincoln from his arrival in Illinois as a youth of 21 to his rise to the presidency. Raymond Massey plays the starring role with Ruth Gordon and Gene Lockhart featured. If the size of the crowd warrants it, a second screening of the film will be presented at 8:45 p. m., according to Nina Boyle, film librarian.

Gen. Kessler Retires at Hamilton AFB

HAMILTON AFB, Calif. (UP)—Maj. Gen. Alfred A. Kessler Jr., commander of the Fourth Air Force, retired from active duty Saturday after nearly 37 continuous years of service.

Since September, 1952, Kessler has commanded the Fourth Air Force, primarily directing reserve operations in California, Oregon, Washington, Montana, Idaho, Utah, Arizona and Nevada.

Coast Fear of Radiation Risk Cooled in Capital Conference

X-Ray Increase Among Factors Seen by Science

By WESLEY PEYTON

Independent, Press-Telegram Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Rep. Carl Kinshaw (Rep., Pasadena) assured a mildly worried delegation from the California legislature that atomic radiation in the state is not now at a dangerously high level and won't be in the foreseeable future.

Hinshaw said he spoke as an "informed" member of the joint Senate-House committee on atomic energy which has considered the radiation problem in secret session. Rep. Chet Holifield (D-Montebello), another committee member, concurred.

The potential danger from radiation was outlined to Hinshaw and other California congressmen at a Capitol luncheon by State Sen. Harold T. Johnson (D-Roseville), chairman of the special Senate committee on governmental administration, and Earle Waters, executive secretary of the committee.

Waters explained the radiological problem arose as a sidelight of the state's civil defense program. A number of scientists working for the state on civil defense problems began to combine research with their other duties, he said, and came to the conclusion that atomic radiation in California was approaching a "potential hazard."

This stemmed from A-bomb tests in Nevada, increased use of radioactive isotopes in industry and hospitals, and, even, an increase in the number of X-ray machines in the state.

Waters agreed the federal government has no control over the X-ray machines but pointed out the Atomic Energy Act gives the federal government complete control over, and responsibility for, the use of all other radioactive materials. In view of this, Waters and Johnson wanted to know what the AEC or some

In the saddle of an anti-aircraft gun is Lt. (jg) Adele K. Vermeersch of Long Beach and the Waves. The weapon will be displayed at the Naval Reserve Open House starting Tuesday night on Terminal Island.

Navy, Marine Shows Scheduled This Week

The Naval Reserve and the Marine Corps plan public events this week.

High school and junior college students, particularly those under 18½ years of age, their parents and all service veterans are invited to a Naval Reserve open house at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at the Naval Reserve Training Center, Naval Base, Terminal Island.

A trailer-borne exhibit of Marine Corps gear will be open to the public from 9 a. m. Monday in front of the main post office building, 3rd St. and American Ave. M/Sgt. William M. Pascoe, head of the corps' recruiting office here, will be in charge.

Major purpose of the Naval open house will be to explain to the students and their parents the benefits that may be gained in relation to the Military Training and Service Act. Under existing law men must serve two years active duty and six years reserve time. Differences between ready and standby reserves, as well as other questions will be answered.

According to Comdr. A. W. Anderson, commanding officer of Surface Battalion 11-7, the importance of young men planning military service before they reach 18½ years will be stressed. Once they become 18½, according to Comdr. Anderson, they can not join a reserve unit and thus can not start their six-year reserve service until after completing their two years active duty.

A conducted tour of the center's training facilities will complete the program.

City College Sets Travel, Art Forums

Forum and lecture programs in art, gerontology, travel and world affairs were announced Saturday by the City College School for Adults for the new semester opening Monday. All programs are open to the public without charge.

The schedule for this week:

ART: Mary Jane Rice, art instructor and designer for the Pacific Coast studio of the American Crayon Co., will speak Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. in Room 502 of the Lakewood campus art building. Her topic will be "Textile Decoration and Silk Screen Printing." Additional art forums are scheduled on the first Tuesday of each month through May.

GERONTOLOGY: Dr. C. A. Van Pelt Jr., Lakewood physician, will speak on "You and Your Health" Monday at 7:30 p. m. in Lakewood Community Church. He will be assisted by Edwin C. Milligan, senior in the USC School of Medicine, who has done recent studies in geriatrics.

MARY JANE RICE
Art Instructor

"Mental Health for Senior Citizens" will be the topic of Dr. George Tarjan, superintendent and director of Pacific State Hospital, at Dewey Auditorium, 8th and American, at 2 p. m. Wednesday.

TRAVEL: Herbert Williams, Long Beach City College instructor and archaeologist, will present an illustrated lecture on "The Rockies and the High Sierra" Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. in Room 220, Poly High School. This is the first of four lectures on explorations in western North America.

WORLD AFFAIRS: Two World Affairs Forum groups which will meet throughout the semester begin this week, with registration taken in the classroom at the first meeting.

"The World in the News" will meet from 1-4 p. m. Tuesdays in the auditorium of the Bay Shore Branch Library, 5390 E. 2nd St.

Plan Dental Health Week

The seventh annual Dental Health Week will be observed in the Long Beach area March 7-11 under the auspices of the Council on Dental Health of the Third District, Los Angeles County Dental Society.

Activities planned include school dental health contests, mass distribution of literature and speaking engagements.

Dr. John Whitaker of San Pedro, general chairman, will be assisted by Drs. Douglas W. Stephens, Marvin B. Payne, Clifford Brown, Manuel Kaplan, Robert Jensen, Lloyd Deck, Virgil W. Ridgeway, M. L. Gatov and Lytton M. Swartz of Long Beach, Louis Taylor of Artesia, Arthur Berke of Torrance, Roland Hansen and Morgan S. Ralls of Compton.

Publisher Talks to CC's Forum

Herman H. Ridder, publisher of the Independent, Press-Telegram will outline his views on the 1955 business outlook before Chamber of Commerce Breakfast Forum Wednesday morning at Wilton Hotel.

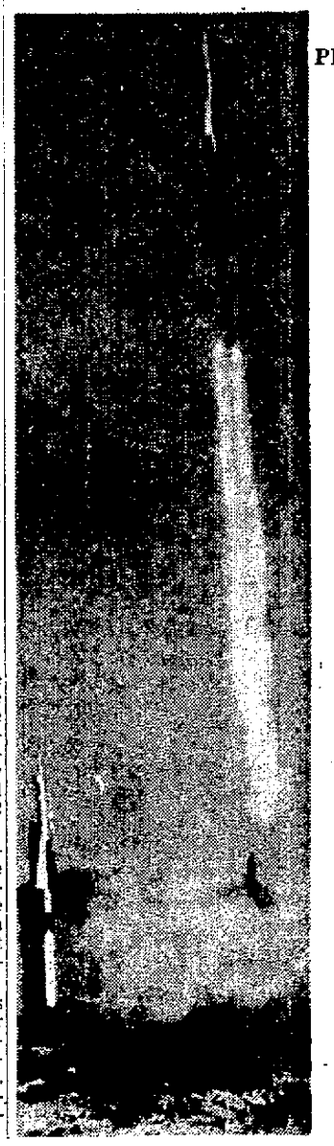

The publisher will also report economic trends in South America as they impressed him during his recent visit to the southern continent.

NEW KIND OF DE-ICER?

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A Los Angeles man got aerial free delivery of ice Saturday.

Alton M. Ludvickson said he heard an early morning "whoosh" and went outside to find a chunk of ice in his yard. He said his home is on the path of planes using the Los Angeles International Airport and that the ice was dropped from a plane.

Torrance Next for Nikes?

PICTURED in this official U. S. Army photograph is a Nike guided missile of a type which may become a familiar sight at Torrance Municipal Airport.

Army engineers are surveying the field with the idea that a portion of it might be used as a base for the weapons. Nikes are designed to intercept and destroy enemy aircraft.

Bases similar to the one proposed for the field already ring strategic areas of Los Angeles County, with installations at Fort MacArthur in San Pedro and near Los Alamitos Naval Air Station in Orange County, at Los Angeles Airport and in the Glendale area, among others.

Military authorities stress that missiles are never fired from a base near a populated area "unless absolutely necessary."

BEACH COMBING

With MALCOLM EPLEY

SAN FRANCISCO—Well, here I am, chilly in San Francisco. It's not cold enough to bundle up, too cold to go unbundled. The native males wear topcoat and hats. Being from the Sunny Southland, I came here without a hat. I don't want to buy one 'cause I like to spend my dough where I make my living, so I compromise by wearing topcoat and no hat. There are a few others doing the same thing, but I doubt if they belong here.

All of this is by way of introducing a report of what happened in a Geary St. restaurant where I lunched.

Just as I entered, the sun came out and sunlight streamed through the front window over a couple of tables. Being in a shivering state, I selected one of these and sat down, much to the surprise of the head waitress. She tried to steer me away while I insisted on the bright spot.

AS I sat there warming myself, two elderly ladies, no doubt permanent residents of one of the many hotels thereabouts, came and sat down at the other sunbathed table. There were 50 or so places in the shade to sit, but they chose that one.

"Ah," I thought, "kindred souls."

But I was wrong. They immediately beckoned the head waitress and complained their table was in the sun. They looked significantly at a Venetian blind which, if drawn, would have shaded both them and me.

The waitress glanced at me, and I gave her a steady look that I hoped told her she had to choose, right now, between us.

Then she took a reading of the sky, where the sun was about to pass behind a hotel across the street. She smiled tolerantly at the old ladies and said:

"The sun is right up there. I'll move it in about five minutes."

AN emergency caused us to make an unexpected trip up here, and because I sometimes chide the good old S. P. in this space, I want to say a good word for it now.

I had a little trouble getting the right man on the 'phone, but when I did, he quickly arranged reservations on the Starlight, which we caught a couple of hours later at Union Station in L. A. He was prompt, courteous and helpful. Of course, I was offering to give him some business, and the service should be good. But I felt it was excellent, and deserving of mention from an occasional critic of the S. P.

Because of the roundabout connections from L. B. to Union Station, we drove to the station, left our car in the garage there, and hope it will be waiting when we get back. Too bad we can't hop a bus right in L. B. and go direct to the central terminal for all passenger train operations in the Los Angeles County area. Oh, well. . . .

GOT on the Starlight and walked smack into another Long Beacher (or what should we call ourselves?) It was H. G. Markworth, the banker and Miss Universe judge, whom we met as we went into the lounge car for a little cribbage, a favorite family pastime while traveling.

"Mark" said he was going to spend four or five days just knocking about San Francisco, locating some familiar old landmarks. Incidentally, he resigned recently from the presidency of the National City Bank.

When we detrained in the morning, Bro. Markworth was on the platform. He was wearing a topcoat and no hat.

DRIFTWOOD—Got out for just enough walk to test the well-known "metropolitan" atmosphere of San Francisco—some call it the only real "big city" in the West—and found it still in evidence. You can't quite describe it, but there's a special feeling of depth and tradition about the place. . . . The Bay Area has been having plenty of fog, too, if that makes you feel any better down there. . . . Surprising number of very busy intersections here have no signals whatsoever. And surprisingly little confusion there. . . . Display of handmade cigars in a window, behind which some men were rolling cigars, presented two boxes, similarly labed. Notations on the covers said the cigars in one box were made in San Francisco, the others in Los Angeles. L. A. cigars were two inches longer, if that means anything.

LIGHT YOUR PORCH LIGHTS!

Mothers March Monday

Women Aiming to Top 1954's $30,000 Total

"Turn on your porch lights and open your purse strings."

A shining light will be the welcome sign for 3,000 marching mothers Monday night as they embark on a three-hour quest for antipolio funds in the concluding event of the 1955 March of Dimes.

The march starts at 6 p.m. and will close at 9 p.m.

The women hope to surpass last year's mark, which showed net proceeds of $30,783.59.

Carrying containers marked with "Fight Polio" emblems and personal identity cards, the mothers will conduct a house-to-house canvass, calling at all places where porch lights glow to gather money for the fight against polio.

"We are well organized for the march," Mrs. Charles F. Reed, general chairman, said. In each section of the city area chairmen will direct the march.

Neighborhood fire stations will be temporary depositories for the money gathered. Later the proceeds will be taken to a bank depository. Members of the three Long Beach 20-30 Clubs will assist firemen in receiving the returns.

MILITANT MOTHER

Six years ago Mrs. Frank Luker of 3943 Pine Ave. lay in an iron lung, victim of spinal polio. She risked leaving the mechanical breather long enough to become the mother of a son, Richy, by Caesarian section. Monday night Mrs. Luker, mother of four, will join the March of Dimes trek.

DeMolay Order Sets Installation of Poly Senior

Keith Martin, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. D. E. Martin, 3801 Marron Ave., Poly High School senior, will be installed master councilor of Long Beach Chapter, Order of DeMolay, at 7:30 p. m. Saturday in Machinists Hall, 728 Elm Ave. He will succeed John Scofield. Dick Porter, past master councilor of DeMolay, will be installing officer.

KEITH MARTIN

$3,000,000 Controls Plant Opens Formally This Week

EVERYTHING'S UNDER CONTROL

Janet Falla displays a water-heater control of the type to be manufactured at the Robertshaw-Fulton factory here. The smart-looking "Unitrol 200" device was selected last year for display at Pasadena Museum's Good Design Exhibition.

A $3 million plant for one of Robertshaw-Fulton Controls Co.'s manufacturing divisions will be opened here Wednesday with a program attended by several hundred businessmen and community leaders.

The modern steel and concrete structure, which extends for 940 feet along Long Beach Blvd. at the junction of the new Long Beach Freeway, gives Robertshaw-Fulton's Grayson Controls Division twice its former production capacity for the manufacture of automatic controls used in gas appliances.

The program will salute growth of Grayson Controls, which was founded in a one-car garage in Lynwood 26 years ago with $1,000 of borrowed capital. It is now the world's largest producer of water heater controls and becomes one of Long Beach's leading industries.

A replica of the 150 sq. ft. garage in which the first Grayson controls were made in 1928 has been erected adjacent to the big new plant to dramatize the growth of the firm.

John A. Robertshaw, president of Robertshaw-Fulton with executive offices at Greensburg, Pa., will participate in the program that formally opens the new plant.

Father of 5 Girls Bids for School Board Post

A father of five girls Saturday announced he will be a candidate for the Board of Education in the April election.

He is Richard W. Barnes, 32, a chemical engineer who resides at 1057 E. 66th Way.

Born in Salt Lake City, Barnes is a graduate of the University of Utah and holds a Master of Science degree from the University of Washington. He is a chemical engineer at the Dominguez Refinery of Shell Oil Co.

A lieutenant commander in the Naval Reserve, he is a member of the city's Armed Services Commission. He served in the Navy during World War II and the Korean conflict.

Barnes, who has lived here for eight years, has been engaged in Boy Scout activities for five years. He is superintendent of youth activities for the Long Beach Stake of the Church of Latter-day Saints.

Two of his daughters, Betty Jo, 11, and Bonnie, 8, attend Long Beach schools. His preschool children are Susan, 5, Nancy, 2, and Beverly, 1 week.

There will be three vacancies on the school board in April. The three incumbents, Drs. Walter Boyd and Dwight Sigworth and L. H. Brewer, have indicated their intentions of bidding for re-election.

50-Year-Old UP Train to Arrive Today

Commemorating the 50th anniversary of completion of Union Pacific's line from Los Angeles to Salt Lake City, 100 members of the Railway and Locomotive Historical Society today will ride from Los Angeles to Terminal Island aboard a 50-year-old train.

To further dramatize the event, a 6½-inch gold spike will be driven into a railway tie at 11 a.m. at Douglas junction, near South St. between Paramount Blvd. and Cherry Ave.

Driving the spike will be Adolph D. Hanson of Salt Lake, Union Pacific general manager for the South Central district, and K. V. Hackman of Arcadia, director of the Railway and Locomotive Historical Society, who will wear the garb of a railway president of 50 years ago.

Aiding them will be Ralph Evans Wells Jr., son of the original general manager of the San Pedro, Los Angeles, Salt Lake railway. Wells remembers, as an 8-year-old boy, riding the first train over the Los Angeles-Salt Lake route.

Union Pacific officials say it will take the ancient train from 10 a.m. to noon to travel from Los Angeles Union passenger terminal to Terminal Island.

A Long Beach fire department pumper will supply water to the thirsty iron horse at the Artesia St. crossing, between Cherry Ave. and Paramount Blvd.

Compton Man Faces Trial on Narcotics Rap

COMPTON—Rubin Villalabos, 30, of 3280 Folsom St., will be tried in Los Angeles Superior Court Feb. 10 on charges of possessing marijuana cigarets.

Villalabos was arrested by Compton policemen Merle Andrews and James A. Emmons who said he was driving erratically.

A search of the car uncovered marijuana cigarets and he was charged with possession of narcotics. Bail was set at $2,500.

L. B. State Adds Nine Teachers to Faculty

Nine teachers have been added to the faculty of Long Beach State College for the spring semester, bringing the total number of full-time teachers to 129, according to Dr. P. Victor Peterson, president of the college.

Mrs. Marie R. Johnston, who is working on a doctor's degree at UCLA, Mrs. Freeda P. Wilson, a teaching assistant at USC, and Dr. John D. Williams of the University of Tennessee will become assistant professors of education.

Herbert A. Thomas, science instructor at Santa Ana high school, will become assistant professor of natural science. Dr. George E. Stevenson, director of an Air Force project on marine geology at USC, will join State College faculty as an assistant professor of geology. Dr. James F. Ragland, who holds a doctorate in history from Stanford, will be an assistant professor of history.

Milton A. Orowitz, now studying at the University of California, will become an English instructor. Mrs. Winifred H. Higgins, formerly on the staff of the State Teachers College of Salem, Mass., will become an assistant professor of art. Mrs. Edna H. Barbour, business instructor at Los Angeles Harbor Junior College, will teach business education at State College.

Buses to Serve Junior League Rummage Sale

Third annual rummage sale sponsored by the Junior League of Long Beach will take place Monday and Tuesday in the Exhibition Hall of Municipal Auditorium. Sale hours on Monday are from 10 a. m. to 8 p. m. and on Tuesday from 10 a. m. to 2 p. m.

As a convenience for customers a shuttle bus for which there is no charge will circle constantly through the day. Its route will be down Pine Ave. from Seventh St. to Ocean Blvd., east to American Ave., north to Seventh and back to Pine.

In addition to men's, women's and children's clothing other items on sale will include furniture, household appliances, costume jewelry and bric-a-brac. All proceeds will go to philanthropic endeavors in the community.

other federal agency intended to do about it.

Before Hinshaw and Holifield assured them there was no need for alarm, Waters had indicated the Legislature might call for a congressional investigation.

"They told us at the AEC that they were aware of their responsibility and were doing everything necessary," Waters declared. "But our scientists, including Dr. Stafford Warren of UCLA, say there is a potential hazard. We're in the middle."

Waters added the Legislature intends to conduct hearings into the subject next Feb. 10-11 and might, as a result, ask for a congressional investigation.

The federal civil defense program, or more specifically the lack of one, also perturbs Johnson and Waters.

They repeated to California congressmen charges that lack of firm federal guidance has killed any nationwide civil defense program.

Reliance on a let-the-states-do-it policy, they assert, has resulted in only a few states, such as California and New York, doing anything. The rest have done nothing, with the result that there is no overall civil defense program.

The probable outcome in California, Johnson and Waters indicated, will be maintenance of a so-called "civil defense" program capable of meeting natural disasters, such as earthquakes and floods. Their committee is expected to recommend that any CD "program" beyond this be kept on paper.

Waters, Johnson, Col. Albert Sheets, committee consultant, and Stanley Pierson, acting state director of civil defense, all complained of a "vast lethargy" among the California public regarding civil defense. This, combined with a federal tendency to pass the buck to the states, they declare, has paralyzed the program.

Hinshaw, Holifield and several other congressmen agreed the situation was unfortunate, but none seemed to think Congress could do much about it. As Hinshaw put the problem:

"We have seen such rapid developments in both atomic atack and atomic defense in the past five years that it is almost impossible to settle on any one civil defense program and promulgate it before the next development makes it outmoded."

What's new with Chevrolet.... everything!

Here are many ways of saying that the 1955 Chevrolet is utterly new from road to roof, from grille to taillights. But the total of these changes is the significant thing, for they add up to a kind of car that has never existed in the world before. It is a low-cost car, with low-cost gasoline economy and low-cost maintenance. But in everything else it rivals the finest of high-priced cars—in scintillating styling in silken ease of handling, in thistledown riding comfort, in blazing acceleration, in the full luxurious range of power assists and drive options. You can look at it and tell it is a precedent-shattering car. You can check the features and appreciate the brilliant advances in engineering. But you can't possibly know how astonishing it really is until you drive it . . . and that is what we sincerely ask you to do.

New 162-h.p. "Turbo-Fire V8" engine has ultra-short stroke, 8 to 1 compression ratio.

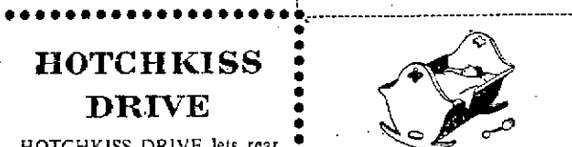

Sweep-Sight windshield gives safer wide-angle view.

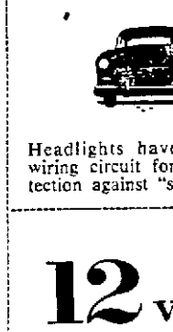

Tubeless tires are standard on all models, offer more protection against blowouts.

New "Blue-Flame 123" engine has six-cylinder economy, better cooling and lubrication.

Anti-Dive braking control checks tendency of front end to nose-down during fast stops, keeps car "heads up."

High-level ventilation intake at base of windshield picks up cleaner air above road fumes.

Central glove compartment is handier for the driver.

Full-Fold rear seat in station wagons gives nearly 11 inches longer cargo deck—because seat cushion folds flat too!

European-styled grille presents the most distinctive "face" of any car on the American road.

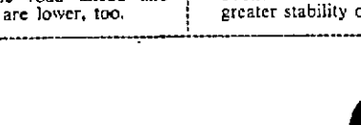

Air Conditioning unit (optional at extra cost) fits under hood of V8 models, steals no space from trunk.

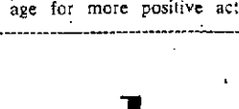

Powerglide† automatic transmission now offers smoother shifts, has more durability.

Swing-type brake and clutch pedals permit draft-free sealing of passenger compartment.

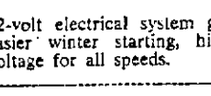

Curved glass rear-quarter windows on station wagons give maximum visibility—and add a striking new style note.

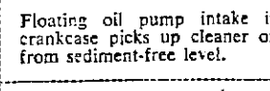

New interior fabrics in two-tone combinations harmonize with exterior colors.

STOP

Improved Power Brakes† require less pedal pressure during power-off conditions.

Lower center of gravity provides greater stability on curves, better road-holding.

Over-all height is cut as much as 6 inches without any sacrifice of headroom for passengers.

ALL 4

All 4 fenders are visible to the driver for use as guides in parking, traffic driving.

PRNDL

Lighted indicator dial in instrument cluster shows which range of Powerglide automatic transmission is engaged.

New "Blue-Flame 136" engine teams with Powerglide† automatic transmission.

-12

Now there are only 4 lubrication fittings in front—instead of 16 for easier maintenance.

Larger fan pulls more air but turns nearly one-third slower for reduced engine noise level.

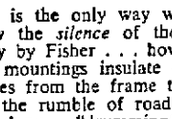

Rear leaf springs are 9 inches longer, provide softer cushioning against stresses.

GEN OIL

Red tell-tale lights flash warning when oil pressure or generator charge drops too low.

HOTCHKISS DRIVE

HOTCHKISS DRIVE lets rear springs absorb acceleration and braking thrusts and lowers the center of gravity.

Four live-rubber mountings cradle Chevrolet engines in a naturally balanced position.

Glass area is up to 18 per cent greater so all passengers get a broader panorama.

New "Touch-Down" Overdrive† transmission reduces engine speed 22 per cent.

Bodies are wider inside, with more room for hips, hats and shoulders, both front and rear.

Glide-Ride front suspension with spherical joints gives softer flexing over bumps.

Ball-Race steering is smoother, takes less muscle to turn.

"Outrigger" rear springs are set wider apart to resist body-roll, permits lower frame.

Headlights have a separate wiring circuit for greater protection against "shorts."

35 COLORS and COMBINATIONS

35 colors and combinations. A rainbow-full of 14 solid colors and 21 two-tone combinations.

Hoods are 3½ inches lower to give drivers a better, closer look at the road ahead—and rear decks are lower, too.

Front tread is broader for greater stability on the road.

New linkage-type Power Steering (extra-cost option) is applied directly to steering linkage for more positive action.

Brake cylinders on front wheel spindles cut unsprung weight.

12-volt electrical system gives easier winter starting, higher voltage for all speeds.

Floating oil pump intake in crankcase picks up cleaner oil from sediment-free level.

Rear window corners are squared to give broader, safer view.

Fender crowns extend in peaks over the headlights, give the cars a greater length of line.

motoramic Chevrolet

more than a new car . . .

A NEW CONCEPT OF LOW-COST MOTORING

Low-level luggage compartment has sill almost flush with the floor for easy loading.

Controls Co. Opens Plant on L.B. Blvd.

Controls Co. is an example of a small enterprise that has grown with Southern California to become an important local industry.

From the 150 square foot garage and a first annual payroll of $9,000, the Grayson Division grew rapidly. A plant built near the original garage was expanded through the years to cover 130,000 square feet of floor space and an entire Lynwood block.

Expansion speeded with the purchase of the plant by the Robertshaw Thermostat Co. in 1936, again with the merging of the local company with other control and instrument firms throughout the nation to form the present Robertshaw-Fulton Controls Co.

The new Long Beach facility has 237,000 square feet, almost twice the capacity of the former plant. Over the next year and a half, production and personnel will be doubled.

The payroll, only $9,000 the first year, will reach approximately $9,000,000 annually.

At present the Grayson Division employs 950. The new plant can accommodate 2,400, and employes will be added as production requires.

The total investment, including land, building and new equipment, is approximately $7 million.

READY TO OPEN

Formal opening is set Wednesday for Robertshaw-Fulton's Grayson Division factory at Long Beach Freeway and Long Beach Blvd. Building cost is $3,000,000.

Pomp Ordered for Parliament

BONN, Germany (AP)—Speaker Hermen Gerstenmaier and the three deputy speakers of the Bundestag are under orders to start wearing cutaways. And everyone in that lower house of Parliament will have to rise when the speaker enters.

It's all part of a campaign by West German legislators to make sessions of Parliament more dignified.

Beard Crop Sown for Jubilee "Harvest"

SWIFT CURRENT, Sask. (AP)—The men of this southwestern Saskatchewan city are starting early this year in growing whiskers for the Frontier Days festivities held each summer. They are cultivating "jubilee beards" in honor of the province's 50th birthday.

Formosa Resolution

DECISIVE VOTES in House and Senate show once again that in time of crisis Americans know how to stand together in the national interest.

To lawmakers who considered swift approval as a major value of a defend-Formosa resolution, it was agonizing to see Sens. Morse, Langer and a few others start a delaying debate.

In a matter such as this, in which speed and unity are important for psychological reasons, delay robs the action of some of its impact.

However, the Constitutional processes were served. The argumentative Senators certainly were within their rights. After all, the hazard of submitting a question to Congress is that a discussion may take place.

Immediately the question was raised whether Mr. Eisenhower was asking for power which might be interpreted as authority to "hit first." If so, could it mean we might strike the Chinese mainland? The fear was expressed that the resolution might give to military commanders, by Presidential delegation of authority, the power to launch "preventive war" on their own initiative.

Whatever the implicit or explicit meanings of the resolution, it is hard to believe that Dwight Eisenhower will act recklessly with a grant of authority, any more than he would act so on his own authority as Commander-in-Chief.

It is his pledge, in any event, to use our forces only to protect our vital interests. He would do that in an emergency, even if it meant acting first and getting Congressional confirmation later—as has happened before in our history.

As for the Congressional resolution being mishandled by subordinates, the President put Senators at greater ease when he said it is not his intention to delegate the authority.

The President's idea is to show the Red Chinese in a dramatic way that we intend to defend Formosa. A gesture to prevent the Reds from making any aggressive decisions based on a misunderstanding of our mood.

But in the last analysis, there can be no criticism of Senators who voiced sincere misgivings. When an aggressor attacks, as at Pearl Harbor, it is clear to Congress what it must do. In the face of uncertainties such as those surrounding the Asian picture, the course is less clear. Nobody wants to take a step which might cause war. Yet, nobody would want to omit doing something which might head off the tragedy.

The President obviously arrived at the conclusion that something was to be gained in the interest of peace and national security by making his request. A few Senators and Representatives thought otherwise. There followed an honest conflict of judgments.

But Congress overwhelmingly favors the judgment of the President. And this support in our opinion reflects accurately the general sentiment of the public.

Getting In Over His Head?

JOHN S. KNIGHT

World Knows U. S. Not Bluffing

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER is getting the support he needs in the Formosa crisis.

By overwhelming majorities, both the House and the Senate have said that the United States should defend Formosa, the Pescadores Islands and "closely related localities" with whatever force may be required.

KNIGHT

The world now knows that this isn't the Dulles brand of bluff and backdown that almost got us into the Indochina mess during the critical battle of Dien Bien Phu.

This is the real thing; not State Department bluster.

Military intervention in Indochina would have ignited the wrong war at the wrong place. We had neither the available ground troops for duty in Indochina nor suitable targets for what we sometimes describe as the "massive threat" of our airpower.

Formosa is different. It is vital in our Pacific defenses. If the Chinese Reds overran Formosa, both Japan and the Philippines would be outflanked by the enemy.

Moreover, Formosa can be successfully defended.

If Chou En-lai is determined to "liberate" Formosa and thus risk war with the United States, the military advantages would be on our side.

DELAY

My only criticism of Eisenhower's action is that it was delayed too long to gain the maximum psychological benefit.

The President's decision to act came none too soon, but it was done in exactly the right way with full respect for the role of Congress. Red China is finally on notice that the United States will fight if we are pushed too far.. The responsibility for war, if it comes, is clearly not ours.

Although Congress responded to the President's statesmanship with full measure of support, a small group of Senators marred the proceedings with some injudicious and unrealistic flyspecking on the Formosa resolution.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota offered an amendment limiting the defense area to Formosa and the Pescadores. Had it been adopted, the Humphrey amendment would have prevented any retaliation against the Chinese mainland in case of attack, thus repeating the blunder made in Korea where the Reds enjoyed the luxury of a "privileged sanctuary" across the Yalu river in Manchuria.

Then we have Sen. Ralph Flanders of Vermont, who won no laurels for objective thinking during the McCarthy hearings, mouthing the nonsense that "this is preventive war."

Sen. Wayne Morse, the Independent from Oregon, also found it impossible to stay out of the headlines. The Oregon senator failed to specify how he would cope with the problem facing President Eisenhower.

Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana expressed apprehension lest Chiang Kai-shek and "his friends" get us involved in an all-out war with China, even if this should mean war with Russia."

The opinions held by these in individual senators are challenging, but not persuasive.

President Eisenhower has no thought of "unleashing" Chiang Kai-shek for an assault upon the mainland of China. The President has never engaged in sabre rattling. He is against preventive war. It was Eisenhower's decision to keep out of Indochina.

We must therefore believe that the President is not trying to start a war, but to prevent one.

Let the Humphreys, Kefauvers, Flanders, Morses and Longs remember this:

VITAL POINT

Formosa is vital to our defenses.

Chou En-lai, whose troops fought ours to a bloody stalemate in Korea, says he intends to conquer Formosa.

The U. S. is pledged to defend Formosa. Moreover, self-interest dictates that course of action.

Are we risking war by granting this authority requested by the President?

Of course!

But the greater risk to our security is to let Formosa fall to the Communists.

Our defense lines must remain in the Far Pacific, and not be withdrawn to the coasts of California, Oregon and Washington.

BRUCE BIOSSAT

If You Err, Why Not Admit It?

ONE OF THE MARKS of decency and fairness in human life is a man's willingness to admit error. Sad to relate, it's a mark whose imprint appears to have become a trifle faint in this turbulent, competitive age.

In public affairs, of course, it has long been an axiom of rather doubtful merit that the politician shall not acknowledge error if he can avoid it.

BIOSSAT

Yet it is pretty clear that people are often captivated by engaging frankness, their sympathies won by evidences of human frailty in public figures. They are ready to forgive much.

Despite this, the trend seems to be the other way. Our politicians, of both parties, have developed to a fine art the technique of not conceding their mistakes. The result is often exactly the opposite of what they desire. They get into more rather than less political trouble.

TRUMAN EXAMPLE

Former President Truman's famous "red herring" remark is a striking example. In the atmosphere which prevailed during and right after World War II, a great many Americans were gullible about Russian Communist intentions. As a nation, we were slow to alert to the new peril.

Mr. Truman might have said that his administration, caught up in this atmosphere, had likewise been slow to appreciate the danger. That was the fact. Instead, he met plain evidence of Red infiltration with the brash comment that it did not exist.

The illustrations are manifold. Both parties are well known to be divided organisms, but party chieftains never let themselves be trapped in public acknowledgment of that situation. One wonders who they think they are fooling.

But the public men aren't alone in all this. The private citizen seems more on edge, in this abrasive civilization of ours, than he used to be.

Admitting responsibility for error seems to be viewed by some people as not merely unwise but a positive sign of weakness. Apologize for your own mistakes and you'll sometimes find that you get a cold, stony stare in reply.

COMMON REACTIONS

This could mean: "Well, what did you do it for in the first place?" Or it might mean instead: "You fool, why do you apologize? I wouldn't if I'd stepped on your toes."

Exaggerations? It depends a little on where you live, but this sort of thing is common in many places in the nation.

Every day that passes, there are more Americans alive than the day before. The growth in our numbers is changing the life we lead. If this new life is not to be an increasingly painful experience, we need to do more and more to accommodate to each other. Admitting our mistakes can be a big part of that accommodation.

PETER EDSON

Strauss Law: What Can Happen Will

WASHINGTON — Adm. Lewis Strauss, as chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, feels he has had more than his fair share of troubles with Congress and the public. These troubles have arisen over such things as the atomic energy law, the Dixon-Yates contract for private power in the Tennessee Valley, and the Oppenheimer security case.

EDSON

Adm. Strauss told the National Press Club that the main purpose of AEC's public information department was to keep him out of trouble. But even these skilled public relations men haven't been able to do that, so he has hired a personal, special assistant to work on this problem. He is Everett Holles, former Mutual Broadcasting System commentator.

As an expression of how sensitive he is about poublic relations, Adm. Strauss has written what he calls the Strauss law:

"If anything bad can possibly happen, it probably will."

HANDBAG

When U. S. Ambassador to Italy Clare Boothe Luce was in Washington last summer, she complained about having to carry around a woman's handbag, with all the things in it that women carry in handbags.

When Mrs. Luce returned to Washington recently, it was observed that she carried no handbag to conferences. Instead she carried all the things she used to carry in a handbag in her brief case. She had done away with the handbag she detested so much—by getting a bigger one.

FALLING HAIR

As a sample of red tape slowing up the U. S. refugee immigration program, Scott McLeod, State Department Security Administrator, points to one requirement that all applicants state on their public health declaration whether they have ever had falling hair.

Mr. McLeod says he never could see the need for this and similar questions, though he admitted he was not a medical expert.

Cracked one balding member of the press corps: "Who doesn't have falling hair?"

KILOCYCLE COPS

The name "Kilocycle Kops" has been stuck on the Federal Communications Commission Engineering and Monitoring Bureau. It investigates atmospheric noises that interfere with radio and television signals. Here's an odd case recently uncovered:

Monitoring for interference in Portland, Ore., a mobile unit traced a strange signal to an apartment house. A homemade shortwave receiver was found. It had been discarded by its owner two years before, but the power cord was left plugged in and the switch was turned "On." The fire and interference hazard was ended, and the owner was given an explanation on why his light bills had been so high.

KERR TAX CUT

Sen. Bob Kerr (D-Okla) announced in a recent newsletter to his constituents that he will strive during this session of Congress to "Amend the tax law to benefit the many instead of the few."

In response to a query, however, the Senator's office makes clear that this resolution does not apply to any changes in the tax laws which give big depletion allowances to the producers of oil and natural gas, of which he himself is one.

What Sen. Kerr's letter to the Oklahoma voters was intended to convey is that he is planning to have the U. S. income tax exemption raised from the present $600 to $700 a person. During the last session of Congress Sen. Kerr joined with Democrats Walter George of Georgia and Allen J. Frear Jr. of Delaware to make this $100 increase in exemption effective. But the Eisenhower administration opposed the idea and it never got to first base.

Sen. Kerr does not believe tax depreciation for oil and gas producers benefits just the few. He claims it benefits the many and that if it were not in effect, oil and gas prices would be higher than they are, through decreased production.

NOT TVA IDEA

It will probably take a Congressional Appropriations Committee investigation to drag out all the facts, but the Eisenhower budget cut of Tennessee Valley Authority funds from $214 million this year to only $2 million for next year was not the idea of TVA officials.

The original TVA request for new construction funds is now a closely guarded secret. Government agencies aren't supposed to talk about how much their initial requests for funds are cut by the Budget Bureau and the White House.

But it was generally known beforehand that TVA has big plans for expansion to meet its constantly expanding power market. These plans were brushed aside while the administration thinks up new plans for financing power development by some means other than direct government appropriation.

DAVID LAWRENCE

Speech by George Great Act of Statesmanship

WASHINGTON — Seldom in the history of the United States Senate has there been an address of statesmanship comparable to that delivered by Sen. Walter George of Georgia, Democrat, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, as he upheld President Eisenhower's request for unrestricted authority to use the armed forces to defend Formosa and the American defense line in the Far East.

LAWRENCE

In contrast to the petty quibbles of some of his colleagues and the narrow interpretations which they interjected to hamstring the American armed forces if they should be attacked from the small islands off the coast of China, the Georgia senator clear in his speech that this is not the time to give the enemy a privilege sanctuary of retreat, as was the case in Korea.

Such Americanism is a thrilling exhibition of the spirit that has governed the nation in all its past crises. It was especially stimulating to hear this doctrine from the lips of this senator—a veteran in experience in foreign affairs—as he cast aside all partisanship and focused on the central issue.

For, instead of leading to a "preventive war"—which is the smoke-screen raised against all proper defense measures whenever it suits critics to use that term to break down American firmness—Sen. George showed how the American policy could deter the aggressor, prevent a big war from happening, and insure peace.

ALTERNATIVE

"I asked each man here," declared Sen. George, "if the Congress of the United States is willing to withhold its moral support from the President of the United States under these circumstances, what is your alternative? I ask each man what is his alternative?"

This was a challenging point addressed to the restrictionists—those who would, in effect, notify the enemy that American ships could be fired on and that the American Congress was unwilling to vote the authority to fire back.

Sen. George's most telling point—and one that was persuasively presented, too, by Sen. Knowland, Republican leader, in the previous day's debate—is that nobody knows from what point Formosa might be attacked and that it is imperative to notify the Red Chinese there would be unrestricted retaliation.

The effectiveness of the resolution is that it tells the whole world America not only will defend Formosa but will not hesitate to bomb the approaches within a radius of several hundred miles if such a step becomes necessary to protect American ships and military installations.

SAME OLD CRY

The same old cry—which has been heard again and again in instances of appeasement or in episodes in which there has been a fateful hesitation—has been repeated this week in the Senate. It is that the passage of the resolution might bring on war. Risks are always present in the evolution of international policy, but an unwillingness to make a clear statement of what counter-force will be brought to bear against an attacking force can only lead, as it has many times before, to an outbreak of a major war. The "London Daily Mail" in an editorial says that such a clear warning as President Eisenhower can give by means of the joint resolution might—if issued before 1914 and 1939—have prevented two world wars.

More and more members of the Senate have begun to see the joint resolution not as a narrow legalistic instrument of international policy but as a pronouncement on a moral issue—to make the aggressors respect the neutrality of Formosa. For Formosa today has not been given to the regime on the mainland because it has violated international obligations, including a flagrant act of aggression in Korea.

The Chiang Kai-shek government is still the recognized government of China so far as the United States is concerned. Under international law, any request for military help from a recognized government is granted in accord with tradition and custom.

DREW PEARSON

Nixon-Knowland Relations Strained

WASHINGTON — Those who attended the White House dinner in honor of Vice President Nixon came away more than ever imprssed with the strained relations between the two young Republicans from California, Nixon and Senate Minority Leader Knowland.

The dinner was much like any other official dinner, except for one thing. Guests arrived punctually. Each wife was led by a uniformed naval or military aide to the receiving line while her husband trailed behind like a lost sheep. Guests carefully shown their place in the line and given a little card to tell them who their dinner partner was and where to sit in the state dining room. A loudspeaker also discreetly announced their names as they walked across the shiny floor of the White House.

PEARSON

All this was according to careful White House protocol and exactly as other White House dinners have been conducted for years — whether Republicans or Democrats were in power.

However, there was on important difference. Mrs. Nixon and Mrs. Knowland did not speak. And Sen. Knowland and Vice President Nixon merely exchanged a cool formal greeting.

Democratic senators and congressmen had some things to say under their breath about the Vice President who had lambasted their loyalty. But on the surface they were just as polite and genial as Ike himself was toward the Vice President. Furthermore, the President had a cordial chat with Bill Knowland, despite the hammering Knowland had given him regarding Formosa.

But not even when the men adjourned to the Green Room for cigars, coffee and liquers after dinner did the Vice President and Sen. Knowland engage in any friendly conversation. They were polite, aloof, cool.

WHY COOL?

Other Republican senators at the dinner of course knew why. At the Chicago convention which nominated Eisenhower in 1952, Knowland was offered the Vice-Presidential nomination by Sen. Taft if he would desert his old friend, Gov. Earl Warren, and switch the powerful California delegation over to Taft. Seldom has a young politican been so tempted. Taft was not a young man. And Knowland's support would have meant not only Taft's election but later Knowland's probable succession to the presidency.

However, Knowland remained loyal to the man who had appointed him to the Senate—Earl Warren.

If he had listened to Taft, Taft would have been nominated and Knowland would be President of the United States today.

Meanwhile, however, Nixon was conspiring behind the scenes, bolted the California delegation and led the stampede to Eisenhower in return for the job Knowland turned down—the Vice Presidency.

Since then, the two young Californians have been engaged in a bitter battle for control of the Republican party in California—a battle which Knowland has been winning. The eventual winner will control the California delegation at the next national convention and have a leg up on the Presidency or the Vice Presidency.

TOWN MEETING

Eloquent

TO THE EDITOR:

I wish to comment on the eloquent, revolutionary speech on the subject of wars, past, present and in the future, by Gen. Douglas MacArthur on the occasion of the dedication of a monument in his honor in the park named after him in Los Angeles.

Gen. MacArthur said, "We must break out of the straightjacket of the past. There must be always one to lead, and we should be that one. We should now proclaim to all our readiness to abolish war in concert with the great powers of the world and the result might be magical . . . The next great advance in the evolution of civilization cannot take place until war is abolished."

From the greatest general in our history this revolutionary change of thought and action as quoted above can only be compared in world significance to the conversion of St. Paul to the Christian religion on his way to Damascus, when he saw the Great Light and instead of being the chief persecutor of the Christians, became at once its greatest advocate and missionary.

History has shown that agreements among modern nations are no longer observed, unless both profit; however, both sides can be trusted, when each side does profit. The abolition of war has been the dream of man for ages, but every agreement has been broken as fantastic. However, that was before the invention of the hydrogen bomb demonstrated that mass destruction is possible and waging of war is no longer an ethical question, but the survival of the human race.

Peace, the abolition of war and the savings of billions of dollars consumed by mass destruction, would bring economic prosperity and increase the standard of living for all people throughout the earth.

Word Picture

TO THE EDITOR:

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's speech was the clearest word picture of the conditions in the world that I have ever heard.

This speech, I believe, should be printed in every language of the world and sent by special messenger to every leader of every country in the world.

Better still, it should be sent out by recording with attachments enabling the leaders to listen at their convenience.

It should help the world save itself from itself.

Secret

TO THE EDITOR:

During the process of framing the Atomic Energy Act, last year in the Joint Atomic Congressional Committee, Lewis L. Strauss, Chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, was the sole representative of that commission before the committee. Other members complained of being denied a part in it. It appeared that all proposals suggested by Strauss were approved by the President and accepted by the committee.

Most of the policies embodied in that law were earmarked "secret," and as yet the public knows very little about the law. The law contains rates to be charged for fissionable material to private industries.

Sen. Clinton B. Anderson (Dem.-N. M.), new chairman of the Joint Committee, asked for and received from Strauss a list of those rates to be charged, and after looking them over, they were marked "Top Secrets" which he bitterly disapproved. Mr. Anderson told members of the committee that the charges proposed by the commission were just another Dixon-Yates giveaway."

Mr. Strauss has been caught in a few vital misstatements. I believe if Mr. Anderson can save the support of the public, he will come up with a righteous demand for the removal of Strauss from so important a position of power over the affairs of all the people of our country.

GEORGE BRISTOW.

Senator Soaper Says---

Both parties favor shorter campaigns in 1956. This not only would save money but give the candidate an opportunity to fend off queries with, "That's an excellent question, and I wish I had time to answer it."

The most puzzling thing about the gangs of juvenile delinquents is the way every member is a good boy who just happened to run with bad companions.

Among the most painful of childhood diseases is the flu, when contracted by the fifth-grade boy on the day a heavy snow closes down the schools.

Now that the robins are violating their contract by hanging around all winter there is an opening for a new harbinger of spring.

If competitive free enterprise takes over the development of atomic power it shouldn't be hard to imagine the ads: "Use Whizzo, the atomic fuel which uses only large, sun-ripened atoms."

You can always tell the dwellers in the remote suburbs by what they bring into the office summer or winter—tomatoes or galoshes.

The president of a large motorcar company says the public demands more speed "and if we don't give it to them we're dead." And if you do, they are.

The lowest marriage rate in 20 years is reflected in a life insurance company's statistics, as well as in reduced sales of ash trays, pickle forks and bon-bon dishes.

Community Chest Adds Drive Director to Staff

A campaign director has been added to the Community Chest staff, Roland Robbins, president, announced Saturday.

Chest directors met Floyd E. White at their regular monthly meeting when he arrived to start preparation for next fall's United Neighbors Campaign.

White, who holds a master's degree in social work from USC and is a graduate of Pomona College, comes here after three years work on the Los Angeles Community Chest staff.

"As a native of Long Beach I have a more than usual interest in seeing that the area has the needed health, welfare and youth services our growing community needs," White told directors.

After graduating from Poly High School, White served with the Long Beach National Guard 251st Regiment in the Pacific for four years.

During his post-graduate work he did casework with the Long Beach Family Service and staff work at the Pasadena Community Chest. He has been a member of the Elks and Junior Chamber of Commerce as well as the Association for the Study of Community Organizations.

White resides with his wife and small son at 1711 E. 4th St.

Red Feather Director

Hall Favored for R. Cross National Job

Long Beach Red Cross board of directors has nominated Ross E. Hall for membership on the board of governors for the American National Red Cross, it was announced Saturday by Llewellyn Bixby, chapter chairman.

The board of governors has 50 members, of whom eight are appointed by President Eisenhower, who is honorary chairman of the organization; 12 are elected by the board itself as members at large and 30 are elected by chapter delegates at the national convention.

Hall, an honorary member of the local board of directors, has an impressive record of service as chapter chairman, vice chairman and director of Long Beach Red Cross. In 1952 he was appointed member of the advisory council for the Pacific area.

He is past president of Rotary and Long Beach Dinner Club, vice president and executive committee member of Long Beach Community Hospital, a member of L. B. Shrine and Long Beach Community Players. Since 1949 he has been chairman of the Selective Service Board. He is a partner and manager of the Century Lumber Co.

SLEEPING OFF THE BEDLAM

In a "quiet" farmhouse where he went to write a novel, only to be snowbound with a noisy brood of visitors, Herbert Gage (played by Marvin Cloyd) brings rafter-rocking comedy to Long Beach Community Playhouse in the current play, "January Thaw." Here he's crowded out of his bedroom to the living room davenport where he's being tucked in for the night by the maid, Frieda (Adella Cooper), and his wife, Marge (Nancy Copeland).

It Happened Last Night
By Earl Wilson

HOW GOES GOBEL

NEW YORK — The burning question all over America is, "Will George Gobel last?"

As the owner of a George Gobel haircut, I hope so—and I insist he's as permanent as horseshoes. (Gobel offstage asks, "Whatever happened to horseshoes?")

Gobel and my crewcut have a kinship. I "got trimmed"—in Las Vegas, curiously enough—last July. A few days later, wandering through the lobby of the Hotel Mapes in Reno, I saw Gobel's round yet squarish face—and said hello.

"Hi!" he said, and with a quick handshake, hurried on.

I'd seen him a few times on TV and covered his cafe opening at the Waldorf previously where I had said he was great—but hardly anybody else around the Reno lobby recognized the young man.

Now, six or seven months later, he's so famous that total strangers shout, "You can't hardly get that kind no more" or "I'll be a dirty bird" to me—thinking I'm George, because of our similar hairdos.

Gobel'll last, I feel, because he is, himself, a very funny man.

He often outfunnies his writers.

I happened to be watching him rehearse at NBC in Hollywood for a New Year's Eve sketch. Throughout that show, George wanted to go out New Year's Eve partying—and his wife wanted him to stay home and not drink anything.

Midnight—the New Year—had come . . . the hour for hugging and kissing. George was to kiss "Alice," his wife, just after shaking hands with a man who'd dropped in.

The idea of a sober husband saluting his teetotaling wife with a handshake instead of a smooch tickled Producer-Writer Hal Kanter who cast aside the script and said:

"Put a gold star opposite George's name."

Gobel's comedy has an intellectualism of a type that most successful comedians would consider a trifle dangerous. Gobel spoofs it with his own rash of double negatives, or a cliche—yet there are moments when he wishes to demonstrate that he did pass the 6th grade on something besides a bicycle.

In one script, his writers leave him a note saying:

"We've gone to lunch. Your writers, the Bronte Sisters."

George shakes his head moodily.

"That's Charlotte's work—Emily would never have done that," he decides.

In another script we find the words: "This is Tennessee Ernie. He really comes from Tennessee. Some shows would say he comes from Arizona to get a howl, but not us."

To this Gobel adds: "Documentary comedy is what it is."

Not very funny—unless Gobel says it. Let it be mentioned that Ava Gardner was one of his big fans back there in Reno when he wasn't yet a big name and went back to see him twice. She dug it.

I feel that in 1960, George Gobel will still be around.

WHAT SHE WANTED

Tryouts Begin for 'Stalag 17' Revival

Readings for a revival by popular demand of "Stalag 17" will be held Monday at 7:30 p. m. at The Theater, 2400 Magnolia Ave.

The comedy has an all-male cast. The Theater also invites participation by backstage helpers and technicians.

Car License Deadline Set Friday

Motorists have just one more work week—five days—in which to get their 1955 auto license tabs.

After next Friday, warns Director Paul Mason of the Department of Motor Vehicles, penalties will be added to registration renewal and license fees.

The penalties, Mason explained, are mandatory under the Motor Vehicle Code. They're pretty stiff, too. For example:

On all late renewals the flat registration fee of $8 is doubled to $16 and the license fee is increased by 50 per cent.

The deadline for owners making renewals in person at permanent or temporary motor vehicle offices is the close of business Friday afternoon. The permanent offices are open from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. Temporary offices in nearly 100 banks throughout the state, which handle renewals only on presentation of the pre-punched cards from Sacramento, are manned by Department of Motor Vehicles personnel during banking hours.

Motorists who did not receive the pre-punched cards may renew by presenting their 1954 white slips to any permanent office of the department.

Here are permanent offices of the Department of Motor Vehicles, in the Long Beach area:

700 E. Broadway, Long Beach.
17206 S. Woodruff Ave., Bellflower.
308 E. Palmer St., Compton.
12131 Front St., Norwalk.
1317 Cravens Ave., Torrance.

And here are the bank stations of the Long Beach area:

Nazi Push in Near East Topic of Zionist Rally

Dangers faced by Jews in the rise of Nazism in the Near East will be discussed at a public rally under the auspices of the Long Beach Zionist district at 8 o'clock tonight in Temple Israel Social Hall, 3rd St. and Loma Ave.

"News dispatches reveal that former Nazi generals are organizing anti-Semitic terror campaigns throughout the Arab countries," declared Rabbi I. Shalom Ravetch, president of the Zionist district, "Jews are being arrested and tortured again just as they were in Hitler's Reich."

Rabbi Ephraim F. Einhorn of Temple Beth David of the San Gabriel Valley, who was born in Vienna, has traveled widely and has visited Israel five times, will speak.

Elyakum Shapira will play Israel folk songs on the accordion; Lee Greisman will sing songs of Israel, accompanied by Jeannette Goldstein and the Los Angeles Israeli Youth Dancers.

DR. CHAN SAYS: NO LONGER MUST YOU SUFFER FROM

ASTHMA-DIABETES
HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

for the past two generations, the offices of Dr. Chan, D. C., located at 928 American Ave., have had outstanding results in treating chronic ailments such as ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, ARTHRITIS, NEURITIS, RHEUMATISM, HIGH OR LOW BLOOD PRESSURE, HEART TROUBLE, STOMACH OR LIVER DISORDERS, KIDNEY OR BLADDER AILMENTS OR A GENERAL RUNDOWN CONDITION. Men and women from all walks of life come to take these treatments because other methods of healing have failed to help them. Many have spent a fortune in seeking cure before they try this simple, effective natural method of Dr. Chan. Our patients tell us that they wish they had known of our wonderful treatments sooner so that their suffering could have been avoided.

928 American Ave.

READ THESE AMAZING TESTIMONALS

Dear Dr. Chan: "The day I came to your office with my mother and brother I was about to give up hope of getting rid of my asthma attacks. I spent hundreds of dollars for shots and pills, but yet found no results. After reading your advertisement, I tried you for my last resort and was thrilled to find that I responded wonderfully. After the first treatment I was able to breathe normally and could sleep better for the first time in months. Now I am feeling fine and hoping others will benefit from my experience with Dr. Chan's Natural method."
Signed, Mrs. Vivian Murray.

To Whom It May Concern: "For over 30 years I have been going from one doctor's office to another hoping to find someone to help me with my asthma and stomach condition. No one knows how much I had suffered until I came to Dr. Chan. Night after night I had to sit up because I wasn't able to lie down to sleep. I was coughing and wheezing most of the night, besides my stomach was full of gas. After taking Dr Chan's Herbal Therapy for one week, I began to improve. Now after five months of continuous treatment, my asthma and stomach troubles are just about over. I wish to recommend this treatment to anyone who is anxious to get well. I am sure that Dr. Chan will do all he can to help you as he has helped me." Signed, Mrs. Tina Smith.

Determine Wins Maturity on Foul

BUMPING DOWN SANTA ANITA STRETCH

Miz Clementine (on rail), with Eddie Arcaro up, duels Determine down to the wire in rough going in Santa Anita Maturity Saturday. Miz Clementine won, but was disqualified for interference. Determine, with Ray York in the irons, was awarded top money.—(AP Wirephoto.)

Disqualify Calumet Filly for Stretch Bump

By DAVE LEWIS, Sports Editor

SANTA ANITA PARK—Calumet Farm's hard-hitting filly, Miz Clementine, who was cheated out of a chance to run in the Santa Maria Handicap a week ago when left in the barn by mistake, encountered more trouble here Saturday as she came within a "bump" of becoming the first member of her sex to win the rich Santa Anita Maturity . . . but after leading Andy Crevolin's Determine to the wire by a head in the $163,360 turf classic she was disqualified for interference in the stretch and placed second.

Thus, first money of $87,000 went to Determine . . . moving him up to No. 15 in the all-time money-winning standings with a total of $461,535. Miz Clementine earned $30,000 for her "bump" routine.

James Session was third in the mile and one-quarter event, 3½ lengths farther back, while Allied was fourth another 3¼ lengths to the rear. Then came Spring Count, Duke's Lea, For Free, Correlation, and Ole Travis, who was pulled up at the half-mile pole by Jockey Bill Pearson when his saddle slipped.

It was the fourth disqualification in a stakes race at Santa Anita and the second in a $100,000 event.

In the other "fouled up" finish in a Hundred Grander. Intent was disqualified for bumping Miche in the stretch of the 1952 Santa Anita Handicap and first money awarded to the gray charger from South America.

And like Miche, Determine also is a "gray!"

YORK BLEEDING

Determine's pilot, Ray York, blood streaming from his nose as the result of catching a flying clod in the face in midstretch, declared "I really think I should have won the race. I was right with Miz Clementine from the three-eighth pole on in and she made us lose ground all the way through the stretch."

The veteran Eddie Arcaro was aboard Miz Clementine. He explained that she was drifting out a little in the stretch and "when I hit her left-handed about the 16th pole she swerved before I could get hold of her and straighten her out. Funny thing, about that. She used to lug in as a 2-year-old when I rode her in Chicago. But she was trying to drift all the way in this race."

A study of the patrol films, shown to newspapermen after the race, showed that the stewards' decision to disqualify Miz Clementine was fully justified.

When the Crevolin standard-bearer and the Calumet filly came thundering into the stretch, Miz Clementine bore out and brushed Determine.

But as Determine came on again just outside the eighth pole, Miz Clementine began drifting out . . . carrying Determine clear to the middle of the track.

SWITCHES WHIP

Then, unable to use a right-hand whip to straighten her out again because he would hit Determine and York, Arcaro switched the whip in mid-stride and desperately whacked her left-handed. But this time Miz Clementine responded by barreling into Determine with a real "body block" . . . forcing York to take up.

Arcaro quickly pulled Miz Clementine off Determine and steered her to the inside rail . . . but by this time the damage had been done and even though she was able to hold off Determine, the stewards flashed the "Inquiry" sign as the horses passed under the finish line.

Allied, Determines' running mate, roared into an early two-length lead followed by Miz Clementine, Spring Count and Determine.

Miz Clementine and Determine moved up on the pacesetting Allied down the backstretch and then zipped by him as they headed in the far turn.

By this time, it was obvious that it was going to be a two-horse race . . . with the rest of the field lagging behind.

HOLDS ON TO LEAD

Miz Clementine never actually lost the lead after she and Determine moved to the front with five-sixteenths of a mile to go.

Several times Determine drove up to look her in the eye, but was never able to move ahead of the stout-hearted Calumet filly.

Three times in the stretch York tried to wrest the lead from Miz Clementine, but each time was frustrated by the filly's erratic running.

It was a thrilling race from start to finish with Determine and Miz Clementine staging one of the greatest stakes duels since the immortal Noor-Citation match in the 1950 San Juan Capistrano Handicap which has been described by many experts as the greatest horse race in history.

Determine carried top weight of 126 pounds to Miz Clementine's 117. Time for the mile and one-quarter was 2:00 2/5 over a fast strip . . . two-fifths of a second off the track record.

Determine, coupled with Allied, paid $5.10, 2.30 and 2.10 across the board; Miz Clementine, tied up with Duke's Lea in the betting, returned $2.10 and 2.10, while James Session, an entry with Ole Travis, paid $2.20 to show.

Heavy wagering on the show end produced a minus show pool of $2,021 for the race.

Duke's Lea, rated by many as the most dangerous part of the Calumet entry, raced into a contending position down the backstretch, but when it came time

Rams Sign Three Assistant Coaches

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Football League Los Angeles Rams Saturday announced signing of three assistant coaches to help spark their comeback campaign.

Sid Gillman, newly named head coach, brought the trio along with him from the University of Cincinnati. They are line coaches Joe Madro and Lowell Storm and backfield coach Jack Faulkner. Madro and Faulkner have worked with Gillman for the past six years and Storm for two seasons. Gillman expects to name two more aides, men with pro experience, within the next two weeks.

The action was disclosed at the close of a three-day meeting of NFL club owners here.

Three of the Rams' early draft picks arrived in New York Saturday to discuss contract terms —linebacker Larry Morris of Georgia Tech, halfback Ron Waller of Maryland and halfback Billy Teas of Georgia Tech.

Waller and Teas are expected to sign with little difficulty, but Morris is known to be negotiating with several Canadian teams.

Walks 100 Yards in 17 Seconds for New Mark

BURBANK (UP)—Bill Mihalo, who holds some 45 amateur and professional world's walking records, marched to a new professional mark for 100 yards Saturday before 20 spectators at Burbank Memorial Coliseum.

Mihalo did the 100 yards in 17 seconds flat, breaking the old record of 18.4 seconds set by Bill Donovan in 1889.

Three Share Golf Lead

Mayfield, Souchak Tie Palmer

PALM SPRINGS (UP) — Shelley Mayfield and Mike Souchak came roaring down the home stretch to catch front-runner Johnny Palmer on the 18th hole Saturday and the result was a three-way tie for the lead in the $15,000 Thunderbird Invitational golf tournament at the 54-hole mark.

The trio deadlocked at 201—each 15 under par for the distance, with the final 18 holes to be fired today.

As great as has been the shot-making of this trio, 12 are within four strokes of the front—so it's a wide-open battle.

While Palmer, who led for the first 36 holes, faded to a one-under par 71 Saturday, Souchak checked in with a 69 to go with previous rounds of 66-66; and Mayfield added a 68 to his earlier 63-70. Palmer had a 62 his first round and a 68 Friday.

Right on their heels, with 202 totals are youngsters Bobby Rosburg, San Francisco, and Bud Holscher, Santa Monica, along with Bo Wininger of Oklahoma City and Wally Ulrich, Rochester, Minn. Wininger and Holscher had 69s Saturday, Rosburg a 67, and Ulrich a 69.

It was another great day of par-cracking efforts for the select group of professionals invited to compete in this event. The best round was a 64, scored by former National Open champion Julius Boros, which brought him into a tie with defending champion Freddie Haas, who had a 67 Saturday.

Boros was out in 31, helped with an eagle-two on the 405-yard fifth hole. His drive was out about 250 and he tanked a five-iron shot from there.

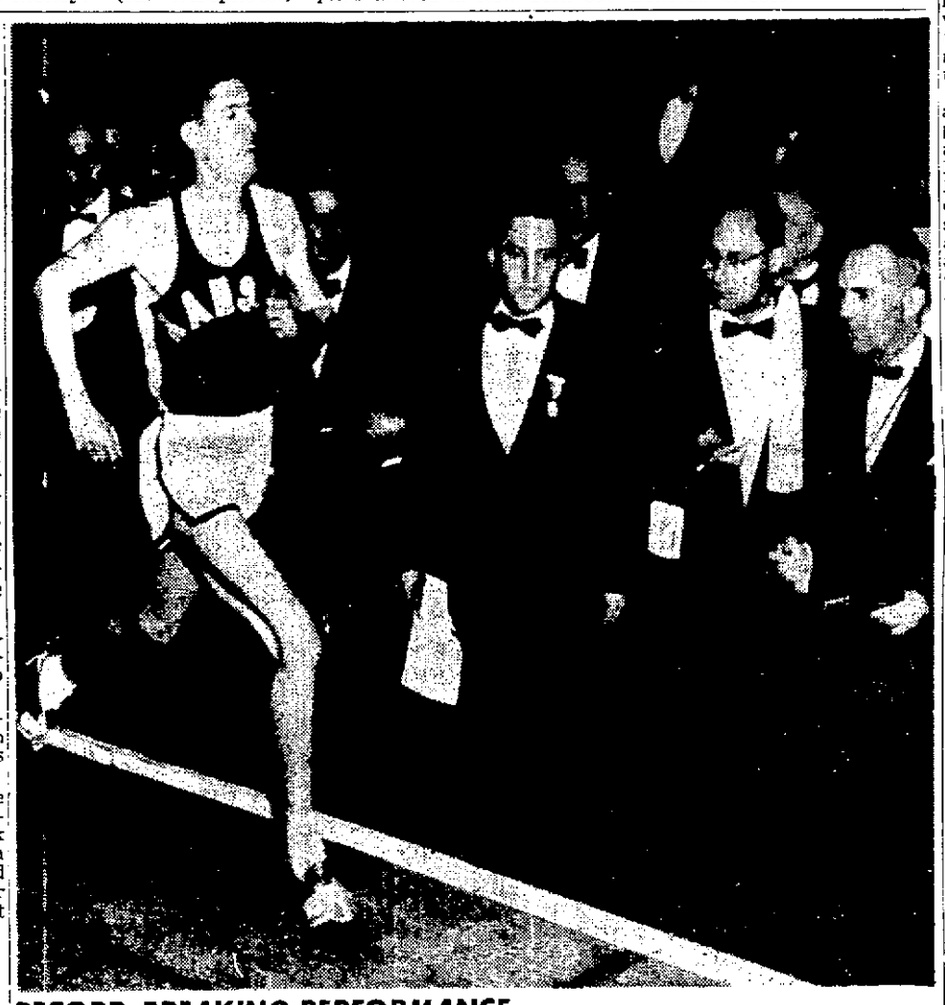

There also was a 65, by Freddie Wampler of Indianapolis, which brought him in with a 204 total.

The bad news of the day fell to Dr. Cary Middlecoff, the Memphis dentist now playing out of Klamesha Lake, N.Y. Middlecoff started off the day well in contention with a 136 score.

He had a 34 going out, but missed the ball completely twice when he had to swing left-handed from behind a tree on the 12th hole and he took a seven on the 320-yard par-four hole—rated the easiest on the course. Even with that he came in with a 72 and has a 208 score for the 54 holes.

NO SENTIMENT FOR 10 TEAMS

National League Abandons Plans for Early Expansion

NEW YORK (AP) — The National League Saturday abandoned the idea of expanding to a 10-club league. President Warren Giles said "It is my conclusion there is no sentiment for any 10-club league now."

Giles said no "formal or informal" vote was taken at Saturday's league meeting, but the expansion idea was discussed for an hour and a half.

Giles said the general sentiment of the club owners seemed to be that expansion to 10 clubs might dilute the other eight teams already in the league. Other reasons cited, he said, were that there would be too many second division clubs in a 10-club league and that there weren't enough ball players of major league caliber to go around.

Asked if the action, taken at a special league meeting to look over schedules of a possible 10 club league, did not give the American League an edge in the majors' battle for new territory, he replied:

"We realize all those things. If they (meaning the American League) want to go to 10 clubs, let them. Maybe we'll be better off than they."

"Practically everyone feels some cities not in the majors now eventually will be in the majors," he explained. "How and when I don't know, but it is inevitable. Maybe by transfer. Maybe by a third major league, but I don't think so."

Giles said the owners spent hardly any time at the meeting discussing the so-called "dry run" schedules for a 10-club league which he had sent them in advance.

The National League action came on the eve of a scheduled meeting today of the American League's realignment committee.

"And if other cities had major league parks," he continued, "they might be closer to the majors than they are now. I don't think it would be difficult to get sentiment to shift a franchise."

In the next breath, however, he added:

"I don't like to encourage any city to pass a bond issue to build a major league park."

Asked whether the National League action ruled out expansion to 10 clubs "forever," he predicted that such expansion "won't be the subject of discussion in the league very soon."

Giles would not name any cities as possible future league cities because, he said, the National League does not want to kill minor league interest in such cities. The ones that have been mentioned most prominently in the past include San Francisco, Los Angeles, Montreal, Toronto, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Houston and Dallas.

BASEBALL NEWS

Yank Offer Low: Mantle

COMMERCE, Okla. (UP)—Outfielder Mickey Mantle said Saturday he will reject the first 1955 contract from the New York Yankees because the salary figure is too low.

Mantle said he will send a letter today to the Yankee front office "to tell them I think I should receive a little more than they offered."

ATHLETICS—Alex Kellner, whose arm troubles were reported ended, signed his contract. Pacts were also received from catcher Bill Shantz and first baseman Lou Limmer. Sixteen signed contracts have now been returned.

PHILLIES—John Meyer, 25-year-old right-hander who was 15-11 with Syracuse last season, signed his contract.

RED SOX—Veterans Milt Bolling and Billy Consolo and rookie infielder Lew Damman came to terms with general manager Joe Cronin. Rookie pitcher Ike Delock (17-10 at Louisville) also signed.

GIANTS—Veteran hurler Jim Hearn and Alan Worthington and Ronnie Samford inked pacts, bringing to 26 the number of players now in the fold.

BRAVES—Front office announced Saturday that rookie catcher Roger Jongewaard of Long Beach will train with the club this spring. Jongewaard hit .338 with Boise last year.

SEALS—Mike Donahue, young catcher, returned his signed contract.

CAMPBELL TO CAPTAIN

Patton One of Newcomers on U.S. Walker Cup Team

NEW YORK (AP)—Bill Campbell of Huntington, W. Va., runner-up in the British Amateur championship last year, was named captain Saturday of a nine-man Walker Cup golf team which will play Britain's best at storied St. Andrews in Scotland, May 20-21.

He was one of four members of the successful combination selected on the squad which also includes ebullient Billy Joe Patton of Morgantown, N. C., amateur sensation of the 1954 season.

Veterans returning beside Campbell are Harvie Ward Jr., of San Francisco, former British Amateur champion; Don Cherry, the crooner from Wichita Falls, Tex., and James G. Jackson of Glendale, Mo.

Newcomers, in addition to Patton are Lt. Joe Conrad of San Antonio, Tex.; Bruce Cudd of Portland, Ore.; Dale Morey of Indianapolis and Richard Yost of Portland.

Alternates who will get the assignment only in case one of the regulars cannot make the trip are in order, Rex Baxter Jr., of Amarillo, Tex., Hillman Robbins Jr., of Memphis, Tenn., and Edward Meister, 37-year-old Cleveland trade magazine publisher.

Notable omission was Bob Sweeny, 43-year-old socialite runnerup to Arnold Palmer for the National Amateur championship last year.

USSR GOES 'ALL-OUT'

Russia Far Ahead of U.S. in Plans for '56 Olympics

CHICAGO (AP)—Russia is far ahead of the United States in planning for the 1956 Olympic Games, according to Michigan's track coach, Don Canham.

Canham told the Midwest chapter of the U. S. Olympians the Russians plan to take 400 athletes to Afghanistan for six weeks of conditioning in preparation for the Olympics at Melbourne, Australia. The climates of Afghanistan and Australia are much alike.

"Our present plans call for trials in Los Angeles in November with the qualifiers going on from there to Australia," Canham said.

Canham asserted that Russia will be strongest in track events where the United States is weakest—distances from 5,000 meters up, the hammer throw, javelin throw and the two major walking races.

"We waste a lot of time talking about the 'amateur spirit' and how there is no team scoring in the Olympics," he said.

"Meanwhile, Russia is working to beat us, so it can use its victory for propaganda purposes."

Fetchick Leader in Imperial Valley Open

BRAWLEY, Calif. (AP) — Mike Fetchick, Scarsdale, N. Y., playing a cool and deliberate game, took the lead after three rounds in the $5,000 Imperial Valley Open Golf Tournament Saturday. He fired a 6-under-par 64 on the Del Rio Country Club course for a 54-hole total of 199.

Paul Harney, Worcester, Mass., with seven birdies and some fine putting, scored 63 for a total of 200. Tied at that mark with Harney are Bob Harris of Chicago, who posted a 65, and Wesley Ellis, Westwood, N. J., with a 66.

Slender Al Brosch of Garden City, N. Y., birdied eight holes and set a new course record of 62.

The leaders:

Mike Fetchick	67-68-64—199
Paul Harney	71-66-63—200
Bob Harris	63-72-65—200

PGA Seniors Lead Shared by M. Dutra

DUNEDIN, Fla. (UP) — Louis Chiapetta of Sylvania, O., and Mortie Dutra of Los Angeles turned their backs to a chilly north wind Saturday and shot sub-par golf to vault into a three-way tie for the lead in the 54-hole National PGA Senior golf tournament.

Mike Murra of Wichita, Kan., who shot a brilliant 66 Friday, slipped to a 75 on the second round and dropped back into a tie at 141 with Chiapetta and Dutra. Chiapetta carded a two-under-par 70 and Dutra a 71.

The leaders:

Mike Murra	75—141
Mortie Dutra	71—141
Louis Chiapetta	70—141

Dennis Clary in Critical Condition

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Dennis Clary, a wrestler who books out of Los Angeles, was in critical condition at St. Mary's Hospital here Saturday night.

Clary appeared in a match here Thursday night and collapsed in the ring scarcely after the contest was under way.

The attending physician said Clary's right arm and right leg are paralyzed. He said that no injury or clot on the brain was found following a second operation, but added that the paralysis "may be the result of some other injury or disease."

Once Over Lightly

by DAVE LEWIS

Basketball's most forgotten men are the members of the three teams which tour with the Harlem Globetrotters—the Washington Generals, Toledo Mercuries and Philadelphia SPHAS.

The latter initials, incidentally, stand for South Philadelphia Hebrew Athletic Society. And the strange part of it is, the SPHAS have produced many hoop greats in the past 40 years such as Francis Burns, Charles McCormick and Bob Peterson . . . but have not yet developed a truly outstanding Jewish star.

The players on the three teams touring with the Globetrotters, are usually dismissed—often rudely—by fans as merely "professional stooges."

But that is not entirely the case even though the three teams collectively have succeeded in beating the Globetrotters only three times since 1951.

They'll have another go at it this week in two appearances in Long Beach at the Municipal Auditorium on Monday and Friday nights.

Toledo was the last of the three regular touring teams to beat the Globetrotters, pulling off the stunt in Minneapolis by an 87-74 count late in 1951 shortly after Washington toppled the 'Trotters two nights in a row in Syracuse and Philadelphia.

How does it feel to lose all the time?

Well, the "opposition" doesn't like it.

As Pete Monska, playing-coach of the SPHAS, says . . . "It is believed that we fall over and play dead to make the Globetrotters look good. But not if we can help it. Our boys have their pride and they don't enjoy losing. The Philadelphia team hasn't beaten them in four years, but some nights we come awful close and we sure keep trying."

The natural question, of course, is what is the future of "playing straight men for a slapstick comedy act?"

"Well," Monska points out, "the players do their best to improve themselves because going up to the NBA (major league of basketball) is the big incentive. Several already have made the grade. For instance, our George Dempsey graduated from the SPHAS to the Philadelphia Warriors on the strength of what he did against the Globetrotters."

ANOTHER SPOKESMAN for the "forgotten men" states that the Generals, Mercuries and SPHAS are in a sense farm clubs only a notch under the level of the NBA. "There are many borderline cases who need only a year or two experience with us to make the NBA," he says.

Many people think the Globetrotter games are strictly "vaudeville."

"But that isn't the case, either," one of the playing-coaches declares. "Oh, there are times when we have an agreement not to interfere with their baseball and football routines, but the rest of the time we are playing for blood.

"Many times when we give them a close run for it, the customers complain the Globetrotters weren't funny enough. Well, on many occasions they don't have too much time to be funny because they have to knuckle down.

"The Globetrotters usually don't start their out-and-out clowning until they are safely out in front by eight or 10 points. When the scores are close they can't gag it up and the fans go away keenly disappointed and sore at us. The so-called 'patsies' are the villians for holding them so close.

"Once the Globetrotters get ahead by a few points, they are capable of keeping you from scoring even while they're fooling around . . . so at times it may look as if we aren't bearing down.

"But let the score get close and the Globetrotters immediately apply tremendous defensive pressure, slam the door in your face and cut the comedy.

"After all, the Globetrotters are experienced professionals who have been together longer than any unit of the opposition and their victories are entirely legitimate!"

THE GLOBETROTTERS are particularly proud of their new tag of "Uncle Sam's Ambassadors of Good Will."

They have played on all six continents of the world and in 27 years up to the start of their current tour they had played a total of 5,050 games and lost only 280.

The only part of the world in which the Globetrotters have not yet been seen is the area behind the "Iron Curtain."

But Abe Saperstein, majordomo of the Globetrotters, has plenty of evidence that sports fans in Russian-dominated countries behind the curtain are anxious to see the Negro cage magicians perform.

He has thousands of letters from people in Red-controlled countries asking him to bring the Globetrotters to their cities.

But Communist leaders have consistently turned down Abe's requests to take the Trotters behind the curtain because the Globetrotters themselves are living proof that Soviet propaganda is based on lies.

Touring abroad presents many problems and "ingenuity" is perhaps the most important ingredient of the Trotters' tour.

For instance, when they landed in Nuremberg, Germany, last summer, it had been raining hard for three days. They were supposed to play outdoors, but it was impossible under such conditions.

Since the advance sale was ex-

DOESN'T KEEP BOOK

Bevo Still Hitting 45 Points a Game

SPOKANE (UP)—Clarence (Bevo) Francis, who drove the scorekeepers frantic in college, is on the last lap of his $17,000 professional basketball tour and figures he is still averaging 45 points a game.

"I'm not really sure, though," Bevo added. "We don't keep a score book any more."

The "we" is Bevo and Newt Oliver, his young coach at Rio Grande (Ohio) College and now the mentor and front man for the barnstorming Boston Whirlwinds.

Francis, 22, and Newt quit Rio Grande together last year after Bevo's sophomore season and signed up for $30,000 with Abe Saperstein of the Harlem Globetrotters who also runs the Whirlwinds. Newt gets $13,000.

"We've been playing pro on the road now nearly every day since last June 29, more than 150 games," Bevo said. He has worn out three pairs of size 13 basketball shoes.

"I'm getting about 45 a game and shooting better than I did in college. If I was in college now with the new free throw rule, Newt figures I could be averaging 60 or so."

Francis has just built a six-room home in Wellsville, Ohio, for his wife and 2-year-old son, Frank, and is paying it off on basketball.

"I'd like to keep playing as long as I can, maybe in the National Basketball League. I can't play in the NBA until my Rio Grande class graduates in 1956. Then I'd like to get into the ice cream business."

Gerber Leads in Bowling Tourney

With one-half of the field of 224 bowlers finished, Kate Gerber held the lead in Class A singles in the ninth annual Long Beach City Women's Bowling Tournament at the Belmont Bowl Saturday night.

Gerber totaled 494 for her singles lead and shared top spot in doubles event with teammate Lil Crawford, who also grabbed an early margin in the Class B singles with a 559 total.

Results after two squads had finished:

Class A—Singles: Kate Gerber, 494; Doubles: Gerber and Lil Crawford, 1127; All Events: Marge Anderson, 1490.

Class B—Lil Crawford, 559; Doubles: Bunny Garrison and Helen Holmes, 919; All Events: Lil Crawford, 1540.

Class C—Singles: Virginia Capalungo, 485; Doubles: Capalungo and Bert Sherwood, 905; All Events: Josie Shepard, 1333.

Class D—Singles: Virginia Schiazo, 476; Doubles: Bessie Hooker and Madge Glenn, 821; All Events: Madge Glenn, 1261.

Five squads take the lanes today, opening at noon.

Maxine Bagdasar bears watching in the Class B division as does Evelyn Rhoads.

Headlining the 2:15 roll is Mickey Sonneborn and Dottie Holmes.

The 4:30 squad features such as Bobbie Arrington, Helen Lychak and Alice Hassett.

Waneta Gray tops the 6:45 roll, with Mary Osborne drawing favoritism in the windup at 9. Schedule:

SIX OVERTIMES!

Minnesota Takes Over First, 59-56

(Compiled from AP and UP)

LAFAYETTE, Ind. — Minnesota's Gophers battled Purdue's Boilermakers through six overtime periods Saturday night and won undisputed first place in the Big Ten basketball race, 59-56. The number of extra sessions equaled the American collegiate record.

Purdue, a 102-88 loser at Minnesota only Jan. 15, was left in a last place tie with Ohio State.

Only 12 men got into the 70-minute struggle, six for each team.

The Boilermakers gained a three-point lead in the sixth five-minute overtime period but got excited and lost the ball once by throwing it out of bounds and once by double-dribbling.

The teams went into the sixth extra session tied at 49-49.

Ohio State's Johnny Miller and Chuck Ellis took over for injured Robin Freeman Saturday as the Buckeyes came from behind to upset Northwestern, 91-90, in the nationally televised Big Ten game.

The victory broke a four-game losing streak for Ohio State as Miller scored 33 points and Ellis, a 5-foot-10-inch junior, contributed 31. Northwestern's defeat, its third in six conference games, knocked the Wildcats out of a chance to gain at least a tie for first place.

Illinois romped to a new Chicago Stadium scoring record, rolling to a 95-69 decision over Loyola in the opener of a double header.

Paul Judson and Phil Judson sparked the Illini attack as Paul dropped 25 points and Phil 14. Senior Billy Ridley netted 15.

In the second game of the doubleheader, played before 12,181 fans, Michigan State tripped DePaul, 88-72. Julius McCoy scored 25 points for the Spartans.

Halbrook Sharp in OSC Win

SEATTLE (UP)—Oregon State used its portable court—an air-tight defense—to hold Washington scoreless for 8½ minutes of the first half Saturday night and rolled easily to a 57-43 Pacific Coast Conference basketball triumph.

It was Oregon State's eighth victory without a defeat in Northern Division play.

The tilt was a nip and tuck affair until just after the middle mark of the first half. Washington was leading, 19-17, when the Staters jammed home the defensive cork. The few shots that Washington was able to get away were hurried and the rebounding of 7-3 Swede Halbrook and Jay Dean kept the door firmly closed on Washington.

Meanwhile the Beavers ran a string of 13 points and left for intermission with a 30-19 lead.

Halbrook picked up 17 points in the first half. He got most of them merely by holding the ball above everybody's flapping hands and gently introducing it to the basket. He picked up four more in the second half to make his total 21, high for both teams, and fouled out with 7:22 minutes in the game.

Tony Routed; Rosewall vs. Hoad in Finals

ADELAIDE, Australia (UP) — Tony Trabert's dream of a clean sweep of the world's major 1955 tennis titles was exploded Saturday when he was trounced in the singles semifinals of the Australian championships by Ken Rosewall of Australia, 8-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Rosewall now will meet countryman Lew Hoad in Monday's final in a bid to regain the national championship he won in 1953. Hoad gained the other final berth Saturday with a 6-1, 6-4, 6-4 triumph over Rex Hartwig of Australia.

NEW LOOK FOR L. A.

24 Rookies to Report

Contracts have been mailed to 36 players by the Los Angeles Angels, President John Holland announced Saturday, with 24 of the documents going to men who have never before worn the local regalia.

And of the remaining 12, pitchers Lenny Hinchman and Paul Menking have seen only brief service with the Angels, Menking several years ago, and Hinchman a few weeks last season. Spring training opens March 1 at Fullerton.

The only actual holdovers are catcher John Pramesa, infielders Leon Brinkopf, Tommy Brown, Gene Mauch and Bud Hardin; outfielders Bob Usher and Dick Smith, and pitchers Cal McLish, Turk Lown and Joe Hatten.

Complete roster with records and 1954 club of each player:

Holdovers

Catcher: John Pramesa, .294. Pitchers: Joe Hatten, 13-17; Turk Lown, 5-3; Cal McLish, 13-15; Lenny Hinchman, 1-4; Paul Menking, (1951) 0-0. Infielders: Gene Mauch, .287; Bud Hardin, .242; Tommy Brown, .263; Leon Brinkopf, .231. Outfielders: Bob Usher, .254 and Dick Smith, .240

Newcomers

Catchers: Bob Murray, Macon, .213, and Bob Pivich Magic Valley, .282.

Pitchers: Bob Anderson, Cedar Rapids, (1-1; Raymond Bauer, Des Moines, 12-10; Fred Burdette Macon 1-0; Dick Drott, Cedar Rapids, 5-7 Paul Hoffmeister, Beaumont, 5-8; Carl Johnson, no pro experience; Joe Kunel Macon and Des Moines, 7-0 and 4-3; Billy Murrett, Shreveport, 5-11; Sam Nunn, Des Moines, 4-3; George Piktuzis, Armed Forces; Dwight Stoddard, Magic Valley, 17-3.

Infielders: Ted Bell, Modesto, .256; Buster Clarkson, Dallas, .327; Bobby Howard, Armed Forces; Don Luttrell, Gainsville, .260; Jim Clark, Vancouver, .285.

Outfielders: Bill Bohlender, Macon, .300; Bob Coats, Macon, .310; Jim McDaniel, Des Moines, .249; Bud Hamlet, Shreveport, .264; Tom Nerad, Armed Forces, and Burdy Thurley, Des Moines, .285.

Santee Sets Indoor Mile Mark

Easy Win in 4:03.8; Bob 15-2

BOSTON (UP)—Peerless Wes Santee, America's reigning king of the outdoor mile, added the world's indoor record to his glittering track laurels Saturday night when he captured the Boston Athletic Association Hunter Mile in 4:03.8, almost two full seconds better than the previous mark.

The lithe Olympian thus took over from fellow Kansan Gil Dodds as indoor mile record holder. Dodds, the galloping parson, had established his record of 4:05.3 in New York in 1948.

As Santee streaked across the finish line a full 30 yards ahead of Gunnar Nielsen of Denmark, the capacity crowd of 13,909 gave him a thundering ovation.

Santee said he was unaware that he had the record in his grasp. "I was keeping my mind on my running and was out there to win or lose but doing my best," said the marine officer trainee.

"When I started the race I was just out to run. If I won I won. If I lost I lost," he added.

Nielsen had no excuses or complaints to make about Santee's victory.

The Copenhagen pressman, who finished himself in a creditable 4:08.2, said, "I knew I lost the race right from the start. He was the better runner and that's all there was to it."

TERRIFIC PACE

Little Dick Ollen of Northeastern University set a terrific pace for Santee as he led the Kansan for the first six laps. Ollen's time at the quarter was 56.7 seconds and Santee was just three-tenths of a second off that pace.

Ollen faded at the seventh lap as Santee and Nielsen took over. The victor's time at three-quarter point was 3:02.1. Bob McMillan of the armed forces track squad was third and Billy Tidwell of Kansas State Teachers fourth.

Rangy Herman Wyatt, formerly of San Jose State, established a new BAA and Boston Garden record in the high jump with a leap of 6 feet, 10¼ inches. It beat the lean Negro's own Boston record by a quarter-inch and eclipsed an inch and a quarter of the BAA mark Wyatt shared with Navy dentist Ken Wiesner.

Horace Ashenfelter of the New York Athletic Club maintained his two-mile mastery over FBI colleague Fred Wilt by taking the Billings run in 8:55.5, 2½ seconds off his own BAA and Boston Garden record.

The Reverend Bob Richards of Long Beach, Calif., 1952 pole vault champion, won his specialty at 15 feet, 2 inches, far below his announced goal of 15-9. It was the 52nd time he bettered 15 feet.

NINTH IN ROW

Nifty Harrison (Bones) Dillard won his ninth consecutive BAA 45-yard hurdles title by racing over the barriers in 5.6 seconds, one-tenth of a second slower than his meet record.

In one of those infrequent lapses, the five-man field in the Hollis 600-yard run ran an extra lap which was declared won by Pitt half-miler Arnold Sowell in 1:14.3. Indoor record is 1:09.5.

The defending meet champion, Mal Whitfield, holder of the indoor record, quit in disgust just before the end of the standard 600 yards when he noticed the apparent error.

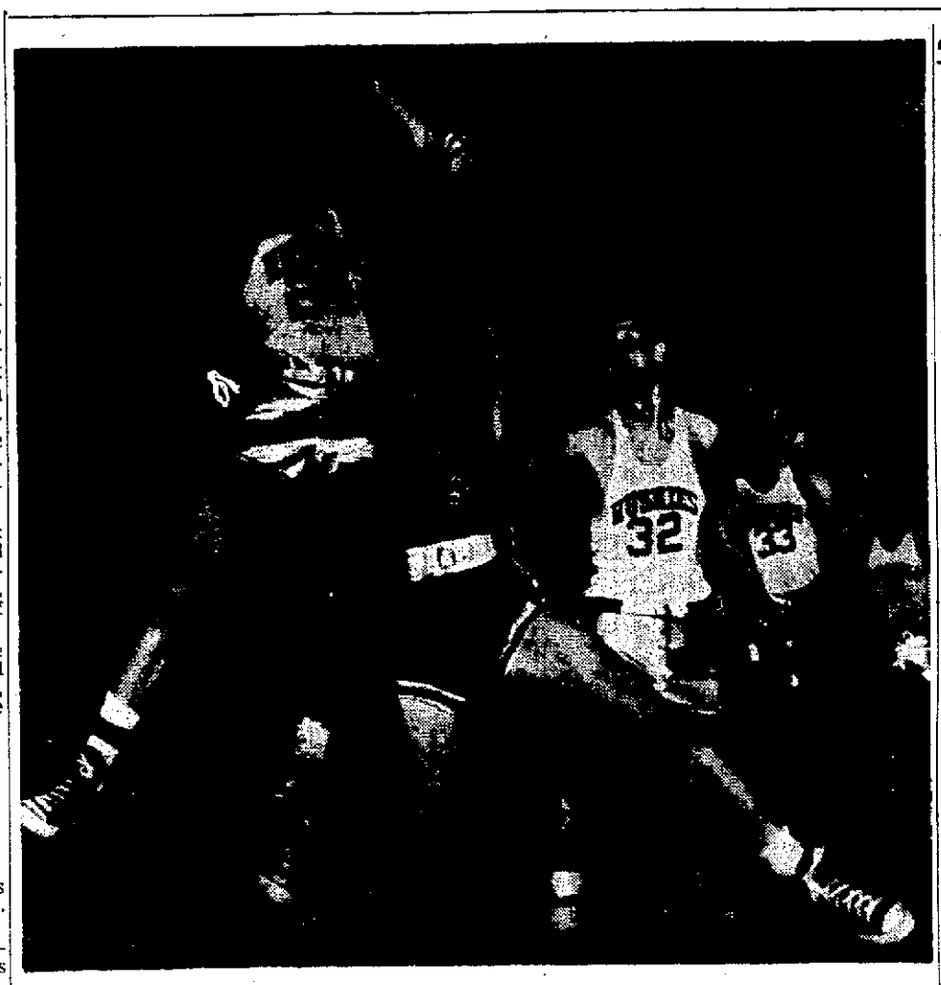

In the 50-yard dash Rod Richard, former UCLA star and another member of the potent armed forces squad, won a nip and tuck battle with Art Bragg of Baltimore in 5.4 seconds. Richard's time was a tenth of a second off the meet record.

Ducks Withstand BYU Rally, 81-76

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Oregon, despite a spectacular rally by Brigham Young in the last 6½ minutes, defeated the Cougars, 81-76, in Saturday's non-conference basketball game.

BYU, trailing 19 points with seven minutes to go, closed the gap to five mostly on the scoring of Terry Tebbs, 150-pound guard who scored 20 points.

Oregon's Jim Loscutoff and Max Anderson shared scoring honors for the game, however, with 24 points each.

Tribe Tops Broncs; Dons Easy Winners

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—Stanford's fast-breaking cagers rallied in the second half Saturday night to defeat Santa Clara, 72-67, after the University of San Francisco crushed California, 84-62, in a Cow Palace doubleheader here.

Kenny Sears of the Santa Clara Broncos was high for the night with 31 points but this effort was not enough to offset the driving lay-ins of Stanford's George Selleck and the fine shooting from outside by Russ Lawler.

Stanford, trailing 25-32 at the half, pulled even at 47-47 with 12 minutes to play as Lawler dropped in two quick field goals.

Ron Tomsic put the Indians briefly ahead 49-47 but Sears tied it up and then put the Broncs ahead 51-49.

Lawler and Sears then swapped field goals as the score ran to 55-53, but Tomsic then put the Indians back in the lead for good with a pop shot.

Stanford squeezed the margin up to 67-59 and went into a stall with three minutes to go. This cost the broncos a pair of fouls which Selleck and Bill Bond converted into four more points to wrap up the game.

In the opener, USF rolled to a 20-0 lead in the first eight minutes of play against Cal.

The big gun in the Dons' attack was Jerry Mullen, who sank 23 points before fouling out with five minutes to play. The San Francisco forward scored 19 points in the first half, sinking 11 out of 12 free throws during his splurge.

The win marked the 14th straight victory for the third-ranked Dons since they lost to UCLA early in the season. USF later made the Bruins one of their string of 14 victims in a lop-sided encounter.

California's Bob McKeen was definitely off, being held to three field goals and only getting one in the first half.

Bill Russell, towering USF center, made McKeen look bad most of the evening as he consistently beat him on the backboards and easily kept the ball away from the six-foot-seven-inch Bear's reach.

BIG BAD BRUINS

Bane Leads UCLA to Rout of Cal Poly

LOS ANGELES (UP) — The fast-breaking UCLA Bruins demolished Cal Poly of San Luis Obispo, 84-55, Saturday night in a non-conference game which saw forward Ronnie Bane run off with scoring honors for the second night in a row.

Bane tanked 26 points despite being benched most of the second half. He tossed in 22 Friday night against an equally outmanned Santa Barbara College team.

The issue was never in doubt as the Bruins registered their 10th straight home court victory in Westwood gym. They ran up an early, 28-9, lead and were ahead, 43-26, at the half.

Guard Morris Taft scored 16 points and Willie Naulls collected 13 for UCLA. High man for the Mustangs was guard Tony Nunes with 11. Ernie Hall and A. Grandberry sank 10 each for the losers.

Friday night's and Saturday night's games served primarily as conditioners for the powerful UCLA squad, which takes on California next week end in a two-game Pacific Coast Conference Southern Division series.

2,538 BREAKS POINT RECORD

PHILLIPI, W. Va. (UP)—Carl Hartman of Alderson-Broaddus broke the all-time small college basketball scoring record by dumping 85 points Saturday night against West Liberty to bring his total to 2,538 in competition with four-year schools.

Hartman's effort led the Battlers to a 101-76 victory over West Liberty.

The new total bests by one the 2,537 points scored by Johnny O'Brien of Seattle in three seasons ending in 1953.

It ties the major college record set by Frank Selvy of Furman last season.

Lions Nod Portland

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Loyola of Los Angeles, led by center Bob Cox with 23 points, defeated Portland University, 80-75, in a tight basketball game Saturday night.

Portland took an early lead and held a 12-point advantage at one point in the first half. Portland was out in front 49-43 as the period ended.

Cox sank three hook shots to tie the score 49-49 early in the second period. From there the lead changed hands frquently until Loyola pulled ahead to stay in the closing minutes.

Portland's Bob Altenhofen was high for the game with 27 points—one more than Tom Salvino turned in for Loyola.

Aztecs Down Fresno State

FRESNO (UP)—The San Diego State Aztecs went into a first place tie in the California Collegiate Athletic Association by whipping Fresno State, 73-65, in a basketball game here Saturday night.

The San Diego win put the Aztecs in a deadlock with Cal Poly for the loop lead.

Vaughn Whips Perea, Recaptures Title

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Willie Vaughn, 159¾, Los Angeles, scoring with solid left hooks and jabs in the late rounds, recaptured the state middleweight title from Oakland's Sal Perea, 153, in a split decision 12-round main event at Legion Stadium Saturday night.

Vaughn decked Perea twice in the third round and once in the fourth. Vaughn, himself knocked down in the fourth, staged a strong comeback, though handicapped by bad cuts over both eyes.

Perea won the title from Vaughn on a fourth-round TKO in San Diego last November.

Wildcat Rally Trips Vandy

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UP) — Kentucky rallied in the last five minutes of play Saturday night to win a 75-71 decision over Vanderbilt.

The win left the top-rated Wildcats with a record marred only by a surprise one-point loss to Georgia Tech.

The Wildcats breezed through an easy first half but found themselves backed up as a Vanderbilt rally chopped down a 17-point lead to tie the score at 60-60. However, Kentucky, sparked by forward Jerry Bird, broke the tie with a rebound shot that put the Wildcats ahead to stay.

49 FOR SHAVLIK

107-96 Loss to Wolfpack

RALEIGH, N. C. (UP) — A super-charged Villanova team upset North Carolina State for the second time this season Saturday night, 107-96, despite a record 49-point scoring performance by State's All-American candidate Ron Shavlik.

Making the second-ranked Wolfpack a favorite victim, the fast-breaking Wildcats forged into a lead with a sudden burst early in the second half and couldn't be caught. Three Villanova stars scored better than 20 points.

Shavlik also set a stadium rebound record with 35.

IN THIS CORNER
with DICK ZEHMS

Reaction to the suggestion made in this space a week ago for the creation of halls of fame or athletic libraries at SC and UCLA came quick and fast from Trojan and Bruin headquarters. Surprisingly, the University of Oregon responded.

All approve. Money to finance such projects, of course, is the main problem. However, herewith are the encouraging responses, dropped off by the mailman:

"Dear Dick: I was very interested to read your column proposing athletic halls of fame for the universities in this area. SC certainly has had a wonderful athletic heritage in its first 75 years and must have had literally dozens of outstanding athletes in the past who are worthy of inclusion in such a hall.

"It would be very fitting if this could be built into Heritage Hall, the proposed new athletic building on the SC campus. Heritage Hall is part of the university's 'century plan' which is being initiated in 1955, SC's diamond jubilee year.

"If with the help of alumni and friends, Heritage Hall can be built in the near future, it would of course be the ideal location of a Trojan Hall of Fame. Such a building, housing athletic offices, training quarters, dressing and equipment rooms, varsity lounge, trophy room and a hall of fame, would be a fine tribute to SC's great roll of coaches of the past, among them Howard Harding Jones, Sam Barry, Dean Cromwell and Jeff Cravath, and the student athletes with whom they built SC's great athletic heritage. Best Regards,

"H. D. Thoreau, Director of Publicity, SC."

The UCLA response was just as gratifying, to wit:

"Dear Dick: I read with a good deal of interest your column last Sunday about a hall of fame for athletes and teams at UCLA.

"I think it is a wonderful idea and something that could be expanded a great deal, but we have an excellent beginning in our Bruin Trophy Room in Kerckhoff Hall. In it we have honored a great many of our former stars and we are continuing to do so even though we are a little crowded for space. You might tell your readers about this and suggest that we can do a better job if one of them would like to donate the funds to erect a hall of fame. Sincerely,

"Vic Kelley, Director of UCLA News Bureau."

Out of the Pacific Northwest came a surprising missive:

"Dear Dick: I noticed in your Sunday column you liked the Stanford idea of a hall of fame and suggested UCLA and SC follow suit.

"I wouldn't know whether Oregon or Stanford got started first, but Stanford jelled the idea faster. We have been kicking the idea around in staff meetings ever since last spring and are about ready to go.

"We have plans already on the board for a new lounge in the revamped McArthur Court which will be 25 by 50 feet and will be devoted to trophies, letterman's activities, the hall of fame, etc. It will be equipped with a pullman kitchen, a large TV set, record player, leather furniture and all that can be included to make a comfortable place for current lettermen to meet and former lettermen to use when they return to the campus.

"We expected to get underway this month, but will now wait until later in the spring. The room will not be available until we can move the business office into new quarters. This is all part of the revamping of McArthur Court (Oregon's fieldhouse) which boosted the seating capacity from 8,100 to 10,000 and added a new office building. This cost us about $300,000 and was all paid for by the Athletic Department from its reserves. We had 10,321 people in the place last Friday night, so the expansion seems worth while.

"A number of lettermen, incidentally, have offered to contribute to a fund which would help furnish the new room. We think it will be nice when done. Regards,

"Art Litchman, Director of Athletic News Bureau, Oregon U.

Progressives, these publicity and news bureau directors. Let's go from here, men, with formation of two committes—hall of fame membership and finance. But let's not be too pretentious about the building or room. It's what goes into it that counts the most!

SMALL TALK. Sacramento's Solons, needing catching help, are thinking of making outfielder Chuck Essegian, former Stanford gridder, don the mask and chest protector. . . Dedication of the Frank L. Chance Research Fellowship Foundation will be held Thursday at the City of Hope Medical Center with many baseball dignitaries attending.

Pittsburgh judge Samuel Weiss is on the right track when he says the military salute, signal for unnecessary roughness in football, should be changed to clenched fist followed by the salute. . . Weiss and numerous veterans groups think the military salute is deserving of more respect.

Illinois' Harry Combs calls basketball a sick game and the bonus rule is the reason. . . Remind me to show more respect for the statements of Hank Greenberg, Cleveland's general manager. . . When he called Bob Lemon the "best player in baseball" he won a lot of friends in Long Beach.

MONDAY, FRIDAY NIGHTS

Trotter Troupe Hits L.B. for 2 Games at Auditorium

A perennial high point in Long Beach basketball comes up this week when the fabulous Harlem Globetrotters play at Municipal Auditorium Monday and Friday nights.

The world-renowned Trotters play the Toledo Mercurys in Monday night's main event, following a 7:30 p.m. preliminary between the Philadelphia Sphas and the Washington, D. C., Generals. The Harlem five will play the winner of that prelim Friday night, following a game between the loser of Monday night's opener and the Mercurys. Tickets for both dates are available at Proctor's Sport Goods, 128 W. Broadway, and at the Boxoffice today from noon to five and all day tomorrow.

Reece (Goose) Tatum, the clown prince of basketball, is all set for another big evening. Leon Hillard, the world's greatest dribbler; seven-foot Walter Dukes of All-American fame; Bill Garrett, J. C. Gipson, Ermer Robinson, Josh Grider, Clarence Wilson, "Handy Andy" Johnson and Ken McBride will be striving to keep the Trotters' current win streak unblemished.

The Toledo Mercurys are built around Burton Spice, 6-6, from Toledo University. Also from T. U. are Jack Kennedy, 6-1, and George Lindeman, 6-3, guards, and tricky little Frankie Sloan, 5-7, forward.

Much interest in the first game is centered around Bill Spivey, seven-foot All-American from the University of Kentucky who plays center for the Generals, but who is shifted to forward when player-coach Red Klotz, 5-7, the Villanova all-time great, needs more height in his lineup. It is then that Richard Thiesen, 6-10, Duquesne University, moves into the center slot.

The peppery Sphas have a fine record and this year's team is among the best in the long history of the club. The team boasts of Pete Monska, 6-3, West Chester (Pa.) State Teachers, coach and guard; Paul Brandenburg, 6-4, North Carolina State College; Charley Burns, 6-1, Panzer (Pa.) College; Bob Lojewski, 6-8, Temple University; Bob Peterson, 6-10, University of Louisville; Joe Smythe, 6-4, Niagara (N.Y.) University; Marvin Kaulkins, 6-6, Lafayette College, and Tom Brennan, 6-6, Villanova.

Between the halves of each game, the Trotters' management will present some fine variety acts. They include Richard Bergmann, the phenomenal world's champion from Great Britain, who meets Dick Miles in a table tennis match; Jimmy and Yvonne Garner, who do a trampoline stunt; the Farias Duo, Cuban handbalancers extraordinary; and Peter Woodrow, English juggler.

AIR ACADEMY MEETS 'NAME' TEAMS IN '61

DENVER (UP)—Air Secretary Harold Talbott said Saturday that the new air academy won't be ready to tackle big-name football like Army or Navy before 1961 at the earliest."

Freshmen cadets entering the interim academy at Lowry Air Force Base in Denver late this summer "will be getting in some good practice" with an eight-game schedule against regional frosh teams, Talbott said.

He added that no football coach has been signed as yet. A stadium will not be constructed before 1957.

RACING ROUNDUP

Sea O'Erin Easy Victor at Hialeah

MIAMI (UP) — Hasty House Farm's mud king, Sea O'Erin, ran off with the $18,175 Royal Palm Handicap Saturday before 16,744 chilled fans at Hialeah Park.

Morning rain slowed down the track to Sea O'Erin's liking, and the four-year-old Shannon 2nd colt scampered home three lengths in front of six rivals to win $12,600 for Mr. and Mrs. Allie Reuben of Toledo O., owners of Hasty House. It was the colt's first victory since last May at Lincoln Field when he ran through the mud to top the Peabody Memorial.

Bruce Campbell's Ram O'War, the long shot in the field, made a game bid in the stretch under the urging of jockey Eric Guerin but couldn't catch the romping winner. Immense finished third, one length behind Ram O'War and four lengths ahead of Helfast.

Sea O'Erin ran the mile and one-eighth in the slow time of one minute and 53 seconds.

Meanwhile at New Orleans' Fair Grounds Marvin E. Affeld's Spur On, with Harold Keene up, rallied in the stretch to defeat Joe W. Brown's Bobby Brocato and Ray Broussard, the nation's leading jockey, by a neck in the third running of the $13,750 Pelleteri Handicap.

Spur On, who had a pair of running mates in Two Fisted and Pursuance, moved from fourth at the top of the stretch to challenge the front-running Bobby Brocato for the lead. A rousing finish carried the seven-year-old son of Whirlaway to a photo-finish decision, while Bobby Brocato wound up one and one-half lengths in advance of Mrs. J. H. Woodcock's Epic King for place.

Norse in 12-Inning Workout

The "Whites" defeated the "Reds," 14-2, Saturday as coach Bill Hicks sent his Long Beach City College baseball team through its first game practice of the season at the Viking diamond.

The Whites iced the game in the first two innings, scoring four in the first and three in the second. Third baseman Norm Alzueta led the Whites at the plate with a single and a double, while outfielder Milt Wilhite and catcher Jim Johnson got two hits for the losers.

Following the 12-inning game, Hicks announced that he was pleased with the pitching performance turned in by Ray Ramirez and lefthander Roger Hull. Other pitchers seeing duty were righthanders Bill Gaw, Bob Elzenga, Bob Nash, and Gary Zingg and southpaws Dick Sowers and Jim Palmer.

Hicks has three regulars and seven lettermen back from last year's team which won the Metropolitan Conference and state diamond crowns. Hicks is in his first year at the reins of the Vikes, taking over for his brother, Joe, who is currently stationed at Ft. Ord.

The squad will be strengthened Monday when lefthanded pitchers Bill Balcom and Gene Gianoli will enroll at LBCC. Balcom hurled and played the outfield for Poly High last year, while Gianoli was recently discharged from active duty with the Army.

2 Wins for Burbank Casters

Clint Flynn of the Long Beach Casting Club and Bill McGuire and Jack Kritner of Burbank scored wins Saturday in the opening day of the annual Mid-Winter Casting tournament at Recreation Park.

Flynn bested teammate Lee Moran in a shootoff to capture the ⅝ ounce skish distance event; McGuire was class A victor in the trout distance fly and Kritner won class A in the salmon distance fly.

There were no outstanding efforts as the competitors were warming up to the task of competing in today's major events. More than 100 casters will vie today while only 14 competed Saturday.

World's dry fly champion Don Meyer of Burbank was not up to his usual brilliance but is one of the favorites today.

Saturday's results:

Ameche Object of Many Offers

NEW YORK (UP)—All-America Alan Ameche, object of "numerous trade offers" by National Football League clubs, is not on the market—at least for the time being—the Baltimore Colts insisted Saturday.

Ameche, the ground-gobbling fullback from Wisconsin, was Baltimore's first draft choice and the Colts didn't have title to him one hour before they were deluged with offers.

The Detroit Lions offered end Leon Hart, former Notre Dame All-America, plus two players for Ameche. General Manager Nick Kerbway of the Lions admitted "we've made Baltimore one helluva offer for Ameche."

Don Kellett, general manager of the Colts, revealed that "numerous offers" had been made for the 21-year-old Ameche, who churned out 641 yards in 146 carries for a 4.4 average per carry last season and broke all Big Ten rushing records during his spectacular Wisconsin career.

"But we're not going to make any trade for Ameche at this meeting," Kellett said. "We're going back to Baltimore where we'll think over all offers."

"We are going to sign Ameche for Baltimore and we do not intend to trade him," Kellett said. "The same goes for quarterback George Shaw, our bonus pick. Naturally, if we receive an outstanding proposition we will consider it, but we don't have any desire to trade Ameche or Shaw."

As in the case of Ameche, the Colts received several offers for Shaw soon after they received title to him. The San Francisco 49ers offered the Colts a list of 10 players, including end Gordie Soltau, the league's leading scorer in 1953.

The owners, who previously had agreed to provide professional coaching for the College All-Star team, voted to allow the All-Stars one practice scrimmage prior to the college exhibition, provided that the game itself is played under pro rules.

They also voted a temporary increase to 35 men in the player limit of the All-Stars. In the past the game has been played under college rules.

The owners voted that the league's share of the gate will be two percent after payment of the rental fee. In the past, the league's share was four percent on the first $10,000 and two percent thereafter.

No new signal has yet been selected for the unnecessary roughness penalty. The military salute has been ruled out.

Grandle Sets Swim Marks

Long Beach's Gary Grandle set individual records Saturday in the 40-yard freestyle and 20-yard backstroke to make him the record holder in every division in the midget class, which downed Santa Ana, 20-18, in a swim meet at the YMCA Saturday.

Nine new records were set as Long Beach made a clean sweep, winning the prep division, 25-23, and the junior class, 20-11. L. B. finishers:

Midgets

60-yard medley relay (Gardner, Grandle, Still), 43 sec. (New L. B. YMCA record); 20-yard freestyle—Tipton, 13.8; 20-yard breaststroke—Grandle, 14.9 (new L. B. YMCA record); 20-yard backstroke—Marsh, 18.1; 40-yard freestyle—Grandle, 28.2 (new record); 80-yard freestyle relay (Still, Marsh, Grandle, Garner), 54.1 (new record).

Preps

60-yard medley relay (Mehler, Ghew, Fossells), 36.8; 20-yard freestyle—Crow, 13.0; 20-yard breaststroke, Sunderman, 17.0; 20-yard backstroke—J. Poe, 14.4; 40-yard freestyle—Holliday, 25.1.

Junior

120-yard medley relay (Booth, Wrye, Moseley), 1:10.6 (new record); 40-yard freestyle—Moseley, 21.5 (new record); 40-yard breaststroke—Wrye, 24.4 (new record); 40-yard backstroke—Booth, 24.7 (new record); 100-yard freestyle—Cook, 1:16.4; 60-yard individual medley—Wrye, 37.2 (new record).

Local Lawn Bowlers Third in Tourney

The Recreation Park Lawn Bowling Club tied for second place in the Southern California Lawn Bowling Assn. Officers tournament at Arroyo Seco Saturday. The Park team was composed of Dr. Raymond Carey, Frank Furman and Tom Hunter.

GAIN FINALS

Romack and Lesser Win

MIAMI (UP) — Pacific Coast stars Barbara Romack and Pat Lesser—two of amateur golf's prettiest—fought their way through a chilling Florida rain Saturday to gain today's 36-hole finals in the 23rd annual Doherty Women's golf tournament.

Miss Romack, a petite 22-year-old National Amateur champion of Sacramento, recovered on the back nine to beat chubby Joyce Ziske of Waterford, Wis., 4 and 2. Miss Lesser, a University of Seattle coed, eliminated Cookie Swift Berger of Buffalo, N. Y., 4 and 3.

'YOU'RE THE MANAGER'

Can You Outfox Leo?

(Third of a series)

BY BEN OLAN

NEW YORK (AP)—In the comparatively short space of 5½ months, Leo Durocher became a genius.

When the fiery New York Giants manager brought his club home fifth in 1953, many of the Polo Grounds faithful were yelling for his scalp. A year later they loved him. So did the sportswriters and sportscasters who voted him "manager of the year" for 1954 in the annual Associated Press poll.

How did he do it?

Willie Mays, Johnny Antonelli and Dusty Rhodes, to mention only three, helped a lot. Many close observers also felt, however, that Leo, himself, had a great season. More often than not he picked the right pinch-hitter or relief pitcher and even when he went against the percentage it paid off.

Here's a chance for grandstand managers to test their wits with Durocher.

Following are six situations that seemingly called for a strategical move by Durocher during the 1954 season. Score one for yourself if the strategy you decided on would have worked to your advantage. A score of five or six entitles your friends to call you "Lippy."

In all cases, (L) represents a lefthanded batter or pitcher, (R) stands for a righthanded batter or pitcher and (S) signifies a switch-hitter.

Remember, YOU—not Durocher—are managing the Giants. Remember, too, Leo didn't always call 'em right. Okay? Then, let's play "you're the manager."

1. The Giants are leading Brooklyn, 4-3, in the top of the 7th at the Polo Grounds. Sal Maglie (R) is pitching for New York. With one out a double by Sandy Amoros and walks to Junior Gilliam and Pee Wee Reese fill the bases for the Dodgers. Duke Snider (L) is the next batter with Jackie Robinson (R) to follow.

WOULD YOU:

A. Replace Maglie?

B. Leave him in?

2. The game against the Redlegs at Cincinnati is tied, 2-2, in the top of the 9th. Fred Baczewski (L) is pitching for the home team as Don Mueller opens the inning for New York with a single and advances to second on an outfield error.. Willie Mays (R) is the next batter with Billy Gardner (R) to follow.

WOULD YOU:

A. Order Mays to sacrifice?

B. Let him hit away?

3. Johnny Antonelli (L) is pitching against the Pirates at Pittsburgh and the Giants lead, 2-0. It's the last of the 8th and with none out Gair Allie walks and takes third on a double by Curt Roberts. Eddie Pellagrini (R) is the next batter with Bob Skinner (L) to follow.

WOULD YOU:

A. Let Antonelli pitch to Pellagrini?

B. Walk Pellagrini intentionally?

C. Replace Antonelli?

4. It's the last of the 7th at Brooklyn and the Giants are ahead, 5-4. John McCall (L) is on the mound for New York. Gil Hodges opens with a single and when McCall throws Sandy Amoros' sacrifice attempt into rightfield, there are Dodger runners on second and third. Hoyt Wilhelm (R) relieves McCall and retires Jackie Robinson and Carl Furillo on infield flies. Roy Campanella (R) is the next batter with pitcher Jim Hughes (R) to follow.

WOULD YOU:

A. Walk Campanella intentionally?

B. Pitch to Campanella?

5. The Cubs and Giants are tied, 2-2, at Chicago in the last of the 11th. Starter Sal Maglie (R) is pitching for New York when Ernie Banks singles and takes second on a sacrifice by Gene Baker. Hank Edwards (L), batting for Ted Tappe, is up next with Joe Garagiola (L) to follow.

WOULD YOU:

A. Relieve Maglie with a lefthander?

B. Leave him in?

6. There are none out in the last of the 8th at the Polo Grounds with Chicago in front, 6-4. Hal Jeffcoat (R) is pitching for the Cubs. Al Dark opens with a single and moves to second when Hank Thompson draws a base on balls. Dusty Rhodes (L) is the next batter and Jim Davis (L) replaces Jeffcoat as the pitcher for Chicago. Don Mueller (L) and Willie Mays (R) follow Rhodes.

WOULD YOU:

A. Order Rhodes to sacrifice?

B. Put in a righthanded pinch-hitter for Rhodes?

C. Let Rhodes hit away?

Here's what happened!

1. Marv Grissom relieves Maglie and gets Snider on a pop to the infield and Robinson on an infield grounder. Giants win, 4-3 (April 13).

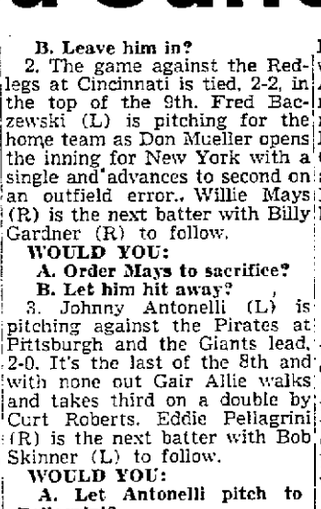

2. Mays attempts to sacrifice, but Mueller is tossed out at third base. The budding rally expires and the Redlegs win, 3-2, in the 10th on Bob Borkowski's single (June 6).

3. Grissom replaces Antonelli and gets out of the inning with only one run. He hits Pellagrini with a pitched ball and after Skinner's sacrifice fly, Marv holds Pirates as New York wins, 2-1 (Aug. 10).

4. Wilhelm pitches to Campanella, who cracks a single to left, scoring Hodges and Amoros, and Brooks win, 6-5 (Aug. 14).

5. Maglie is left in the game and retires Edwards on a fly to Don Mueller and Garagiola on a foul to catcher Wes Westrum. Giants win, 4-2, in 14th on a Willie Mays homer (April 20).

6. Bobby Hofman (R) bats for Rhodes and sacrifices, but Davis retires Mueller and Mays without any scoring and Chicago wins, 6-3 (Aug. 5).

Match Wits With Him

ceptionally good, it was decided to use the building where the Nuremberg war trials were held. However, there were no seats or any floor in the building and there was no time for the Globetrotters to transfer their portable court to the hall.

Saperstein learned, however, that there were 200 big flat-top desks stored in the building, left over from the trials. So they were placed next to each other to form a comparatively big double-deck court. Baskets were rigged at each end.

Some 4,000 folding chairs were rented and placed around the court and that night the 'Trotters played ontop of the desks before a capacity crowd.

The desk tops were very slippery, but the Globetrotters managed to come up with one of their best performances of the tour.

Nohting seems to be able to stop them!

The HOT CORNER
by VERN STEPHENS

Many times the question has arisen about whether or not various ballplayers are "guess hitters."

A guess hitter, of course, is one who tries to guess what the pitcher is going to throw next.

It's not a good idea to try and outguess pitchers. Guessing what the next pitch is going to be often is the reason behind a player getting beaned or hit by a pitched ball.

There is a difference between a "guess hitter" and a "thinking hitter."

The latter type are always dangerous at the plate and will go a lot farther than batters who leave everything up to guesswork.

In other words, it would be better not to guess at all. Just hit away when a good ball comes in.

But it's good to have "thinking" hitters on your club.

Ted Williams is a good example of a hitter who is always thinking when he goes to the plate. Some insist that he is a guess hitter . . . but he never guesses what the next pitch will be.

But he's probably the hardest guy in the bigtime to fool because he's always thinking. And they say "never throw Williams the same pitch you retired him on because he'll be looking for it the next time at bat."

Most good hitters, of course, always look for a pitch that a pitcher has got them out on in a similar situation.

IT TAKES A LOT OF THINKING ON THE PART of a hitter because he has to hit against the opposing pitcher, catcher and managerial staff.

Some hitters even hit against the catcher. For instance, some catchers don't have strong or accurate arms and when a runner is on first base, he will call for fast balls so he can get the ball quicker so that if the runner tries to steal, he has more time to make the throw. Then, too, a fast ball is easier to handle than a curving ball and a catcher can get off a throw quicker.

Good hitters know this and are looking for the fast ball to be thrown in that situation. And if the pitcher gets it anywhere near where the batter wants it, then out of the park it'll go.

This is only one of the many reasons why a good catcher with a strong arm is so important to a club.

During the team meetings before a game when you go over the opposing players' strong and weak points, a manager will point out that "Joe Jones" can't hit a curve ball in the clutch.

If anyone on that team happens to be traded later to the club that Jones is on, he promptly informs him of his "weakness" and Jones will look for the curve ball when he is at the plate in a clutch situation.

THERE ARE SO MANY THINGS TO THINK ABOUT when you are hitting that it would be difficult in this short space to list them all.

It is supposed to be a fact that all good hitters have natural ability to start with and that you can't make a hitter just by practice.

But take the case of George Kell, who has a lifetime batting average of over .300 and has led the American League in hitting twice.

George couldn't hit a curve with an ironing board when he first came up to the major leagues. But he was determined to correct this weakness so he hired a fellow to pitch to him and every morning he would go out to the ball park and do nothing but hit curve balls by the hour.

He became so accustomed to swinging at curves that he has become one of the league's best hitters.

Because of this excellent example of what hard work and determination can do for a fellow, I for one discount the theory that hitters are born and not made!

LAUGH OF THE WEEK: When Yogi Berra of the Yankees first came up to the majors he was probably the worst bad-ball hitter ever to come along and he especially had a tendency to swing at the first pitch no matter where it was thrown.

His manager, Bucky Harris, took him aside one day and gave him a little advice. "Take it easy up there, Yogi. Don't just swing at anything. Try to think before you swing and don't hit at the first pitch!"

Yogi went up to hit a few minutes later and watched three straight balls go by . . . all of them right down the middle for strikes.

When he returned to the dugout and threw himself down next to Bucky, he grumbled . . . "How do you expect a guy to think and hit at the same time?"

In the supporting feature, the $25,000-added San Gabriel Handicap at a mile and one-quarter over the turf course, the English-bred St. Vincent came surging through the stretch to register a spectacular victory over the favored Star of the Forest in a thrilling four-horse "blanket finish."

St. Vincent photoed Star of the Forest by a head with Novarulah only a nose back in third. Scotsmans Bond was only three-quarters of a length farther back in fourth place.

The veteran Johnny Longden overcame much trouble in the rough trip in driving St. Vincent through a bulky 19-horse field in the time of 2 minutes flat, which equals the fastest mile and one-quarter race ever run over the turf in this country!

Award '58 Bobsled Meet to Squaw Valley

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland (UP) — The International Bobsleigh and Tobogganing Federation Saturday night confirmed a three-year suspension of Stan Benham of Lake Placid, N. Y. and tentatively chose Squaw Valley, Calif., as the site for the 1958 world championships.

FORESEEING FUTURE FAIRWAYS

by JERRY WYNN

The announcement this week of plans for a championship course at Rancho Palos Verdes was exciting news for Southland and, in particular, because of its accessibility, Long Beach area golf.

Links construction hereabouts has lagged terribly in recent years while the amount of existing play and number of potential golfers has spiraled.

Nation-wide figures released recently by the National Golf Foundation show that there are now 5,076 courses in operation as compared to 5,800 in 1931! Although Southern California leads the nation in total courses, its steadily - increasing population has made golf facilities also markedly inadequate.

But the point of enthusiasm concerning the new Palos Verdes site is not just the addition of a single new course. It's the caliber and beauty of the proposed course, to cost a million dollars, which should be a boon to area golf.

Just as Robert Tyre Jones holds a place in the sun as a golfer, Robert Trent Jones is regarded as the very finest of golf course architects—and it will be he who will design the Palos Verdes layout.

Among his best-known products are the links at West Point, the Dunes in South Carolina, Michigan's Oakland Hills and the Peachtree Golf Club in Georgia. He has remodeled the Augusta National course, home of the Masters; New Jersey's famed Baltusrol, the 1954 U. S. Open locale, and is now preparing the Olympic course in San Francisco for this year's U. S. Open.

The Palos Verdes course will be located a mile from the ocean on a shelf of land which rises from 900 to 1,200 feet on gently rolling terrain. There will be an unobstructed view of the ocean from three directions. Expensive homes will be built in the cliffs above.

The course will spread in two directions from a central clubhouse and will be built to stretch up to 7,200 yards for championship play. Construction will begin in May with a target date of 16 months for completion.

Said Jones:

"I'm convinced a course can be built here that will compare favorably with the greatest layouts in America. It will be similar to Augusta National in its park-like appearance."

Asked what he considers the most beautiful courses, Jones named Cypress Point, Banff, Jasper Park and one that he is presently building in the Bahamas. He added that the Palos Verdes course will rank with these.

The toughest holes?

"The 16th at Cypress Point is the greatest golf hole in the world. Augusta's 11th is the greatest par 4 and the 18th at Pebble Beach is the greatest par 5."

The new course will be financed by the Great Lakes Carbon Corporation and the Capital Co., a subsidiary of Trans-America Corp., who are joint owners of the 7,000 acre Rancho Palos Verdes area.

Its progress will be eagerly followed by the entire Southland golfing community.

A SHORT COURSE—Play in the Meadowlark March of Dimes tournament continues today . . . Dr. Harold Morris of Virginia CC has been elected president of the So. California Dental Golf Assn. NEW TWIST

Triple Tag Aud Feature

For all those who think last week's six-man tag team wrestling main event at the Municipal Auditorium was the last word in grunt and groan circles, Promoter Louie Miller has a new twist this week.

The same cast of characters, same place, same time — Thursday—but this week it will be three out of five falls with no time limit. This addition is to soothe the rancored partisans who howled last week at the ungentlemanly method by which Lord Athol Layton, Kubla Kahn and Gene Kiniski triumphed over Sandor Szabo, Alo Leilani and Don Arnold. And Miller guarantees two referees.

Speed Skate Lead to Bartholomew

ST. PAUL (AP)—Aging champion Ken Bartholomew clamped an iron grip on the lead in his bid for a 10th senior men's title Saturday at the halfway point of the National Outdoor speed skating championships.

The 34-year-old Minneapolis telephone line inspector whipped through near zero temperatures to victories in the 440-yard dash and ¾-mile and finished second by a razor-thin margin to young Gene Sandvig of Minneapolis in the two-mile.

Stan Fail, of Paramount, Calif., who whipped Bartholomew in the Great Lakes championships last week, placed third in the two-mile but otherwise had no luck.

Poly-Wilson Clash Tops Week's Slate

Poly High and Wilson High, traditional crosstown rivals, clash Tuesday night at the Long Beach City College gym with a share of the Coast League lead at stake. The crucial contest highlights a busy local prep and college schedule for this week.

Both the Hares and Bruins have 4-1 records in league play to date and are currently tied with Jordan High for first place in standings. The two Long Beach schools shared the league title last year, each winning one of the two league games with the other.

Coach Charlie Church's City College quintet will enjoy a rest Tuesday before taking on Santa Monica in a Metropolitan Conference game at the Vike gym Friday night. The Vikings are currently tied for first place in conference standings.

Long Beach State College, with a 7-6 record, goes against LaVerne College Tuesday night and plays Chapman Friday night. The week's schedule:

TUESDAY

Poly vs. Wilson at LBCC, Bee prelim, 6:30 p. m.; Jordan at Downey, Bee prelim, 6:30 p. m. LaVerne College at Long Beach State College, junior varsity prelim, 6:30 p. m. St. Anthony's at Loyola, JV prelim, 6:30 p. m.

WHEELS VS. JERSEY FIVE

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Long Beach's Flying Wheels, fresh from a 65-20 tuneup victory over the Chattanooga Big Wheels Friday night, take on a powerful, national champion Jersey Wheelers quintet tonight at the Bethesda Naval Hospital here.

Leading the Wheels into action tonight will be captain Fritz Krauth, who scored 20 points in the victory at Chattanooga in the opening clash of the Long Beach team's annual coast-to-coast wheel chair basketball tour.

Rounding out the starting five for the Wheels will be forward Gene Haley, center Larry Eaks, and guards Wally Frost and Morris Moorhead.

Table Net Stars in L.A. Thursday

Southern California sports fans are in for a rare treat when four-time world champion Richard Bergmann, of London, makes his first appearance in Los Angeles Thursday at the California Table Tennis Center, 831 N. Highland Ave. Bergmann captured the world title in 1937, 1939, 1948 and 1950.

New York City's Dick Miles, eight-time U. S. title-holder and considered the greatest player this country has produced, will oppose the former world champion.

Jr. High Cage Title to Rogers

Rogers Junior High 9th graders were handed their first defeat of the season Saturday by Lindbergh, 53-45, but, nevertheless, copped the City League championship as Marshall, who could have tied for the title with a win, was upset by Washington, 48-39.

Jack Economou, who tallied 22 points against Lindbergh, Jim Ricketts and Kent Peterson led the Rogers scoring attack all season with Peterson doing most of the rebounding.

Franklin's 7th and 8th grade fives won their respective divisions handily, with the former downing Hughes, 59-38, and the latter taking the measure of Washington, 49-39.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

Perhaps such shoots as this are necessary, but this columnist fails to find anything sporting in a recent slaughter of buffaloes at Ft. Huachuca, Ariz., where the Arizona Fish and Game Commission decided to get rid of 240 of 300 animals because the herd had grown too large.

The herd was one of the largest remaining in the west. After it had been reduced to 60, the AF&GC announced that the buffaloes would be shipped to a northern Arizona ranch. It seems that they are interfering with a housing project on the Ft. Huachuca military reservation.

So far, so good, but it was the way in which the animals were killed that caused a ripple of sarcasm among real outdoorsmen.

Hunters, chosen by lot, stood partly concealed in bushes at the end of a 200-foot runway. The buffaloes had been herded into corrals and were then chased out into the runway. Hunters didn't open fire until the animals were about 20 yards away. Then, if they didn't kill, mounted wardens chased the wounded animals back toward the hunters again. This continued until the animals were dead or so badly wounded that their throats could be cut.

Each hunter got a quarter of the meat. The other three-quarters were sold by the commission at $25 per quarter.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS

Yellowtail have been on the move in the San Diego fishing area, mostly up and down. One day the anglers get them on the surface, the next day they get them deep or possibly not at all. But bonito and kelp bass have been keeping the fishermen busy when boats are able to operate. Storms interfered with several days of fishing since the first of the year.

The International Game Fish Assn. has reorganized its committees to bring about better efficiency in record keeping, to promote equal competition and to gather scientific information. In making its changes, the IGFA named Gene Tunney, former heavyweight boxing champion to the executive committee. He will serve with Dr. George C. Chuck of Long Beach and M. C. (Joe) Gale of the Cabo Blanco Club. Dr. Chuck has been an active member of the IGFA for several years. Michael Lerner is president of the IGFA, which has its headquarters in the American Museum of Natural History in New York.

Strange as it may seem, the rockfish boats operating off Malibu Pier are getting an occasional steelhead or young salmon. Such catches are rare and the result of some steelie getting lost and straying southward.

WINTER DERBY

Silver Lakes Ranch, near Corona, has started its winter fishing derby and plans to award $200 in prizes each month. First monthly derby day has been set for Feb. 13. The angler catching the largest fish each day automatically qualifies for the monthly derby day. Silver Lake Ranch is privately operated and stocked and a charge is made for each person fishing.

New Mexico game wardens met in Albuquerque Monday, but they carefully kept the session secret until all had returned to their home districts. The game department explained: "Poachers would have had a field day if they had known that the wardens weren't around."

B. F. Gladding & Co., Inc., South Otselic, N. Y., has a new 1955 pamphlet on "How to Take More Fish," combining it with its catalogue of fishing lines. It is an informative little booklet and may be had at no cost by addressing a card to the company.

STRAY FEATHERS

"Stray Feathers From a Bird Man's Desk" (224 pps. $3.75. Doubleday & Co., Inc., 575 Madison Ave., New York, 22, N. Y.) is a result of Austin L. Rand having lived with birds for many years. You don't have to be a fisherman or a hunter to appreciate this fine volume, 60 chapters of real, honest-to-goodness ornithology.

Rand has been curator of the world-wide bird collection at the Chicago Natural History Museum for many years, but his interest dates back to his boyhood days in Nova Scotia where he first started studying and collecting.

Bird lovers everywhere should get many chuckles out of Dr. Rand's book, as well as much information heretofore not classified. The book is well illustrated with Ruth Johnson's line drawings.

COOT SEASON EXTENDED

The Department of Fish and Game has extended the coot season in 28 counties where lands are being damaged by the birds. Nothing larger than a 10-gauge shotgun may be used and the season must end no later than April 15.

Bruins Host Cal; SC Battles Tribe

UCLA, SC, Loyola and Los Angeles State have big appetites this week—basketballwise. They may try to bite off more than they can chew.

Southern Division rivalry resumes after a two week layoff on Friday and Saturday night, with the Bruins entertaining California's Golden Bears in the Westwood pavillion, while SC's defending champion Trojans go north to play Stanford at Palo Alto.

While the home court advantage naturally will be with coach Johnny Wooden's boys, they may find the Bears a harder nut to crack than did SC and Stanford. New Berkeley coach Pete Newell figures the two-week rest was just what the Bears needed to make them force the issue through February.

Beaten twice by the Bruins, SC lays its hopes for a title repeat on the line against a potent Indian quintet now rated a definite championship threat. Stanford and UCLA are tied atop the standings at 3-1 each, followed by SC 2-2, and California 0-4.

Los Angeles State's Diablos and Loyola's Lions are ticketed to flirt with dynamite this week. The Diablos, coached by Sax Ellictt, play Utah's powerful Redskins in Salt Lake City Wednesday and Thursday, then make a quick flight to Ann Arbor, Mich., for a one-night battle Saturday with the Michigan Wolverines.

Loyola makes a quick trip to the San Francisco area for a game Wednesday with College of Pacific, University of San Francisco Friday in Cow Palace, and Santa Clara Saturday, same place.

Pepperdine's Waves will stay close to home. They meet Redlands U. in the Wave gym Friday night, play against the Aztecs at San Diego State Saturday.

BOWLING ALONG

Feature L.B. Careers in New Series

One of the most ambitious feature series ever attempted in bowling history will be introduced in The Press-Telegram's column on Long Beach pin activities—Bowling Along—starting this week.

The series will highlight the bowling careers of local pin performers and will run several times weekly.

It's a series of general interest which all bowling fans will want to follow.

The series, starting in Monday's Bowling Along column, is the first step in The Press-Telegram's plan for extending its coverage on the popular and ever-expanding ten-pin sport to create more interesting reading for bowling enthusiasts.

Niday Enters Feb. 20 Race

Cal Niday, the one-legged driving wonder from Pacoima, Saturday became the first driver to sign an entry blank for J. C. Agajanian's 100-lap national championship midget auto race at Gardena Stadium Sunday, Feb. 20.

Niday, veteran Indianapolis pilot, won the initial midget race at the 139th and Western oval last Sunday. He managed to lap the entire field, a rare feat in the auto racing world.

Holder of the second fastest qualifying time in history of the Indianapolis 500 miler, Niday will again chauffeur Dan Quella's sweet-running No. 5.

Planting of Poppies Set in Park Rite

Following a tradition of years, Flanders poppies will be planted in Lincoln Park at 1 p. m. Feb. 6 by Arthur L. Peterson Unit 27, American Legion Auxiliary. Gold Star fathers and mothers will be honored.

A color guard and firing squad of United States Marines will present national colors of patriotic organizations.

The memorial wreath will be placed on a stand by Joan Marie and Micky Thomas, whose father was killed in World War II.

St. Anthony Chorale will sing. Father Rolland Zimmermand will give the opening and closing prayers. Homer Miller, former chaplain, now pastor of the Evangelical Brethren church of Torrance, will recite "In Flanders Fields." Rabbi Harvey B. Franklin will give the history of the red crepe paper poppy.

Marion, Don and Jean Pratt will give cornet and whistling numbers. The municipal band will play while poppy seeds are planted by poppy chairmen of the 19th district.

Volleys will be fired in memory of those who lost their lives in the service and "Taps" will be sounded by a Marine, followed by an "echo" by Don Pratt.

Elephant Chosen for India Parades

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—A 13-year-old elephant named Udiagiri, meaning Mountain of the Rising East, has been selected to lead all state processions in New Delhi. Trained in Assam since its capture in the forests of that state in 1948, the elephant was comparisoned in gold-embroidered cloth and silver bangles for its presentation last weekend to President Rajendra Prasad.

$100,000 Improvement for Dohrmann Pine Ave. Site

Continuing the expansion of the downtown Long Beach, the management of Dohrmann's announced Saturday plans for $100,000 improvement of a new Pine Ave. location for the store.

With the announcement last Sunday that J. C. Penney Co., will spend $3,500,000 on a new major store building covering the half block square on the northeast corner of Fifth St. and Pine Ave., which included the Dohrmann store, the company completed negotiations to move to 528 Pine Ave., immediately to the north.

Manager W. M. Hodding said his firm will take possession of the new premises about May 1, at which time the extensive modernization will begin.

The Horace W. Green & Sons Hardware Co., which is vacating the building after 25 years, has under construction a large new store in the L. S. Whaley Los Altos Shopping Center. At present the company has a store in Los Altos at 2123 Bellflower Blvd., and another store at 4420 Atlantic Ave. Further expansion is planned, officials said, but nothing is ready to announce at this time.

George Ditson Jones, realtor who specializes in downtown properties, represented Samuel R. Lee, owner of the new location, in the leasing arrangements with Dohrmann. He also negotiated the big construction and leasing program last week with the Penney Co.

Preliminary architectural plans for the new Dohrmann store were prepared during lease negotiations so there will be no delay in actual start of the work, said J. R. Cummings, vice president.

Voicing strong faith in the future of downtown Long Beach, Hodding said the new store will be of the most modern type.

Among features of the new Dohrmann's store will be an unusual ceiling treatment with special lighting effects designed expressly for displaying china, glass, silver and other homewares.

The exterior in modern brick treatment will be spectacularly highlighted by recessed windows literally turning the entire first floor into a magnificent "window display," Hodding added.

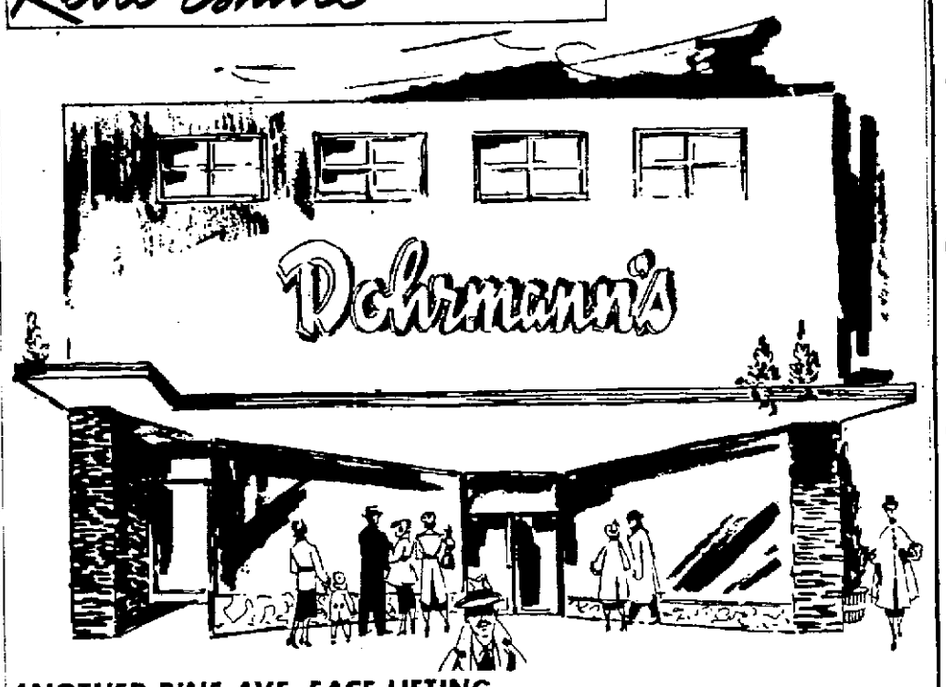

The Dohrmann organization is as old as the State of California, covering the Southland, in addition to Long Beach, with stores in Los Angeles, San Diego, and the store recently opened at Beverly Hills.

"After carefully considering many areas in Long Beach," Hodding stated, "we felt that the downtown area continued to be best suited for our requirements."

Realty Financing Course to Open

Co-sponsored by the Board of Realtors, the University of California will offer a course in Real Estate Finance, beginning Feb. 9. There will be 12 meetings held each Wednesday night, at the John Dewey High School. The fee will be $18 and the instructor will be Glenn R. Bracken, head of the Bracken Mortgage Investment Co. here. Information on the course may be obtained at the realty board office. Such subjects as where and how to obtain funds for financing; trust deed investments and refinancing of distressed properties will high light the course.

A 'FUN HOME'

Beautiful inside and out, the Magazine Cover Homes in Anaheim will hold grand opening this week end. Previewed last week with overwhelming response, the homes are designed by Cliff May and feature patio, living at its modern best. Walls of glass surround living and bedroom areas to bring "outside inside."

Designed by May, 'Fun Homes' Near Disneyland Now Selling

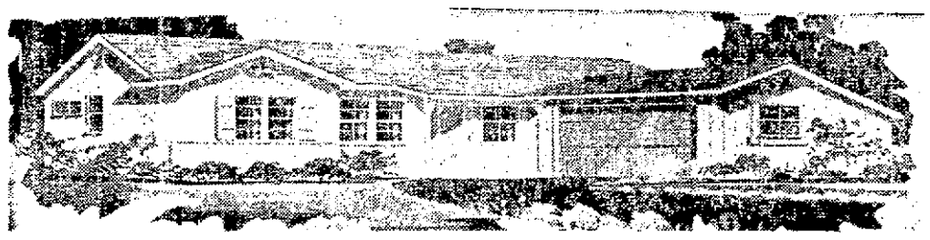

"The grandest grand opening yet," that's the theme this week-end when another of the popular Magazine Cover home sites opens in Anaheim, sales head Gene Mahaffey said today.

Designed by contemporary, award winning Cliff May, the Magazine Cover Homes offer the newest in styling and are located in one of Orange County's top locations. The homes are situated along eucalyptus lined Ball Rd., just off the Santa Ana Freeway between the Lincoln Blvd intersection and Disneyland.

The homes will be available in both 3- and 4-bedroom, 2-bath plans with luxurious kitchens with built in colored gas range and oven, indirect lighting effects, built in brick planters in living area, forced air heat, fireplace, glassed-in tile shower, full floor to ceiling windows, and three patio areas partly fenced.

"We call it 55's 'fun home'," Mahaffey explained. The sales manager pointed out that the May homes are built for California living with abundant patio and planting already planned for —plus the interior spaciousness.

The May homes will be offered for no down payment to veterans with prices ranging from $11,225 to $16,000. Monthly terms for principal and interest on some models will be only $57.68.

IN PREVIEW TODAY

Featuring large homes for as low as $11,630 with no down payments except costs and impounds and only $58.89 per month principal and interest, Lampson Plaza at Lampson and West St., in Garden Grove, is holding a preview showing today. This is one of the models. The homes have 3 or 4 bedrooms, 2 baths and fireplaces. Visitors from Long Beach may drive east on Garden Grove Blvd. to West St., and north to Lampson Ave. The Lampson Plaza unit is a Tri Built Homes, Inc., project.

Aldon's Buena Plaza Is Drawing Throngs

Sales at Aldon Construction Co.'s Buena Plaza reached $750,000 after last week end as home-seekers by the thousands were attracted to the grand opening of the final section of the first unit of the new community of 1955 "Masterpiece Series" 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes at Miller St. and La Palma Ave., near Knott's Berry Farm, in Buena Park.

Major added attraction in this section of 250 houses was the offer of a Western Holly de luxe automatic clock control gas range and eye-level oven, built in at buyer's option, according to an Aldon spokesman who disclosed that cost of this luxury feature is only $1.99 a month, added to the low vets' monthly terms of $71.49 for principal and interest.

Veterans may buy Buena Plaza's "Masterpiece" homes without paying a dime to move in, E. "Billy" Hamburg, general sales agent, explained. No cash is required even for costs or impounds, Hamburg said. Arrangements have been made for low terms for non-vets.

In addition to the optional Western Holly built-in ranges, available in five pastel colors, stainless steel and copper, kitchens in the Buena Plaza homes have comparably luxurious features such as natural-finish birch or knotty pine cabinets; big double sinks with lustrous, self-edged coved drainboards and splashes; Waste King garbage pulverators; Dish-Whiz semi-automatic dishwashers; copper-finish range hoods and exhaust fans.

Other key attractions which distinguish these houses are average living areas of 1350 square feet, plus two-car garages and porches; sliding doors of crystal glass and ceiling-high brick or slumpstone fireplaces in the living rooms; 75,000 BTU thermostat-controlled forced air heat; service areas adjoining kitchens; 50-gallon "family-size" automatic water heaters; custom-designed lighting fixtures, and parquet hardwood floors.

Each home contains 4 bedrooms, or 3 bedrooms and an extra room which may be used as a den.

There are 22 designs, including farmhouse, colonial, modern and provincial. Representative of these widely diversified stylings are six model homes, furnished by Aaron Schultz and open daily and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Buena Plaza, located at "the crossroads of the Southland," is quickly accessible from Los Angeles via the Santa Ana Freeway past Norwalk to Valley View Ave., there turning north. From Long Beach take Carson St. (which becomes Lincoln Ave.) to Miller St., then turn north to the six exhibit homes.

SALES SOARING

At Buena Plaza, where Aldon's 1,350-square-foot, four-bedroom, two-bath homes are sold to vets on nothing down, no cash for costs or impounds, sales totaled $750,000 following last week end's grand opening of the final section of the first area at Miller and La Palma, Buena Park. Special added attraction is optional purchase of built-in Western Holly range.

Designing Home for Mason, Kight

Roy L. Kitter & Associates of South Gate announced they are preparing plans for the construction of a large home at Corso di Napoli and Savona Wk., Belmont Shore, for Mr. and Mrs. Mason Kight. It will contain 2,000 square feet with all the built-in features and will have 7 rooms.

'Heart Desire' Contest This Week in Butler Bros.

A unique contest in which customers of Butler Bros. store in Lakewood Center will be given free chances to win any item of merchandise which they choose in the store, regardless of price, was announced Saturday by Wallace Bruce, manager.

Entry blanks for the "Pick your prize and win your Heart's Desire" contest will be available this week only, starting Monday, at the Butler Bros. store. No purchase is required to enter, Bruce said.

On the entry blank, the contestant will list his name, address, phone number and a complete description of the item of merchandise in the store which he would most like to win. Entries will be deposited in the "Heart's Desire" box at the store.

Entry blanks are available from any Butler Bros. sales person. Three winners will be drawn from the box. Each will win what he named on the entry blank.

IN JR. EXECUTIVE

One of the many models of the L. S. Whaley Co. Jr. Executive homes offers this compact kitchen which contains luxury features such as electric table-top built-in range, built-in oven, dish washer and exceptionally fine-grained cabinets.

Jr. Executive Home Unit Near Sellout

Sales of the "Jr. Executive" homes in the newest L. S. Whaley Co., development in Los Altos are cintinuing at the fastest pace of any unit in the history of the company, officials report.

With a sellout of the luxury-featured homes expected shortly, Dave Davenport, sales manager of Los Altos Realty Inc., said for the first time in years "we may be caught short with nothing to sell."

Planning the developments of Los Altos many months in advance, the Whaley organization did not anticipate the rush demand for the "Jr. Executive" homes and will have no other unit ready for occupancy for some time, although crews are busy on new projects.

"Mr. Whaley believed Long Beach home buyers wanted a better than average type of home and he constructed these two units of Jr. Executive Homes, continued Davenport. "And the sales have been phenomanal. It proved he was correct."

With approximately two-thirds of the homes sold, Davenport said there still are available most of the models.

Under a new financing planned worked out by the company, men in service may buy the homes on terms very comparable to G.I. financing. This has proven attractive to many service families in the area. Under the G.I. financing the men had to be out of service to obtain it.

New FHA financing also permits the sale to non-veterans of the luxury homes on low down payments on 30-year financing.

The unit may be reached by driving Bellflower Blvd. to Los Coytoes Diagonal.

Davenport said a few choice lots remain for sale in the Park Estates section of Los Altos. Infromation on them may be obtained from the Park Estates office at Pacific Coast Hwy. and Anaheim St.

North American Expands at Downey

North American Aviation, Inc., is calling for bids on construction of a large electronics assembly building and a new cafeteria for the plane assembly plant at 12214 Lakewood Blvd., Downey. The electronics building will contain 208,000 square feet and the cafteria 24,000 square feet. A selected list of contractors will submit bids Feb. 9.

Will Build Plant on Fullerton Site

Arcadia Metal Products Co., Arcadia, has purchased a 10-acre site on Acadia St. just north of Orangethorpe Ave. in Fullerton for the construction of a new manufacturing plant.

Orangewood Estates No. 2 in Fullerton Is Opened

A new second unit of 121 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes is being opened today at Orangewood Estates, following the sellout of the initial unit of 136 homes in this popular "Sterling Series" rising on the south side of W. Orangethorpe Ave., just east of Brookhurst, in Fullerton.

Like those in the earlier unit, the new homes are being placed on the market in the $14,000 to $15,450 category, with vets able to buy for nothing down but costs and impounds and monthly payments from $72.10 for principal and interest, it was announced.

Spokesmen for the W. E. Robertson Co., developers, reported wide interest in the 120 square foot utility room in the spacious two-car garage, which architect Max Maltzman described as a "bonus area flowing from the wholly efficient use of space."

The custom-styled dwellings are offered in a wide choice of color schemes planned by Margaret Hargrove. The Anaheim Furniture Co. provided furnishings for the model homes, five of which are on display every day.

One of the most favored features about Orangewood Estates, according to recent buyers' surveys, is its convenient location near the Santa Ana Freeway. Visitors may follow the Freeway to Orangethrope Ave., go east on Orangethorpe to the models just east of Brookhurst.

The homes have slumpstone and Norman brick fireplaces, some with copper hoods, built-in Western Holly deluxe colored gas ranges and ovens and built-in barbecues in the concrete patios, linked by sliding glass doors and sliding screens to living room.

Also featured are 80,000 BTU thermostat - controlled Rheem forced-air heating, Waste-King garbage pulverators, Dish-Whiz dishwashers, kitchen exhaust fans, hardwood paneling, No. 1 hardwood floors, stall showers, showers over tubs and, in some models, breakfast bars with concealed storage space.

IN FULLERTON

New second unit of 121 three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes, typified above, is being opened at Orangewood Estates today on the south side of W. Orangethorpe Ave. just east of Brookhurst, in Fullerton.

$299 DOWN TO VET OR NON-VET

Golden West Park is offering large homes, such as the one pictured here, for the low down payment of $299 to both veterans and non-veterans. They are in Anaheim.

Plans Subdivision at Obispo, 68th St.

Engineer Vic Case is preparing plans for a subdivision to be located at 68th St. and Obispo Ave. It will be developed by A. K. Skinner and West Homes Development Co., Hawthorne. Plans call for dividing a 5.43-acre tract into 27 lots.

Non-Vets Get Same Deal as Vets in Golden West

Brisk, steady sales of 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes in Unit No. 3 of Golden West Park in suburban Anaheim, continue to point up a definite and growing need for sensibly-priced, spacious homes designed especially for non-veterans with large and growing families, according to officials of Mac-Bright, Inc., builders and developers.

Featuring more than 1,300 square feet of actual living space exclusive of attached two-car garages, Golden West Park homes are being offered non-veterans as well as vets for only $299 down, Walker & Lee, Inc., sales directors, point out, "and they're being sold almost as fast as they're put on the market".

Two most popular features of these "completely contemporary" dwellings, is their amazingly flexible "center hall plan" and "master-bedroom suite," a plan whereby the master bedroom can be converted into an entirely separate living unit, with its own entrance, full bath and deep walk-in closet, by simply closing the hallway door.

Attractive exteriors of these homes include colored rock roofs and colored composition shingles as well as genuine redwood siding. Each home plot also has a bearing orange tree on its own large 60-foot lot.

Designed for the utmost in work and step-saving convenience, Golden West Park homes feature complete Youngstown steel kitchen units with white cabinets; Formica drainboards; double sink; Waste King pulverators; two Holly wall heaters with secondary heat exchanges; rust-free aluminum screens; large French doors; colored asphalt tile on all floors; modern slab doors; Crane bath fixtures and Schlage hardware. In addition, sewers, curbs and sidewalks are already in and paid for, builders cite.

Furnished model homes are on display from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Golden West Park may be easily and quickly reached from Los Angeles by driving east on the Santa Ana Freeway to Lincoln State Highway crossing in Anaheim. Continue south on freeway four-fifths of a mile to West Street and watch for model homes. From Long Beach, homeseekers are advised to drive east on Carson (Lincoln) to Santa Ana Freeway; turn right four-fifths of a mile to West Street and Golden West Park.

Bank Deposits, Realty Sales Both Show Increase Here

Long Beach economy, based on money in the bank, strengthened considerably the past year even with record sales of $162,986,264 in real estate.

Although buyers of much of the realty may have dipped into savings accounts to make the purchases, growth of the city both by new residents and financially, resulted in an increase of more than $20,200,000 in deposits as of Jan. 1, this year, compared to the same date last year.

Figures from all banks show the total deposits were $395,949,066.93 on Jan. 1, while they were $375,735,204.85 on Jan. 1, 1954. On Jan. 1, 1953, they were $356,616,421.14.

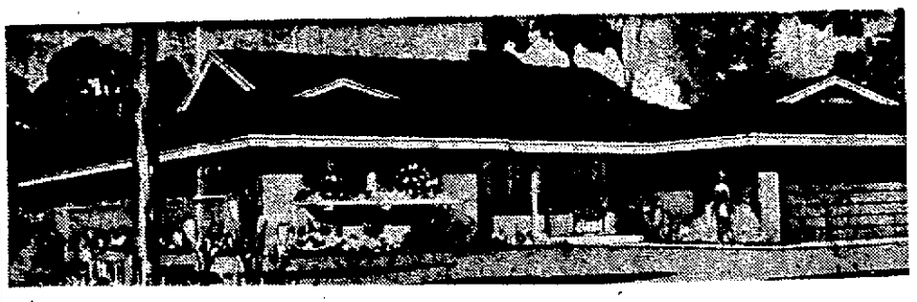

Realty sales in Long Beach and Lakewood as compiled by Barbara Moss, executive secretary of the Long Beach Board of Realtors, show the near $163 million involved 12,701 properties. The previous year there were 13,678 sales but the total involved was $160,450,000.

By districts the sales last year were:

Area	Sales	Amount
Belmont Shore	381	$6,754,807
Belmont Heights	189	3,950,966
3rd to Anaheim	529	7,626,385

IN GRAND OPENING

This is one of the styles of the Magnolia Manor "Wonder Homes" that are being offered to non-vets for a move-in price of only $295. The grand opening is this week end. Built by Dal-Mor Builders, the homes are located on Magnolia Blvd. just off the Santa Ana Freeway between Buena Park and Anaheim.

Magnolia Manor Opening Second Big Anaheim Unit

The opening of the second unit of Magnolia Manor will take place today at the Anaheim location, the Dal-Mor Builders announced. The new homes have many new advantages added to the already popular "wonder homes."

Located on Magnolia Blvd. just off the Santa Ana Freeway between Buena Park and Anaheim, the new unit of "wonder homes" will be available in both 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath plans with some models offering more than 1,300 square feet.

The sales policy of the second unit will be much the same as the fast selling first group with the Magnolia Manor homes being offered to both veteran and non-veteran for the same low move-in price of $295, sales agent Frank McFarland explained.

The homes are in the ranch motif with double garages, tile sinks, natural wood cabinets in kitchen, breezeways, the latest in heating, and other features.

Magnolia Manor's initial unit near the same choice Magnolia Blvd. location was one of Orange County's fastest selling sites last year and the builders stressed that early reservations point again to a fast sell-out. "We urge non-vets to act quickly for the sales plan we offer at the 'wonder homes,'" McFarland said.

Agency Moves

American Medical Agency, formerly of 812 Pine Ave., have moved to Times Building, 215 American Ave., Suite 1206. There is a new owner, but under the same management of Lee Block.

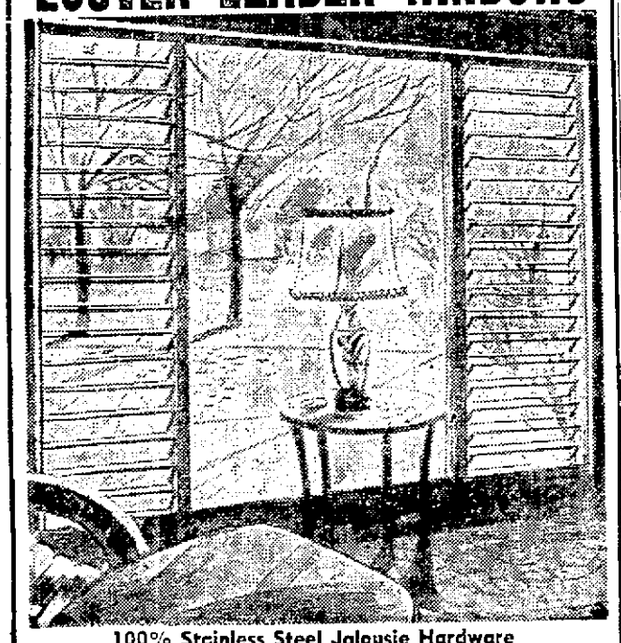

Three Attending National Sessions

Reg Dupuy, Clive Graham and Barbara Moss, all national officers, are attending the National Association of Real Estate Boards board of directors' meeting being held in Washington through Feb. 3. Dupuy will be officially installed as National Regional vice president of this western area. Graham is to be installed as National Regional vice president of the Brokers Institute and Mrs. Moss is retiring National president of the Secretaries Council. Having been national chairman of the Multiple Listing Service and assisted in installing this service in some 28 boards, Mrs. Moss has been invited by Herbert U. Nelson to speak before the Board Presidents meeting on "A Vehicle to Success—Multiplelisting."

SMART DESIGNING

Shown above is a typical Luxury Homes living room. Smart architectural design and styling give all Luxury Homes' rooms a feeling of spaciousness.

Luxury Homes Only Minutes From L. B.

Easy accessability to the Long Beach industrial and business areas is an important asset of "Luxury Homes," the completely new tract of contemporary homes in Garden Grove.

New freeways and modern highways take the "Luxury Home" resident to metropolitan Long Beach, as well as surrounding area, in a matter of minutes.

Acclaimed the "moderate priced" home with the "luxury priced" features, these homes are outstanding examples of fine architecture and design.

Incorporated in each residence are more than 44 extra features adding to a comfort and livability unmatched by all others in the same price range.

Veterans can buy a "Luxury Home" for absolutely no cash down. Payments for these 4 bedroom, 2 bath homes are as low as $63.88 per month. Four model homes are on display daily between 10 a.m. and 8 p.m. at Brookhurst Avenue and Bell Road in Garden Grove, site of the popular homes.

Ultra-modern accessories such as the built-in oven and range top, handy garbage disposal, cosy built-in breakfast nook, and unusually large closets are included to meet the needs and desires of growing families.

An emphasis is also placed on outdoor living, with a huge backyard area enclosed with decorative redwood fencing provided every home. Incinerators and clothes poles have also been provided for the housewives convenience.

Over 15 exterior designs give each home a mark of distinction and individuality. Front landscaping is also included with attractive California shrubbery featured.

For the children of the community, a free bus service takes them each day to modern Orange County schools.

SPEED LIMIT IDEA . . . The purpose of the proposed legislation setting up a 65 mile per hour maximum speed limit in California, in addition to the existing 55 mph "prima facie" limit, has recently led some quarters to the opinion that this move would represent an increase in the speed limit.

Actually, the objective of this measure is just the opposite. It would definitely forbid exceeding 65 mph in any situation, which, under the "prima facie" limit, is now possible.

For the "55 mph prima facie" limit makes it possible for motorists to exceed this speed under conditions where they can prove that the increased speed was not hazardous. Consequently, it is not uncommon for motorists to drive at 80, 90 mph or more in certain areas.

"We feel that such high rates of speed are dangerous under any conditions," says the Automobile Club of Southern California, "and that is why we believe an absolute speed limit, in addition to the 'prima facie' limit, should be established.

SPACIOUS ROOMS

Windsor Village homes at Garden Grove feature spacious living rooms, as shown here, as well as large rooms throughout the home. They are priced from $10,900.

Brisk Sales Shown in Windsor Village

Sales in Windsor Village continue at a brisk pace, according to George G. Petrow, spokesman for the McCarthy Company, sales agents for the Banner Development Co.

Offering the popular California contemporary architecture, Windsor Village homes are priced from $10,900 to $12,445 and are available to veterans on no down payment financing with monthly payments, principal and interest of less than $60.

The kitchens of Windsor Village have been particularly praised, according to Petrow. Designed to give the housewife maximum space with step-saving efficiency, Windsor Village kitchens feature louvered windows, ceramic tiling, garbage disposals, Stanthony hood, with light and fan. Appliances may be included in the loan if the buyer desires.

Spacious living rooms have walls of glass and a huge fireplace that buyers have found exceptionally appealing. The controlled heat. Bathrooms feature Westinghouse electric heaters and beautiful colored American Standard fixtures and stall showers.

The distinctive Windsor Village exteriors are of California redwood. Louvered shutters, decorative Dolomite roofs, weatherstripping on exterior doors, gutters, and downspouts are other features. Front and side lawns are landscaped.

Models of the homes are open on Gilbert St., just south of Ball Road in Garden Grove. Visitors drive out Santa Ana Freeway to Huntington Beach Blvd., (Highway 39) south to Ball Road, east to Gilbert St., and south to Windsor Village. From Long Beach, visitors drive out Seventh St., (Garden Grove Blvd.) to Gilbert and north to Windsor Village.

Many Prudential Loans Made Here

Real estate loans totaling $842,450 were approved in Long Beach during the full year 1954 by the Western Home Office of Prudential Insurance Co.

Harry J. Volk, vice president in charge of western operations, said that the 1954 total was all for residential purposes.

Broker Moves

Ann Greenwood, realey broker, has moved her office from 3131 E. 7th St., to 4195 E. 4th St., she announced Saturday.

REALTOR OF WEEK

Arnold Berg Wins Honor After Leaving Presidency

During his year as president of the Long Beach Board of Realtors Arnold Berg supervised the weekly breakfast drawings to honor the Realtor of the Week and never once did his own name appear. Yet the first week that he stepped from office his name was the winner.

Born and raised in Minot, N. D., Berg graduated from the Minot High School and attended the University of Minnesota and Minot State College. Later he completed a course at the University of Washington in business law and administration.

For some time Berg was employed as manager and supervisor for the MacMarr stores in the state of Washington, having direct charge of 18 stores. In California he managed several stores for the A & P and then entered the ice cream manufacturing business in Los Angeles on his own. He also was production manager for the Electrical Development Co. in manufacturing submersible pumps for the Navy and received a citation from President Roosevelt for tripling the production of the pumps.

In 1943 he entered the Officers Training program for the Army and was stationed at Camp Walters, Mineral Wells, Tex. After being discharged from the Army he entered the real estate business in Long Beach in 1945 and found this new venture immediately successful. His office is at 418 E. Broadway.

Berg likes to travel and is a hunting and fishing enthusiast. He is immediate past president of the Long Beach Board of Realtors, a member of the Society of Residential Appraisers, Realtor Speakers Club, Chamber of Commerce, American Legion Post 27 and the Elks Lodge No. 888. He and Mrs. Berg celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary last year. They live at 2135 American Ave.

Berg served as a director of the local board three years and advanced from vice president to president last year. He was a director with the State Realty Association three years and a member of the County Council three years. He has just been named state chairman of multiple listing for this year.

This week's Salesman of the Week, honored by the Realty Board, is Steve Spindell, one of the best known members of the board.

A New Englander by birth, Steve went to school in Boston and graduated from Harvard in 1922 with a degree as a mining engineer. He followed this profession in West Virginia and Utah and then represented several granite and quarry concerns as their Mid-West sales representative until coming to California in 1942 to go to work with Cal-Ship as a group leader in hull engineering. He was in charge of the machinery foundations and superstructure planning.

Following the war, Steve obtained a real estate license and went to work with the Rex L. Hodges Co., and last year joined the E. T. Moore Co., to manage their income property division.

Steve's success in realty has been very high and only last Wednesday shared with another realtor a $60,000 income property sale.

Steve was a director of the State board in 1953 and of the Long Beach board last year. He is past secretary and vice president of the Society of Residential Appraisers.

Mr. and Mrs. Spindell reside at 3021 Mariquita St. and his office is at Carson St. and Lakewood Blvd.

'Doug' Riach to Cleveland

Douglas A. Riach, for six years the director of sales and merchandising for General Foods Maxwell House coffee division in Long Beach and Los Angeles, is being transferred to Cleveland, O., where he will become territory manager for the company.

D. A. RIACH

Riach, whose home has been at 5220 Carita Ave., attended UCLA until he joined the Army in World War II. He entered as a private and was discharged as a captain. Recently installed as vice president of the Exchange Club, Riach has been active in various civic affairs and is past president of the Long Beach Food Sales Association. Mrs. Riach and their young daughter are joining him in Cleveland.

Pembrook Offering Vets Homes for Nothing Down

Remaining homes in Pembrook Village, popular Westminster development of rustic architectural styling are now available to veterans, at no down payment and no cost to move in, it was reported by Bruce Bartleson, sales manager of Hanson & Hintz, developers.

"We have secured this new financing for the remaining units of Pembrook Village," stated Bartleson, "because of the request of so many veterans who have found in Pembrook Village the one home that meets their standards of quality, architectural beauty, and modern conveniences."

Of the homes remaining in the development, there are still choice lots available, Bartleson explained, due to cancellations of unqualified buyers.

Among the features of the homes are cedar shake roofs, batten-and-board, used brick, and diamond-paned windows, which create the Early American exteriors. Interiors of the dwellings are modern with such contemporary features as sliding glass walls in the living rooms, acoustical ceilings, snack bars, and interior planters.

Other qualities are cross ventilation in bedrooms, flush-lighted entryways, entry halls, two-car garages, hardwood floors, mahogany slab doors. Kitchens are U-shaped and have natural birch cabinetry, and garbage disposals. Pullman baths are equipped with electric heaters, it was disclosed. Prices are from $11,700 to $12,700.

Visitors drive out Seventh St. to Huntington Beach Blvd. (Highway 39), turn south to Tenth St., and west to the model homes.

Crowds at Magnolia Estates' Big Opening

Thousands of home-seekers attended last weekend's grand opening of Magnolia Estates, highlighted by showing of four furnished model residences, and heavy throngs are expected today, it was announced by spokesmen for the new Exhibit Homes development of 99 3- and 4-bedroom, 2-bath dwellings in Anaheim.

The exhibit homes, decorated and furnished by C. Tony Pereira, will remain on display daily on the west side of Magnolia Ave., between La Palma Ave. and Crescent Ave., south of the Santa Ana Freeway, according to Louis A. Towne, president, and Richard H. Doremus, vice president of Exhibit Homes.

Sales were reported greatly increased following the opening of the furnished homes, with veterans able to buy at nothing down, except costs and impounds, and monthly payments from $61 for principal and interest.

The full price of the homes is from $11,950. Visitors can easily reach the property by taking the Santa Ana Freeway past Orangethorpe Ave. to Magnolia Ave., turning south on Magnolia to the model homes just south of La Palma on the west side of the street.

"The exceptional community advantages of Anaheim, chosen for the Magnolia Estates development, offers proximity to schools and churches, shopping facilities, theaters and other advantages," a spokesman pointed out. "Moreover, within easy access are major employment centers, with year-around opportunities, in both Orange and Los Angeles counties."

NEAR FREEWAY

Magnolia Estates, with initial unit of 99 three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes now on sale, is typified by above interior. Location of property is west side of Magnolia Ave., between La Palma and Crescent Aves., south of Santa Ana Freeway.

Markdale Rushes Opening of Second Norwalk Unit

Sales of the first unit of Markdale, the modern three-bedroom, two-bath development in close-in Norwalk, have exceeded expectations of the builders and is now completely sold out. As a result of this unprecedented demand for nearby properties, the builders have moved fast and the grand opening of the second unit is scheduled for this week end, according to Pioneer Land Co., sales agents.

The modern construction of these Contemporary dwellings, they said, plus the fact that they are situated just five minutes from a multimillion-dollar shopping center—Norwalk Square—has evoked tremendous approval from the thousands of visitors to the site during the last few weeks.

In addition to the custom-built effect that lends distinction to every home in the development, the builders called attention to the modern functional interior. Designed for the growing family, the whole sleeping section can be shut off from the living and recreational areas of the house. Offered to vets for no money down, monthly payments are $67.28, principal and interest.

It was reported that many employees of nearby Rheem Manufacturing and North American Aviation have already bought homes in this contemporary development featuring a private bath in the master bedroom, forced-air heating with a summer switch for cooling, built-in breakfast bar, garbage disposer, patio, open beam ceiling, and range hood plus fan. But transportation which connects with all points, runs along adjoining Norwalk Blvd.

Markdale is reached via the Santa Ana Freeway to the Pioneer turnoff in Norwalk—directional signs are posted.

SEE MONEY BUGGY

More than 1,500 persons attended the open house Thursday night for the new Bixby Knolls branch of the Bank of America, which will be opened for business Monday. An innovation is the lack of teller windows and cash drawers. The clerks will operate along a glass counter using money buggies such as the one shown here by Miss Shirley Mayne. Also pictured are Julian R. Davis, vice president in charge of statewide public relations for the Bank of America; R. J. Carmody, manager of the branch; Mayor George Vermillion and Supervisor Burton W. Chace.

Local Office Honored for Sales Record

The Long Beach branch office of Allstate Insurance Co., winner in a recent nationwide company sales contest, was honored recently by the company's top executives at a dinner at the Statler Hotel, Los Angeles, according to Raymond H. Loewe, resident manager.

Allstate agents and their wives from Long Beach: Carl Allen, Bill Armstrong, Howard Baker, Lynn Baker, Will Baker, Dan Bott, Jack Dew, Tony Freeman, Wes Godfrey, Dave Goodman and Cecil Hodges were present at the dinner along with sales management personnel of the Long Beach office.

Banner Park Designing Is Great Appeal

Popularity of Banner Park, the new Garden Grove development on Hazard St. just west of Harbor Blvd., is attributed to the fact that these homes represent a rare combination of contemporary and conventional design, according to Frank Hart, sales manager of Walker & Lee, sales agents. "Buyers have been enthusiastic of these unusual homes," continued Hart, "praising them for their distinctive beauty and quality construction."

In Banner Park, veterans are buying the dwellings for no down payment. Priced from $11,800, the homes are also being sold to non-veterans on FHA financing terms. Monthly payments are approximately $67.

King-size lots are another advantage to living in Banner Park, Hart disclosed while listing features of the homes. These include open beam, celotex insulated ceilings, mahogany paneling, garbage disposals, built-in Western Holly ranges and ovens, Stanthony stove hoods with electric light and fan, Kenkork tile floors in living room, dinette, hall, and bedrooms and asphalt tiling in bathrooms and kitchen. The use of walls of glass greatly increases the amount of visual living space in the homes, Hart said.

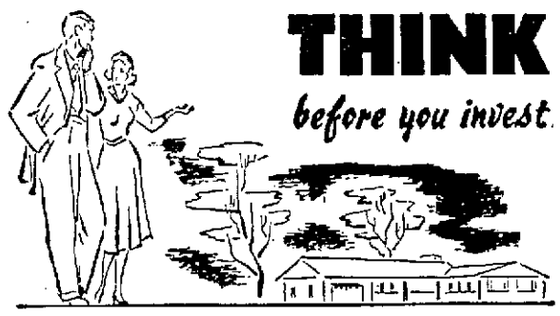

Models of Banner Park homes are open daily and evenings to 9. They are reached by driving out Seventh St., which becomes Garden Grove Blvd., or Westminster to Harbor, turning south on Harbor to Hazard.

Walter Enlers to Be in Show

Walter Enlers of the Howard Amos Men's Store, Long Beach, will be a participant in a novel men's style show, a feature of the 37th annual convention of the National Association of Retail Clothiers and Furnishers Feb. 22 at the Biltmore Hotel, Los Angeles.

Models will be young merchants from various parts of the country themselves wearing clothes that they expect to be good style in their part of the country in the coming season. The merchandise shown is to be judged by a jury of young motion picture stars and starlets who will comment on the clothing from a consumer viewpoint.

Luxurious Baths Offered in All Homes

Two colorful baths get the modern family in a Brookhurst Golden Key home off to a pleasant start for the work and school day. These luxurious baths are color harmonized with pastel fixtures and sparkling ceramic tile. Featured are spacious Pullman lavatories which afford convenient counter space for shaving and applying makeup, as well as plenty of storage space for towels and other items, where conveniently available.

Lighting is especially arranged to best advantage. Touch-Plate lighting is used throughout the Brookhurst Golden Key homes. Baths have electric exhaust fans, and homes are equipped with large-capacity water heaters for an ever ready supply of hot water.

Conveniently located at Gilbert and Bixby Sts. in Garden Grove, these new 3 and 4-bedroom homes are built by Henry C. Cox and Affiliated Companies. There is no down payment required for qualified veterans. Four furnished model homes are open for inspection daily and Sundays.

The new offices of Henry C. Cox and Affiliated Companies are now located at 10062 Chapman Ave., just east of Brookhurst.

Bristol Park Terms Low for Big Homes

Featuring nearly 1,300 square feet of flexible living area, qualified veterans may buy a $10,700 three-bedroom home in Bristol Park in suburban Santa Ana for nothing down except impounds, and with easy monthly payments of $55.11 that include principal as well as interest.

Four-bedroom dwellings in Bristol Park, fully priced at $11,985, carrying veterans' monthly terms of $61.77 including principal and interest, are also available for nothing down, report M. J. Brock & Sons, Inc., builders of this development of 361 luxurious California homes designed around the ever popular center-hall plan. Convenient FHA terms are also available to nonvets, builders point out.

Center-hall plan enables all members of the household to traverse each room in the house without disturbing members of the family or guests in any other room, cite Walker & Lee, sales directors.

"This floor plan has been a tremendously potent sales stimulant to veterans with young, growing families who require the spaciousness of these four-bedroom dwellings, and the assured privacy of this floor plan," they continue.

Particularly popular with home-seekers are the brands of fixtures and appliances that give Bristol Park homes push-button comfort and convenience in every room. They include forced-air furnaces, 75,000 BTU; aluminum sashes; American Standard plumbing fixtures; brass-finish locks; exhaust fans and hoods with concealed lights; Biltwell kitchen cabinets; Coronado chrome bathroom fixtures; Arcadia sliding glass doors with sliding screens; Matico asphalt tile, and roof decking that provides 1½-inch insulation.

Other quality refinements are double sinks; decorative non-glare lighting fixtures; open beam ceilings; heavy slab doors; picture windows; decorative redwood fencing around patio areas; lifetime brass and copper plumbing; spacious walk-in closets; open kitchens; decorator colors.

To reach Bristol Park, where ornamental street lighting, curbs, sidewalks and streets are already in and paid for, home-seekers are advised to take the Santa Ana Freeway to Harbor Blvd.; turn right at Harbor Blvd. and go south to Edinger; east on Edinger approximately 1½ miles to Bristol, then south to Delhi and development. Two model homes furnished by Barker Bros. are on display from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. seven days a week.

PLENTY OF ROOM

Bristol Park homes in Santa Ana contain nearly 1,300 square feet. The homes offer terms to veterans of nothing down and low monthly payments.

CHARMFUL LIVING

Combining graceful California contemporary architecture with the latest in home features, Moore-Built Homes is opening the seventh unit of Moorepark today in Orange County. This is a living room in one of the model homes.

Moorepark Unit No. 7 Is Ready for Public Viewing

The ever-increasing popularity of Moore-Built Homes is expected to push sales past the record-breaking mark set in the previous six unit of Moorepark when Moorepark. Unit Seven, is open to the public this week end. This was the prediction made today by Aubrey Reynolds, vice president of Moore-Built Homes, builders and developers of the dwellings which have earned the reputation as "the fastest-selling homes in Orange County."

Graceful, California contemporary architecture has proven its desirability in the past and distinguishes the homes in the seventh unit, Reynolds said.

Priced at $11,050, the homes are available to veterans without down payment. Monthly payments, including principal, interest, taxes and insurance, amount to $67.

Three bedrooms, with one or one and one-half baths, the dwellings are on lots with frontages up to 73 feet.

Aimed at pleasing families, the homes were planned to be "family-size" throughout, with extra features found in every room. Kitchens have a large dining area, modern finish mahogany cabinets, a service desk, garbage disposals and ceramic tile drainboards.

Privacy in every room is assured with the circular hall plan which grants access to other parts of the house without using the living room as thoroughfare. Choice of a wide range of colors for interiors and exteriors is given buyers.

Other features of the dwellings are wood-burning fireplaces with log-lighters, pullman baths, plastic-coated kitchen and bath ceilings and walls, work-saving utility rooms, insulation and weatherstripping, double garages, planked mahogany paneling, oak hardwood floors, two wall furnaces, multibreaker circuits, electric lights in walk-in closets and mahogany slab doors throughout.

Visitors may see models of the Seventh Unit of Moorepark on Euclid Ave., between Chapman and Katella. From Los Angeles, drive out Santa Ana Freeway, turn south on Euclid. From Long Beach, take 7th St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) to Euclid and make a north turn to the model homes.

Wing to Plan Villa Changes

Kenneth S. Wing, prominent Long Beach architect, has been retained by the Morris Hotel Chain to make major alterations on the Villa Riviera Hotel.

Reconstruction of the hotel's garage and creation of an elaborate sunken garden flanking the 16-story structure are projects already under way. Removal of the fountain in front of the Villa and replacement with distinctive landscaping are contemplated.

It was also revealed by a spokesman of the Morris Hotel Chain that Mary Filiatrault has been appointed assistant manager of the Villa Riviera, in charge of promotion.

FILLED WITH EXTRAS

Casas Lindas Estates grand opening last week revealed many extras are offered in the new homes. They are priced from $12,500 and vets may buy for nothing down.

Opening for Casas Lindas Draws Many

The tremendous crowds which attended the opening of the second unit of Casas Lindas Estates were enthusiastic in their praise of the new Garden Grove development, according to a spokesman for Eastern Builders Co., developers.

"The custom-type design and quality of Casas Lindas Estates is evidenced by the great number of "extras" found in these 3- and 4-bedroom dwellings," it was stated.

The homes are priced from $12,050 and are available to veterans at no down payment, impounds only. FHA financing is available to non-vets.

Among the many "custom" extras in Casas Lindas are touch-plate wiring, with master control panel, papered walls, forced air heat with thermostat control, walk-in closets, and efficiency kitchens.

Lots are landscaped, there are hardwood floors, wardrobe closets, aluminum sash, concrete driveways, and all utilities are in. Curbs and gutters and paved streets are also found in the development.

Solon Sees Quick OK on Federal Pay Hike

WASHINGTON (AP)—Chairman Tom Murray (D-Tenn.) Saturday predicted quick action by the House civil service committee on the administration's request for salary increases for some 1,500,000 postal and other government workers.

Murray told a reporter that hearings, to begin on Tuesday, should be ended in two or three weeks. He said the committee intends to act on the pay raises before considering any bill to raise postal rates.

Lincoln's Home to Open 2nd Floor for Public Visits

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Six second-story rooms in the house where Abraham Lincoln lived from 1844 to 1861 will be opened to the public, Feb. 12, the 146th anniversary of the Civil War President's birth.

Heretofore, the hundreds of thousands of persons who visit the Lincoln home each year have had access only to the first floor. There were 425,000 visitors in 1954.

Six months was required to ready the upstairs rooms, including those of Lincoln, his wife and a son, Robert Todd Lincoln, a guest room, a maid's room and a trunk room.

The heavy traffic flow through the 116-year-old frame house, the only one Lincoln ever owned, had to be considered in the restoration project.

Italian Border Clash

TRIESTE, Italy (AP)—Italy said Saturday Yugoslav border guards fired on an Italian military patrol which unintentionally crossed into Yugoslav territory along the Trieste frontier. One Italian soldier was slightly wounded. Yugoslav officials expressed regrets for the incident.

'Free Rent' Until April for Balboa Vista Buyers

"Free rent" until April 1 is promised buyers of Balboa Vista Homes near Newport Beach.

With only $395 plus small closing costs, immediate occupancy is assured buyers and their payments of $42.26 monthly, principal and interest will not start until April 1.

Each is a three-bedroom home for a total price of $7,995. All bedrooms are twin-size and the homes have 1,345 square feet under the roof. American Standard colored bath fixtures, Youngstown steel kitchen cabinets, Thermador electric heaters in the baths, genuine lath and plaster, picture windows and 40-gallon hot water heaters are among the features of the homes.

Andes Realty, sales agents, have model homes open daily to 7 p. m. The homes are just north of the Harbor Blvd. cutoff at Pacific Coast Hwy., in Newport Beach.

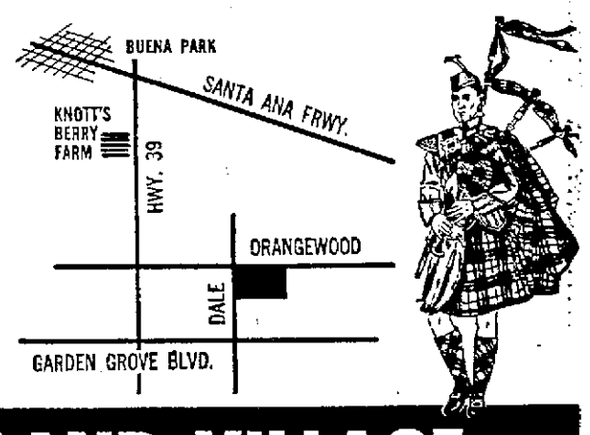

To Show Film Before Realtors

Dean C. Davisson of the legislative department of the Chamber of Commerce will present the film "It's Everybody's Business" at the breakfast meeting of the Long Beach Board of Realtors Tuesday at the Lafayette Hotel. The Kiwanis Club quartet will sing. Lewis K. Cox is program chairman. The movie is a new animated picture in technicolor depicting the growth and development of business.

START NEW CENTER

Ground was broken last week on a new 10-acre shopping district to serve the growing Garden Grove area. The center will be at the corner of Chapman Ave. and Brookhurst. Bill Tietz, president of the Tietz Construction Co., said the center will house a big Thriftimart, drug store, variety and department store and several smaller shops. This is the artist's conception of the center which will be convenient to residents of Melody Estates, Melody Park, Skylark Terrace and adjacent subdivisions.

TYPICAL SHAMROCK HOME

Salesmen for Shamrock Village homes in Garden Grove say the offer to furnish the kitchens with major appliances is appealing to buyers. The appliances are applied to the home loans.

Shamrock Village Terms Are Appealing to Buyers

The offer to completely furnish the kitchens with major home appliances, including ranges, automatic washers and refrigerators, has high appeal with visitors at Shamrock Village, revealed Frank Hart, sales manager of Walker & Lee, Inc., sales agents for the Garden Grove development. The new home-owners can arrange to have the amount of the appliances applied to their loan, thus reducing the cost of furnishing their new homes while offering appliances most desired by consumers, reported Hart.

Other advantages to buying in the three- and four-bedroom subdivision are the features of construction in the homes. This attention to construction details, said Hart, indicates the growing appreciation of building points by buyers and proves the importance of such features as rock wool insulation and weatherstripping, oak hardwood or cork floors, mahogany slab doors, 40- or 50-gallon water heaters, television jacks and outlets and thermostatically controlled heat, all found in Shamrock Village homes.

Ceramic tile work surfaces are bright assets to the kitchens which are equipped with garbage disposals, said Hart. Bathrooms are big and bright with colored fixtures. They have Marlite over tubs, pullman baths, stall showers and there are electric heaters in some models, he revealed.

Color harmony of the homes is decorator-planned, both inside and out, to assure the buyer of contemporary color schemes throughout the dwelling. Another much appreciated feature is the professional landscaping done on front and side yards of the oversize lots. Priced from $10,400 to $11,700, the homes are available to veterans on no down payment financing terms, and not one cent required to move in, it was stated.

Shamrock Village is on Harbor Blvd., just north of Garden Grove Blvd. Visitors from Long Beach drive out Seventh St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) and turn left on Harbor.

Elgin Watch Plant in L. A. Gets Project

ELGIN, Ill. (AP)—Elgin National Watch Co., has been awarded a research and development contract for guided missile components to be handled at its new west coast electronics subsidiary, Elgin-Neomatic Inc., Los Angeles, G. W. Fraker, general manager of the Elgin Ordnance Division, said today military security prevented disclosing any details of the contract.

State Insurance Group to Be Here

Insurance men of Southern California will meet Monday noon at the Lafayette Hotel for a regional meeting of the California Association of Insurance Agents. Principal speakers will be B. Franklin Knapp, state vice-president, and Maurice Stanley, regional director. Host group will be the Long Beach Insurance Association with Joseph P. Kesler, president, presiding. Richard E. Barton is program chairman.

TV Tele-Vues

by TERRY VERNON

EDWARD STEICHEN . . . Dean of Photographers

There is little doubt but that a tough choice at 9 p. m. as "Toast of the Town" (2) at 8 o'clock will capture the lion's share of the TV audience tonight for just about everyone you've ever heard of in radio is due to appear.

Here's a partial list of the stars you'll see and hear as Ed Sullivan presents a "salute to radio, 1920-1955," as based on Ben Gross' book: Jack Benny, Edward R. Murrow, George Burns, Eve Arden, Rudy Vallee, the Pickens Sisters, Gene Autry, Edgar Bergen, Art Linkletter, Ed Wynn, Gertrude (Molly) Berg, Edward Arnold, Milton Cross, Norman Brokenshire, Ed and Pegeen Fitzgerald, George Shelton, Paul Whiteman, Ben Grauer, Vincent Lopez, Andre Baruch, Red Barber, David Ross, Roger Pryor, Ted Mack, Lanny Ross, Jessica Dragonette, Jay Jostyn, plus stars of 18 daily soap operas.

Harry von Zell will be the emcee for the Hollywood originating portion of the show, while Sullivan will hold down the fort in New York.

CONVERSATION — "A Conversation With Edward Steichen" will have the dean of American photographers in a filmed interview looking back over his 75 years (4) at 2:30 p. m.

SPECTACULAR — In all but the Pacific time zone, "Toast" will be up against a Max Liebman "spectacular" in color, but out here we'll have them at different times, thanks to Toast's kinescoping. However, eastern rating services will have a tough job checking viewers' preferences. On the color show (4) at 4:30 p. m. will be Herb Shriner, Perry Como, Bill Hayes, Jack Russell, Danny School, Pat Carroll and Kitty Kallen. High light is a jazz version of "H. M. S. Pinafore," the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta.

9 P. M. DILEMMA—We have a tough choice at 9 p. m. on Channels 2 and 4 vie for viewers. CBS stages the G. E. Theater starring Johnny (Cry) Ray in "The Big Shot." This is the story of a young singer named Johnny Pulaski who goes to the big city for an audition, is accepted, but refuses when they want to change his name. His sweetheart tells him his name won't matter if he can sing and sure enough, in time, this proves to be true. Johnny will introduce a new song called "Path to Paradise" on the show and if it is as successful as "Let Me Go, Lover," which was introduced on "Studio One," then it'll be a sure-fire hit. . . . Over on Channel 4 they throw in Peter Lind Hayes and his wife, Mary Healy, with a light-hearted comedy called "The Way Things Happen." Peter plays a TV writer who is on the verge of divorcing his wife (Mary) and through a series of flashbacks the story tells how they met, fell in love, were married, and the events leading up to the decision to break things off. Ratings recently have given G. E. the nod over Philco-Goodyear.

MORE DRAMA — A young woman, a successful commercial artist, is married to an equally prosperous industrial engineer. Loretta Young stars as the wife who believes her husband's secretary wants the husband to get a divorce. "The Loretta Young Show" (4) at 10 p. m. . . . Hans Conried stares longingly at a coat in a second-hand store window, as a down-at-the-heel theatrical producer. His yearning for the coat sets the theme for his grab at success. Play is (7) at 7:30 p. m. . . . Ethel Waters stars in the title role of "Speaking to Hannah" on "Your Favorite Playhouse" at 9:30 (2).

ARAGON BALLROOM
OCEAN PARK, CALIFORNIA
Dear Long Beach Friends:
Our heartfelt thanks for the honor bestowed upon us by you in voting our KTLA program as the most popular in America.
We are deeply appreciative of winning this award for the third consecutive year and we hope our program will continue to please you for the years to come.
I am looking forward to playing again in Long Beach on March first at the Red Cross Benefit Fashion Show and I hope to see you there.
Again, thanks for honoring our program.
sincerely
Lawrence Welk

Words and Music

By JOHN B. CALLAGHAN

Ever get tired of staring at four walls? Well, the people behind the scenes of "I Love Lucy" figure that you do . . . even when those four walls aren't your own, but the thin walls of the set that represents Lucy and Desi's apartment in the TV show.

They decided that "four wall fatigue" was one reason for Lucy's fall from the No. 1 spot in the popularity sweepstakes . . . so they worked on an answer. You've seen it . . . the cross-country tour that set Lucy, Desi, Fred and Ethel against fresh backgrounds each week, with new story twists and new characters introduced. This change of scenery, plus the addition of name guest stars on many future shows, is designed to boost Lucy back to the top . . . the position she's held unchallenged for several years.

Television's current No. 1 boy, Jackie Gleason, looks bigger than ever . . . and seems to be making more money than ever, too. The hefty meals Jackie has been putting away in recent months haven't been eaten just because he couldn't push himself away from the table. With an interest in a reducing gimmick, Jackie had to be portly enough to be a dramatic example when he started to take off weight. You'll see the results . . . a thinner Jackie Gleason . . . except for the place where his wallet is.

The only TV service that really hits the wallet hard is inaccurate service. It pays to deal with specialists in service. We're specialists on all the sets we sell . . . which means you get the finest installation and after-sale service when you buy from PENNY-OWSLEY MUSIC CO. OF LONG BEACH, 4334 Atlantic Blvd. Phone L.B. 40-7406.

WHAT'S in a NAME?

To the employes of Pioneer Trailer Co. at 6661 Long Beach Blvd. it symbolizes the place we hold in the trailer industry — A PIONEER. We have watched the industry grow from an infant to the industrial giant it is today. And our part in its growth is not insignificant. From the beginning our policy of recognizing trailer buyers' needs, wants, desires & fulfilling them has paid handsome rewards to our customers. We today enjoy the reputation of being one of the cornerstones of the trailer industry, & because of an increasing effort on our part to maintain high standards of doing business we not only gain new customers every day but we also enjoy the benefits of continued repeat business from our old customers. With this wealth of experience & understanding we are in a position to supply every trailer buyer with his fondest wish in trailering comfort. Our efforts extend beyond the immediate sale, to complete after sale service. We have served the trailer industry & served it well & now our only desire is to serve you. It would be wise to buy a used trailer from such a company as this. Give us an opportunity to talk to you. We know it will be worth your while.

Thank you.

Sandlarks Play Cupid for Tots

One of two large fund raising events by Sandlarks, Long Beach Guild to the Children's Home Society of California, will take place Saturday, Feb. 12, in the community room at Bank of Belmont Shore. It will be a Valentine dinner dance for members, their husbands and guests.

Large red hearts of satin ribbon on which dance tiny cupids will set the theme for the party, proceeds from which will be used by Sandlarks to aid needy children. Supervising activities for the affair are Mmes. Howard A. Jones, Martha Ford and John M. Deal.

The local Guild is one of 40 throughout the state aiding the society with its help for children, for natural parents and for couples who want to adopt children. Sandlarks serve the society through volunteer work and fund raising events. Members in these groups give unselfishly of their time and effort as they work in behalf of little children.

Among the vital services which volunteers perform are: Sewing and mending baby clothes, clinic assistance, furnishing transportation to boarding mothers and babies, and providing the community with adoption information. These fund raising efforts produce much of the income necessary to carry on the society's adoption services.

Mrs. Robert F. Edds is president of Sandlarks this year. Serving with her are Mrs. Fred C. Lohman, vice president; Mrs. Charles E. Walker and Mrs. Martha Ford, secretaries, and Mrs. Daniel W. Farnham, treasurer.

The other event each year is "Christmas Fantasy," the selling of holiday decorations donated by local merchants.

'WILL YOU BE MY VALENTINE?'

Compliment Miss Kuster at Shower

Miss Beverly Kuster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Kuster of 4235 Chestnut Ave., was surprised recently at a bridal shower attended by 50 of her friends at University of Redlands. Hostesses at the event were Miss Kuster's six bridesmaids, Misses Joni Marshall, Marilyn Hansen, Lee Miner, Martha Trotter, Patti Lewis and Dottie Stoica.

This gathering also served as a farewell party for the honoree who will be graduated in February from the university. She will wed Robert Kulp Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kulp of this city, Feb. 5.

Gamma Phi Beta

Gamma Phi Beta Alumnae will be entertained Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Edward Lovell, 3914 Pine Ave. All Gamma Phi Betas in this area are invited.

Rick Racker Style Show on Tuesday

Rick Rackers, Junior Auxiliary to the Assistance League, will have a fashion show at their luncheon meeting Tuesday at Assistance League Clubhouse.

Eleven girls from the West Side Girls Club will model fashions from Penney's.

The Rick Rackers sponsor a charm and modeling course at the girls' club. This program is directed by Virginia Utecht, assisted by Priscilla Toft. Tuesday's young models were selected as the best in the class.

Joan Dummit will be the commentator, and Carlene Jaques will play the piano.

Dorothy Anderson will assist the girls.

Mrs. Harold G. Appleton, chairman of the West Long Beach Girls Club for the Assistance League, sponsor, and Mrs. J. A. Goldsmith, girls' club director, will be special guests.

Ruth Van Derhoof, Dorothy Anderson, Marilyn Osborn and Nancy Walker will be in charge of the luncheon, at which the 11 girls will be honored guests.

CUPID PLAYS LEADING ROLE

Tiny cupids will set the theme of the Feb. 12 dinner dance by Sandlarks, just as the members play the role of cupid during the year to assist homeless children find parents. Holding the Valentine heart, above from left, are Mmes. Charles E. Walker, Maurice Ruckle and Ed Craigo, who are serving on the dinner committee. Sandlarks is the Long Beach Guild to the Children's Home Society of California. More than 16,000 children have found parents during the 62 years the society has been in operation.—(Staff photos by H. S. Melvin.)

'Come Any Sunday in Month' Say Novel Buffet Invitations

By Betty Wentworth
Independent Women's Editor

We're going to start with a flash-back procedure today and revert to December when friends received their holiday greeting cards from Tess and Francis Heusel. Very pretty they were and with a surprise element because appended was an invitation to buffet supper parties at the Heusels "any Sunday in February. Please state your preference."

Now here, say we, is something new under the sun, and also a great trust in the law of "averaging" which has been vindicated because Tess says the 250 guests bidden are distributing themselves very neatly as if by preconceived plan. Tess is using red anthorium for bright accents for the four parties, each one being from 4 to 7 p. m. at the Heusel's home, 4147 Country Club Dr.

Friends who have been invited to assist include Drs. and Mmes. Harold H. Morris, Gordon Brown, Don Murphy, Walter Furie, Walter D. Gilkey; Supervisor and Mrs. Burton W. Chace, Mrs. Winifred Carney, Mrs. Patricia Cameron, Messrs. and Mmes. James McGranahan, George Trammell, Frank Reagan, Lawrence A. Collins Sr., Chester Yunker, Gus A. Walker, Stuart Lemon, Harry H. Newton of Miraleste, Walter Dabney of Huntington Beach and John Woods of Sierra Madre.

Invitations are in the mail for a morning coffee to be given by Margaret (Mrs. George B.) Hanson, Mildred (Mrs. William N.) Deatherage and Wayne (Mrs. Albert H.) Osborne on Feb. 10 from 10 to 12 o'clock.

Those who will be assisting receive the 200 guests bidden are Mmes. John Squire, Dwight Robbins, Francis C. Hertzog, Lawrence A. Collins Sr., John Moore, Victor Mingers, Logan H. Goodknight, George Stilson, Jay L. Reed, Harvey Lochridge, Earl Burns Miller and Francis B. Settle.

Valentine's Day may consist of the exchange of pretty and sentimental cards to most of us, but to Juanita and Smithy (Harry Curtis) Smith it's far more exhilarating because it's the day of their departure on the first leg of a sojourn abroad.

They sail on the USS "Constitution" on Feb. 17 and will disembark at Naples. From then on their schedule is a lovely fluid thing with places like Sicily, islands in the Aegean, Greece, Istanbul, and Africa standing out especially. They're to be gone an indefinite length of time and that's as definite as they or we can be.

Many are the bon voyage parties large and small being planned in their honor, with one taking place tonight hosted by Bunny and Bev Riley in their quaint and charming abode. Friends of the honored couple have been invited from Los Angeles and throughout the city.

Next Saturday morning Digur Weber and Bunny Riley will cohostess at a breakfast at Digur's home, 6711 E. Ocean Blvd. Bunny's ironstone and antique milk glass will be combined with Digur's silver and there are to be violets if they're to be had anyplace! The guest list of 35 is composed entirely of Juanita's peninsula friends.

Then on Feb. 6 Ellie and Frank Person are pouring cocktails from 5 to 7 at their ocean front home (we plan to go early if it's a clear night to enjoy the sunset over the Pacific from their broad view windows).

Every now and then we figure we're doing too much typing and too little of everything else. For instance when we hear about Fran Soldini's plans for a new painting class we yearn to be among her lucky students. She's embarking on a new series of ten weekly lessons on Wednesday afternoons with class members composed of former and new students. Now here's what appeals to us: The first hour, using a model, they'll learn dynamics and rhythms in figure drawing in various mediums, and the second half of the class is to be devoted to discussion of personal problems involved in paintings and drawings each has done at home in her own little ivory tower. Nice, eh?

Those fortunate creative ones to be in the class are Leonie Pray, Pat Bartell, Mildred Beckstrand, Rosemary Wilson, Esther Steinman, Marian Lewis, Elsie Holt and Gloria Henson.

Here's a tip to husbands who are pondering on what to give to their favorite bride when her birthday rolls around. Alma McFarland's Doug dreamed up a dinner party at the Bel Air Hotel with tickets for the ballet afterwards, with Alma feeling as much in the spotlight as any prima ballerina.

Whipping off to Palm Springs to watch the experts swinging in the golf tournament and to spend the week end were Lucille and Charles Sherman, Marjorie Hight, and Madolyn and John Christopher.

"Teahouse of the August Moon," that smash hit at the Biltmore, lured Betty and Joe Kesler and Vivian and Monty Yunker on Friday eve with dining beforehand in the big city.

And off again, this time to Montevideo via New York, is Doug Graham. Consider how really nice this is, what with it's being summertime down there. Length of his stay is indefinite but he'll wind up in Lima before winging back to the Nawth country and Marilyn.

Leaving yesterday for a week of fun and frolic in the crispy air and on the swooping slopes of Sun Valley were Tom Cummins, Wyley Netherlin, Tom Gressil and Conrad Karriker. We hear Emilie Ann Bell was also speeding to the resort and today Peggy Chill and Kae Schoenborn depart.

To Entertain at Luncheon

Long Beach members of Delta Gamma will have as their guest at Thursday's luncheon Mrs. Daniel C. Hay, Santa Monica, first vice president of the national board of officers.

Mrs. William A. Wilson, 225 Corona Ave., will be hostess and assisting her will be Mmes. C. W. Fisher, G. W. Moore, C. W. Seeley and R. J. Tarpy.

Plans for the Founders' Day dinner March 3 at the home of Mrs. W. B. Havekorst will be discussed. A benefit event has been scheduled for Feb. 7, with Mrs. Charles P. Lupher as chairman. Funds will go to the Nursery School for the Visually Handicapped Children in Los Angeles.

Ebell Club

Beatrice Crall, narrator and monologist, will present the program at Ebell Club tomorrow at the clubhouse. Her subject will be "Victor Herbert," and her narration will be accompanied by harp music played by Miss Eileen Schaefer, popular harpist. Mrs. James Bryan Murray will preside. Group V, Mrs. F. R. Clark chairman, will serve the luncheon.

Harriet Pullen Marries James Miller in New York

News of wide interest to her many friends in the Southland comes from New York City telling of the marriage on Jan. 22 of Harriet Leebrick Pullen to James Lee Miller of Connecticutt, formerly of Ashland, Ohio. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Leebrick of 4360 Lime Ave.

The ceremony took place at 4 p. m. in the Marble Collegiate Church on Fifth Ave. of which Dr. Norman Vincent Peale is pastor, with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Buckley of New York City attending the couple.

The bride wore an afternoon dress of turquoise blue brocade with a matching hat and corsage of white orchids. Following the vow exchange a wedding dinner took place in the Cotillion Room of the Hotel Pierre. On their return from a brief honeymoon the new Mr. and Mrs. Miller will make their home in Riverside, Conn., a suburb of Greenwich.

The bride was graduated from UC at Berkeley where she was affiliated with Kappa Alpha Theta, and her husband is an alumnus of Dartmouth University.

Season's Toppers Are Soft as a Warm Spring Day, Saucy as a March Breeze

INSPIRATION FOR "Fiesta," left above, a ruffled brimmed sailor in black and white polka dot silk with a tiny, matching parasol, comes from Havana, the native land of designer Adolfo. This is in Emme's collection of stunning hats for spring. Next is a mushroom cloche made entirely of white silk rose petals with two roses at the side of the deep brim and is a Walter Florell design. Laddie Northridge designed the forward-tipped little shape of white cotton lace in flower design, effectively irregular in outline. The complexion veil is sheer and light. The last two on the right are from the Dutch Masters Series by Sally Victor. Gray, red, beige and gold ribbons form abstract designs on the white straw bonnet. It is called "Mondrian Bonnet." Straw caning in a round little hat with upturned facing of pale blue velvet forms "Still-Life." The flower arrangement consists of pink, blue and yellow flowers, red currants, a bird and a butterfly. These are examples of what the smartly-groomed woman will wear from spring.

BUILD PLAYHOUSE

Las Madrinas Guild members of Auxiliary to Children's Memorial Hospital busily engaged building an 8'x10' playhouse for some lucky little girl to be awarded at the "Have a Heart, Help a Child" Carnival Feb. 5 at Lakewood Country Club are Mrs. Robert McNulty, on ladder; Mrs. Rexford Welch, on the roof; Mrs. Alonzo Bennett, in the window, and Mrs. R. J. Burdge, with wheelbarrow. This is the Guild's main project for the event. Nightingales, the junior group to the Auxiliary, will distribute tickets for a week end in Las Vegas; Northern Lights Guild will distribute a set of luggage and Fiorella Guild members will handle the chili beans booth during festivities from noon 'til midnight. The public is invited to share in the fun and thereby aid the Auxiliary and its affiliated groups in their work at Children's Hospital.—(Staff photo.)

Shimmering Gowns Star at Reception

By VIRGINIA WELDON KELLY
Washington Staff Correspondent

Exotic national costumes, Dior and Balenciaga creations, glittering uniforms and the broad scarlet, shoulder to waist decorations, of diplomats were the components of the glamorous White House diplomatic reception—the final function in the White House season of formal scheduled entertaining.

In former years, 2,000 have been invited to the reception. This year the guest list—including members of the Senate Foreign Relations and House Foreign Affairs Committees plus the State Department hierarchy plus Washington civilian society numbered less than 800.

Only Ambassadors, Ministers, Minister-counselors and service attaches were invited --this was very disappointing to the many Embassy First Secretaries who are mostly in the career foreign service of their countries.

Mrs. Eisenhower and Mrs. Nixon undoubtedly wore the most beautiful gowns at the reception. The First Lady chose a portrait gown of watermelon peau de soie with a long line fitted bodice and a "yards and yards" bouffant skirt. She carried a matching bag on which was pinned an orchid, the gift of the Boone County, Iowa, Republican Central Committee. Mrs. Eisenhower's filagree golden necklace and pendant earrings (with pearl cascades) were of Middle East origin.

Mrs. Nixon's floating skirted gown of white tulle had an apron of black chantilly lace and fetching white tulle frou-frou up the back.

The Vice President told me that he and the Nixon children think that is "Pat's" loveliest gown.

Mme. Iguchi (wife of the Japanese Ambassador) and their daughter wore exquisite hand painted kimonos. Mme. Iguchi chose pale blue with a gold brocade obi. Miss Iguchi wore peach with a heaven blue obi.

Mme. Koo (wife of the Chinese Ambassador) wore a fabulous Chinese gown of peach antique brocade with a collar necklace of pendant diamonds, pearls, and jade.

Mme. Yang (wife of the Korean Ambassador who was in California) wore a sheath gown of black velvet with a black lace stole.

Mme. Leutorio, wife of the Philippine Charge d' Affaires, wore a butterfly sleeved national gown of ivory satin embroidered in jewels in a floral design.

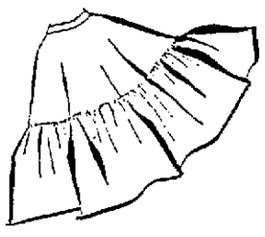

Senora de Esteves Fernandes, wife of the Portuguese Ambassador, wore an emerald satin Dior with a raspberry stole, with emeralds and diamonds.

The new U. S. Ambassador to New Zealand, former Senator Robert Hendrickson and Mrs. Hendrickson attended. They will fly to their new post on February 8.

Also at the reception were both Ambassador Lodges (Henry Cabot and John) with their tall, golden-haired wives.

Peruvian Ambassador Senor Dr. Fernando Berckmeyer wore a traditional ambassadorial uniform—the jacket completely encrusted with gold.

The Wild Waves Are Saying

Some Stories Are Too Good to Keep!

By IOLA MASTERSON

Every time the sun goes up and plunks down again in the west things happen, people talk; are mad, glad, sad; a lot of what goes on isn't worth repeating but some things are too good to keep!

Two stories—one recent and the other of ancient vintage—come to mind for today's word jumble. A couple of weeks ago we told you how Lois and Bob White and Lyman and Nancy Lough were getting ready to hop a sky boat for an ozone sailing trip to Europe. Little did we suspect what would happen to one Robert White. Here's what: The travelers were in place at International Airport well in time to stow luggage with the plane people, stand around and chat excitedly with their many bon voyage wishing friends, even slip up to the Flight Deck.

Too much time, we guess, because after everyone was aboard el plano, Lois, Lyman and Nancy looked around and, lo! No Bob! Quick to the stewardess and request the plane be held or that man White paged. No time now! Motors are revved and they're up there looking down and Bob is down there looking up!

Thanks to modern science and American ingenuity there just happened to be another plane around that had in mind a flight over to Chicago four hours later. Bob was on that one, you can be sure, and in the cold gray light of a certain dawn he made connections with his travel mates.

Now the other story, this one old, is something of a classic now. It goes back to World War II days when Captain Miner Heinc was skipper of a warship stationed over there in the vicinity of the Britishers proud possession—the Rock of Gibralter. Seems Miner and his ship had occasion to pass by that Rock right frequently and the English guarding the stoney palisades learned to recognize every curve and bend of his boat. One day, however, he came steaming through as usual all ready to give the usual merry wave of a jib, or whatever the Navy waves when in friendly waters, when a sternly blinking light interrupted Miner's intentions with it's brisk and businesslike "what ship?" "Oh, well," sighed the Captain, "guess the boys are tightening the reins a bit today" and blinked back smartly the name of his craft. Immediately the "Rock" blinked back again "What ship?" After two more such abrupt exchanges Miner, his patience frayed and his cargo beginning to roll, flashed back a message to sizzle the soul of any true subject of the crown: "What Rock?"!

"Old college students never die, they just serve on committees" and that's timely for two reasons this week—one of the reasons being that we spotted Al Vignolo, Myrl Ott, Dave Eagleson, John Paap and Dr. Bill Van Derhoof in deep conversation over food at the Lafayette Thursday noon when they conferred with Arnold Eddy in regards Long Beach's part in the Diamond Jubilee anniversary this year of USC. Alumni here hope to make quite a do of the event. Did you know there are about 2000 of the old grads right here in town?

We're confident that Virginia Waters is completely content with her roll as Mrs. Franklin Waters so its difficult to say "she missed her calling." But, by jiminy, her talent as a comedienne was something to behold when she commentated the Junior League fashion show of rummage stuff Wednesday morning at the Virginia Country Club. She wasn't joking, however, when she told the assembled ladies that the League's presale today will be terrific. From 5 to 9 p. m. at the Aud. people will be admitted by ticket only. Every League member has a limited number of these ducats and if you know one of the damsels, just step right up and ask her!

Tracy Walker was in town last weekend on one of her too infrequent visits to the old home stand from her home near Silver Lake, Los Angeles. She and cute-as-a-button Matthew (he's twoish now) were visiting Tracy's dad, Charlie Stone.

As far as the eye could see there were packing crates at Elizabethe Tucker's house this week as she crated and wrapped in preparation for her move to 1030 E. Carson (Apt. H) where she'll be comfortably close to that home of hers going up on Amelia Dr.

Here's a little something to slip under your bonnet to remind you to take 'em off when Josephine Matthews or Ann Lawing pass by! They deserve the traditional "hat's off" salute for the bang-up job they did on the Ebell Club's annual Tichenor Clinic benefit when the most ever was raised for the worthy cause.

It's a good thing Hilda and Dr. Earl Donaldson know how to roll with the punches. They decided to go up to Mt. Baldy last Sunday to let the children play in the snow and see the world from a different angle. Within the first-half hour of their visit four 'n a half year old Dean fell smack in a very wet and cold mountain stream and seven and a half year old Diane gleefully disappeared behind a snow bank only to reappear in a few minutes carrying her shoes and sox, her feet meanwhile, the temperature of little twin chunks from the ice age.

Long shadows from March are casting themselves on us now. First wispy shade crossed our path with the news that a serious committee meeting took place at Hope Cunningham's Monday with chairman Joan Beebe, Mrs. Frederick Smock, Madeleine Heim and Lois Wray huddling in thought to make early plans for the first Girl Scout's Birthday Fair to be held at the Auditorium in the month of lions and lambs. The G. S. will have exhibits and a show to acquaint the public (and especially younger Scouts) with the functions of the group.

163½ Park Ave. has become an address of bubbling happiness and baby formula since Wednesday when Marjory and Randy Whitney brought their first baby, little Barbara Susan, home. Born Jan. 5, Marjory and the little charmer have been staying with some doting grandparents name of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Gunn! Vital statistics also include that she weighed seven pounds and thirteen ounces and arrived at Harriman Jones.

Gladdes Neff of Tichenor Clinic has made, we betcha, New York ring with the words Long Beach these past couple of days. She has been in the big city as a new member of the national committee of six to serve for two years with the American Physical Therapy Association. She flew away from here way last week for a stopover visit with a sister in Chicago then on to N. Y. for the national committee meeting Jan. 26 to 29 and now she'll be readying to return, stopping briefly in Iowa to see her parents en route.

In the case of Vern Castle and his brother, Lou, surprises came double last Sunday at the Towne Club when Kay Hill tricked them and gave the two a laugh-filled birthday party. Joining the fun were Pat and Jerry Phelan, Sally Phelan, and Audrey and Ginger Castle.

They put their hearts into it as well as their feet and—well, anyhow how else could three earnest couples come up finalists in a tango contest—and all so good the judges couldn't decide which couple to give the nod, so they just nodded to all! Camilla and Eugene Le Grand, Helen and Bob Wilson and Pauline and Jack Dilday did this Tuesday night at the Shrine Greeter's party at the selfsame Towne Club. Judges in a quandry were hizzoner Judge O. K. Morton and Mrs. Morton and Martha Ann and Doug Burkman. Click-click - - - click - - - click. Click-click - - - click - - - click.

Things dear to a new mother's heart will be opened by Pearl Cooper at Balboa Bay Club on Tuesday when Wilma Arnold and Iris Hicks bid close friends for luncheon and shower in honor, not only of Pearl, but of that fine new addition to our community, young Matthew Cooper!

Last Saturday night Bobbie and Jim Vance got a telephone call from Esther and "Ted" Tedford and there was an invitation attached. Esther and "Ted" wanted Bobbie to come over for a few minutes for a happy birthday wish. So Bobbie said "in a minute" and over she walked to her neighbors house at 5589 Vesuvian Walk. Yep, there they all were ready with a surprise party for her and waiting behind the door to yell their greetings when she walked in were Helen and Phil Hahn, Jean and Bud Du Brock and Dottie and Irwin Miller.

The King of the Beasts were in frolicsome mood last weekend in Reno at the district convention of Lions and none were more "wild" than the 60 or so Long Beach area "roarers" who descended on the Nevada city. They had a reason. Theirs was the duty to bring the 1956 convention to Long Beach. And they did! With two fabulously large hospitality hours they wooed their fellow clubmen into meek submission on the old theory that "candy is dandy but . . ."! President Walt Hoffman of the local club, aided and abetted by Phil Hattery, Ed Shaw, Johnny Webb and Eddie Baker, to name a few, turned the trick. Get out your cages and oil your padlocks because we can look forward next year to 3000 or more stalking Lions, the kind that make the forrest variety look like kittens!

Dr. Greg and Joan Hoskins moved themselves and little son, David, up to Ft. Ord last week where Greg will take over Captain's duties in the Army Medical Corps.

This is the final windup on a lot of excitement. You see, the Hoskins bought a house. The very next day he got his Army orders which whooshed him back to Texas for indoctrination courses. Right then David decided to arrive and back came Greg on special leave to greet his first child. Then back to Texas, back to Long Beach, and on to Ft. Ord!

Welfare Projects Planned at Delta Theta Tau Parley

Mrs. E. L. Johnson of Gamma Delta Chapter of Delta Theta Tau Sorority is presiding as province chairman of the 25th Delta Province convention which opened a two-day session yesterday at the Hotel Mira Mar in Santa Monica. Former resident of Long Beach, Mrs. Johnson now resides in Whittier.

Delta Theta Tau is the largest non-academic organization of its kind in the United States, with more than 15,000 members. It was founded in 1903 in Muncie, Ind., for the advancement of philanthropy.

Delta Province consists of 29 chapters throughout California. Each chapter sponsors a special project in its own area, but the province as a whole sponsors one project. The Sunshine Mission School at Riverside was its last project. The Long Beach chapter sponsors the Don George Memorial Fund which provides camperships for junior high school boys and girls. Members also assist at the Long Beach General Hospital.

At the conclave a new province project will be presented, that three scholarships in the amount of $150 each for the training of teachers in the special field of the mentally retarded, hard-of-hearing and partially sighted be provided by the sorority.

During the convention a special tribute will be given to members who have been active for 25, 30 or 35 years. Mrs. Raymond Gayton of Long Beach will be one of those to be honored.

The Silver Slipper Ball was an event of last evening and a cocktail party, brunch and luncheon were other activities arranged for delegates.

Among members attending from the local chapter are Mmes. Bernard Quinn, Edna Freeman, C. E. Perry, Willard Knapp, Harry Poist, Raymond Gayton, E. Seibert and Willis Lyman.

Nationally, the sorority is remodeling a 28-bed section to be known as the Delta Theta Tau wing to the Magnetic Springs Polio Foundation at Magnetic Springs, O. This foundation will provide complete service in a rehabilitation program equal to that of the famous Georgia Warm Springs Foundation. The sorority also supports the Delta Theta Tau Nursing Service at

Altar Society

St. Anthony's Altar Society will gather for a covered-dish luncheon Wednesday noon. Rev. James O'Callaghan will be guest speaker, and musical selections will be presented by Roland Piquette, program chairman.

Music, Drama Plans Event

Music and drama dept. of Ebell Club will meet at 10:30 a.m. Monday in the auditorium of the clubhouse, when a special program will be presented by Mrs. Merton Betts Smith, chairman, who will bring several leading artists from the Singers Workshop.

Entertainers in costume from recent productions will be accompanied by Rose Bishop, pianist. Laura Killingsworth, soprano, who sang the leading role in the "Song of Norway," and Bill Johnson, tenor, will combine their voices in selections by Edvard Grieg.

Excerpts from Gilbert and Sullivan's comic opera, "The Mikado," will be given by Betty Kimber as "Yum-Yum," Jackie McFadden, as "Peep-Bo," Babette Mann as "Pitti-Sing," Arthur Carah as "Ko-Ko," and Henri Scanlon as "Nanki-Poo." Concluding the program, Mrs. O. S. Lindenberger will present a brief from the "Reviewing Stand of Theater and Music." This is the only department scheduled to meet Monday, Mrs. Smith announces, and an overflow attendance is anticipated, necessitating use of the auditorium.

Founders' Day

Actives and alumnae of Theta Upsilon Sorority attended the annual Founders' Day luncheon Saturday in Statler Hotel. The sorority was founded at the University of California, Berkeley. Gathering to honor the founders were Mmes. William Price, Violet Butler and Wolf DeLyre of Long Beach.

Announce February Events for Lakewood City of Hope

Lakewood Chapter of the City of Hope is announcing a full calendar for 1955. Starting with a meeting in the home of Mrs. Sy Moreno, 3702 Lees Ave., with 60 women present, the chapter decided it had grown to such proportions that it was no longer possible to meet in the homes of members, and future sessions are now to be held in the Lakewood Elks Hall, 4433 Village Rd.

The chapter is leaving its charter open until the end of February to increase its membership. Anyone interested is asked to notify Mrs. Isidore Schwartz, membership chairman.

City of Hope is a non-sectarian group. In its hospital the City of Hope places its specialized skills at the disposal of patients who cannot take advantage of medical resources in their own communities. The latest techniques and methods are employed, and the money for this large project is raised by chapters such as the one just formed in Lakewood.

At the meeting in Mrs. Moreno's home, Mrs. John Yates presented to the chapter the proceeds from the coffee benefit held in her home during the holidays.

Mrs. Ray Rosenblatt, ways and means chairman, is announcing the first large fund-raising event to which the public will be privileged to attend. It is to be a "Hi Neighbor Night" in the form of a supper and dance Feb. 19 at the Elks Hall, in Lakewood. As the title implies, it will be a friendly, informal affair, designed to acquaint people of Lakewood and surrounding communities with the new Lakewood Chapter of the City of Hope and its objectives, and to raise funds for the organization.

Also open to the public will be a movie on the City of Hope to be shown Feb. 16 at 8:30 p.m. at the Elks Hall. Installation of officers is slated for Feb. 5 in the new meeting place and will be open to the public.

Welfare for Veterans Told by L.A. District Federation

By RUTH REECE
Press-Telegram Club Editor

Another example of what clubwomen can accomplish when they set their minds to it, was revealed in a report reaching this desk this past week from Veterans Affairs committee of Los Angeles District, CFWC, of which Mrs. George W. Cornelius is president.

In addition to the truckload of books and bulbs collected and delivered before Christmas, 42 clubs in the district participated in sending $2.50 checks to 342 non-compensated veterans at Sawtelle. The Los Angeles County federation party at Sawtelle provided $100 in cash gifts, in addition to candy, cookies, homemade cakes, cigarettes and gifts valued at $261, and served more than 1000 men.

Funds from the Veterans Project Pool provided gifts for 42 paraplegics in two wards and as many arrested TB patients in another ward of the Long Beach Hospital. Ten dollar coupon books for food and clothing were provided for the families of two veterans in San Fernando Hospital and $10 was contributed toward a record cabinet for the women's ward at San Fernando.

The Chaplain's Service Corps received a $6 donation. All together, the total came to $1,237.30. This was over and above the welfare work done by individual club social service committees.

Democratic Club

An especially interesting program is being announced for members and guests of the Democratic Women's Study Club for Wednesday at the Wilton Hotel, according to the president, Mrs. Walter C. Williams.

Starting at 10:30 a. m., current events will be given by Mrs. Eva Moise, legislation chairman. Mrs. Candace Rinearson, study hour chairman, announces a color film called "Everybody's Business" will be shown through the courtesy of the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce.

Don Rose, chairman of the Los Angeles County Democratic Committee, will be the luncheon speaker. Reservations are to be made with Mrs. Lucian F. Remley, 10½ Mira Mar Ave., not later than Monday evening.

NLB Women's Club

City Manager Sam Vickers and Dr. Frank Harnett, assistant director of schools and municipal recreation, will appear before North Long Beach Women's Club at a luncheon meeting Wednesday in Houghton Park clubhouse to present the beautification plan of F. Elwood Allen of Bennington, Vt., for the improvement of the city of Long Beach. Mrs. Ruel Hird, program chairman, assures members and friends of the club that this will be an opportunity to hear at first hand the plans to use the tideland money to beautify this area.

Because of the importance of the program, Mrs. Ralph D. Gott, president, announces that it will be an open meeting so that all those interested may hear the speakers and become informed as to the future city plans with the tidelands money.

Group Five, Mrs. Nelson Torpey, chairman, will be in charge of the luncheon and decorations. Reservations are to be made with Mrs. Edna Odell, 6129 Brayton Ave. Music will be provided by Mrs. Richard Bailey, vocalist, and Mrs. Pat Davidson Jr., pianist.

D. of A. Council

Long Beach Daughters of America, Council No. 17, will have a progressive dinner Saturday, starting with the soup course at 5:30 p. m. in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Gabrielson in Downey.

Salad course will be served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Worsham, 3923 Ashworth St., and the main course at the Wilton Hunt residence, 1833 Maine Ave. Dessert and coffee will be served by Mr. and Mrs. Willis Allen, at their home, 2785 Cedar Ave. Guests will remain for an evening of cards.

Many guests are expected from other councils in this area. Visiting members are invited, and may make reservations with any of the hosts.

Newly installed officers of the council are Dorothy Allen and Lora Watson, councilor and associate councilor; Margaret Tolby and Leslie Gabrielson, junior past councilor and associate; Willis Allen and Jean Worsham, vice councilor and assistant; Ruth Loop and Minnie Hunt, conductor and warden; Genevieve Keene and Roy Kittle, inside and outside sentinel; Caryl Cronin and Anna Kittle, recording secretary and assistant; Wilton Hunt and Juanita Worsham, financial secretary and assistant; Lila Hawkins, treasurer; Donald Worsham, trustee; Dorothy James and Karleen Moore, color bearers, and Fred Miller, pianist.

New members recently initiated were Mmes. Belle Cunningham, Gertrude Pierce and Genevieve Keene.

Co-op Nursery Group

Plaza Cooperative Nursery No. 1 will meet Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Donald Hummel, 2614 Nipomo Ave. A panel of three members will present a study of the behavior profile, the cultural, and creative activities of the nursery school child.

Parents interested in the cooperative nursery school are required to take the course entitled "Guiding Children's Growth" offered by the adult education centers. Further information may be obtained from the chairman, Mrs. Bea Matlock, 2637 Knoxville Ave.

Library Group

The 60th anniversary of the oldest Long Beach women's club, the Alamitos Library Association, will be observed at a gala luncheon in Alamitos auditorium. Past presidents will be honor guests.

Hostesses will be Mmes. Paul Crotinger, Edward C. Morgan and Florentine A. Vaughan. Luncheon will be served at 12:30 p. m., and the program will follow.

P-T.A. Congress Supports Child Center Program

That the California Congress of Parents and Teachers has an action program now in effect was proven in January at the board of managers meeting in San Francisco. Eighty-four members of the board, Mrs. A. Kenneth Spencer of San Gabriel, president, met at Bellevue Hotel to hear reports of chairmen who had been working closely with district and local people, as well as resource persons in several fields, to determine what important child welfare needs require special attention at this time.

The Board reaffirmed its previous stand on child care centers, voting to support legislation which provides that the program will be continued without a terminal date, administered by the State Department of Education and supported by state funds and parents' fees. They urge the participation of the parents in the program. This action followed the report of a special committee previously appointed to study and evaluate the present child care center program in California. Questionnaires were sent to all areas of the state, and district presidents were asked to visit centers and to talk with administrators and legislators, to determine the importance of continuing child care centers.

Prior to the regular board of managers sessions, the education study committee and the legislation committee held a joint meeting to hear Dr. Lawrence B. White of Long Beach and Dr. Arthur F. Corey of San Francisco present the pros and cons of proposed legislation affecting the state's teacher tenure laws.

Following this presentation, board members conducted an intensive study of all available material on teacher tenure laws and issued the following statement:

The CCPT, through its long established education platform, supports the principle of teacher tenure. It is assumed that tenure provides the security which enables the teacher to make full use of his time and energies for the instruction and guidance of children.

It is also intended that tenure shall facilitate the continuing professional growth of the teacher. CCPT believes that to attract and hold those persons who have the qualifications for teaching, the principle of tenure is necessary and desirable.

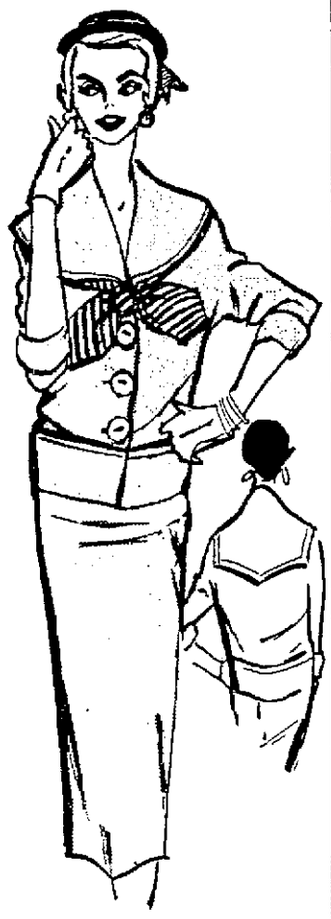

The dismissal of unfit teachers has long been a problem of major concern to the California Congress of Parents and Teachers. We are deeply concerned about the estimated .07 per cent of teachers in California schools who are unfit to teach the children in their classrooms. Their dismissal, at present, is far too difficult with the current procedures for enforcing tenure laws or possibly because of the laws themselves. The dissatisfaction generated, year after year, by such teachers is cumulative, damaging to the children in their charge and to the relations between parents and schools. The congress believes that this problem is of such scope and importance that an effective solution is imperative.

We further believe that all possible alternatives have not been fully explored, and resources exist which could assist in evolving the best solution to this problem. If the principle of tenure is to be maintained, we believe that the ramifications for the dismissal of teachers and the procedures to be used should be carefully weighed and that impersonal and competent counsel should be secured to assist in this process.

Bet all the wives will agree that about 60 per cent of the arguments could be eliminated if the husbands conceded promptly that they were wrong.

Mix a generous scoop of raspberry jam into some whipped cream. Yummy on plain white cake or packaged vanilla pudding or what have you.

For cleaning those pesky small pieces of cut glass or crystal —simply wet with cold water, rub entire surface with dry baking soda. Rinse with clear hot water, allow to dry and polish. You'll find this a great temper saver when you try to clean those hard-to-get-at crevices that attracted you to that candy dish.

Read some place where a woman gained 20 pounds while she was in jail. This is enough to keep 90 per cent of the female population on the right side of the law. Too bad a few more of the men aren't fussy about their figures, maybe we wouldn't have such a crime problem.

If you find that you gnash teeth every time you attempt to remove an ice tray because it simply won't let go, don't attack it with a butcher knife after this, but rather brush the bottom with a coat of unsalted fat or shortening and wipe off the excess with a paper towel next time before you fill them. They'll come unstuck as if by magic.

OUR 36th YEAR IN LONG BEACH

Among Career Women

Dash and Energy Seen in Club Activities

By ANNE GILCHRIST

Two major events in as many weeks have fully occupied members of the Third District Dental Assistants. Their installation dinner of Monday night when Viola Engle took office as president, was preceded by the Southern California State Dental Assistants Association Mid-Winter convention, the fourth annual such conclave. Long Beach chapter was official hostess for this big meeting, headquartering at the Lafayette Hotel.

Dr. Garwin Harris, one of the guest speakers, discussed the helpful subject, "Some Observations on X-Rays." Dr. Donald B. Chatterton chose to speak on, "Patient Preparation and Prosthetic Dentistry in Children" and Dr. Paul Pickering on, "Plastic Surgery."

A friendship luncheon divided the afternoon and morning sessions. Lovely table decorations were used, the work of Eva Hastings.

A fashion show and program delighted the audience of Assistants gathered from all over the Southland. Rosemary Leedom, Harriet Beadle and Martha Stegen, in top hat and tails, did a whistle producing soft shoe dance. Of course, the fashion show delighted the ladies with it's style motif of "Spring Into Summer." Among the models were Third District members Lee Barrick, Della Peters, Theresa Lovely, Katherine Van Etten, Marie Perhall and Chesna Duis.

Credits for the success of the big conclave was due in great part to Betty Uhls, president of Southern California State Association, Mary Rowley, educational chairman, Miss Duis, arrangements chairman and Rose McIlvaine, program chairman.

Zonta Club

President Myranna Coon of Zonta Club opened her home for buffet supper and meeting and included were both members and guests. Vivian Showwalter introduced and greeted such special guests as Clara Christe, Lucille Murdock, Angenine Elmore, Vere Thamer, Lt. Phyllis McAlpin, Pearl McAlpin, Maxine Hill, Mary Noonan and Vera Clark.

The evening also marked the initiation of several new members to the service women's club. Joining were Lily Murphy (real estate), Winifred Sadler (co-owner, Riley's Cafeterias), Betty Murphy (attorney), Margaret Hoisington (school social worker) and Olive Hodges (mortgage broker).

Dr. Laurel Weibel, Zontian and on staff of Los Angeles County Hospital, gave the evening's craft talk and told of her early education and specialized surgeon's training.

Edna Roach announced Zonta's rummage sale would be held on Feb. 8 at 314 Locust.

Quota Club

Quota Club of Long Beach had the unique experience of being entertained by the husband of a member whose classification is the same as hers. Dr. Sylvia Kahlstrom is a charter member and so, when program chairman Marjorie Haston asked Dr. Sylvia to provide the January program, she brought husband, Dr. Carl Kahlstrom, into the picture.

Dr. Kahlstrom showed his beautiful color pictures of a trip made to Europe for the purpose of attending a medical meeting in Amsterdam and of enjoying a vacation with his two daughters who were attending high school in Montroux, Switzerland. Quota members followed the doctor and his family from Chicago to Newfoundland, Scotland, Denmark, Sweden and south following the Rhine to Zurich and Lake Geneva.

The musical portion of the evening was also a "family affair," for it was provided by Dr. Kahlstrom's nephew, Jim Kennedy of Azusa, accompanied by Mrs. Cloyce Bogle.

Many prominent guests enjoyed the evening with the members.

Margaret Ives B&PW

Judge Roberta Butzbach was member-speaker at the dinner and program meeting of Margaret Ives Business and Professional Women's Club, given in the Mirror Room of the Lafayette. She was introduced by program chairman Mrs. Dan Mottell, formerly Beryl Linville. Judge Butzbach discussed legislation problems dealing with equal rights for men and women. Going back to ancient history, she pointed out that in the so-called dark ages, Moorish women were accorded equal rights to hold property, public office, to be rulers of tribes and to control wealth. It was the Anglo-Saxon race which regarded women as chattels.

Judge Butzbach noted that some of the proposed legislation of the present day could mean a better break for men, giving them equal rights with women — especially in regard to custody of children.

Music by the Elderbloom Club, directed by Cornelia Poilard, completed the program.

New members introduced by membership chairman Clara Christe were Mary Noonan, (illustrator, Terminal Island Naval Base), Ruth Sharp, (WAC, stationed at Ft. MacArthur and a sister of president Maude McNeill), Opal Mayer (Milady's Beauty Shop, owner), and Angeline Elmore, supervisor, voucher examiners, U. S. Naval Shipyard).

Several guests were welcomed, including Ruth Turner, president of the B&PW Club of Battle Creek, Mich., and Zula Taber, member of the San Francisco club.

Women's Transportation Club

Towne Club was the scene of the Women's Transportation Club's January dinner meeting with president Toni Paino in charge.

Plans were set for the first half of 1955 and attendance at the annual West Coast Conference of Women's Traffic and Transportation Clubs was discussed. This latter event takes place in February in Seattle.

Mary Kay Kelly (Western Air Lines) was appointed chairman of a fund-raising project which will be announced soon.

Long Beach Nat'l B&PW

Long Beach National Business and Professional Women gathered for social meeting Monday evening at the YWCA with Lurene Spear presiding.

Membership chairman Ella Barre was in charge of the program, which formally initiated new members Florence Brown, Mary Ann Dorgan, Wilma Forstch, Gladys McPike, Ruth Shoemaker, Eunice Snyder, Pernell Van Decar and Gwen Wilson.

Special guest was Lily Anthony, chairman of the harbor section, who gave a short history of the club and presented each new member with a key ring carrying the B&PW emblem.

Margaret Derry, president of the Manuela Nieto B&PW Club, presented several members, who explained the symbols of the emblem. Taking part were Margaret Smith, Ruth Bailey, Ilene Series, Catherine Campbell and Eve Tichenor.

Merriest part of the program was provided by Happy King, handwriting analyst, who gave her impressions of characteristics shown by various members' writing.

Kathryn Campbell, accompanied by Connie McBade, sang several selections. Ella Barre was in charge of the refreshment hour, assisted by Catherine Campbell and Ruth Bailey.

Red Cross Volunteers Begin Work

Welcoming and honoring the colonels in the home gifts division of Red Cross, Mrs. A. A. Carrey, chairman of the home gifts division for the 1955 campaign, presided at a luncheon Wednesday at the Assistance League Clubhouse.

Hostess for the luncheon was Mrs. Carol Scott, president of the Assistance League. Mrs. Malcolm Epley, vice chairman of the home gifts division, opened the program with the Flag salute. Guest speakers were Virgil B. Gillespie, chairman of fund raising, and Roland R. Bach, Long Beach Red Cross chapter manager.

Mrs. Francis Heusel told of the plans for the benefit fashion show, sponsored by the Retailers Associated, which will be March 1 at 8 p. m. in the Municipal Auditorium. Lawrence Welk and his orchestra will provide music and entertainment.

Mrs. Harrison Moore, ticket chairman of the fashion show, announced that tickets were now available through the Retailers, Wilma Hastings, Charm Unlimited and Red Cross. Mrs. Orville Cole, program chairman, gave a dramatic summary of the New York stage play "Tea House of the August Moon."

Area chairmen introduced were: Mrs. L. H. Brightman, east area; Mrs. Alice Mathews, south central; Mrs. Charles Scott, north central; Mmes. John Marriner and John Hackett Jr., west side; Mrs. Carl Petersen, North Long Beach; Mrs. Don Murphy, Los Cerritos, Bixby Knolls and California Heights; Mmes. James Hayes and H. K. Baldwin, Los Altos and Lakewood Plaza; Mrs. L. H. Johnson, south Lakewood; Mrs. Ellsworth Gardiner, north Lakewood.

HONOR COLONELS

Tom Hoxie to Emcee Red Cross Style Show

Tom Hoxie has been named master of ceremonies for the Red Cross benefit fashion show to be staged in Municipal Auditorium on the night of March 1.

The show will feature Lawrence Welk and his orchestra, with more than 100 models showing spring fashions from the various local stores.

Hoxie is no stranger to the emcee role, having had more than eight years experience in the radio broadcasting field, and has staged and produced fashion shows in Portland and Salem, Ore., and for two years was master of ceremonies at war bond shows throughout Oregon and Washington.

He is advertising manager of the Columbia store in Long Beach and last year produced and emceed the March of Dimes show in Anaheim and the Miss Torrance selection contest in Torrance.

Titled "Fashions in a Musical Mood," this year's production will surpass any of the previous shows in beauty and staging. M. E. Taylor, head of the Long Beach Shrine Stagecraft, has already arranged for the settings of the four scenes. With Welk's famous band as the focal point for entertainment, the production offers a wide variety of musical and fashion moods.

Wilma Hastings will again act as commentator and reports that nearly all the Long Beach stores will participate.

Tickets will be on sale at various stores and by Red Cross volunteers.

Tom Hoxie

Party for Miss Cantoni

The home of Mrs. Paul L. Harvey, 4740 Matney Ave., was the setting for a bridal shower honoring Miss Vicki Cantoni who will marry Richard McVeigh of Hawthorne Feb. 5 in St. Barnabas Church.

Pastel green place cards with silver umbrellas marked places for guests Mrs. Marian Reynolds and Mrs. Faye McVeigh, mothers of the pair, Mmes. Sam Misita, Vern Nelson, Richard Mills, Leonard Miller, Milton Schiff, Don Thomas, Al Ellwart, Alex W. Clark, Gerald Manson, Harold Smith, Eric Nord, Howard Peterson, James Brummond, Gerald Cukras, Harry Biery, Sue Copps and Miss Marina Cantoni.

Discuss Plans

Program for the coming year will be arranged when Women's Activities Committee of Towne Club meets Wednesday in Towne Club. Luncheon will be served at 12:30 p. m.

Shoulder Bag

Change the side you carry your shoulder bag over often. Otherwise the shoulder of your coat and the pocket will wear thin.

Corduroy Suit

A corduroy suit has a long life for a schoolgirl. If it's bought in a light pastel, it can go through dyeing each winter till it winds up its life as a black suit. It's new each year and the knee and elbow fading that corduroy undergoes is concealed.

Dinner Dance Gala Affair

El Bekai Shrine Temple Greeters, one of the uniformed units of the local Shrine Temple, held its annual installation at the Towne Club. This gala dinner dance was attended by 60 members of the group, accompanied by their wives.

Installing officer, Judge Oakley K. Morton, Illustrious Potentate of El Bekai Shrine Temple, officiated. Noble G. Walter Tedford was installed as president; Dr. Raymond Bell, vice president; Chester H. Yunker, secretary-treasurer; and C. J. White, quartermaster.

science now helps you take off your fat while you eat the foods you choose

Do you like sweets, candy, cake, butter, gravy, potatoes? Have you tried one thing after another to reduce, spent dollar after dollar for pills and tablets and in spite of everything you've tried you're still too fat? Well, be as skeptical as you like, but NOW, right NOW, there's a wonderful new kind of capsule that helps you take off pounds and inches of ugly fat safely, quickly and so much easier you hardly know what's happening. You don't suffer starvation dieting hunger, you take no drugs, you don't exercise. In fact, you don't even diet one bit more than you want to, because you automatically eat less and here's why . . .

counteracts hunger

Just recently a well known scientist perfected a new tiny capsule that combines not one but ALL THE RECOGNIZED proven aids to reducing. It combines the vitamins and minerals often lost when cutting off fattening foods containing these needed vitamins and minerals. It combines the vegetable cellulose that has no calories, yet expands when it absorbs water, thereby helping give the feeling of a full contented stomach. In fact, these tiny capsules are so packed with vitamins and minerals, protein and non-caloric filling food, they actually equal and exceed many a meal.

fat goes fast

You'll be surprised at the fat you lose the first week, the inches that disappear the first month. No hunger, no strict dieting, no drugs, no exercise. And the cost is absolutely nothing unless you grow slim, more youthful looking, more active and enjoy better health.

Miss Darlene Durning

Miss Bessie Johnson

Campbell-Durning to Say Marriage Vows in May

May has been chosen as the wedding month of Miss Darlene Durning, daughter of J. Lyle Durning of Cincinnati, Ohio, and C. Wyatt Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Campbell of 5042 Coldbrook Ave., Lakewood.

Miss Durning, who received her education in the eastern city, has made her home the past year with here uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond W. Zetler, 324 Redondo Ave.

The prospective bridegroom, a graduate from Excelsior Union High School, attended City College and served the past four years in the Navy.

Pair to Wed in Arizona

The engagement of Bessie Johnson and Theodore J. Demos, son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Demos, 1726 E. 3rd St., was announced at a dinner party given recently by the bride's mother, Mrs. Harry Johnson of Phoenix, Ariz.

The pair will recite vows in June in Greek Orthodox Church, Phoenix.

The bride-elect, a graduate of Arizona University, is a teacher in Phoenix. Her fiance was graduated from University of San Francisco in 1953 with a BS degree in foreign trade.

Virginia Milliken Bride of Dr. Oliver Thomas

The wedding of Virginia Milliken, Berkeley, to Dr. Oliver Thomas, Long Beach, took place in the chapel of First Congregational Church, Berkeley, recently.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. Blanche Milliken, Sioux Falls, S. D., was given in marriage by her brother, Charles Milliken, at the double ring ceremony. She was becomingly gowned in a floor length Chantilly lace over white satin. A lace crown held her veil and she carried a bouquet of white orchids and stephanotis.

—Larsen Photo
Mrs. Oliver Thomas

They were united in marriage by the Rev. Richard Roe.

Dressed in white lace over pink taffeta ballerina gowns and carrying bouquets of pink and white carnations were Mrs. Roy Richardson, sister of the bride, matron of honor, and Miss Charlene Dodge, bridesmaid.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Loyal P. Thomas, 2435 Earl Ave., was attended by Andrew Laird of Berkeley as best man. Ushers were Dr. Peter Yee of San Jose and Samuel Barboo of Berkeley.

At the reception in Pilgrim Hall Mrs. Milliken received wearing a rose biege lace frock with sequin trimmed hat and the bridegroom's mother was attired in navy blue tulle over taffeta with matching hat.

The former Miss Milliken is a graduate of the University of South Dakota where she was a member of Pi Beta Phi. The bridegroom is a graduate of Poly High School, Stanford University and Stanford School of Medicine, where he was affiliated with Alpha Kappa Kappa, medical fraternity. He is now a second year resident in internal medicine at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in Oakland.

After a honeymoon trip to Carmel Dr. and Mrs. Thomas are residing at 85 Glen Ave., Oakland.

Mrs. Walter Case

Regional Post Bestowed on Mrs. Case

Selection of Mrs. Walter Case, president-manager of Long Beach Community Players, as representative of Region 1 of the newly organized National Association of Community Theaters, was announced this week. The region comprises Southern California and all of Arizona.

The association, comprising the largest community theaters of the nation, was organized to perpetuate the living theater and to help establish and maintain high theater standards.

As representative of Region 1, Mrs. Case automatically becomes one of the 16 members of the board of trustees of the association.

PEO Luncheon

Unaffiliated members of PEO Sisterhood are invited to a luncheon at 12:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Victor Hugo. Reservations are to be made with the hostesses, Mrs. R. V. Nicholas, 4200 Blackthorne Ave., or D. F. Atwater, 535 Manila Ave.

Petticoats

The newest of feminine petticoats features lacy tiers of black nylon tulle over bright red nylon. This is the perfect slip companion for the full-skirted black taffeta cocktail dress.

Shirt Dress

The middy shirt-dress is the latest to join the nautical-look trend in suits, coats and blouses. It's versatile too, when worn with or without a belt and scarf.

Box Suit

The elegantly tailored look is seen in a two-piece Black Watch plaid box suit, and a banker's gray fitted suit with velvet collar and cuffs.

Clan Plaid

A good schooltime wardrobe-stretcher is the reversible jumper. Of corduroy, in autumn-toned colors, the reverse side is a smart clan plaid.

New Pantaloons

The ultra-feminine girl will be interested in new pantaloon pajamas. They feature a tucked front, and the collar and cuffs are trimmed with lace embroidery.

Mister Cupid to Reign at Gala February Parties

By VIRGINIA NEWTON

Hearts, darts and Mister Cupid are the talk of the party the popular Officers Wives Club of Long Beach is planning. A cocktail hour will begin the event Wednesday at the Officers Club, Allen Center, followed by dinner and dancing. Hostesses chairman is Mrs. Leo May and her committee includes Mmes. W. A. Pace, E. G. Kidder, J. A. Kelly, E. P. Gladden.

Reservations should be called in by Tuesday, Feb. 1 to Mrs. F. A. Dolan or Mrs. R. M. Whelpley.

Remember all wives of officers attached to services afloat and ashore both active Navy and retired, are most cordially invited to join their friendly club and a special invitation is issued to all to bring their husbands and enjoy this gay spring time party.

Very recent new arrivals in the service set here are Capt. and Mrs. V. J. Neola, who are now staying at the Crawford Motel and come from the east coast. Capt. Neola will assume command shortly of the USS Mathews, AKA 96.

Happy to report that Mrs. A. B. Underwood has returned from Corona Naval Hospital and is doing nicely at her Lakewood home.

Speaking of Corona, Mrs. T. L. Wiper also has returned home from her session there and is much improved.

Club news includes the annoucement that the Nautical Club has changed its monthly luncheon date to the third Thursday of each month. And Officers Wives Club members are reminded that because of the Valentine dinner dance there'll be no February luncheon meeting.

Lt. and Mrs. Charles Price enjoyed several days skiing in the mountains recently.

Capt. and Mrs. Leslie D. Kaiser left last week for Camp Kilmore, N. J., and in March the captain will leave the states for Germany and Mrs. Kaiser will return here and await her port call to follow.

Capt. and Mrs. Leo May have as their house guest from Rome, N. Y., Mrs. Robert Evans.

Capt. and Mrs. Ralph Prado entertained at a dinner party recently, Lt. Ray Dickerson and Mr. and Mrs. Pat Daley.

Friday evening Chaplain and Mrs. Ward D. McCabe entertained a group of friends at a delightful dinner event.

Also on Friday Mrs. Phillip Ruth entertained at a most attractive luncheon party at the Apple Valley Steak House and those attending were: Mmes. E. W. Hermanson, C. A. Murray, Dell Cohn and M. Steltenkamp.

Comdr. and Mrs. R. M. Whelpley entertained at a lovely cocktail and dinner event honoring their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Larkin of Westwood and Tucson, Ariz. Among the guests were Capt. and Mrs. M. C. Heine, Comdr. and Mrs. W. A. Pace, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Dolan and Mr. and Mrs. John Ninocks.

All that big black smoke hanging low over the Amphibious ships last week wasn't the start of another "invasion"; t'was just clouds from the large economy cigars handed out by Capt. E. Z. Grabowski, who is with the staff Amphibicus 7, over the happy arrival of a baby daughter, Pamela.

On Wednesday at the Officers Club, Allen Center, the Gold Star Wives of this city will enjoy a luncheon meeting with the Service Wives Coordinating Committee. There'll be Comdr. H. Thomas Adams as guest speaker, and all service wives are invited to attend. Reservations should be phoned in as soon as possible to Mrs. Leon Foreman of 2009 Marber Ave., Lakewood.

There's an SOS out for additional volunteer workers to help at the Naval Base Nursery during the times of special luncheon and social events at the base. Those being able to offer their time should contact Mrs. Claude Ricketts, chairman of the nursery now is Mrs. Woefel.

Wedding vows, uniting in marriage the former Helen Lipsett, daughter of M/Sgt. and Mrs. Z. M. Lipsett, and Ross Latimer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Latimer Sr. of Hollywood were exchanged in the Christ Memorial Church in Studio City.

Rear Adm. and Mrs. George J. McMillin have as their house guests from Washington, D. C., Capt. and Mrs. Dwight Chandler.

Coast Guard officers' wives are reminded that they are cordially invited to attend the interesting and imortant series of lectures pertaining to Navy Relief to be given from Feb. 8 for a four-week period on each Tuesday and Thursday from 9:30 to 12:30 at Allen Center, by Miss Myrle James of Washington, D. C.

Reservations should be made as soon as possible with Mrs. Leslie E. Concannon of 3060 San Anseline Ave. Navy and Coast Guard officers' wives are welcome to use the Naval Base Nursery during these lectures. and Mrs. Roland Smoot, chairman of Volunteer Women, suggests anyone being able to volunteer time to help the nurse in the nursery at those hours should call Mrs. Claude Ricketts of this city.

PLAN VALENTINE PARTY

FASHION RED HEARTS

Setting the Valentine theme for the annual spring cocktail and dinner party by Officers Wives' Club of Long Beach are committee members, from left, Mmes. E. P. Gladden, William Pace, Leo G. May and E. J. Kidder, as they fashion red hearts to be used in decor. In place of the monthly luncheon by the club, members will entertain their husbands Wednesday beginning at 5 p. m. in Allen Center. There will be dancing during the evening.—(Staff photo.)

Audrey Share Named to Royal Dancing Academy

Audrey Share, 217 Quincy Ave., has received word from the Royal Academy of Dancing in London that she has been elected by their executive committee to be an associate member of the Royal Academy of Dancing.

The Royal Academy of Dancing was founded a number of years ago for the purpose of establishing a high standard of instruction in classical ballet as well as to foster its development. Membership in the academy is offered to those who have accomplished the syllabus of training outlined by that body. This includes rigorous examination in both the practical work as well as theoretical knowledge of this dance form.

A scholarship system for worthy students of dance is also maintained by the Royal Academy, and the Academy supplies the teachers for these pupils. Mrs. Share was the youngest scholarship teacher ever employed for this purpose. One of Mrs. Share's students was John Hart, currently leading dancer with the Sadlers Wells Ballet Company.

Miss Margot Fonteyn, of the Sadlers Wells Ballet Company is president of the Royal Academy. Queen Elizabeth is the patron of this dance body.

Cactus Club Elects Staff

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Klenke opened their home in Wilmington for a luncheon meeting of the Long Beach Cactus Club, at which time Jack Klenke was re-elected president; W. Sherwood Bell, vice president; Mrs. A. J. Aakjers, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Ray McGaughey, librarian; and Mrs. William H. Loomis, publicity.

Named to the board of directors were George Miller, R. S. McGaughey, R. H. Keck, and J. J. McIntosh. As this year marks the 25th anniversary of the founding of the club, the president read a history of its organization. Among charter members still active in the club are Jasper Kaufman, W. S. Bell, Jack Klenke, E. Nutter, and Mace Taylor Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Rush and Mrs. William H. Loomis were elected delegates to represent the club at the national convention of the Cactus and Succulent Society of America July 8, 9, 10, 11, and 12, in El Paso, Tex.

Homer Rush showed color films of Oregon's Columbia River gorge, of salmon fishing, northern California mountain scenery, Oregon caves, Carlsbad Caverns, and many views of Utah, Yosemite National Park, desert scenes of New Mexico and Arizona, concluding with close-ups of antique furnishings of Scotty's Castle in Death Valley. Mrs. Rush was narrator. The February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Loomis, 419 E. 16th St.

Talks Given on Religion

"Religion in the News" was discussed by Mrs. Lucy M. Findlay at a meeting of the Bible Dept. of Ebell Club, with Mrs. H. P. Dunlop, chairman, presiding. Mrs. Findlay spoke of the vast amount of coverage in newspapers and magazines of religious subjects, of the increase in construction of church buildings and of the recent $20,000,000 donation by John D. Rockefeller Jr. for furthering Protestant theological training, the largest single donation for this purpose on record, she pointed out. Mrs. Findlay concluded with a resume of an article by Norman Vincent Peale.

Mrs. B. Tuckley Thompson, soloist, sang two selections, with Mrs. Clifton Patterson at the piano and Mrs. Josiah S. Mertz discussed "Faith," defining it in terms of the dictionary, of outstanding theologians and laymen, and as given by the Apostle Paul. After referring to the long listings of Biblical men's accomplishments through faith, Mrs. Mertz named as large a number of accomplishments of present day engineers, scientists and inventors, completing her list with a quotation from President Eisenhower. "Faith is the mightiest force that man has at his command. It impels human beings to greatness in thought, word and deed."

In closing her talk, Mrs. Mertz gave excerpts from "Personal Security Through Faith," by Dr. Russell Ditzen, rated by critics as one of the most inspirational recent books for practical living. Mrs. Dunlop paid tribute to Mrs. Minnie M. Cleaver, chaplain, who was unable to attend.

Water Colors on Exhibition

By VERA WILLIAMS
Independent-Press-Telegram Art Editor

Long Beach art exhibitions:

Pacific Coast Club, 850 E. Ocean Blvd.: Freda Marshall and Eugene (Buck) Luff paintings.

Long Beach Branch, Los Angeles County Medical Assn., 814 Pine Ave.: Lois Cytron paintings and drawings.

Bank of Belmont Shore, E. 2nd St. and Santa Ana Ave.: Richard Arnold paintings.

Municipal Art Center, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd.: Latin-American and Brian Connelly paintings; art mart.

Lafayette Hotel, Broadway and Linden Ave.: Spectrum Club paintings.

City College Art Gallery, 4901 E. Carson St.: Contemporary prints.

Six water colors and two drawings by Lois Cytron, Long Beach artist whose work has been widely exhibited over the United States, are shown in the Long Beach branch of the Los Angeles County Medical Assn. Watercolors: "Valley," "Sea and Rocks," "San Pedro," "Reminiscence," "Fern dell," "Trees and Stream." Both drawings are labeled "My Garden."

Mrs. Cytron is a member of the California Water Color Society, Artists' Equity, Laguna Beach Art Assn. and Southern California Artists Guild. She has had one-man shows in Palos Verdes and Long Beach. Her work has taken a number of prizes.

Western scenes predominate in the exhibtion of canvases by Freda Marshall and Eugene (Buck) Luff, a quadraplegic patient in Veterans Administration Hospital, in Pacific Coast Club Gallery. Freda Marshall has given unstintingly of her time, without remuneration, to teach hospital patients and encourage them with their art work. This exhibtion includes some of the finest paintings of both artists.

Ben Messick of Long Beach is one of 25 American artists invited to enter the Grumbacher Water Color Techniques exhibition March 16-25 in Grand Central Art Galleries, New York. A preview and reception are slated for March 15 for the artists and the public.

Three years ago Messick (then also one of 25 chosen artists) entered a casein in a Grumbacher travel loan exhibit which has toured America. The State Department now has asked that the exhibit be sent abroad for a series of showings in Europe and the British Isles.

Virgil M. Bullock of Long Beach, who has recently purchased a home at White Point in San Pedro, has been elected president of the San Pedro Art Assn. Other new officers are Alice Hawkins, vice president; Wynne Jewers, treasurer; Ruth Butcher, recording secretary; Marie L. J. Hanson, corresponding secretary; Jean Acalin Wilder, historian and press chairman.

Bullock did undergraduate work in Long Beach City College, had 2½ years of duty in Korea and obtained his B. A. and masters degrees in education at USC. He teaches ceramics, stagecraft and water colors in Wilmington Junior High School.

One of Austria's most illustrious artists, Ernst Huber, will have a show through Feb. 11 in the Tower Gallery of Los Angeles City Hall.

Adding a pleasant and distinguished note to the upper corridors of the Henry E. Huntington Art Gallery, San Marino, is a recently acquired Wedgewood basalt bust of John Milton, a gift of the Friends of the Library. It is about 15 inches high, of rich blackness and is believed to have been the work of Hackwood, Joseph Wedgewood's best modeler, in the late 18th Century.

Morse-Abbe family portraits in the Pasadena Art Museum, 46 N. Los Robles Ave., Pasadena, include portraits attributed to Ralph Earl, 18th Century Connecticut painter, and Samuel F. H. Morse, famous as an inventor but an accomplished painter and first president of the National Academy of Design.

INSTITUTE NEW AUXILIARY

Joining the many auxiliaries in the city which serve as affiliates to their men's organizations is the newly formed Igola Club, ladies' auxiliary to Independent Garage Owners. At the initial meeting and installation last week at Brower's were, from left, Mabel Sutton, Terry Jurgensen, Sybil Lee, new president, and Anne Mauck. The club will be social and for welfare work in the community.—(Staff.)

Pave Road to Friendship With Unselfish Service

By ANGELO PATRI

Boys and girls, you want to be counted in on anything that goes on about you. You want to be invited to the parties, given a part in the play, asked to help with a community project, just to be recognized as the fine up and coming young person you are. Well, just what can you do that people need to have done? Better take an inventory of your talents and skills.

Can you sing before an audience? Can you talk clearly with dramatic appeal? Maybe you can cook? Drive a car? Use tools well? Perhaps you have social grace so you can act as an usher or as assistant to a hostess? Or are you quick about figures so you can be useful in an office job? Can you type? Do packages up with an air?

You have one skill you can be sure. Maybe more. Cultivate whatever gift you have and offer it freely whenever there is need for it. That is the way to enrich your personality and make friends for yourself. Service to others is really service to yourself. You see there is a time when selfishness is born of truly unselfish acts. When you give yourself without thought of reward your unselfishness becomes the best kind of self love. Try it and see what a rich reward is yours in terms of affection.

This recipe is offered to the boy or girl who is worrying about being unpopular. Stevenson said that to have a friend you must be one. How can anyone know you want to be friendly if you stand on the sidelines, your face darkened by discontent, your whole attitude, perhaps your words too, indicating your low mood?

Of course, you will be left out if you act as if you wanted to be. People will let you alone if you insist but they will be delighted to take you in if you will let down the bars of your fear and offer to lend them a hand in whatever is going on. Sharing is what breaks down barriers.

To share you must be able to do something that needs doing. That is why you need to sit down and think about what you have to offer the people you would like to know. Nothing? Can you smile? That helps. Can you offer a compliment to someone who has done something well? That will make a friend for you right then and there. And surely there is one thing you can do.

Don't look for top place. Stars rise slowly. Take the job nobody wants and make it a place of honor by doing it so well that everybody is grateful for it. Say the cleaning-up job? If you haven't a big talent take a little one and pick up the broom, organize the cleanup squad and see how popular you will be. You'll be promoted in popular favor, never fear, and your star will rise in time. But you will have to do something.

Bed-Wetting Habit in Children Is Controllable

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Case N-336: Billy Q., aged 12, is a brilliant boy in seventh grade.

"But he is rapidly becoming a nervous wreck," his worried mother explained. "He plays in the school band and is unusually talented, too. But the band has been asked to go to our state capital in two weeks.

"That will require Billy to stay away from home overnight. And he is terrified. He has tried to develop medical complaints to justify his staying home, but the band director tells him they simply must have Billy on hand.

"And the entire secret of Billy's dread is the fact he still is guilty of bed wetting, and he is fearful that if he sleeps away from home over night, his secret will be discovered. "Dr. Crane, I know seven mothers in our P-T.A. who have children with this same problem. What can a parent do to help a child in this situation?"

Enuresis (bed wetting) is normal in all babies at the beginning. But most youngsters have learned to control their urinary bladder by the time they are 3 years of age. However, a goodly percentage still carry along this infantile habit. And many students both in high school as well as college are still its victims.

Indeed, many men were discharged from military service because of this same complaint and some people never do get over it. But bed wetting simply indicates inattention to the pain sensations that bombard the brain from a full bladder.

The bed wetter is thus much like the person who ignores the ringing of the alarm clock beside his bed. Such a husband may vow that the alarm never went off, yet his wife knows that it did. Indeed, the husband may reach out and turn it off in her sight, yet deny to her that the alarm ever sounded.

This act of ignoring a certain type of stimulus can become a habit in very short order. And that's why the bed wetter ignores the pain sensations of a full bladder. The cure of bed wetting consists, first of all, in the victims working up great ire at himself and resolving to pay attention to the discomfort of his full bladder, even while asleep.

He is much like the chronic alcoholic in that neither can effect a cure by relying on other people to do the job for him.

Mamma and papa actually harm the confirmed bed wetter by getting him on his feet and walking him to the bathroom in a half sleeping state.

Bed wetters should take no fluids after 4 p. m. each day. They may profitably take a pinch of salt at supper time to help hold water in the system.

Set an alarm clock to go off about two hours after retiring and be solely responsible for listening to it. When it rings, jump out of bed and go to the bathroom. This alarm clock method may cure you in two or three nights.

Some victims have acquired control by interrupting the act of urination during the day at various points to assert the dominance of the brain over the bladder. A final and sure-fire cure is to fix up a simple electrical shocking device with dry cells and a doorbell buzzer. You can do this for a few dollars.

Send for my bulletin called "The N-Uroclast," enclosing a stamped return envelope, plus a dime. Use it as a last resort if the other methods have been tried and failed.

Students of All Nationalities Learn Art of Modeling at Exclusive French Capital School

By NADEANE WALKER

PARIS (AP)—The tall brunette walked rapidly along a line chalked on the salon floor, her legs bound with a lasso knot just above the knees. The other end of the rope was in the firm grasp of a pretty blonde instructor, and a misstep rated a sharp yank.

It's all part of the day's work at the Paris School for Mannequins, where young hopefuls are taught the mannered art of the fashion parade. "Supprimez le posterieur!" (polite French for "pull in your backside!") is the cry that rings out most frequently through the classroom.

Regina Varell, head mistress of the only model's school in the French fashion capital, is herself young and pretty enough to make an excellent mannequin. Her students are of all nationalities, for the prestige of a Paris diploma is enough to bring the ambitious from afar. Graduates are to be found in most of the world-famed French high fashion houses, as well as in the most expensive dress establishments of other capitals.

The school is small and exclusive. Three classes, each with five girls, currently make up the entire student body, and Miss Varell is the one woman faculty. But besides French students, she has at the moment American, English, Romanian, Italian, Swedish and Danish girls.

Entrance requirements are high—literally. Successful applicants must stand at least 5 feet 5½ inches in their stocking feet, besides having attractive faces," "harmonious silhouettes," and some indications of aptitude. The course runs two to three months and costs about $50 for three lessons a week.

Miss Varell does not impose a weight limit, for a little excess poundage can be slimmed off, but students must be reasonably slender. The first thing a student is asked to do is to take off her shoes. Her barefoot walk reveals the natural inclination of the body and any posture faults, which come mostly, says the head mistress, from too high or too low heels or from stiff shoes. Next to the "posterior in the air" stance, the boyish stride is the worst posture fault, she finds.

The lasso trick eventually corrects both; it limits the length of the step, and by a yank on the rope the instructor can make the mannequin throw her shoulders and upper trunk backwards to balance a protruding posterior. The student must react or fall forward.

Soon she is delicately pointing her toes and moving in a queenly glide. To make her hold up her head and arch her neck like a swan's, the school has placed giant mirrors on the walls, and the student must walk between, looking at herself in passing.

As soon as she is off the rope and has learned to carry her arms and hands loosely and naturally, Miss Varell starts loading her down with accessories — gloves, then a hand bag, then an umbrella. The mannequin learns how to carry them gracefully, and in the case of gloves and coat, how to peal them off and put them on with easy assurance while in full stride (roll the glove cuff down before putting the fingers in; take the coat by the lapels at bust height and let the shoulders slip off.)

The handbag, the apprentice mannequin learns, should be carried with the strap over the left arm midway between the wrist and elbow (or if an envelope bag, in the crook of the left elbow), to leave the right hand free for an umbrella.

The mannequin school is one branch of the Ranville Institute, founded in 1935 by Marcel Ranville to teach charm and chic to Frenchwomen of all ages. Ranville, former teacher and journalist, admits frankly that he got the idea on a trip to America, and flatteringly enough, he takes the American woman as a sort of ideal.

Miss Varell explains: "American women have no complexes. They're taught to be sure of themselves as young girls in school. But Frenchwomen are full of inferiority complex. They're afraid of criticism."

Nowadays, she says, a lot of French businessmen's wives are finding themselves lost in the social whirl, and they come to the school for help. A large charm class is made up of middle-aged and even elderly women learning, like the young mannequins, to walk gracefully, sit down, get up, and carry their accessories with ease.

Among her nuggets of wisdom: "Never sit with crossed legs if you have thick thighs" and "it pays to buy good shoes even if they're expensive." She finds some basic figure differences in American and French girls. Americans tend to wider shoulders, thinner figures, and curved-in backs; French girls are rounder and straighter.

But the Americans, she says, "are French mannequins' keenest competitors. They're so fresh, so healthy, with such natural ease. They're the fastest learners of all. Faults? Well, perhaps they're a bit too bony."

Some of her thumb-nail characterizations of nationalities: German girls — They're very thin and very gay (this at first surprised her). Finnish—Their charm is similar to a real Parisienne's. Swiss—Very pretty, but a bit flighty and not very hard workers.

This Hand Has Choice

"What is the best play for the contract of three no-trump on the accompanying hand?" asks an Atlantan correspondent. "South wins the first trick with the queen of hearts and must then decide whether to go after the clubs or the diamonds.

"In the discussion in our club, it was argued that both are roughly even-money shots and that the choice between the two plans is no more than a guess. Is this true, or is there a real choice?"

There is a real choice. There is a decided edge in favor of trying to develop the clubs.

Let's look the situation over carefully. South can count two heart tricks and four spades. He needs three tricks in the minor suits in order to make his contract. While developing his tricks he can afford to lose the lead only once, for otherwise he will be overwhelmed by the long heart suit.

If South goes after the diamonds, he needs both the king and queen in the West hand with any distribution of the diamonds; or he needs a 3-3 diamond break with the honors split. The combined chance is substantially less than an even-money shot (about 43 per cent if you want to pin it down).

If South goes after the clubs he will make two club tricks if East has the ace. This is a straight 50 per cent chance. In addition, South will make the clubs if East has J-10 alone, even though West has the ace. Therefore South has a bit more than an even chance for the clubs, but only substantially less than an even chance for the diamonds.

There is one further argument. If South goes after the diamonds and succeeds, he will make only nine tricks. If he goes after the clubs and succeeds, the whole suit may come in, and he will make 11 tricks. All other things being equal, it can't hurt to play for the extra tricks.

Why Grow Old?

New Interests Exercise Mind

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

January's "Today's Health" carries an interesting article by Sen. Thomas C. Desmond concerning aging. Sen. Desmond is chairman of the New York State joint legislative committee on problems of aging.

He says, "Aging is involuntary. To slow it down we must seek to stimulate older people to continue growing by learning new skills and hobbies, developing new interests, engaging in new tasks, meeting new people and accepting new ideas.

"Monotony, complacence and boredom, are sure signs that nothing new is being tried to challenge and stimulate the mind. Every day is like every other. Because decay starts where growth leaves off, growth must be continued."

The truth of this has been demonstrated over and over again. Doctors know that their offices are visited often by patients who are physically sound but who actually feel ill because they are bored. Our emotions affect the chemistry of our bodies, our heart beat, our circulation and our respiration.

It has been noted in the Day Centers of New York City that older people visit the clinics for treatment of their ailments much less often after they have become interested in the activities of the Day Centers and have made some new friends.

Many men and women have remained alive much longer than seemed possible medically because they wanted to finish a job or were tied to life by a strong positive emotion. Happiness and eager interest are wonderfully fine medicines!

After the first flush of early youth has passed, and the challenge of getting a foothold on the ladder of success in career or parenthood has been met and conquered, folks are likely to begin decaying rather than growing.

Age consciousness is one of the main reasons for this. Do not be bounded by it. Exercise your mind and your emotions with new interests, new activities and new friends. Age has nothing to do with the adventure you can find in daily living. It depends on your attitude, your determination to keep growing.

Susan's Window Shopping

LATEST DRESSED-UP casual by Edith Martin is this two-piece ensemble cut from Fabrex's washable acrilan and rayon. It is styled with convertible collar and permanently pleated skirt. An added interest is the yoke insert which is a shade lighter than the dress. Available in half-sizes from $12\frac{1}{2}$ to $22\frac{1}{2}$. Colors are charcoal, moss green, purple, navy and teal. Priced around $25.

(For the name of the store showing this style, phone Susan at 50-5951, Ext. 226, from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Monday through Friday, or write Susan, Dept. A, Independent-Press-Telegram, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.)

Child Care

Child, 2, Eats Only Desserts

By BEULAH FRANCE, R. N.

(Q) "Henri started feeding himself and ate everything put on his plate. But now, at $2\frac{1}{2}$, he won't eat anything but sweets and desserts unless he's fed by me. Even then he refuses to swallow. He only weighs 24 pounds and I am desperate! What shall I do?—MRS. J. M.

(A) Mrs. J. M. also tells of bribing, praising, scolding, spoon-feeding and leaving the youngster alone. "Nothing worked."

Your six-page letter, Mrs. M., is replete with resentment, but not one word was written about the state of Henri's health, physical, mental or emotional.

Bony structure plays a part in what a child's weight should be. So do height, heredity, amount of activity and condition of bowels. You mention none of these. Nor do you describe disposition, sleep, habits nor conditions which brought about the complete reversal of his routine of feeding himself and eating everything.

Something happened. No child suddenly loses a hearty appetite without any reason. You do not speak of having consulted a physician, yet no one else could give you as good advice as a doctor who sees and studies your child and gets all the details you omitted from your letter. Surely you must know that.

If you haven't discussed this problem thoroughly with the physician who is in charge of Henri's health and welfare, do so immediately. Give him all the facts. Hold back nothing; even doctors aren't mind readers.

There are very helpful, inexpensive leaflets and books about all types of eating and feeding troubles. I am sending you a list of these telling titles, authors, publishers so you may send for whatever literature you believe would best suit your needs. All readers are invited to request this information and literature, and doubtless many will. For despite the fact that enjoyment of eating is natural and normal, hundreds of parents write every week to Child Care complaining about eating problems in infants or older boys and girls.

Ask Beulah France to help you with your child care problems. Write her in care of the Press-Telegram, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope for her reply.

'Hard Times' Dance Given

Officers' Club on the Long Beach Air Force Base was the recent setting for a "hard times" costume dance hosted by base officers. The unique affair was enjoyed by a capacity attendance of appreciative members and guests.

Setting the pace for a fun packed evening, members of the ladies' club presented a series of skits, climaxed by a hilarious takeoff of a Spike Jones number.

With Col. Thomas Wiper in the role of persuasive auctioneer, box lunches prepared by members of the ladies' club were auctioned, proceeds going to the March of Dimes. Further swelling the funds were proceeds from an apple and pencil sale, conducted in true sidewalk huckster style by Mrs. Gus Kratt, who originated the clever idea.

Costumes ran the gamut from gunny sack and barefoot creations to discard finery of the "depression" vintage. In an evening dress of dilapidated elegance, Mrs. Edward Garett received an award for the most unique costume for ladies. Honors among masculine contenders were won by Capt. Leslie Keiser as an improverished laborer.

Installation

Marie Maxon was installed as president of J. U. G. Rebekah Club at a recent meeting in the home of June Shepard. Serving with her will be Ivy Bradshaw, vice president; Belle Cunningham, secretary; Minnie Olive, treasurer; Leah Washburn, historian. Among the club's many philanthropic projects was the presentation of an invalid walker to the IOOF Home in Saratoga.

Mrs. Ormond Johnson

Leave Today for Conclave

Mrs. Ormond T. Johnson of 5903 Olive Ave. will leave today by plane for Chicago, Ill., where she will participate in the annual board meeting of the National Association of Girl Scout executives.

Mrs. Johnson, executive director of the Long Beach area council of Girl Scouts, is starting the second year of her presidency of Section 12-south of the national organization. This includes California, Arizona and Nevada. The national association is a voluntary organization dedicated to professional development through the comparison of skills and techniques. Presidents of the 12 sections and committee chairmen will attend the board meeting.

Court Adds to Roster

Mrs. Evelyn Weckerle of San Francisco, state regent of the Catholic Daughters of America, attended a recent banquet and initiation of new members into Court St. Ann 763, CDA, held in Ebell Clubhouse.

Other guests included Mrs. Manila Caprino of Los Angeles, vice state regent, Mrs. Elsie Clancy of Alameda, state secretary; Miss Agnes Gual, Mrs. Wilma Lewis, Mrs. Josephine Bombardier and Mrs. Eva Messerschmitt, past state regents. Mrs. Marie Morgan, grand regent, initiated new members, and Mrs. Adeline Hinesberger, district deputy of Court St. Ann, assisted. Guests speaker was Rev. Roland Zimmerman, chaplain of the court.

A reception followed the ceremony. Mrs. Isabella Lopolito and Mrs. Eva Gandy presided at the tea table. Mrs. Betty Jacobsen was general chairman.

Relief Corps

Women's Relief Corp 93 will meet Wednesday at 12:30 p. m. in Veterans Memorial Bldg. Mary McDonald will preside.

Del Mar Rebekahs

Del Mar Rebekah Lodge 275 will be host to lodges of District 84 at a school of instruction Tuesday at 8 p. m. in Machinists Hall. Dorothea Niles Martin, president of Rebekah Assembly, will be instructoress. Aline Ewers, District 84 deputy president, will be general chairman.

Molly Mayfield

Desires Business Career

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I am a widow with two young children. The first few months after my husband was gone I completely withdrew into myself. I went through the mechanics of living, taking care of my children, talking, sleeping and eating. Then one fine morning I awoke to the fact that the world was going right along without me.

VACATIONERS

On a Caribbean holiday are Mr. and Mrs. Lee S. Mytinger of Rolling Hills. They are pictured in Jamaica, British West Indies. This is their first visit to the resort.

I gave myself a good pep talk: You've had 10 happy years, now get out and make something of yourself for the boys' sake. As yet I've failed to do this. I haven't known just how.

Until four years ago I had worked for a business office, typing, filing, contract work and billing for 10 years. I love detail and responsibility and feel I have initiative. So don't you think there is a chance for me in the business world?

Of course, right now I could only work mornings or afternoons, but as the boys grew older I could handle a full-time job. I would simply love to start with some concern and really learn the business and stick with it. I guess what I need (I know it's what I want) is a Pygmalion to train me and I would really try to do him credit.

Does this sound silly to you? After all, I'm only 28. Life should not be at a standstill for me yet. And there isn't much danger of remarriage with two children. Not with all the unattached blondes out front there!

What do you think of my idea, Mrs. Mayfield? Or am I slightly nuts for thinking there is still a career open for me? —HOPEFUL.

DEAR HOPEFUL:

Let's put it this way. If you DIDN'T think there was a career open for you you'd be slightly nuts.

Twenty-eight is a simply swell age to start in business! Having the two children to worry about might at first seem a slight handicap, but actually not. They give you an added incentive to forge ahead and make them proud of you. Furthermore, the more successful you are, the more advantages your boys can have.

It seems to me, though, that you shouldn't limit yourself to a part-time job. If you're ambitious and really bent on going ahead then I'd start now and take on a full-time setup. Other women with children have — and they've managed very well.

It seems to me extremely important for the children for you to get started on that career as soon and as fully as possible.

Maybe a good way to start would be to go to business school and sort of get "caught up" again. And then, contacts come through these schools which might lead to your Pygmalion. Also, it would pay you to list yourself with various employment agencies.

At any rate, don't sit back and wait for this job to land in your lap. Go out and GET IT!—M. M.

Attorney Harry Albert

Chef of the Week

Attorney Albert Holds Court Over Lamb Stew

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

He's known as the Beau Brummell of the courts—and as the man of a thousand ties, with handkerchiefs to match each one. He's always turned-out as a man should be—like he's been put together casually—not added up on purpose. Today's nominee for Chef of the Week, Atty. Harry Albert, keeps his suit case packed ready for instant flight. Its contents will do him for one day or seven.

Starting from Brooklyn, N. Y., Albert moved to Worcester, Mass., as a youngster. Receiving his A. B. degree at Clark University there, he also took graduate work in education and psychology.

World War I had become an actuality, and he spent considerable time atop a horse in the U. S. Cavalry. With the advent of the Armistice, he put his education to practical use, and became principal of the high school at Walpole, N. H.

In 1923 the urge to go west overtook him, and Albert came to California. His actual arrival in Long Beach was quite by accident - he got lost! He liked what he saw, however, so parked his car at the corner of First and Pine, the site of the Board of Education. He just plain walked in and applied for a teaching job. The late William Logan Stephens was at that time superintendent of schools, and he, too, liked what he saw. With two teaching positions open, and 2,000 applications on file, it was Albert who was given the job. He spent the next six years teaching mathematics in the Long Beach high schools.

Never satisfied with standing still, Albert began the study of law. In 1929 he was graduated from Southwestern School of Law. He then served Long Beach for a year as Deputy District Attorney for Los Angeles County, a position he held for six years. He has practiced in Long Beach since 1936.

President of the Los Angeles County Civil Service Commission, which has under its jurisdiction some 12,000 county employes, Albert is also a past commander of the Arthur Peterson Post, a past governor of the Royal Order of Moose, and past president of the Long Beach Masonic Club and of the B'nai B'rith.

His kindnesses to the less fortunate are many and always anonymous. Politically he's very decided, yet has been known to cast his vote for the man and not the party. As to hobbies, it's a toss-up between reading and cooking. Today, he has lamb stew in the making.

LAMB STEW

Use shoulder of lamb cut in small pieces. Brown in butter with chopped onion. Cover with boiling water; let simmer 2 hours or until tender: ½ hour before done, add small potatoes, carrots and small white onions. Fifteen minutes before done, add fresh pears cut in halves or quarters.

Show Slides of Navajo Indian Area

A colorful trip through the Navajo and Hopi area was enjoyed by means of slides shown by Mrs. Howard Rollins at a meeting of the travel dept. of Ebell Club, with Mrs. Walter Hunsaker, chairman, presiding. The slides were taken by Mr. and Mrs. Rollins when on a recent trip.

Beautiful sunsets, unusual rock formations, the Totem Pole, 1003 feet high which casts a shadow of 30 miles, the Ear of Wind, and the Triple Arch were a few of the scenic interests of the trip, part of which, Mrs. Rollins related, had been traveled on 100 miles of dirt road and another 200 miles of "Make Your Own Road."

"One of the 11 Hopi villages, Old Oraibi, is reputed to be the oldest American village of continuous habitation," Mrs. Rollins said, adding that at Walpi, the Hopi tribe holds its annual ceremonial snake dance. "It is not an uncommon sight," she said, "for tourists to recognize old clothing on the Hopi and Navajo children; clothing which probably had come in boxes from Long Beach."

In the Navajo land a large mission with a cluster of modern buildings is maintained by the Presbyterian churches. In this group of buildings, the slides revealed, are a high school and a church constructed entirely by Indian labor. While most of the Navajo country is arid, and wells must be drilled for water, in Canyon de Chelly, water can be obtained by natives digging only a few feet, due to an underground stream. Mrs. Rollins told the group. Dallas, a picturesque Navajo, the son of the chief medicine man of the tribe, acted as guide to the Rollins party which included their young daughter, Candace.

Another highlight of the trip was the annual fair of the Navajos at Window Rock, Ariz., with natives in tribal costumes. Slides of the locale of "Spin a Silver Dollar," which depicted the needs and the customs of the first Americans were shown.

Music: Challenge to Our Children

Young people need something to do that is both interesting and demanding of their talents. For this family at least, a quartet has filled the bill

by MRS. RALPH R. GUENTHER

FORT WORTH, TEX.

OUR MUSICAL family is a source of continual amusement and, perhaps, amazement to our neighbors.

The fun, they tell me, starts shortly before 8 a.m. when they see my husband Ralph dashing off to an early class in the music department at Texas Christian University. He's usually juggling a bulging briefcase, a flute, a music stand and a baton.

Next comes Randie Jean, 12, whose bicycle has been especially adapted for carrying a violin on one side of the back wheel and a briefcase on the other. Last—but not least, by any means—is Sally Jane, 8. She trudges off to school on foot with a satchel slung over her shoulder, a 'cello in one hand and her lunch in the other.

Fortunately for all concerned, my main job is keeping house, and music is only my hobby. My instrument is the piano.

Few of our neighbors who enjoy watching the Guenther family struggle out with its instruments and, I think, too few Americans generally realize what music can mean to a home. In fact, when Sally first got her 'cello and was proudly boasting about it to friends at school, one of them asked, "Is it a pet?"

Of course, music came naturally in our family since Ralph is a professional musician. I was his accompanist before we were married, and playing together has been deeply rewarding to both of us.

But we had no guarantee that our children would like music. However, family singing and private piano lessons preceded their instrumental training in the public schools. So it was our family's greatest thrill when, at last, we could all play together in a quartet of instruments that blend well.

Now we are learning the secret of why music has always been so great and so much a part of life in Europe. There small groups have always gathered to play with and listen to each other.

Such an activity is possible with a little time and practice. Like most children, our girls have to be reminded to practice. We've tried to make it easier by starting the day early enough so that they can practice a half-hour before school. That leaves afternoons free for play or Campfire Girl activities.

Music is a discipline as well as a joy. We feel that young people today, more than ever, need to have something to do that is both interesting and demanding of their talents and abilities. For us, at least, the family quartet has filled the bill. ■

MOST FAMILIES have a formula for happiness—a special activity, a favorite place, a saying handed down through generations, an unusual philosophy of life. What is yours? PARADE will pay $100 for each story of a family used in Parade Families. They must be true accounts from your own experience, submitted in typewritten form along with a photograph of the family. LONDON.

WHEN BRITAIN'S 6-year-old Prince Charles and 4-year-old Princess Anne appear in public without fanfare, that's news.

It happened the other morning when the two youngsters and their governess (convoyed by an inconspicuous detective) walked through Green Park from Buckingham Palace to Clarence House to visit "Grandma"—the Queen Mother.

The pictures on this page are the first ever made of the royal children walking in a public park. The photographer reports that just three strollers turned to look.

"British reserve," he observes.

BACK HOME, children and governess follow detective into side entrance of Palace.

A Royal Favorite

CELEBRATES 100 YEARS IN AMERICA

Over a century ago, European nobility enjoyed a famous beer, brewed in a royal castle at Sigmaringen by the renowned master brewer . . . Frederick Miller. His superb beer was of such quality that it was acclaimed throughout the continent. With generations of tradition and skill, and a heritage for perfection in brewing behind him, Frederick Miller brought this royal beer to America in 1855 . . . and made it available to a nation where everyone wanted something finer.

Today . . . as through the past 100 years . . . Miller High Life still embodies the age old formula, the craftsmanship and art, the fine ingredients, that made it a royal favorite, and has made it an American favorite among those who appreciate good taste and enjoy good living.

Those Bomb Tests —and Your Health

Does radioactive "fall-out" actually threaten America? Here are the revealing facts behind one of the hottest arguments in years

ATOMIC CLOUD soars lazily over Yucca Flat, Nev., watched by newsmen covering this recent "shot."

Next month, in a sandy, desolate wasteland just 70 miles from the glittering hoopla they call Las Vegas, Nev., another chapter will be written in the incredible story of atomic weapons.

Once again, the word has gone out from Washington to the people of southern Nevada and Utah: the Atomic Energy Commission is preparing a test site at lonely, barren Yucca Flat. Once again, the AEC has announced simply, "atomic devices" will be tried out.

And once again, millions of Americans feel that familiar sensation—half excitement, half dread—that first appeared when A-bombs shattered Nagasaki and Hiroshima in World War II.

Those bombings, so far, represent the only wartime use of atomic energy. But they followed the dramatic test at Alamogordo, N. M. (July 16, 1945), which, in the nine years since, has multiplied into a series of tests involving not only A-bombs but H-bombs, not only the U. S. but Britain and Russia.

By now, these tests have blown up one of the biggest controversies of our times. Do atom and hydrogen bomb tests "poison the air"? Do they endanger your health today and possibly the health of future generations? Or do they not?

At the core of the controversy is a new, menacing word: "fall-out." To understand the arguments, we need to understand this word.

When a bomb explodes, two kinds of atomic radiation occur. The first is immediate. Deadly gamma rays and neutrons are thrust out by the exploding atoms, almost instantly killing or maiming everything within their range. The second is slower. It is "residual" radiation, a weaker form which gradually loses radioactive "sock." This latter form is contained in fall-out.

by ROBERT P. GOLDMAN

When a bomb is detonated on or near the ground, or in water, particles of dust, dirt, debris and tiny fragments of the bomb itself are blown sky-high. These particles, all radioactive, comprise the actual fall-out—for what goes up must come down. The big particles, containing "hotter" doses of radioactivity, come down first, relatively close to ground zero. The smaller ones may not come down for hours, days or even weeks.

These tiny particles are picked up by air currents at altitudes of 30,000 feet or more and are carried away in broken, shifting, invisible "clouds." Ultimately, the particles may fall on the ground, on buildings, on crops, in water—anywhere in the world. As the fall-out is swept by winds farther and farther from ground zero, its radioactive punch becomes weaker and weaker.

Thus, last year, when 23 Japanese fishermen were injured (and one later died) following U. S. hydrogen-bomb tests in the Pacific, the captain of their ship said it "rained rice powder." He and his ship were close to ground zero (close for an H-bomb, that is; they were about 80 miles away). The rice powder was really "hot" fall-out.

On that occasion U. S. air-weather personnel on an island well over 100 miles from ground zero saw "flecks" coming out of the sky. Those, too, were fall-out—but in this case not hot enough to do any harm.

To measure the "strength" of fall-out, the U. S. Weather Bureau operates collecting stations all over the country. Whenever and wherever the tiny particles come down, they are collected on sticky paper "platforms" and in small suction machines, then carefully checked for radioactivity. In addition—although it has not been admitted officially—there are U. S. planes in other parts of the world which, outfitted with special devices, collect air samples for similar analysis.

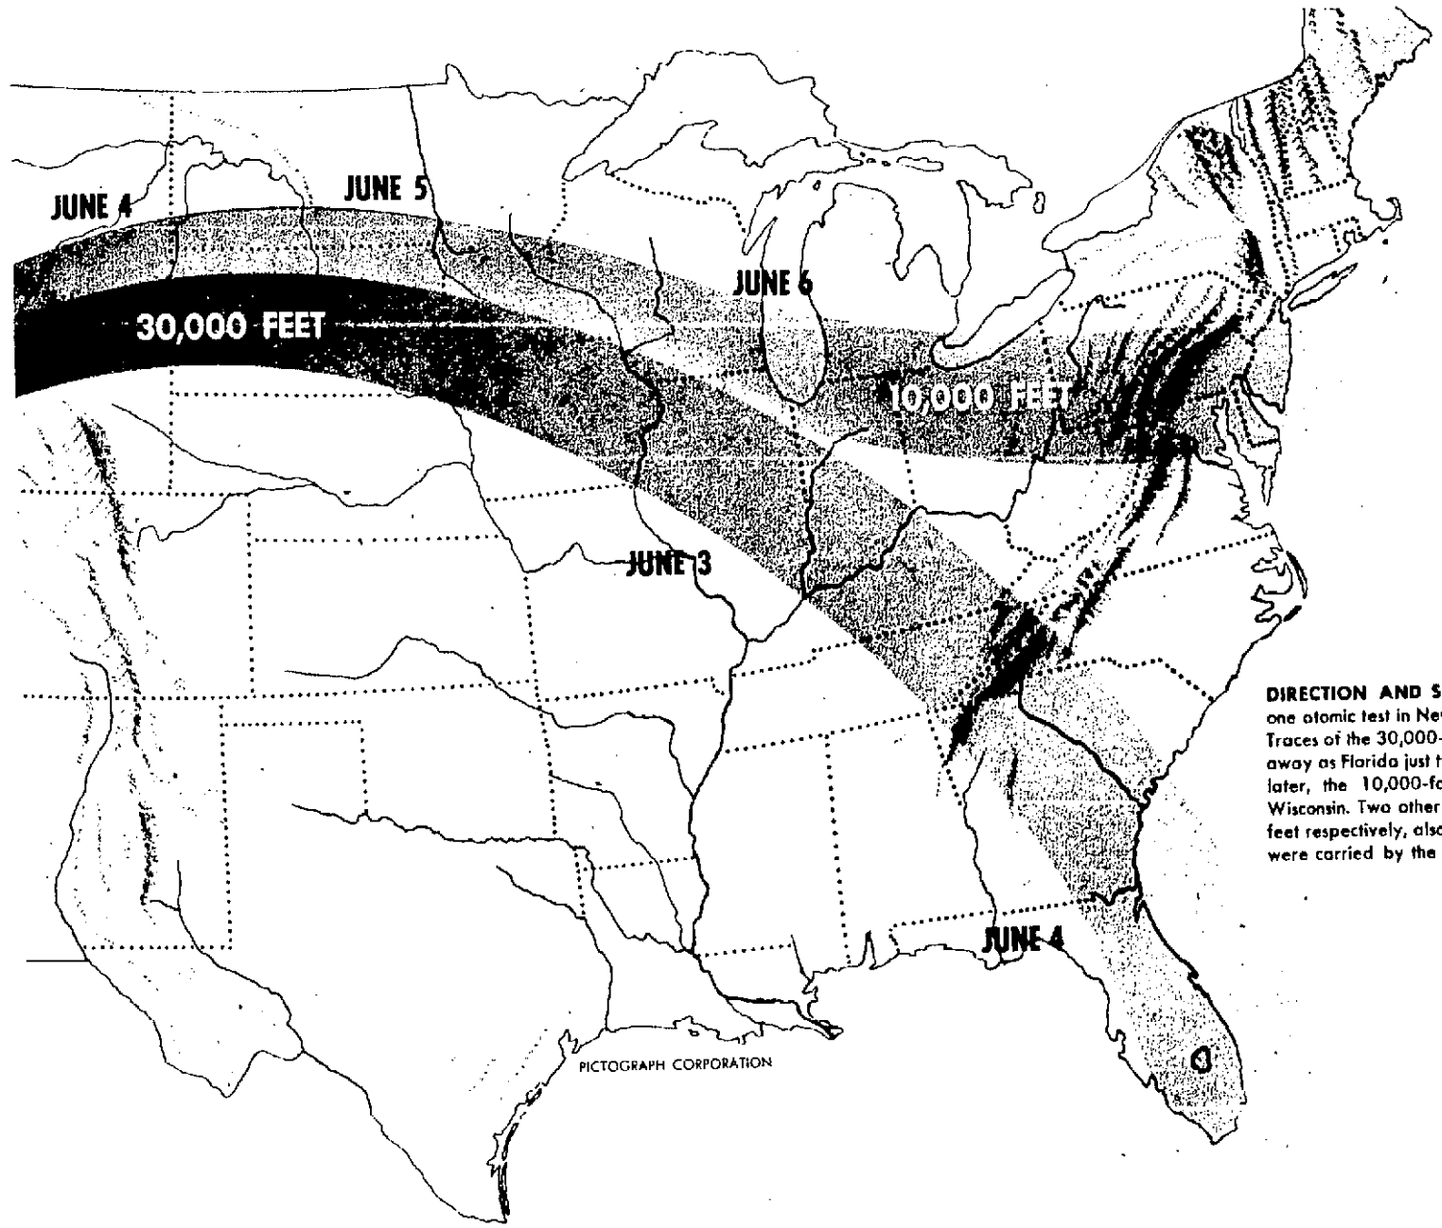

This collecting network provides basic information on bomb tests everywhere on earth. It tells our scientists what fall-out goes where, and how powerful it is. It is only one of many measures designed to safeguard humanity before, during and after tests.

Yet the public remains apprehensive. And even some scientists have called for a halt to all U.S. bomb testing. They take the stand that the tests are a threat to public health and safety.

When that Japanese fisherman died last September, an educator in Belfast, Northern Ireland, called it "a symbol of science getting out of hand." A few score such experiments would leave "unpredictable death" drifting about the world, he said.

Recently a Midwestern university expert told PARADE: "It would be highly desirable to ban tests by international agreement."

On the other hand, a second expert says: "I am not overly concerned about the danger to health now or in the future." A third adds: "There is no danger now or in the future from tests."

DIRECTION AND SPEED of fall-out "clouds" after one atomic test in Nevada are indicated on this map. Traces of the 30,000-foot cloud were detected as far away as Florida just two days after the test; two days later, the 10,000-foot cloud had gotten only to Wisconsin. Two other clouds, at 24,000 and 35,000 feet respectively, also were tracked from this test. All were carried by the prevailing westerly air currents.

In the light of this disagreement, PARADE has gone to high Government authorities directly concerned with A-bomb and H-bomb tests. They cannot be identified, or even quoted directly. However, they have supplied a revealing "fall-out calendar" that tells where and when those tiny particles have made headlines - and what lay behind the headlines. Here it is:

What Actually Happened?

Summer, 1945: About a dozen cattle, 15 to 20 miles from ground zero at Alamogordo, N. M., were hit by fall-out. They suffered minor burns. Hair on their backs and flanks fell out. Gradually the hair grew back in patches. Cows in the herd since have had calves; all were born normal and healthy.

Spring, 1952: Another herd of cattle was affected, this time 15 to 20 miles from the test site at Mercury, Nev. Some animals suffered minor burns; hair fell out, later grew back. Scientists at the test site barbecued one of the steers, ate the meat just to prove it was not contaminated.

Summer, 1952: A broken "cloud" containing radioactive material passed over Chicago just as it started raining. What was later called "radioactive rain" fell in and around city. The strength of radioactive fall-out was extremely slight. The average person could have drunk only that rainwater for a lifetime without chance of injury.

Spring, 1953: About 20 horses, 8 to 10 miles from ground zero in Nevada, suffered minor burns. All recovered. A widespread rumor that sheep deaths in southern Utah resulted from fall-out was investigated by health experts. They found no evidence to justify the rumor.

Spring, 1953: Another "radioactive rainfall" occurred, this time over Troy, N. Y. It resulted from the same atmospheric conditions as the Chicago rainfall. Again, you could drink only Troy rainwater for a lifetime without a chance of harm.

About the same time, hail falling in the Washington, D. C., area was found to contain minute amounts of radioactive material. It, too, was harmless.

Spring, 1954: The second U. S. H-bomb test was held at Bikini Atoll in the Southwest Pacific. More than 100 inhabitants of three of the Marshall Islands, up to 300 miles from ground zero, were injured. A total of 74 received burns on head and neck; these now are healed. A total of 39 lost the hair on their heads; the hair of all 39 has grown back—in the same color and texture. Two of the Marshallese women have had normal babies. A third baby is reported on the way.

At the same time, 31 U. S. weathermen disregarded safety precautions and exposed themselves to H-bomb fall-out. (Had it been an A-bomb, the danger of injury at this distance normally would have been nil.) Later, exhaustive examination of the men revealed no illness. What were thought to be minor body burns in a few cases soon cleared up.

The 23 Japanese fishermen, also exposed, suffered burns. Later, all were reported seriously injured internally. Twenty-two were released from a Tokyo hospital on "home leave" last Christmas. The 23rd man died. This developed into a touchy diplomatic problem for America. But it can now be revealed that some U. S. experts seriously doubt that this man died from effects of the bomb. He is said to have contracted hepatitis (a liver disorder) not necessarily associated with radioactive injury.

In addition, U. S. authorities secretly question the Japanese policy of "dumping" the tuna caught by the 23 fishermen and other catches shortly after the bomb was detonated. Indications are that tuna from the first catch—probably—and fish from later catches —definitely—were edible. They had, in other words, not been severely damaged by radioactivity.

The West Coast Wasn't Hurt

U. S. experts further tested fish just outside the Bikini and nearby Eniwetok lagoons and found them safe to eat. Thorough inspection of tuna reaching the West Coast, shortly afterward, revealed no trace of radiation injury.

Some days after this Bikini test, hydrogen-bomb fall-out also appeared on the U. S. West Coast, some 5,000 miles from ground zero. It was about 500 to 1,000 times weaker than radioactive levels which produce injury. A few days later, fall-out was detected on the East Coast. It was even less potent.

As for the fall-out from British and Soviet tests which has reached this country, the levels of radioactivity have been far too low to cause injury.

Do bomb tests now spell danger for future generations?

"HOT" FALL-OUT is analyzed in this elaborate machine operated by an AEC technician. Rolls of 100 fall-out samples are fed into the machine, "counted" and recorded.

This, then, is the "box score" on the immediate, fall-out effect of the bomb tests over the past decade. In only one, last year's hydrogen-bomb blast, were people injured. A man died, but his death may not have been caused by H-bomb fall-out. Animals have been injured in U. S. atom tests.

Fall-out has, at times, caused rumors of all sorts to spread through the country like wildfire. But the fact is that fall-out has not affected the general health of the American people. It does not cause epidemics of known diseases, nor does it cause new, different or mysterious diseases. Fall-out does not make you feel one way or another. It does not change the course of illness as it occurs in everyday living.

Even Close Up, You're Safe

This is true whether you live in Maine, California or close to ground zero at the Nevada proving grounds. Even the people in communities closest to the proving grounds have been exposed to radiation levels far less than 1/100 of the dose considered dangerous. The water they drink and the air they breathe have not been contaminated by test fall-out.

The tragedy of the Pacific tests last year will not be duplicated in Nevada for many reasons—among them the fact that atomic, not hydrogen, devices are shot off at Yucca Flat. Atomic bombs have only a fraction of the blast "yield" of hydrogen bombs. The AEC and our defense experts know exactly what that A-bomb yield is.

With the H-bomb, this was not true. The blast yield was twice what our scientists had estimated it would be. So was the "danger zone." The latter, before the test, was calculated at 200 miles east and west and 100 miles north and south. After the blast, the zone was placed at 335 miles east and west and 150 miles north and south. But the bombs shot off in Nevada simply are not big and powerful enough to produce that effect.

There remains one major question in the minds of many of our top scientists. This involves the body characteristics passed on via the genes from one generation to another, and the mutations or changes in those characteristics.

Some scientists feel that bomb tests today may be condemning future generations perhaps 200, 500 or 1,000 years from now. They offer this explanation: The earth's surface has a low "background" of radiation caused by cosmic rays from outer space. World-wide bomb tests are gradually raising this natural background level.

This raised level, in turn, could destroy the ability of our genes to be reproduced in a normal manner. Such inability in the basic body cells could, in future generations, lead to the birth of freakish, abnormal babies.

That is the contention. It is highly controversial. A prominent California scientist, supporting it, has said: "There is no possible escape from the conclusion that the bombs already exploded will ultimately result in the production of numerous defective individuals—if the human species itself survives for many generations.

"And every new bomb exploded, since its radioactive products are widely dispersed over the earth, will result in an increase in this ultimate harvest of defective individuals. Some such defectives would be present if the bombs had never been invented; the point is that the number due to the bombs will be added to this irreducible minimum."

He added, "It may well be that the possible gains [from bomb tests] are worth the calculated risk. But it must be remembered that the risk is one to which the entire human race, present and future, is being subjected."

That scientist's attitude has been echoed in this country and in Great Britain, where one authority recently declared that there is a grave danger to the future of mankind from test explosions "if they are not controlled in time."

Policy-Makers Aren't Worried

These are strong statements. However, Government and other scientists responsible for making U. S. policy regarding bomb tests simply do not "buy" them.

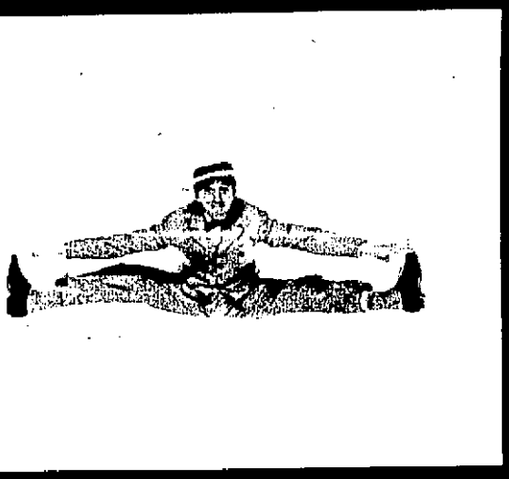

Present Government policy is predicated on the conviction that bomb tests as they are being conducted represent no threat to public welfare now or in the future. Says one high official: "There is no cause for alarm, either on the basis of past tests or on the basis of any conceivable testing program—American, British or Russian."

Long before any dangerous level of air contamination was reached, he adds, "U. S. officials would know about it and would know what to do about it.

All this, of course, applies to peacetime bomb testing. If war comes, all bets on the danger of fall-out are off. ■

BOBO + SID = BOBO OLSON

His own skill and his manager's fatherly shrewdness blend to make this middleweight a unique champion

by LLOYD SHEARER

SAN FRANCISCO.

CARL "BOBO" OLSON, middleweight champion of the world and current Fighter of the Year, is a bright light in the gloom of today's boxing picture.

A solid citizen of this town, happily married, financially solvent and the law-abiding father of four children, Bobo at 26 is that rare title-holder whose good name has never been tainted by scandal, high jinks or underworld overtones.

Since boxers, for the most part, reflect the standards of their managers, this is as much a tribute to Sid Flaherty as it is to the Honolulu-born Olson. A tall, shrewd, untalkative bachelor of 41, Flaherty is not only Bobo's manager but his closest friend. These two have formed the most successful prize-fighting firm now operating and a true father-and-son relationship.

For example, the $64,000 purse that Olson netted for defending his title against Pierre Langlois last month went directly into a trust fund set up by Flaherty. "The trouble with many fighters," explains the latter, who controls a stable of 32 of them, "is that they make large sums of money in short periods of time. Practically all of them started out in life as poor kids. They spent extravagantly, and in the later years they're broke.

"It's not going to happen to Bobo or any of my other boys. When Bobo retires he's going to have enough to live on. That is, if he continues to listen."

To date, Olson has listened. When he fought Kid Gavilan in Chicago last year, Flaherty flashed unobtrusive hand signals all through the bout. Bobo won. Of the Langlois fight, Olson says, "I knew what the Frenchman had by the second round. Maybe I could've put him away before the 11th. But Sid said, 'Take it easy.' And what Sid says is good enough for me."

In managing the middleweight champ, Flaherty's basic objective is the acquisition of money. Therefore the team of Olson & Flaherty is prepared to take on all comers. Since Bobo won the world title by beating Randy Turpin in New York on October 21, 1953, he has fought seven times, increasing the assets of his trust fund by an estimated $225,000.

How long can Bobo last at this pace? Flaherty's estimate is another 10 to 14 years. Olson laconically answers, "I don't know." His small, dark-haired wife says, "I'm sure Bobo will retire before he's 30. He doesn't like to fight any more. After all, he's been fighting most of his life."

Life for Carl Elmer Olson began in Honolulu in July, 1928. His wife-to-be, Helen Cavaco, who accompanied him to Pauoa grade school, remembers that "Bobo was a tough, skinny kid who had three sisters and a father who was a detective. Today Bobo's father is a Treasury agent and has a Japanese wife who loves my husband as a son. But his real mother is Annie Olson, a beautiful Portuguese woman. Her father was a giant—6 feet 8. I think it's from that side of the family Bobo inherited his great strength."

When Bobo—the name is the result of

When Olson retires from the ring, he'll become a TV crooner—maybe

an older sister's inability to pronounce "brother"—was 12, his parents were separated. The boy quit school and went to work on a friend's farm. There he milked cows, rode horses—"For a while I thought I'd become a jockey, but I grew up too fast"—and developed muscles.

He was only 13 when the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor. By then he had reached his full height, 5 feet 10½, and for several years hardly a week passed without some serviceman calling him a "draft dodger."

On every such occasion Bobo and his fists went to work. "One time," his wife recalls, "we were riding on a trolley in Honolulu—Bobo was only 14, I think. A soldier called him a punk. At the next stop Bobo invited the soldier to step outside. Bobo threw one punch. That was the end of the fight."

A steady diet of this gave Olson a wary eye, lightning-fast reaction time, an affinity for the boxing ring. He began hanging around Honolulu gyms. In one of these he was noticed by Sgt. Sid Flaherty, then staging fights for Special Services.

"What I liked most about the kid," Sid says now, "was his eye. He had the wonderful alertness to see a punch coming his way and to avoid it. After watching him for a month, I told him if he ever came to San Francisco to look me up."

Bobo turned professional when he was 16. A year later he and Helen were married.

"We were as poor as church mice," Mrs. Olson recalls. "We received only one wedding present—a blanket from Bobo's sister.

"I think Bobo remembers our poverty more than anything. When we first came to San Francisco—I guess it was 1945—he fought 10 bouts at $25 a fight. You won't find those fights in the record books. But for us it was fight or starve. I remember now how downhearted we were when the California Boxing Commission learned that Bobo was under 18 and told him to go home."

Back in Honolulu, Olson agreed to be managed by a local dairyman, Herbert Campos, who soon shipped him to the Philippines and Australia. Bobo did well; when he lost to Dave Sands, the British middleweight champion, in Sydney, it was only his second defeat in 47 fights. Seven months later he lasted 12 rounds against Sugar Ray Robinson, the world champion, in Philadelphia.

"Maybe Robinson was the better fighter," Mrs. Olson offers. "I'm not saying he wasn't. A year later he took a 15-round decision from Bobo. But in that first fight I don't think Bobo would ever have been knocked out if he'd had enough to eat. The truth is that before the fight we didn't have enough money for food.

"After the fight we realized that something was wrong. Bobo had been fighting for six years and winning practically all of the time. Still we had no money. That's when Bobo decided to join up with Sid Flaherty."

When Olson signed with Flaherty in 1951—the agreement calls for Sid to get one-third of Bobo's take—the balding middleweight placed himself under the aegis of a sentimental, sagacious and scrupulously honest boxing manager.

His Fighters Also Work

Flaherty runs his string of fighters on the unusual premise that their welfare comes first. He keeps a seven-room apartment near the Golden Gate where various of his battlers live with him. He makes each—including Bobo—join local 860 of the teamsters union here. When they're not training or fighting he wants them to work at a gainful occupation.

When Sid got hold of Olson, Bobo was far from a polished fighter. He had a tendency to slap with his left and wait for his opponent to come to him. Flaherty turned him into the finest infighter and pacer in the game. Olson, in the words of one expert, "fights when he has to and never retreats by stepping back. While he doesn't possess a terrific knockout punch, he's a superb boxer who can wear any man down with his telling body blows and his great stamina."

Outside the ring he suffers from an inferiority complex motivated in part by his Hawaiian accent and his limited formal education. He dislikes being interviewed without Flaherty's permission for fear he'll say the wrong thing. "I don't talk so good," he explains. "Gotta get an education. Maybe it's too late for me. But not for my kids. They're gonna get an education. Every one of 'em."

Olson has three boys and a girl, on whom he lavishes all the affection denied him as a child. After the Turpin fight, an attempt was made to kidnap his oldest boy, Carl, Jr., then 6. The Olsons quickly began searching the San Francisco suburbs for a new home. A few months ago they found a three-bedroom ranch house for $47,000 in Hillsborough, sometimes called the "millionaires' community."

In this house Olson wrestles on the floor with his offspring, sleeps 10 hours a day and, when not in training, enjoys the life of a 26-year-old nouveau riche. He owns a 1954 Cadillac, two horses and, of course, an extensive collection of trophies. He gives handsomely to charity.

His wife, a 100-pound brunette of Portuguese extraction, lights candles for him at the local Catholic church before each fight—alone.

"Before each bout," she explains, "Bobo moves into town and sleeps at Sid Flaherty's apartment. When I get to see him, the fight's all over, and he's very relaxed.

"He comes home and plays with the children and sings with our friends. In fact, Bobo's got a very good voice. When he retires he'll still be a young man. That's why I keep telling him to take singing lessons. He's much better than most of the crooners on television. And he very easily could become a well-known singer."

Does Bobo think so too? Questioned, the middleweight champion of the world breaks into a small, diffident smile.

"You shouldn't listen to Helen," he says. "She's loved me since I was a kid." ■

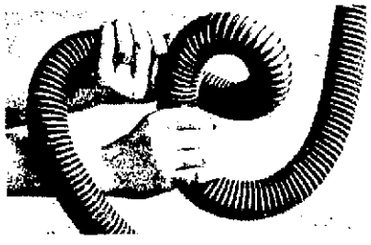

FAMILY MAN Bobo poses with most of his brood: Vincent (on his lap), Brenda, Mrs. Olson, Arthur. Missing when this picture was taken: oldest son Carl, Jr.

Chocolate Swirl Cake

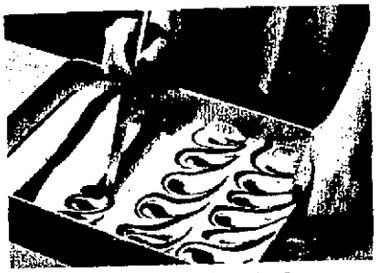

THE CAKE-EATERS in your family will love this new, beautiful version of four-layer marble cake. It's so easy—made by the dish-saving one-bowl method (as is the frosting) and with only one pan to wash! Serve it to climax this family dinner: grapefruit juice; meat loaf with tomato sauce; baked potatoes and Brussels sprouts; shredded raw carrot and raisin salad.

CHOCOLATE SWIRL CAKE

- 1¾ cups sifted cake flour
- 1½ cups sugar
- 2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
- ¼ teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ cup shortening (at room temperature)
- 1 cup evaporated milk, undiluted
- 2 eggs
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 squares unsweetened chocolate

Measure sifted flour, sugar, baking powder, soda and salt into flour sifter. Place shortening in mixing bowl; stir to soften. Sift in dry ingredients. Add ⅔ cup milk; mix until all flour is dampened. Beat 2 minutes at low speed of electric mixer, or 300 vigorous strokes by hand. Add eggs, remaining ¼ cup milk and vanilla. Beat 1 minute longer in mixer or 150 strokes by hand. Melt chocolate. Pour batter into greased and floured 13" x 9" x 2" pan. Pour melted chocolate in four even rows across batter. With a table knife, cut through batter along these rows, in continuous circles, to make swirled pattern. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 35 to 40 minutes, or until done. Cool. Cut cake in half crosswise; split each half, making four layers. Spread Fluffy Brandy Filling between layers and around sides. Chill well before serving.

FLUFFY BRANDY FILLING: Combine in small mixing bowl: 1½ cups vegetable shortening, 1 cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup water, 1 teaspoon brandy flavoring and two eggs. Beat at high speed of electric beater (or with sturdy egg beater) about 10 minutes, or until smooth and fluffy.

POUR melted chocolate in four rows across the batter. Cut through the batter in continuous circles, for swirls.

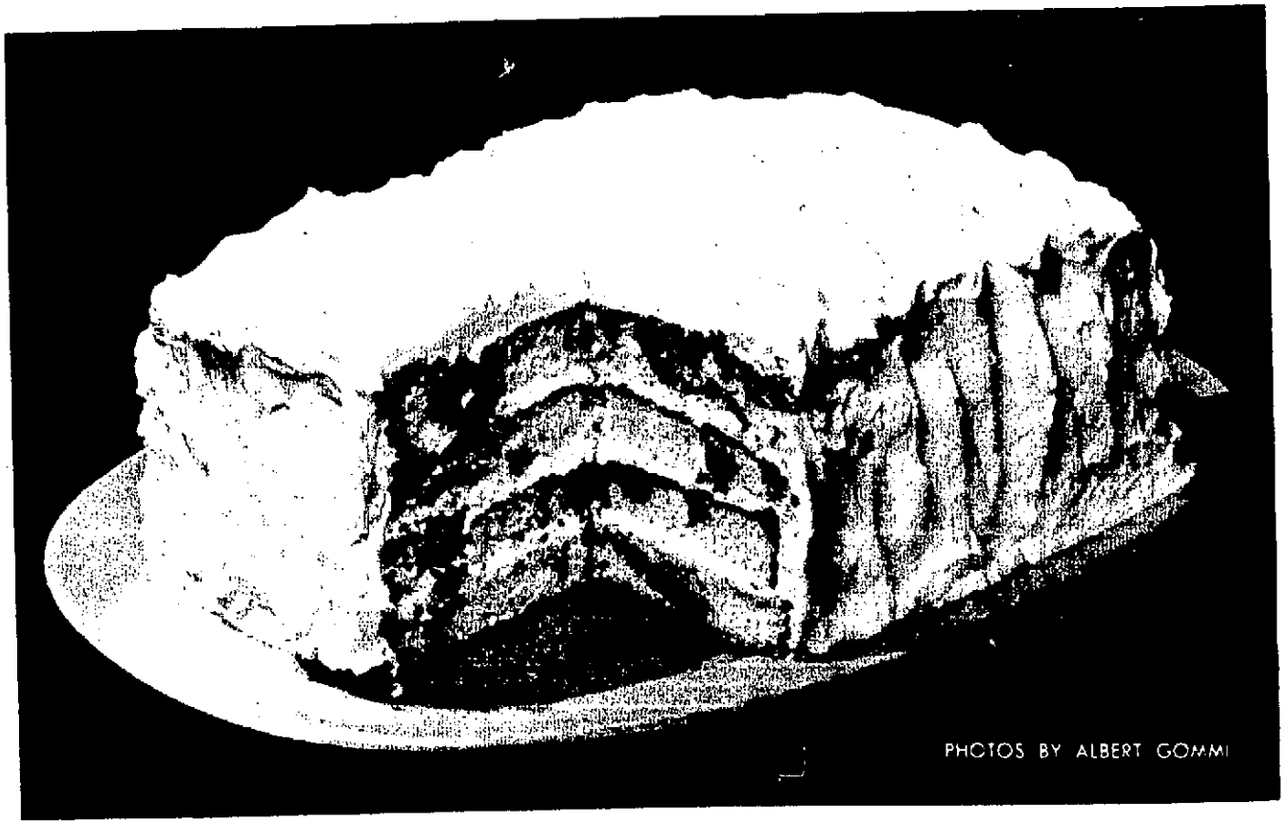

AFTER the cake has cooled, cut the loaf in half crosswise. Then carefully split each half, to make four layers.

SPREAD Fluffy Brandy Filling between the layers, saving enough for the top and sides. Serve cake cut in squares.

KITCHEN HINT:

When melting chocolate, place the squares in aluminum foil in top of double boiler; set over hot water. When melted, lift out in foil. No pan to wash!

Goddard has no grades, no exams, no athletics.

PLAINFIELD, VT.

NO IVY TWINES along the weather-beaten walls of Goddard College near here. The omission is significant; it shows just how far Goddard – enrollment 70, faculty 20 – has gone in its break with the time-honored traditions of the academic world. For Goddard, housed in a cluster of farm buildings–the president's office is in a silo–has none of the things people associate with campus life.

There are no grades, no credits, no "required" subjects, no lectures, no exams. There are no fraternities, no athletics. There are no diplomas.

A great many people–including educators –might add: no education, either. But Goddardites tell you passionately that theirs is the ideal U.S. college. For proof they point to the recommendations of the President's Commission on Higher Education. Only Goddard, they claim, jibes with the report in every particular. They quote at random:

Small enrollment: Goddard's planned maximum is 250.

Small classes: Goddard's largest is 20, its average 10 or less.

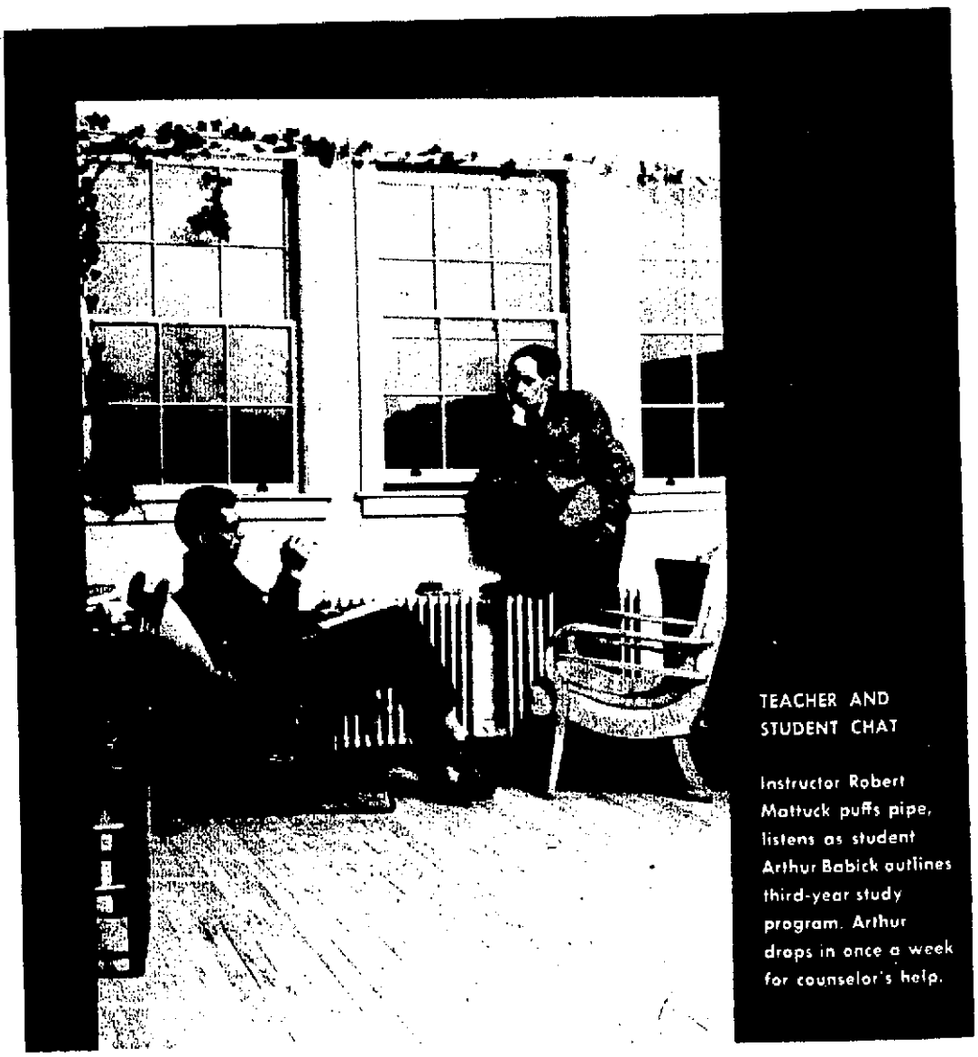

Individual curricula: Each student's program is drawn up according to his own needs and interests from a selection of liberal-arts, education and social-affairs courses.

Art courses: Goddard offers painting, sculpture, drama, music, dance.

Work as part of education: Every student has daily chores. There is a two-month off-campus work term.

Study in non-Western cultures: Goddard specializes in India, China, the Far East.

Courses related to a changing world: Each course is revamped annually in line with new developments.

TEACHER AND STUDENT CHAT

by ED KIESTER

College in the U.S.

Yet this Vermont school claims to be America's 'ideal college'

Democratic government: Students and faculty have equal footing in a weekly "town meeting" that governs the campus and was responsible, among other things, for abolishing diplomas, athletics, fraternities.

What's behind this odd college that refuses to act like a college? Two things: a man and an idea. The man is Dr. Royce S. Pitkin, an ex-prep school headmaster and disciple of "progressive education" pundit John Dewey, who came to withering Goddard Seminary and Junior College in 1935. After a series of talks with other educators and prominent Vermonters, he shook the school to its century-old foundations by substituting a whole new approach to education.

Out went the old traditions as more hindrance than help. "Take exams," says Dr. Pitkin. "A student doesn't study to learn, but to make a grade. What he really studies is not the subject, but the teacher." By Pitkin standards, learning is an individual—and full-time—process, not to be determined by number of credits or classes.

In came three new traditions: individual attention, democracy, informality. The casual air is important in Goddard's scheme of things. Instructors are called by first names. (Dr. Pitkin is "Tim.") Faculty and students eat together, work together in the kitchen, study together, play together.

Once a coed bringing her parents for their first tour met Instructor Robert Mattuck along the road. Mattuck, bare-chested and puffing a pipe, wore his college running shorts. "This is Bob, my literature teacher," said the girl. Mattuck nodded, puffed and jogged away. The parents began to see why Plainfield refers to "those loonies on the hill."

DAILY CHORE for these girls is sweeping, waxing dining-hall floor. "Town meeting" assigns tasks like this to each student.

SQUARE DANCING, students and faculty take time out together for recreation. Other Goddard pastimes: singing, winter sports.

Goddard means democracy, responsibility, independence— and a good deal of hard work

TRANSPLANTED to a class, this old-shoe air keeps the atmosphere friendly, relaxed and conducive to study. "Discussion groups" meet under a tree or around a fireplace. The student says what he pleases. The instructor doesn't lecture; he simply keeps the discussion in order.

Once a week, each student sits down with his faculty counselor to knit together loose ends of his study and to map out his future program. The talks are intended to help a student over the rough spots; but often they veer off into personal problems or just plain bull sessions.

At the heart of Goddard's system is the relationship of student to community—the college community and the community at large. The "town meeting" is part of this training. Arguments are hot and frequent; a perennial bone of contention is whether pets should be outlawed on campus. So far, the pro-dog faction has managed to beat off all "attacks on our personal freedom."

Relations with the outside world are learned in the winter work term. During these two months, the student takes a job, preferably away from home; both he and his employer appraise his work afterwards. This, Dr. Pitkin thinks, teaches him independence and responsibility. And during his last semester he often eliminates classes entirely, chooses a research project that keeps him off campus most of the time.

What kind of students go to Goddard? An average group—"some geniuses, some dullards," says one faculty member. Students come mostly from the East, although one second-year student now is from Idaho. A limiting factor: Goddard's cost, at $1,100 a year tuition and $650 board, is high. But scholarships are many. Students themselves gather maple sirup, sell it, use the proceeds for the scholarship fund. Unendowed Goddard still winds up about $50,000 in the red each year, must scratch around for donations from friends.

Are students more serious at Goddard? They seem to be; but devotion to learning is "the thing to do" at Goddard, just as joining a fraternity might be at another school. Recreation is home-grown; square dancing, group singing and winter sports are favorites. Often, students will drive to Dartmouth, 30 miles away, for a movie or a lecture.

But students enjoy their college days at Goddard; by worldly standards, most graduates have achieved success. Of course, Goddard does not measure success by conventional yardsticks. In its view, one gets a degree but does not graduate; learning goes on forever. ■

AUTHOR OF "AMY VANDERBILT'S COMPLETE BOOK OF ETIQUETTE"

When a Wedding Is on the Calendar

Q. In sending out an announcement of a secret wedding, is it necessary to state where the marriage was performed?—R.F., Akron, O.

A. Yes, it is necessary to state the place in which the marriage was performed, and the date. If it did not take place in a church, just the town or city and the date, including the year, are used.

Q. One of the girls in our shop was recently married and we men gave gifts that were beyond our means. It isn't that we regret this, but we now have another problem. The girl is now in her own home and has invited us to visit her. Is it proper for us to go empty-handed?—W.S.H., Portland, Me.

A. It is never actually necessary to take a "house gift." I am sure that your friend is already very appreciative of your generosity.

Q. My nephew is getting married and I am not to be in the wedding party, although I will be a guest. My daughter insists that I should not wear my best black dress—that black isn't proper at a wedding. I'd like to wear it and brighten it with a little pink. Would this be all right?—C.C.A., Chicago, Ill.

A. Yes, you may wear the dress you describe and brightening it with pink would make it more festive. It is only the women who are in the wedding party who may not wear black.

Q. Would it be all right for me to wear a suit to a five o'clock wedding?—S.J.G., Harrisburg, Pa.

A. Yes, if it is a dressy one—say, in silk taffeta, or even one of the new, very dressy, decorated wools, cut like silk. Wear dressy shoes and hat. A tailored suit would be inappropriate.

Q. I understand that when an engagement is announced, the boy's parents call as soon as possible upon the parents of the girl. But my case is very difficult. My daughter, who is announcing her engagement, lives with me and I am divorced from her father, who lives in the same town. We are fairly friendly. Would it be expected of us to receive this call together at my home? Should they ignore my daughter's father, or call separately?—D.W.W., Columbus, Ga.

A. Receive their call without your former husband. They may call on your daughter's father separately if he is still very much part of all of your lives. If they do call, they call jointly, or the boy's father may call alone on your former husband and perhaps, during the call, arrange for him to come and meet the new family.

Q. I am a young widow about to marry a divorced man. Should I formally announce my engagement? Do I send out announcements of the marriage, and if so, how does my name appear on them? Do my parents issue them?—Mrs. N.S.W., Sarasota, Fla.

A. Some widows do formally announce their engagements. But as you are marrying a divorced man, I would prefer to see you tell your friends informally that you are going to remarry. The marriage can be announced either by your parents or by you jointly with your new husband. In the first case, your name (e.g. Jane Ann Smith or Jane Brown Smith) appears without "Mrs."; in the second, you use your former husband's name (Mrs. John Warren Smith).

MOTHER and daughter: Mrs. Koford and Terry go shopping for a new hat.

Don't Raise Your Girl to Be an Actress

Terry Moore's mother says frankly, 'It isn't worth the heartache'

● In the past 50 years Hollywood has done more to perpetuate the Cinderella legend than any other force on earth. The girl who achieves screen stardom, we've been told, automatically wins fame, fortune and lasting happiness. This is not so.

In their personal lives, film actresses tend to fare rather badly. Those who place a career above everything else usually marry weak men. Those who are husbandless have great trouble finding worthy marriageable men. There are many happy couples in movieland—but, with a few exceptions, every top-flight Hollywood actress has been divorced at least once.

Terry Moore's mother, Mrs. Luella Koford, has been in and around Hollywood for almost 30 years. She knows all the angles. In this article she diplomatically skips over one or two, such as her daughter's brief, unhappy marriage to football star Glenn Davis; but her writing is truthful and refreshing.

by LUELLA KOFORD

HOLLYWOOD.

Several weeks ago I was sitting in the balcony of a television theater. The young man beside me leaned over and said, "What a pig they've got on this show!"

I waited.

"Terry Moore. She's also a lush," he added. "A few years ago I saw her carried out of a bar in New Orleans."

I waited no longer. "I'm Terry Moore's mother," I said flatly. "We're Mormons, and Terry doesn't drink or smoke. What's more, she's never been in New Orleans in her life."

"Oh, yes, she has. I saw her—"

"Look," I exploded. "We're going backstage. I want you to tell that to Terry face-to-face!"

We went—and Mr. Know-it-all promptly backed water. "I'd like to apologize," he muttered. "It wasn't Terry. It was some other actress . . ."

That's incident No. 1. Multiply it a thousand times while I tell you about incident No. 2.

To entertain our servicemen in Korea during 1953, Terry gave up her Christmas holidays and a good deal of money. In Korea she appeared in a one-piece ermine bathing suit. Back in the States, some of the columnists denounced her for being "risqué." Some even implied that she had jeopardized the morals of our soldiers.

The servicemen didn't think that. When Terry returned to the States, hundreds of them wrote her thank-you notes. "If we're old enough to fight and die for our country," said a typical one, "then we're old enough to see a pretty girl in a bathing suit."

Incident No. 3 occurred this past December 16. The Air Forces asked Terry if she would take her own troupe overseas and spend Christmas entertaining our boys in Iceland and Scotland. Terry agreed.

She gave up everything—Christmas shopping, TV appearances, interviews, parties, dates—to choose a good group. She interviewed dozens of girls, some of whom she turned down. One of the latter, a dancer, then announced that she had been fired from an overseas entertainment unit because Terry Moore objected to her costume—a bare-midriff, split-skirt affair.

The fact is that Terry turned this girl down because she was Cuban—and thus would have had trouble getting a re-entry permit into the U.S. Yet in several quarters they called Terry a jealous cat!

Life in a Goldfish Bowl

These three incidents are pinpoints in a pattern. The girl who becomes a successful actress leads her private life in public. Thereafter, she is fair game. No matter how innocent her behavior, she must be prepared to defend her every word and movement.

Such a "goldfish" existence obviously is abnormal. If Terry had to do it all over again, she would never become an actress.

But, you say, if she feels that way, why did she get into film work in the first place?

To begin with, it was accidental and circumstantial. It was not a case of psychological projection. I never have been a frustrated actress. I have never tried to re-live my life through my daughter.

What happened was that we moved to Glendale, a suburb of Los Angeles, because Terry in her young days was asthmatic. Glendale's climate was good for her. One of our neighbors, Ann Jensen, took a liking to Terry, so I gave her a picture of my little girl.

Unbeknownst to us, Ann sent the photo to the Wells Casting Directory. It was printed in their catalogue of players and seen by Owen MacLean of 20th Century-Fox. He phoned and asked me to bring Terry to the studio.

Terry was then 11, and like most mothers I was filled with pride and joy. I took her to the studio, and she was signed at $150 a week. That's how we got on the roller coaster.

Terry was at the impressionable age. Working with movie stars became the biggest thing in her life. From 20th she moved to Eagle-Lion, then to Columbia, then to RKO. Now she's back to 20th, where she recently finished Daddy Long Legs. It takes only a few seconds to mention the names of these studios, but Terry already has spent 15 years of her youth working at them.

Of course, being a screen actress has its rewards. Terry has learned to ride, speak, carry herself. She's traveled widely, and she's met fascinating people. Perhaps too fascinating.

'Big Names' Can Be Dazzling

Take a young girl and let her be directed by Elia Kazan, act with Burt Lancaster and Shirley Booth, have story conferences with Darryl Zanuck. Let her earn $1,000 a week. Then have her meet an average young man. Terry is sweet and relatively unspoiled, but subconsciously she'll compare the average young man to all the handsome, talented, exciting fellows she has worked with for 15 years.

Look at the girls who spent their early formative years in films: Shirley Temple, Deanna Durbin, Judy Garland. There are many others besides Terry. Their first marriages went to pot, because these girls did not have normal backgrounds to choose their husbands wisely.

Moreover, many worthwhile young men are afraid to date actresses. My Terry likes to stay home or go to movies. She has never been a night-club lizard. But the eligible young bachelor doesn't know that. He judges an actress by the buildup that's preceded her.

A girl—particularly a rising young actress—has got to go out, has got to be seen. So what happens? The actress falls back on fellows she's worked with or the handful of playboys who constantly circulate in Hollywood. We all become a part of what we tolerate. Sooner or later an attraction springs up, and there's the elopement to Las Vegas.

There is a lot of heartbreak in being an actress. I remember the time Terry was tested for a role in True to Life with Dick Powell and Mary Martin. One assistant director said she was too young, another that she was too old. She went through still tests, wardrobe tests, makeup tests. They dressed her with a wig, without a wig. She had to dye her hair, then re-dye it. In the end she didn't get the part. Instead she got one day's work playing a bit.

The night after she'd played her bit she came home, buried her head in my lap and sobbed. I tried to comfort her. "Darling," I said, "you must remember—adversity builds character." I'll never forget her answer: "Oh, Mama, I'm tired of building character!"

But Terry was in her teens by then, and despite all the heartache she refused to quit. Today, acting is the only skill she knows. She works at it with determination and persistence; but let the right man come along, and she will chuck it all for a home and a family. At least, she says she will.

The tragedy in being a young actress is that the career virus gets such an early start. As it grows, it becomes increasingly difficult to stamp out. Sometimes it becomes impossible. ■

DIANNE FOSTER KNOWS!

There's No Easy Way to Stardom

By George Lait

DIANNE FOSTER, a brown-eyed, chestnut-haired beauty from Canada, is one Hollywood actress who insists that there is no easy way to stardom. Sheer hard work and the will to succeed are her recipe for film success. Not provocatively perching on a drugstore stool or wearing a Bikini bathing suit.

Costarring with Glenn Ford, Barbara Stanwyck and Edward G. Robinson in Columbia's recently released CinemaScope-Technicolor western, "The Violent Men," Dianne has climbed to the top without having to resort to the antics of many Hollywood cuties involving "cheesecake" poses and other off-beat shenanigans to attract attention.

Now under a long-term contract at Columbia, Dianne got her start doing minor roles on Canadian radio programs. Her ability and ambition finally earned her a reputation as Canada's best radio actress and eventually landed her a role on the London stage in Agatha Christie's "The Hollow."

Dianne's film career began, first in England, then in Hollywood, and with a solid background.

Hollywood pays, and pays well, for this type of background, because it is not attained easily. Beauty alone won't give it to you. Publicity alone won't give it to you. Only one thing will—work, and a lot of it, she acknowledges.

Dianne made her Hollywood debut co-starring with Charlton Heston and Lizabeth Scott in "Bad for Each Other." She next played the feminine lead opposite Mickey Rooney in "Drive a Crooked Road," and then starred opposite Robert Francis in Bryan Foy's "The Bamboo Prison."

A co-starring role followed in Columbia's "Three Hours to Kill," Technicolor Western with Dana Andrews and Donna Reed, and a loan-out to Hecht-Lancaster for the feminine lead opposite Burt Lancaster in "The Kentuckian," which was just shot on location in Kentucky.

UNLIKE some thespians who come to this country, Dianne is grateful to Hollywood. She says she thanks American film producers for "untyping" her. With Hollywood frequently accused of typing its actors, this is an unusual statement.

In every British film, Dianne says, she was cast as the "other woman."

Since her arrival in this country, Dianne has played nothing but sympathetic roles, such as her part in "The Violent Men," in which she plays the daughter of Barbara Stanwyck and Edward G. Robinson.

But Miss Foster is ready to exercise a woman's prerogatives and change her mind about her screen roles. She confesses that actually she's tired of being "untyped" now and wants to be "retyped." She feels there's more of a challenge in portraying a woman who is slightly evil.

She made her acting debut at the age of 13 in the role of Maggie, in Sir James M. Barrie's "What Every Woman Knows." She started her commercial radio career at the age of 14.

For a time, Dianne relinquished acting and worked as a fashion and photographic model. She likes sports, particularly swimming and the outdoors.

In looking over photographs taken during her modeling career, it is easy to say that figures don't lie. Any time Miss Foster chooses to join the "cheesecake" brigade, Hollywood's most highly touted "oomph" and "IT" girls have a definite competitor!

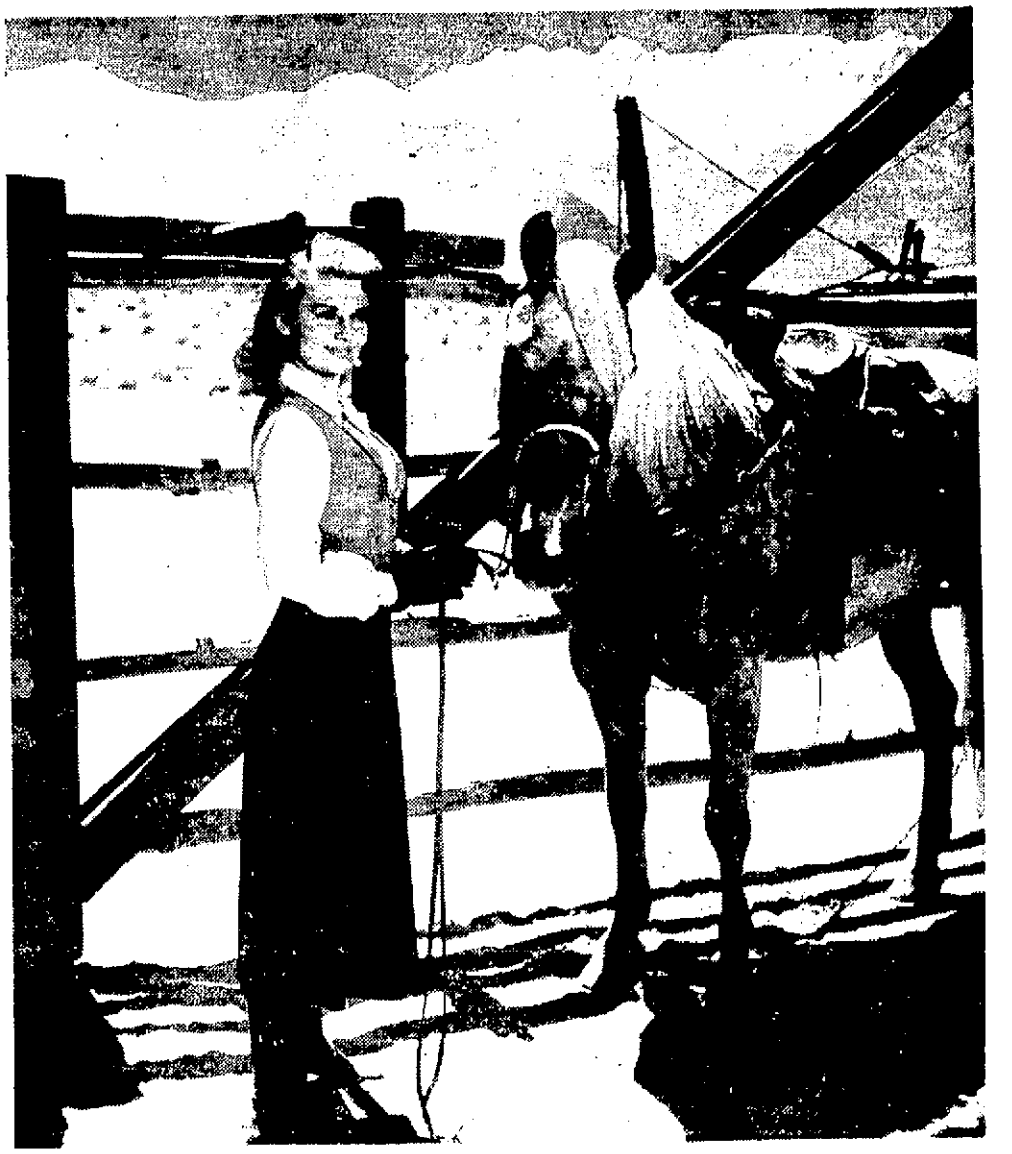

Dianne says it's nice to be able to count on hidden talents —if necessary. But she's glad she didn't capitalize on her figure first.

Up-the-ladder Girl . . . that's Dianne Foster, who has climbed to stardom with sheer ability and hard work.

Mermaid . . . Dianne climbed to the top without having to join a "cheesecake brigade." She likes to swim!

Outdoor girl. . . . Her co-starring role in Columbia's forthcoming Technicolor western, "The Violent Men," fits right in with her love for the outdoor life.

Three Little Pigs Scout Ocean's Depths

By Jim Phelan

THREE little guinea pigs named Cousteau, Tailliez and Dumas recently successfully underwent a test that may help open vast territories of the undersea world to man.

They survived the equivalent of a deep sea dive to 1,010 feet —almost twice as far as any man has ventured into the watery depths.

The three animals made the "dive" without even getting their paws wet. They made it in a specially built pressure chamber on a patio overlooking Mandeville Canyon in West Los Angeles, miles from the ocean.

The experiment was performed by Parry Bivens, an engineer and veteran aqua-lung diver, and his fiancee, Zale Parry, who holds the women's record for the deepest aqua-lung dive. The experiment was one of a series that Bivens is making, preparatory to an attempt this summer to establish a new world record for an aqua-lung dive. The present record is 350 feet, set last fall by John Clark-Samazan 'off Catalina Island. Bivens intends to try for 400 feet.

The enormous water pressure of such a depth presents dangerous obstacles to the dive, and Bivens used the three little pigs as a sort of scouting party to test the reactions of living creatures to the great squeeze of the lightless deep.

Even in heavy full-dress diving suits, the deepest man has gone down into the sea is less than 600 feet (not counting Bathyspheres and similar equipment). Every 33 feet that he descends his body takes on an additional 15 pounds of pressure per square inch. As the pressure mounts, it forces gas into the blood stream, the way carbonation dissolves gas into soda water. Too much nitrogen in the blood produces a drunken sensation in the diver, and too much oxygen can poison him. A diver who goes below 200 feet on compressed air risks death. Deeper dives are possible on a mixture of helium and oxygen, which helps the diver avoid nitrogen drunkenness. But the use of helium requires a long and complicated decompression process. There is little data available on this subject for dives below 400 feet. The Navy has tested animals in a simulated 750-foot dive, but Bivens' guinea pigs were true pioneers, venturing into a region of pressure where no man or animal ever had gone.

BIVENS HIMSELF built the pressure chamber in which the animals were tested. It contained a thick plexiglass porthole in the top, through which he could observe the actions of the animals during the test.

"We put them under 450 pounds per square inch," said Bivens. "That's the equivalent of a 1,010-foot dive. We 'sent them down' in just 10 minutes. To avoid oxygen poisoning I cut down the mixture until they were getting only 6 per cent oxygen, compared with 21 per cent in normal air."

The tricky part of the test was getting the diving pigs "back up" after they reached the simulated 1,010 feet. It took them five hours to "surface." Bivens eased off the pressure slowly to enable the animals to decompress without getting gas bubbles in their blood—the cause of the dreaded diving "bends." Bivens kept elaborate charts on the timing of this decompression process and the different oxygen proportions used at various pressures, and he is making the data available to the Navy.

Bivens named his guinea pigs for those French pioneers in deep diving—J. Y. Cousteau, Phillipe Tailliez and Frederick Dumas. Dumas held the record for the deepest free dive—306 feet—for seven years until Samazen set the new mark.

How did the diving guinea pigs take their historic trip to 1,010 feet "under the sea?" They reacted with true Gallic savoire faire. They hopped about the chamber and happily munched lettuce, even when under pressure that would crush a steel ship's hull.

Cousteau, Tailliez and Dumas —the four-footed ones—have blazed the trail into the silent underseas world. From here on, it's up to man.

These little guinea pigs took—and survived—equivalent pressure of a deep-sea dive of 1,010 feet in chamber in which they are shown in photo above.

Their reactions are observed as more and more pressure is put into specially-built chamber.

Near Blythe, California, is one of the world's strange farms—a catfish farm. Here, workers net "breeders" in cages after eggs are laid, transfer them to big pools.

Catfish Farm

By Jack B. Kemmerer

ON THE RICH bottom lands of the lower Colorado River near Blythe, California, lies one of the world's oddest and most unique farms-- the first and only commercial catfish farm existing anywhere today.

The idea for such a venture was conjured up by a group of Texans headed by P. H. Hill, former auto dealer of Abilene, who had dreamed of the unusual farm since the late 1940's. Hill's biggest problem was in locating a suitable site for the project.

Their several years search ended when an associate accidentally stumbled on the virgin lands on the Mojave Indian Reservation along the Colorado River.

When first approached about the land lease, government Indian officials thought the idea incredible and asked "Why would anyone want to raise catfish?"

There was a good reason at the time of the farm's inception and an even better one now. In certain sections of the United States catfish are a favorite food — to Southerners and Midwesterners the catfish is a gastronomic triumph and rates far above fried chicken or country ham and hot biscuits.

Most catfish for the commercial market are caught in the Mississippi River and its tributaries and commercial fishermen have never been able to meet the demand. Here was the market for which Hill was aiming.

Before any fish could be harvested off the farm, however, an unanticipated market changed the whole complexion of the sales plan. It turned out that there is just as much a demand if not more—for live catfish. The embryo fish farmers were deluged with orders from operators of commercial fishing ponds in Southern California and Arizona. This unforeseen, and far more lucrative, market is so vast that there is small possibility of the farm ever attempting to supply the retail meat market.

Getting the operation into high gear was no simple operation. The 640-acre land lease was broken up into ponds which had to be scraped, leveled and then sloped to permit complete drainage at harvest time. All the ponds had to be connected by canals with the river more than a mile away.

The work was accomplished in record breaking time and the farm is in full operation.

Despite precautions, some minnows get into catfish ponds, are harvested and sold to anglers for bait.

Catfish are so ugly that, in a way, they're attractive. This big channel 'cat' has typical head like a shovel, gash for mouth, whiskers—but he's good eating!

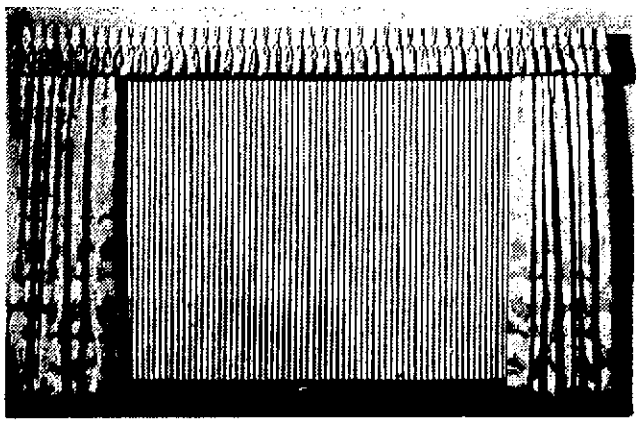

—Photos by the Author

Here is a general view of the catfish farm, showing "maternity ward" where eggs hatch. Fish are paired like purebred stock, spawn in fenced-off coops.

Intending to supply fresh fish market, catfish farmers found biggest trade in live fish for commercial fishing clubs, like above. Income from this harvest is higher.

"You Can Stop Smoking the Same Way I Did!"

— Says C. P. Van Schaack, Jr.

Amazing New Formula Helps Break Smoking Habit in 5 Days Easily and Pleasantly

Read Mr. Van Schaack's True Story!

Mr. C. P. Van Schaack, Jr., is a leading Chicago business man. He is an attorney-at-law and a member of the Chicago and American Bar Associations. To encourage others who want to give up smoking, he tells below how Bantron helped him to quit.

"Our family doctor advised against smoking cigarettes and told me that I would be much better off if I quit for good. Time and time again I tried to stop. Each time I became so irritable and nervous, that I started again. It seemed the lesser of two evils.

"One day a business friend told me about Bantron. I said to myself, 'If he can, I can!' With Bantron, I was amazed how easy it was for me to stop smoking without the nervousness and irritability that accompanied my previous attempts to quit. After five days I had lost all desire for cigarettes, and just didn't want them any more. And how much better I feel!"

In a series of dramatic tests scientists proved that in 83% (4 out of 5) of the cases, Bantron helped men and women to stop smoking in 5 days. And here is the wonderful thing. Bantron is easy and pleasant to take. It has no unpleasant after-effects and is not habit forming.

Bantron was discovered in the research laboratories of a great American university. It comes in tablet form. You just take 1 tablet with water after each meal.

This new scientific formula does not work by making you dislike smoking. It does not interfere with your taste for smoking, or for anything else. Smoking establishes a craving in your body—Bantron helps relieve that craving. Because of this, many people use Bantron to help them cut down smoking.

We Guarantee Results

Purchase one box of Bantron and take as directed. If you feel Bantron has not helped you stop or cut down smoking within 5 days, just send us the empty box and we will refund your full purchase price.

Bantron is recommended to the thousands of men and women who can benefit from stopping or cutting down smoking. If your doctor advises you to stop smoking, try Bantron.

'Next to Heaven' for Sick Kids

By Caroline Coleman

David Smith, 18 months, takes 40 winks in dreamland in tiny bed in Seaside's Children's Hospital.

IT'S ALMOST next to heaven to be sick in Children's Memorial Hospital, housed in the Magnolia Ave. wing of Seaside Hospital.

Children lie in little white beds, looking at murals of well-loved nursery rhymes.

When they get a little better, they play in the children's playroom equipped with TV sets, radios, a lighted aquarium with a variety of fish, record players, a fine electric train, doll houses with furniture of corresponding size, dolls, pandas, books, magazines, puzzles.

There are 50 beds in Children's Memorial Hospital. Most are two-bed rooms; then there are a 12-bed nursery and a six-bed nursery.

A FAIRY TALE castle mural serves as an introduction to Children's Memorial Hospital, and room murals include Peter, Peter, Pumpkin Eater, Little Miss Muffet, Goldilocks and the Three Bears, Little Red Riding Hood, Jack and Jill, Little Boy Blue, Humpty Dumpty, Bo Peep, Simple Simon, the singing cats, Pluto and Bambi. There is a room for Boy Scouts and one for Girl Scouts.

The Auxiliary to Children's Memorial Hospital has been responsible for equipping the hospital, and the Auxiliary shares with Seaside Hospital the responsibility and medication for children whose parents can not afford to pay for it.

As a matter of fact, the Auxiliary provides $25,000 a year for the Children's Memorial Hospital—$2,000 a month for hospitalization and medication for little patients in Children's Memorial Hospital and up to $150 a month for medication for patients in the children's clinic of Seaside Hospital.

One event through which the work is financed is the "Have a Heart and Help a Child" carnival, the next of which will be held from noon to midnight, Feb. 5 in Lakewood Country Club. Forty organizations will have booths, says Mrs. Guy Barton, press chairman. There will be a children's merry-go-round, and a variety of games and a 1955 two-door Chevrolet sedan will be a prize.

Two other events which help to finance the work are a date week calendar sale in the fall and a "Gaslight Revue" presented in Balboa Bay Club.

President Mrs. Thomas J. Taylor says that in the eight years it has been in existence, the Auxiliary has furnished almost $300,000 for the hospital of the little ones.

DAME NATURE and the simplest of cameras can make artists of any of us in the snow season if we just treat our subject and our equipment right. With this in mind, take your camera along when you go to the mountains to see the snow, to ski and toboggan — then you can make a permanent record of some of winter's fleeting beauty.

Snow pictures in endless array have won ribbons and prizes. Even if they are taken only to show people having fun in the snow, such pictures are great to look back to at a later date.

Snow comes to life under bright sunlight. It isn't photogenic in the usual sense on dull days. But when the sun sets it asparkle — that is certainly time for picture taking. On days like that, snowy landscapes are filled with contrasts, offering ideal picture-taking conditions for either black-and-white or color film.

Sunlight and shadows bring out the texture of the snow and add appeal to your pictures. Don't just snap a picture and let it go at that. Look over your snowy landscape in the viewfinder of your camera . . . look at it from various angles, to see what forms the best picture.

Concentrating on what is framed in the viewfinder is important — just as in any type of scenic shot. If you shoot too fast, you may be disappointed. You may expect the camera to see everything that you saw with your eyes — and it can't, not all in one picture. Your eyes move, sweep the scene. The camera's eye doesn't. It sees just exactly what you see in the viewfinder. Keep that in mind and make beautiful snow pictures this year.

LONG BEACH CAMERA GUILD will have a black and white print competition at 8 p. m. Wednesday at Municipal Art Center, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd.

Winners of the recent color slide competition were Donald Hayward, first; Elva Hayward, second; Therese Whiteside, third; Edith Freeman, Dr. Francis Simpson, Max Henkey, honorable mention. Judge was Floyd Norgaard, past president of El Camino Real Camera Club.

The Guild will have a field trip to Marineland Oceanarium Feb. 6. Members are asked to be there by 10 a. m., so they may take pictures before the crowd is too great.

Students at Gardena High School display the Beethoven portrait, which features their school art collection.

A School Collects Art

By Maymie R. Krythe

GARDENA.

NATIONALLY KNOWN, with a value of more than $50,000, is the distinctive art collection at Gardena High School, made possible through gifts of the senior classes. It is considered one of the three outstanding high school art galleries in the United States.

This fine tradition was started in 1919, when Principal John H. Whitely suggested that the graduating class start an art collection. During following years, under his guidance and that of such faculty members as Miss LaVeta Crump, seniors visited artists' studios, studied their works, and then voted on which pictures to purchase.

However, in 1928, at the suggestion of artist Hansen Puthuff, the seniors held a "Purchase-prize Exhibit" at Gardena High School. Outstanding painters were invited to submit canvases for a two weeks' showing. The first exhibit was so successful that it became an annual event. During the display, students study the pictures and have the opportunity of hearing them discussed by authorities. At first merely a school project, the exhibit now attracts community attention. Seniors help plan the events, which include an opening banquet and receptions attended by artists, educators and local club members.

WHEN WHITELY RETIRED in 1939, about 30 paintings had been given by the winter and summer graduating classes. He died in 1953, but will always be remembered for his vision. In the library hangs a portrait of this art lover, who helped so many students to a greater appreciation of art and its importance in every day life.

Frank X. Goulet, Whitely's successor, has continued to encourage this outstanding school activity, assisted by various faculty members. Each year interest in the gallery has grown until the entire community takes much pride in it, and the Purchase-prize Exhibit gives many the chance to see works of modern painters of high rank.

As the collection has grown, the idea has been not only to add exceptional canvases, but to make the display a well-rounded one. Naturally, there are several excellent paintings that show the widely differing terrain, coasts and moods of California. The first class, in 1919, bought Ralph Davidson Miller's "Valley of the Santa Clara," noted for its impressive skyline and cloud effects.

Another much admired California scene, "Lingering Snows," by Jack Wilkinson, is a High Sierra landscape of dazzling lights and melting snows. The famous painter, William Wendt, is represented by "Along the Arroyo Seco," while "Desert in Bloom" is the work of F. Grayson Sayre, noted for his excellent delineation of desert scenes. Such paintings as "On the Road to San Gabriel," "Mount Lowe in Winter," "Towering Peaks — Sierra" (considered one of the strongest canvases here), "In Palm Canyon," "Monterey Pines" and "Two Eucalypti" reveal the varied scenery of the Golden State.

WESTERN CHARACTERS are well depicted in Frank Tenny Johnson's "The Cowboy," Maynard Dixon's "Men of the Red Earth" and "Chief Bullchild" by Kathryn Leighton.

Other localities are seen in the collection, too, including "Grand Canyon, Betatakin Ruins," in Arizona; "Mount Moran — Teton National Park" and scenes in Mexico and Germany. "Cornish Inn," a charming study of a quaint hostelry in Ipswich Village, Cornwall, is an excellent example of an American artist's work — W. Elmer Schofield.

There are several fine seascapes in the gallery, some excellent studies of animals and flowers, distinctive still life pieces, and among the religious works are "The Return of the Prodigal" and "Weeping Over Jerusalem." "The Portrait of a Young Girl," "The Girl in Brown" and "Ted Shawn" furnish good examples of portrait painting.

Most critics consider Carl Wostry's "Beethoven" the outstanding portrait in the collection. Here the great musician makes his way along a narrow street, and the artist has well depicted his strong face, the eyes in deep contemplation; he shows the hope, the suffering, and the ideals of that indomitable will.

As visitors stand before this arresting canvas, they can almost believe they are seeing the famous composer himself, and the story goes that the model for this portrait wore clothes that had actually belonged to Beethoven. This picture, painted more than 40 years ago in Vienna, was bought by seniors at Gardena High School after it had been exhibited both in Europe and New York.

It is a privilege to visit the gallery and to study the rich heritage the young collectors have left their alma mater. This permanent tribute inspires and draws together in a common bond the students of this democratic high school with its varied types, for "Art knows no race, creed or nationality."

Arizona Scoffs at Winter

SOME BRITISH SCIENTISTS have recently advanced evidence that Arizona was once the site of the North Pole. This is nothing for the chamber of commerce to get upset about, however, for that would have been six hundred million years ago.

In 1954 things are quite different out that-a-way. Today Arizona is the site of one of the most flourishing winter resort areas in the country, and this is chiefly because of the warm, beaming sun which shines 86 per cent of the time, the dry, balmy climate and the magnificent scenery.

The enterprise of resort operators and civic groups has given this natural endowment a great assist—it is only within the past 20 years that the desert has bloomed into a thing of beauty and profit.

And air travel had added the final fillip, serving to make this playground of the Southwest nationally and internationally known and to bring it within a day's travel of any part of the country. Trans World Airlines, for instance, which has been serving the Southwest on transcontinental routes since 1929, schedules nine Constellation flights through Phoenix daily five of them low-fare Sky Tourist services.

A VACATIONING COUPLE, whether for a weekend or longer, may stay at the really plush luxury resorts for up to $80 a day for a suite, including meals, or a fine motel for $8 a day. The motel guests will have a patio, lawn furniture, flowers and a swimming pool and be within easy reach of good restaurants and all the sports and entertainment with which the Phoenix program is crowded. The luxury resort guests — who will find the top prices considerably reduced at the beginning and end of the season—will usually have the use of a golf course, riding horses, swimming pool, tennis courts, and will find steak fries in the hills, desert horseback treks, barbecues, poolside buffets, square dancing and various parties thrown in for the price of his accommodations.

Visitors to the Valley of the Sun find its informality and hospitality among its chief charms. Everyone dresses informally and casually for comfort. Blue jeans or levis, sports shirts, simple frocks or sweaters and skirts, are the rule for daytime wear, and dress is informal for nearly all evening occasions. One may lounge in the daytime winter sun in shirtsleeves; a coat is needed for the evening chill after sundown.

CROSSROADS OF THE MEDITERRANEAN, by Hendrik de Leeuw (Hanover House, $3.75).

SAVAGE PAPUA, by Andre Dupeyrat (Dutton, $3.75).

SAHARA, by Rene Leeler (Hanover House, $3.95).

All three of these volumes are excellent accounts of far places, carrying the armchair traveler into excitement and glamour, much of the glamour easier on the eye from the printed page than on the sensibilities of the inexperienced traveler. The Mediterranean people are the descendants of the ancients, and their ways are strange and exotic. It is a savage world as de Leeuw found it and fabulous as an Arabian nights entertainment.

Father Dupeyrat takes the reader into New Guinea, one of the last true dangerous areas in the world. This is an account of twenty years with the Papuans, the good father's adventures with real cannibals and with the evil of witchcraft will stir the reader with horror and fill him with admiration for the men who so venture for their faiths.

The Sahara has a long history of violence, both from nature and from man. The area is a killer. Never completely conquered, it has spawned some of the wildest and most competent fighting men in history. This is the story of it, from ages past to the present.

Flanked by native shops, the minarets and cupolas of a Moslem mosque rise above this scene in Colombo, Ceylon.

To Ceylon for a Suit

ONE OF THE FAVORITE shopping bargains for tourists to Ceylon is the purchase of tailor-made white sharkskin suits, according to flight personnel of Trans World Airlines.

Crew members of the Constellation flights which TWA began on weekly schedules in 1953, linking United States cities and Ceylon with direct service, are keeping the local tailors busy with orders for the suits. Within 24 hours, the crew members report, one can have a well-tailored suit of sharkskin made up for about $40, including an extra pair of trousers.

Hand-tailored suits in rayon tropical fabrics cost about $20.

Ceylon has long been popular as a resort island with residents of the Middle and Far East, especially with American and British nationals stationed at industrial and diplomatic outposts in those areas. With the advent of direct air service from the United States via TWA's routes through the British Isles, Europe, North Africa, the Middle East and India, it is expected that many American tourists will include Ceylon on their itineraries.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH

DELAPLANE

"Do you know a reliable car rental agency in London? Where do we get road maps of Scotland and England?"

There are as many car hire agencies as there are in the American cities. I'd let your hotel recommend one. The British Tourist Office in Pall Mall or New York will give you one too. Also road maps.

However, when you get your car, a membership in one or both of the automobile clubs usually goes with it. This gives you all the maps you need. Your car carries an emblem. And the uniformed motorcycle man on the highway is not a cop. He is an emergency repair man for the club. You'll recognize him because he'll toss you a salute when he spots your emblem.

"We are spending July and August in Europe on a limited budget. What do you estimate the cost per day?"

ROUGHLY, I figure $10 per day a person minimum in France and England. About $5 in Spain and Portugal. Somewhere between those figures in Switzerland and Italy. Add $2 per day in London, Paris, Rome, Madrid, Lisbon and Geneva. This is just living of course. Not including transportation or buying presents.

"A hotel in London that is not too expensive. . . ."

I'm still looking for a good hotel myself. But I was talking to a number of correspondents a few weeks ago flying to New York. Most of them thought the Connaught was the best with the best price.

The Savoy is the American favorite. But I think the price will run about $12 or better a day. The prices drop in the country. But London is a fairly expensive town.

"Is it worth while to buy foreign exchange in the United States before going abroad?"

Sometimes. Most exchange houses post the open rate here and the official rate. Right now, for instance, French francs are selling here at 375 to the U. S. dollar. Compared to 350 at the inside France rate. You can take in all you want legally.

It often pays to buy in the winter. When the tourist season starts in summer, the country is flooded with dollars and the price goes down. I was only getting 360 in Geneva last summer.

You can only take 10 pounds into England. The Swiss franc and Portuguese escudo are hard. No advantage in buying anywhere but in those countries. You can take in 10,000 legally.

Ever wonder how the news correspondents make their air reservations, change their foreign money, work in other languages? A roving reporter whose beat covers the world will answer your questions when you plan to travel. Send a stamped envelope to Stan Delaplane, exclusive in Southland Magazine.

No matter what else you do for a cold

...LISTERINE Quick!

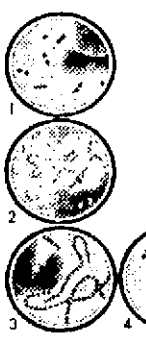

Listerine Does What Non-Antiseptic "Cold Tablets" Can't Do—Kills Germs Instantly—By Millions

When you feel a cold coming on, go right after the germs that can cause so much of the misery . . . with Listerine Antiseptic! Non-antiseptic "cold remedies," nose drops, and aspirin may relieve some of the symptoms, but they don't kill germs the way Listerine Antiseptic does. Listerine gets way back on throat surfaces and kills those germs, instantly, by millions!

So, remember, no matter what else you do when you fight a cold, you need an antiseptic to kill germs.

Why take unnecessary chances with a cold? Closely supervised tests over a 12-year period showed that those who regularly reduced germs on mouth and throat surfaces with Listerine Antiseptic twice a day had fewer colds and sore throats than those who did not. The minute you feel a cold coming on, gargle Listerine Antiseptic early and often.

NO MATTER WHAT ELSE YOU DO FOR A COLD YOU NEED AN ANTISEPTIC
to kill germs like these!

These and other "secondary invaders," as well as germ-types not shown, can be quickly reduced in number by the Listerine Antiseptic gargle.

(1) Pneumococcus Type III, (2) Hemophilus Influenzae, (3) Streptococcus pyogenes, (4) Pneumococcus Type II, (5) Streptococcus salivarius.

New Ways to Serve Apples

By Mildred K. Flanary

Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

Applesauce cupcakes are a taste delight as prepared, above, by Mrs. W. S. Grant. Her recipe makes 30 cakes.

FROM ADAM to the atom era, apples have played a major role in the life of mankind and today in raw form, baked, apples, sauce, scraped or any other way they can be prepared—apples are a top item in the diet of humans. They are especially good for growing youngsters and they are marvelously good for after-school snacktime.

Long an advocate of the old adage, "An apple a day keeps the doctor away," Mrs. W. S. Grant, 1381 Bryant Rd.; has some very delectable apple recipes up her sleeve; for instance, Applesauce cup cakes with creamy icing. Her recipe, which is featured elsewhere on this page, makes 30 medium-sized cup cakes. The creamy icing formula:

Creamy Icing

2½ cups sifted confectioners sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 egg
2 tablespoons water
¾ cup granulated sugar
½ cup shortening
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix confectioners sugar, salt, and egg. Boil the water and granulated sugar together for one minute, then blend with the sugar and egg mixture. Add shortening and vanilla. Beat until creamy.

Apple Pie With Cheese Apples

Pastry (All Measurements Level):
2¼ cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon salt
¾ cup shortening
5 tablespoons water

Mix flour and salt in bowl. Cut shortening into flour with pastry blender or two knives until the pieces are the size of peas. Blend together ⅓ cup of this mixture and 5 tablespoons water. Add to remaining flour mixture and mix with fork or fingers until dough holds together. Shape into a round flat mass.

Roll half of dough to a circle about 12" in diameter and ⅛" thick. Line pie pan. Trim edges to ½" beyond rim. Add filling.

Roll remaining dough. Place over apples. Fold lower edge of dough over top crust and flute edges with finger. Slash top to permit escape of steam. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees F.) about 40 minutes or until brown.

Apple Filling:

Combine: 3½ to 4 cups sliced apples (about 5), 1 cup brown sugar, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, ½ cup chopped raisins, 3 tablespoons tapioca or flour, 2 tablespoons molasses. Pour into pie pan. After baking and cooling, decorate with "apples" of yellow cheese rolled in paprika. Add green leaf stems.

Makes one 9-inch pie.

Cider Applesauce

Boil cider to one-half its original quantity. Pare and quarter apples. Cover with cider. Simmer until tender and cider is nearly absorbed. Sweeten to taste while hot with brown sugar. Cold applesauce may be served dusted liberally with powdered sugar.

Cottage Cheese Waldorf Salad

3 apples, diced
1 cup diced celery
½ cup sliced stuffed olives
¼ cup French dressing
Salad greens
1 pt. cottage cheese
½ cup chopped salted almonds
Salad dressing or mayonnaise

Combine first four ingredients. Place greens on each salad plate and shape cottage cheese in a ring with apple salad and sprinkle with chopped almonds. Pass dressing. Serves 6.

Apple Relish

1 cup finely chopped unpared apples
1 cup finely shredded cabbage
½ cup finely chopped celery
1 tabelspoon chopped green pepper
⅓ cup sugar
3 tablespoons vinegar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ginger
¼ teaspoon mustard
Dash of cayenne pepper
1 tablespoon chopped canned pimiento

Mixed apples, cabbage, celery, and green pepper.

Combine sugar, vinegar, spices, and pimiento. Add to apples and vegetables and mix lightly but thoroughly.

Yield: 2 cups.

Baked Apples De Luxe

Start with crisp spicy red Jonathan apples. Fill the center cavities with orange marmalade and bake. Just before the apples are ready to come out of the oven, place a marshmallow on top of each apple and return to oven just long enough for the marshmallow to brown lightly.

Mrs. Grant's Applesauce Cup Cakes:

Measure into mixing bowl: (All measurements level)
2½ cups sifted cake flour
1⅔ cups sugar
¾ cup applesauce
⅔ cup shortening
1 teaspoon salt

Beat vigorously by hand or mixer (medium speed) for 2 minutes. Stir in: 3½ teaspoons double-acting baking powder*.

Add: ½ cup thin tart applesauce
3 whole eggs
1 tablespoon grated orange rind

Beat vigorously by hand or mixer (medium speed) for 2 minutes. Fill ½ full medium cupcake pans which have been rubbed with shortening and dusted with flour. Bake at 400° F. for 15 to 20 minutes. Ice with creamy icing.

*With tartrate type, use 4½ teaspoons.

Makes 30 medium cupcakes.

Kitchen Tips:

Mrs. Grant's Kitchen Tip: Pie meringue will cut easier if a little granulated sugar is sifted over it just before browning. Gives a pretty crust, too.

Winter 'White Sale'

More than 300 hotels in the French Alps, Massif Central, Pyrenees, Jura and Vosges winter sports regions are offering an all-expense package plan this winter which includes room, board, service and certain ski-lift charges, according to a recent report from TWA's Paris office. Prices, ranging from $2.85 to $14.00 a day, include hotels of international popularity. During January, further reductions of 10 to 20 per cent in hotel rates are made in most areas for nine-day or longer visits. Cooperation of the French National Railroads adds to saving, also, for from now until April 3, tickets on special weekend ski trains from Paris to key resort areas will be subject to a 30 per cent discount, and will be good from Friday evening to Monday midnight.

Bearing little resemblance to its once leaky damp state, the master bedroom of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Robertsons' small home has assumed new comfort, beauty.

One of the most interesting modern ideas included in the remodeling of the F. W. Robertsons' home was the addition of built-in range in storage island.

'This Old House'

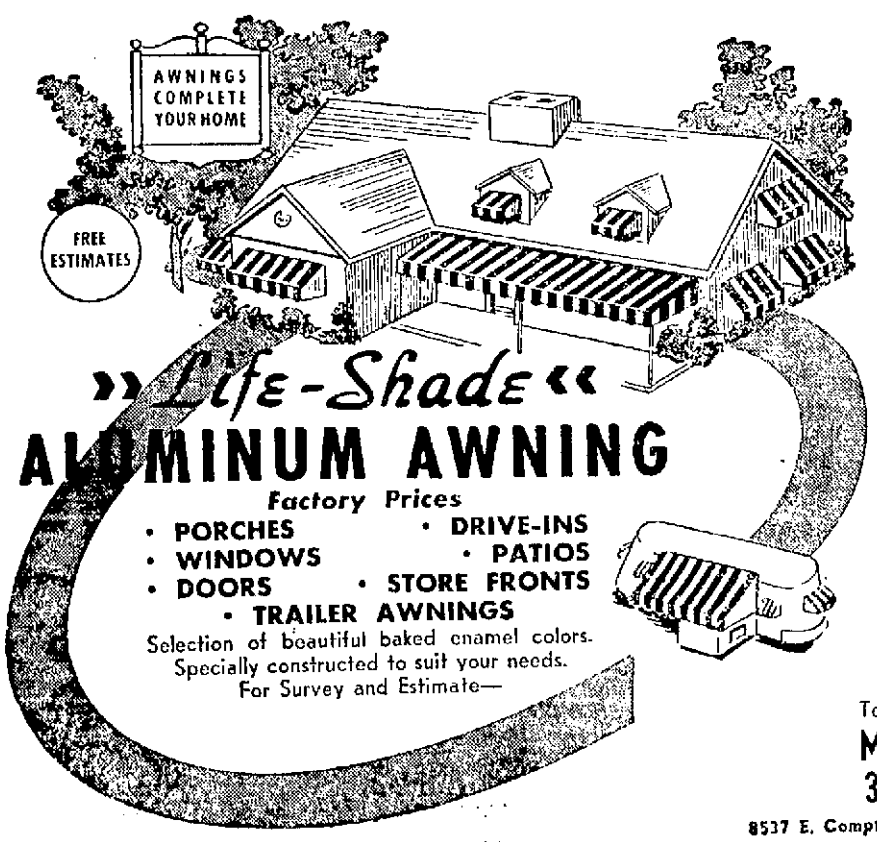

A hallway created by the Robertsons to give the house better circulation is wide enough for storage and desk.

By Eileen Ball

IT TOOK more than a simple job of redecorating to rejuvenate the little house that Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Robertson decided to buy at 109 W. Home St.

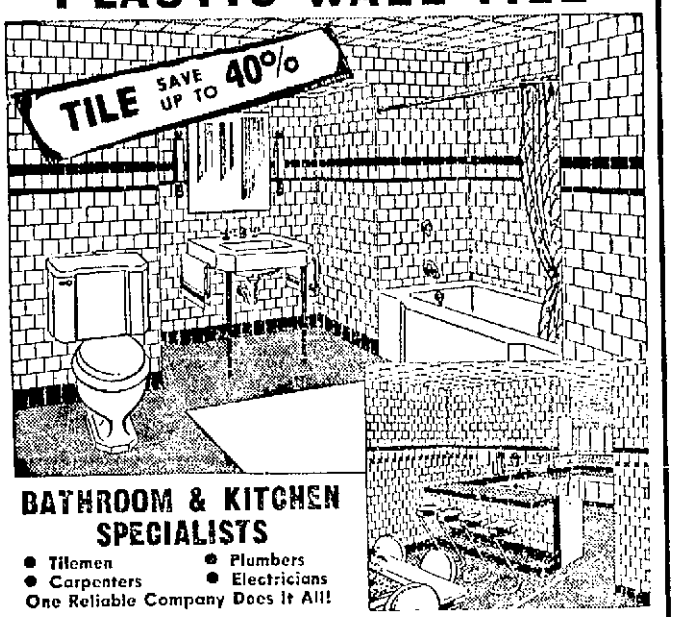

The little bungalow they bought last September was a sorry sight, indeed, with its lack of paint and sagging roof line. The years — some 25 of them — had not been kind to the shabby little dwelling. It had many of the aspects of "this old house" of the currently popular song.

Fortunately, Mrs. Robertson is one of those rare individuals who can see some good in anything,

Has Been Fixed Up New Again!

A new coat of barn-red paint, trimmed with white, has given the Robertson home a new, needed lease on life.

including old houses. Something about the way the little house sat in among a lofty assemblage of eucalyptus trees was appealing. Its corner lot had merit. Mrs. Robertson visualized the house under a coat of spanking new paint.

Prompted by the power of their convictions, the Robertsons bought the house despite the pessimism of their friends.

What has emerged as a result of their combined efforts is both gratifying to the Robertsons and proof to the dissenters that paint brushes and hammers can, after all, work wonders.

THE EXTERIOR was painted barn red, trimmed with white and topped with a new roof. Shrubs were pruned, a new lawn seeded, and flower beds were lovingly plotted and spaded.

Not to be outdone by the exterior, the inside came in for its share of the overhaul. Now, three months from the date of the purchase, the little house is pleasantly livable, inside and out.

Deep green was chosen to decorate the living room. This area, furnished in rattan, is 14x18 feet — spacious enough for informal entertaining.

One of the original peculiarities of the house was the arrangement of the bedroom in relation to the rest of the house. It was formerly necessary to walk through the bedroom to get to the kitchen or the bath. Consequently, the Robertsons' first major task was to create a more plausible link between these living rooms.

THE ORIGINAL DOOR between the living room and bedroom was walled. A corridor was created from the living room directly through to a short hallway connecting the bath, kitchen and second bedroom.

This short corridor was made wide enough to provide storage all along one wall. In addition to enclosed storage units, a small desk has been built in. The pine paneling used for the cabinets and wall facing has been coated with clear shellac.

Possibly the most startling rejuvenation has taken place in the kitchen. This large room, 11x15, had its countertops tiled in stark white with blue trim. The walls are in Wedgewood blue and the cabinets white. A pleasing illusion of warmth was introduced by the application of old brick wallpaper along the wall that extends from the preparation area into the dinette.

Set into a free standing counter island is a built-in electric range. Near by is the built-in oven.

An unusual iron and plastic dinette set, the top decorated with an abstract leaf design, furnishes the pleasant dining nook which overlooks the yard through corner windows.

White nylon tiebacks with flounces of blue and white striped chintz complete the clean, typically Dutch color scheme.

THE MASTER BEDROOM originally was in the sorriest condition of any section of the house. Here, the shed roof leaked copiously and the walls were waterstained and peeling.

Now, under the security of a new roof, this spacious 10x20 area has become an enviable bedroom-sitting room combination. Further improvement was created, of course, with the elimination of this room's extra function as a pass-through. To create continuity, Mrs. Robertson elected to paint this room a deep green, harmonious with the living room. The ceiling is papered with a green, gray and white medallion paper. Crisp, white organdy tiebacks dress the windows.

A bedspread of white plisse and the predominantly green carpet give final emphasis to the simple green and white color scheme.

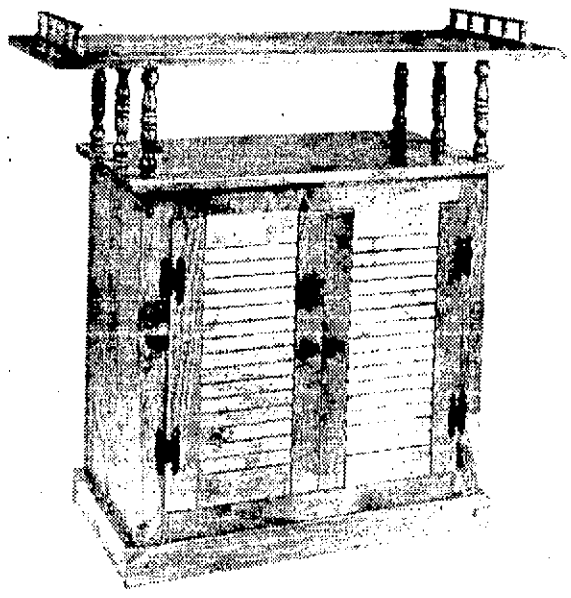

Grouped together, a pair of boudoir chairs and a rocker give added purpose to this room.

A smaller second bedroom serves as guest quarters. Located between the master bedroom and the kitchen, it is convenient to the newly decorated bath. Still in the process of being redecorated, the guest room awaits completion of a quilted bedspread and matching cornice boxes. Who is making them? Mrs. Robertson, of course.

San Diego Serenaders will be one of the quartets taking part in Barber Shop song event here next Saturday.

Close Harmony

By Vera Williams

THEY may be modern songs, but they'll be sung in the style of the gaslight era when Papa and Grandpa sang "You Were Sweet 16" and "When You Wore a Tulip."

That means close harmony.

Two hours of this type of spirited and spine-tingling singing will be offered in the Harmony Festival at 8:30 p. m. Saturday in Municipal Auditorium, under the auspices of Long Beach Chapter, Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, Inc.

In addition to many barbershop quartets, there will be a chorus of 40 barbershop voices and one of 35 Sweet Adeline voices; then they will combine for a mixed-voice presentation.

You don't know what a Sweet Adeline is?

Sweet Adelines, feminine, are not auxiliaries to the SPEBSQSA —there are those initials again! —but women's groups dedicated to the promotion of the close harmony style of singing, reminiscent of the Gay Nineties, which means the same type and time brought to life by the men.

Bob Moffat will be chorus director.

Quartets slated to appear include the Long Beach Four Bits of Harmony, made up of Charles Hopper, lead, Charley Pursglove, tenor, Don Nunez, bass, Dick Montgomery, baritone; the West Coasters from San Gabriel, the San Diego Serenaders, the Crown City Four from Pasadena and the Verdugo Dons who naturally enough are from Verdugo. The West Coasters took the Far Western district championship last October.

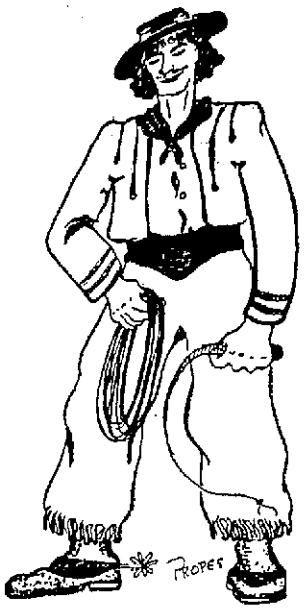

Sweet Adelines will include the True Shades from Arcadia, who last summer took third place in competition with Sweet Adeline quartets from all parts of the United States and Canada. They have appeared on the TV Breakfast Club show in Chicago.

The True Shades of Arcadia are a topnotch singing group. Feminine counterpart of SPEBSQSA called Sweet Adelines.

CALIFORNIA YESTERDAYS

The Gaudy Vaqueros

--Drawing by the Author

First of western cowboys were California vaqueros.

By Clarence Bernard Propes

MOST PEOPLE find it easy to leave grizzly bears alone. This wasn't true of the early California vaqueros. They had a particular fondness for roping these bears and then chaining them to equally wild range bulls.

The California vaquero was the first cowboy to appear on the American scene. These colorful figures were old men before the Texans started harrying their longhorns. The vaqueros were gaudy characters who would be laughed off any television screen or rodeo arena. They liked silks and satins of the brightest color. Even their riding gear was encrusted with silver and semi-precious stones.

The vaquero's hair was long and done up under a silk scarf or pinned under a flat-crowned hat. His shirt was silk, and his trousers and jacket satin. His spurs were huge so big he couldn't walk when they were on his feet.

HIS WEAPONS were simple but effective. He carried a riata, a huge knife, and, at times, a lance. On the whole an unimpressive display of arms but with these same weapons vaqueros routed the army of Gen. Kearney at San Pasquale. The Americans suffered terribly while the Californios did not lose a man.

They were magnificent horsemen and stayed on their mounts every possible minute. It is said they even churned butter by riding. It was simply a matter of tying a keg of cream to the saddle and letting the horse jog about all day. Horses were always available. On a long ride cowboys simply exchanged horses at ranchos as their animals became exhausted.

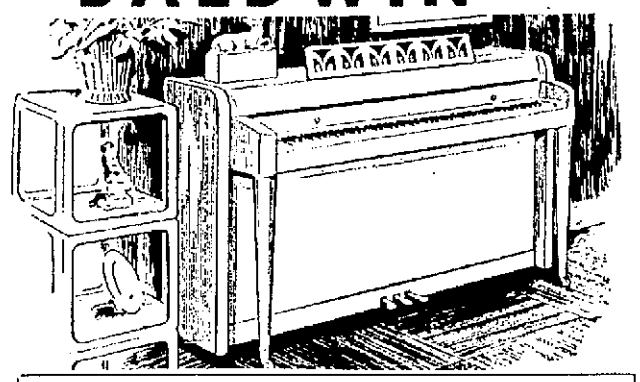

According to one authority the vaquero was not considered a full fledged cowboy until he had killed a grizzly in hand-to-hand combat. The story is unlikely, for it is doubtful if he would get off a horse—even to fight a silvertip.

There are few grizzlies left now, but in the early 19th century they were surprisingly numerous. One Rocky Mountain trapping party saw as many as 200 in a single day. The California variety must have been huge, for he had plenty of beef and horse meat to feed on.

ONCE A BEAR was spotted by a vaquero he was usually in for a bad time. Cowboys would immediately toss their loops around the bear's neck and legs. A simple-sounding operation, but bears do not like to be roped, and horses have an undying hatred of bears. A single miscalculation would mean a dead or badly mauled vaquero.

The roped grizzly presented a transportation problem, as the cowboy would want to get it to the home rancho corral. Grizzlies do not lead well. This problem was solved by pointing the bear in the proper direction and letting one of the horsemen tease it into a charge. Every charge led it that much nearer its destination.

It was a cruel and bloody age, but the bear was allowed to die fighting. One of its front paws was chained to the hind legs of a range bull and they were allowed to battle it out. This was repeated until the bear was killed.

THE VAQUERO'S LIFE was a happy and exciting one. There were fiestas to attend and robust games to play. There was little work as we now know it.

Stock were so thick that the ranchers found it profitable to butcher them for hide and tallow. It was the vaquero's duty to get the stock to the skinners and then killed. They turned this into a smooth and effortless procedure. They would run an animal toward the skinning crew and, when it was close enough, kill it with a knife thrust through the back of the neck.

Skinning and rendering was for peons and not for these gentlemen on horseback.

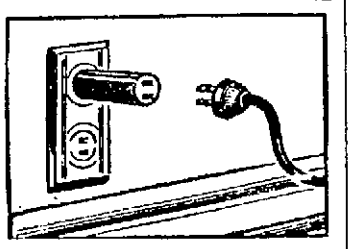

This would seem to be a waste of good beef. However, the market for meat was practically nonexistent and the herds of cattle and horses were great. During drought periods uncounted thousands of head of stock were killed by running them over cliffs into the sea.

THE VAQUEROS had a number of games and competitions, and all were played from horseback. A ring-around-the-rosie type game was played by mounted men who tagged one another with a club.

Tailing the bull was an exciting competition. A number of cowboys would pursue a range bull. The one who caught it would grab its tail, wind it around the saddle horn and flip the bull on to its back.

A chicken was sometimes buried in the ground. Only its head showed. The object was for the vaquero to pluck it from the ground while his horse was at a full run.

The California vaqueros were the first and probably the finest of American cowboys. They vanished with the coming of the Easterners. Big ranches were split up, and profitable stock raising methods were introduced. There was no place left for these lusty men with their wild ways.

Bit of soil or peat moss placed in aluminum foil and pressed in abalone shell depression make these planters.

Sea Shell Planter

By Eileen H. Schilz

SOME of the most pleasing decorative arrangements can be achieved through the use of sea shells, and even though you do not often go to the ocean to collect your own shells, many varieties can be purchased for a few cents each.

Almost every household has at least one abalone shell, and it can be transformed into an intriguing planter very easily. The only extra materials needed are a small piece of aluminum foil and some wire.

Thread a three-inch piece of wire through two of the holes in the shell and twist the ends together in back to form a loop. Put a small nail or hanger into the wall where you wish to place the planter and hang the loop of wire over it. Hanging the shell from the wall in this manner will provide a shallow basin at the bottom—just enough to hold a small foil cup filled with soil.

To make the foil cup place two tablespoons of damp moss or soft soil in the center of a 6-inch square of aluminum foil. Press the foil up tightly around the peat, and squeeze it into the bottom area of the abalone shell. Be very careful not to puncture the foil. Crimp the top edges of the foil down evenly to about one-half inch above the soil.

SEVERAL TYPES of plants do well in a restricted area such as the dwarf ivy, or the creeper commonly know as wandering jew. If you plant slips be sure at least one joint is covered with soil as these plants root at the joints. As the plant grows it can be trained through the holes at the top of the shell.

A plate of succulents is enhanced by covering the soil with shells. The shells used in this manner are those of razor clams, cockles, scallops, mussels, sea slippers and drills. Besides being decorative the shells tend to hold the moisture in the soil.

These are just two of the many possibilities that sea shells offer. If you experiment you may create an original arrangement that will be an outstanding conversation piece.

Humboldt's 60 Billion

Humboldt, northernmost but one of California's c o a s t counties, in 1953 was reported to have 60 billion feet of standing timber more than any state other than Idaho, Washington, Oregon or California. It is one of the largest lumber producing counties in the United States.

The county's commercial forest land occupies over 2,700 square miles of which 35% is Redwood and 60% Douglas Fir. About 25% of all forest land is under public ownership.

Our timberlands are located in Humboldt County, and are under a far-sighted plan of reforestation which will furnish us with a perpetual supply of logs, to provide lumber for continuous building of homes in Southern California and elsewhere.

OUR 16TH YEAR

PET PARADE

Margay, the Merry Meddler

By Eleanor A. Price

IF YOU have ever harbored a hankering to set out on an adventurous safari into an unknown jungle to study wild animals, chances are you would enjoy the adventures of raising a margay such as Diabla, seen on this page, or one of her beautiful cousins, the ocelot, jungle chati and other small jungle cats. Few pets can equal their mischievous, fascinating personalities and all around vim, vigor and vitality.

Diabla, age about one year, is owned by Beverly and Reed Caughey, 232 Prospect Ave. She was captured in the jungles of Nicaragua when approximately 3 months old, and the Caugheys purchased her about a month later. Life for the Caugheys took on an abrupt new pattern when Diabla became a member of the family, but the Caugheys have enjoyed every moment of it.

Diabla, naturally inclined toward agile climbing, soon selected a curtained transom window for her sleeping quarters. Here up against the ceiling, she can look out undisturbed upon the trees and greenery of the outdoors, or she can survey the rumpus and living rooms. She can also get pleasant gulps of fresh air.

As a rather feeble gesture to protect drapes in the living room, the Caugheys moved a high step-ladder into the room, and their jungle pal loves to perch on it. The Caugheys are probably the only people in Long Beach who can boast of having a stepladder as part of their front room furniture!

DIABLA also loves to ride around on Beverly's shoulder when Beverly vacuums and otherwise cleans the house. Yes, the margay has claws, but Diabla tries very carefully to keep hers sheathed unless provoked. She can unsheath one claw at a time if she so desires. But she is not deliberately destructive. Of course, if a vase or knickknack gets in her path, she calmly knocks it out of her way rather than going around it.

Diabla is inordinately fond of water and loves to sit in a damp basin, and has even plopped herself bodily into the water closet. She enjoys going along with the Caugheys when they take their boat out in still water. She will go under water after food, especially if it is a green vegetable. She especially relishes celery, and all house plants are choice morsels to her. Consequently, there are no longer any house plants in the Caughey domicile.

Her main diet, and she eats an amount equaling one-tenth of her weight per day, consists of meat such as cooked beef heart, powdered milk and boiled eggs. Horsemeat or beef in most any form is acceptable. In its native habitat, the margay will catch mice, birds and small monkeys and kill them before feasting. Diable pounces on her cooked meal and bats it around to "kill" it. No rubber toys are permitted, for she consumes them.

THE TRAINING and care of one of these beautiful leopard cats are not too difficult. They can be housebroken readily to sawdust, sand or newspaper. They are susceptible to pneumonia and cat fever and should receive shots the same as a domestic cat. They can be trained easily to a leash, and respond to the tone of his owner's voice. Bodily punishment should be avoided if at all possible. Beverly has found that Diabla can best be corrected by a puff of cigarette smoke.

Some owners of these cats have their pets' claws removed and the points of the teeth filed flat. If there are small children in the family, these procedures should probably be considered.

Seldom can the margay or ocelot be successfully bred in captivity. San Diego Zoo reports but one litter and Griffith Park Zoo none. Breeding must be accomplished when the animal is quite young.

The margay is a thinner and smaller animal than the ocelot and weighs around 10 to 12 pounds. The tail is longer than the ocelot's, and the brown translucent eyes are larger. Spots are solid, whereas the ocelot has hollow spots. Both are beautifully patterned. The cost of either is about the same as that of a very fine dog.

Anyone who purchases a small wild jungle cat would enjoy belonging to the American Ocelot Club which meets in various places in Southern California once each month.

THE SILVER BAY Kennel Club of San Diego presents its winter all breed dog show and obedience trial in the Electric Building, Balboa Park, San Diego, on Sunday, Feb. 13. Get your entries in not later than midnight, Monday, Jan. 31.

A WHILE BACK, this column carried an article on the rare Chinese Crested dog. It has come to our attention that Mary Griffin, 1203 W. Anaheim, Wilmington, has two of these dogs and would be happy to show them.

HOW TO Reupholster Dining Room Chairs, Do a Professional-Looking Job

1. REMOVE CHAIR SEAT. When the seat covers of your dining room chairs begin to fray and tear at the edges or to wrinkle up over the padding, it's time to reupholster. If the seats are screwed to the frame—and most are—you can reupholster them yourself. First number seats and frames with chalk so you can reinsert the seats correctly. Then take out corner screws. Soft padding under chair protects finish.

2. REMOVE OLD UPHOLSTERY. Lift out tacks carefully with a wood chisel so the material doesn't tear. Smooth the padding after cover is off. If it has worn thin, cover it with a layer of cotton felt. If it's badly worn, build up bare spots with upholsterer's curled hair before you cover it with felt. Worn padding is penalty for delaying the reupholstering job too long.

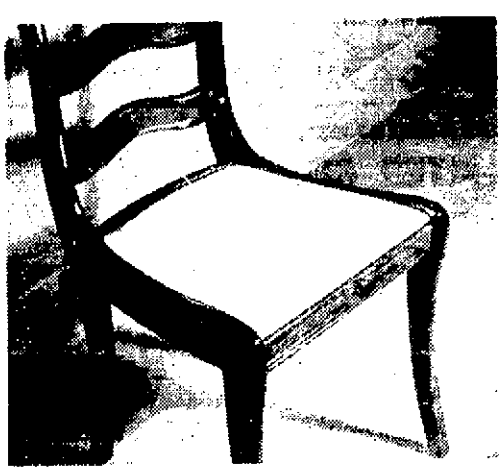

3. MARK AND CUT NEW COVER. Use the old cover to plan the amount of material you'll need. Upholstery material is sold by the yard in 36, 48, 50, 54-inch widths; decide from which it will be most economical to cut the covers. After you buy the material, smooth out the old cover and use it as a pattern. Mark the outline on the material with crayon or dressmaker's chalk. Then cut carefully with heavy scissors along the lines marked.

4. BEGIN TACKING. Sand down all sharp corners of the seat frame so that the new cover can be fitted smoothly. Place the material face down on the padding with the seat over it face down. Put one tack in the middle of the straightest edge of the seat (we started with the front). Draw the material snug and put another tack in the opposite side. Tack the other two sides in the same way. Be sure the upholstery material is straight. (Check this from the top side of the seat.) Then tack all along the sides, again starting with the most regular edge. Leave 1½ inches free at corners.

5. TACK CORNERS SECURELY. Fold under extra upholstery material at the corners. Refer back to the original seat cover to see how it was engineered. All the folds must be neat and securely tacked, or they will pucker later. The secret in getting a professional-looking job is to fit the upholstery as tightly and neatly as you can. The result will be worth the extra-careful work.

6. RESET SCREWS. Your upholstering job is finished. Test all screw lengths before you put any of them back in the chair. The screws should be about ¼ inch longer than the thickness of the corner block so that they will hold the seat firmly without splitting through the padding or upholstery. Since screw lengths may vary in the different chairs, keep the screws in a small sack tied to the chair frame from which they were taken, to avoid mixing.

Outdoor Planters Are Popular

By Bob Gilmore

DURING the past few years outdoor planter boxes have become one of the most popular features of modern landscaping. They appear especially valuable as a setting for tropical plants. Their widest use at present is with homes classified as having modern architecture. However, outdoor planter boxes will fit in with every type of home.

Growing ornamentals in planter boxes requires a culture entirely different from that recommended for the general garden. Because of the limited root area available, the plants are actually captives. They cannot grow as freely as in their native habitat and consequently compensating factors must be provided.

Your first consideration should be the growing medium and you will be wise to utilize what is known as a planter mix. Do not use soil, even potting soil, as it tends to cake and crust over when wet. Excess watering causes soil to sour, thus inhibiting healthy plant growth. In addition, where adequate drainage is lacking, moisture will accumulate in the bottom of the box and ultimately will drown your plants.

A PLANTER MIX is a growing medium formulated especially for captive plants growing in either indoor or outdoor planter boxes. This medium is also valuable for potted or boxed specimens. It has none of the faults of ordinary soil and contains such products as peat humus, redwood leafmold, oak leafmold, perlite and charcoal, all of which provide an excellent medium for plant growth.

Watering or lack of it can easily make the difference between success and failure but is largely a matter of local growing conditions. Factors that determine the method of watering to a large extent are exposure, humidity, temperature and wind, as well as the demands of the individual plants. Some ornamentals are heavy drinkers, others go a long way on just a little.

You can consider that watering time has arrived if the surface of the planter mix appears dry. The best time for watering is early in the morning, using water that is just slightly tepid. A yellowing of the leaves usually indicates lack of moisture although plants grown in soil may show the same symptoms if drainage is inadequate.

FEEDING PROBLEMS also must be solved. Plants grown in outdoor planter boxes should be fed regularly. Be cautious and do not overfeed. It is better to err on the side of too little, rather than too much food. The easiest, safest and cleanest method of feeding these ornamentals is with a liquid food, especially one of the new leaf-feeding products.

The leaf-feeding nutrients are almost instantly available. They are also water soluble so you may apply them with a sprinkling can. The excess dripping off the leaves will be absorbed by the roots. When properly applied, leaf-feeding products will not burn the plant tissues.

The weed problem should be practically non-existent. Those that appear should be pulled out when young. As a matter of fact, this is good gardening procedure even in the outdoor garden. Flowers should be removed before going to seed to prolong the flowering period.

Flowering subjects as well as foliage ornamentals may be grown to good advantage in outdoor planter boxes.

Tips on Gardening

TIPS FOR THE WEEK . . . Try planting a citrus. For a lawn specimen select the tangelo, a cross between a grapefruit and a tangerine. The fruits are juicy and delicious. The trees exceedingly ornamental.

Avocados also deserve your attention if you have the room for them. Be sure to provide adequate drainage. Encourage a husky spring growth by feeding all your plants with a well balanced commercial plant food.

Don't relax for a moment your vigilance on garden pests. Spraying is no longer an irksome job. Utilize the sprayers that may be attached to the water hose. The pressure does all the work. All you have to do is direct the flow of the spray.

Lilac-Hued

Rose Twilight

DEVELOPED from grey pearl and lavender Pinocchio strains, Twilight, a new hybrid tea rose has been announced by Jackson & Perkins Co. Twilight has a pastel shade of lavender lilac with a light silvery reverse. The bud is pointed and the flower opens gradually to a high centered bloom. It is expected to meet wide favor among professional and amateur arrangers. Flowers are usually borne singly on 12-15 inch stems on a plant that grows to about two feet high and has good foliage. Color is best under normal, not extreme conditions. The developers claim Twilight to be an outstanding novelty and a further step toward blue roses.

Sweet Peas From Overseas

—Budger Photo.

Everlasting Sweet Pea, a native of England that's adaptable to Long Beach gardens, is a perennial.

By Murtha Hurley

ONE OF ENGLAND'S most popular native flowers is Everlasting Sweet Pea, Lathyrus latifolia, a medium sized trailing plant both ornamental and hardy.

It blooms in summer and grows easily from seed.

Long Beach gardeners hardly know the pretty plan although seed stores display it.

If you seek a graceful, decorative vining plant of medium height, 5 to 8 feet, this perennial sweet pea will delight you.

In late summer the plants, with foliage and stems like sweet peas, bear countless large clusters of flowers resembling sweet peas. They continue to bloom until fall if wilted flowers are kept snipped. For training on a trellis, a wall or fence, a pergola or archway or down a bank or sprawling over rocks, Perennial Sweat Pea will serve well. Flowers are white, pink and reddish purple.

It is a quick, vigorous grower, very hardy.

Long Beach climate, with warm summers and deep, cool, fertile soil that does not dry out too readily is ti the liking of this perennial.

Give the plants a slightly shaded location and generous watering in hot weather and they will prove to gladden the summer garden, year in and year out.

Sow the seeds in pots or flats in late winter and transplant seedlings into the garden in early spring. Put them where you wish them to stay permanently, since they do not like to be moved.

A weak solution of liquid manure, given every two weeks assures generous blooming and sturdy plants. Also a mulch of well rotted cow manure is good in summer.

Imagine... Cherries on Bushes

. . . A SHRUB TO BEAUTIFY YOUR GARDEN

. . . DELICIOUS CHERRIES FOR THE FAMILY

All you need to enjoy home grown cherries is one of these good looking shrubs, just the right size for any sunny corner of your garden. Snowy white cherry blossoms line each branch in early spring, and you'll pick delightful crops of cherries in mid-summer.

KOREAN CHERRY NO. 20

The taller growing—5 to 6 feet. The fruit is excellent with just enough tartness to make this the best for pies and cherry preserves. Bears best if No. 60 is planted nearby for cross pollination.

Bare root plants 2 to 2½ ft. $3.75 each

KOREAN CHERRY NO. 60

Lower growing (3 to 4 feet). The large fruit is deep maroon, sweet, and richly flavored. Resembles everyone's favorite, the Tartarian cherry in color and flavor.

Bare root plants 1½ to 2 ft. $3.75 each

SPECIAL → Today through Feb. 1 (At Armstrong salesyards only) 1 Plant of Korean Cherry No. 20 and one of No. 60 for only... 4.95

Slick and Deadly

By Fred Taylor Kraft

Independent-Press-Telegram Book Editor

PROBABLY the slickest of the slick card sharps on the grand gambling circuit of the hell-roaring west of the 1870s and 1880s, with no less than 16 notches in his gun, John Henry (Doc) Holliday was a good bet to be an enemy of the law and die with his boots on.

And yet he wasn't and he didn't. True, he defied sheriffs and lawmen generally until he showed up in Dodge City, a wide-open, shoot-'em-up railway terminus for fabulous trail herds moving up from Texas. There he met Wyatt Earp, a U. S. marshal, and these two took a liking to each other. Thereafter, when Earp was in a tight spot, Holliday was at his side with his nickel-plated .45.

Doc drifted west from Georgia with what doctors said was only a few months to live with consumption. They called him Doc because he was a dentist — well educated, with fine manners — but he drank two or three quarts of liquor a day and even rugged individuals with a killing toothache hesitated to step into his chair. Finally, outliving the time doctors had given him here on earth, he invaded the worst gambling dens. He coughed incessantly and his hands shook, but not when dealing or with a pistol in his hand; then, he was cold, calm and deadly.

It was Doc Holliday who helped Earp clean up Dodge and it was Doc who came to his rescue in Tombstone's O. K. Corral, against the Clanton gang, which was made up of some of the toughest hombres who ever lived. And, finally, it was Doc who saved Earp from the hangman's noose. A little later, after lingering for months in a sanitarium, he went to his own "Boot Hill."

Women were a species which bothered Doc not at all; that is, no woman except Big Nose Kate. She was in and out of his life for years, this tempestuous creature of the red-light district. But finally the cunning Doc figured out a way to get rid of her.

It's all told in "Doc Holliday" (Little, Brown, $4.50), a beautifully written book by John Myers Myers. You're going to sit up late with this one.

MORE AMERICANA: The saga of country towns of midwest America from the Civil War to the present is told with humor, tolerance and considerable affection by Lewis Atherton in "Main Street on the Middle Border" (Indian University Press, $6). Vivid writing is provided in Atherton's description of how boys learned the facts of life in the village livery stable.

A KING LOOKS BACK: Cannon boomed in the courtyard and within the royal palace in Belgrade, solemn toasts were raised on a September day in 1923 to the new-born heir to the throne of Yugoslavia. At age 11 he was to become king of a nation of 16 million people; at 20 he was to be a king without a country. Peter II of Yugoslavia tells the story in his autobiography, "A King's Heritage" (Putnam's, $5).

SECOND NOVEL: Garald Lagard, 432 Redondo Ave., whose "Scarlet Cockerel" was an alternate selection of the Literary Guild, will have his second novel published in the spring. William Morrow & Co. announces his book, "Leaps the Live Thunder," which has a War Between the States setting, will be published May 25. Lagard's short stories have appeared in leading magazines. He is instructor in creative writing in Long Beach City College's School for Adults.

NEW PAPERBACKS you'll like: "Dakota Rifle," a western by Frank O'Rourke (Dell First Edition, $.25); "How to Help Your Doctor Help You," a guide to health by Dr. Walter C. Alvarez (Dell, $.35).

FRANK RICHMOND

Ummm. Good

MONSIEUR Frank Jimmy Richmond, major domo at the superb Francois Manhattan Restaurant, 1909 E. 4th St., has done it again.

Now he's serving another new entree which draws applause from his patrons.

This dish is Stuffed Mushrooms and it's guaranteed to put new life into any jaded palate. The mushrooms are three-inch giants grown especially for the Manhattan in a small cavern in Laguna Beach. They are stuffed with succulent chicken livers and sliced chicken, baked under a copper salamander and served with rice, piping hot, topped with a delicious Hollandaise sauce. Each patron gets six of these brobdingnagian (that's a word?) delights, or 10 or 12 of the medium-sized ones. (The size of the mushrooms depends on what's available each week at the Laguna cavern.)

Costing only $2.50 complete, the Stuffed Mushroom dinner includes the Manhattan's lavish tray of chilled relishes, all the soup you can eat served from a tureen left at the table, a big fancy salad, dessert and coffee.

Another Manhattan dish which is a favorite of the patrons is Beef Stroganoff, which is $3.25 on the same fine complete dinner. The Stroganoff includes onions simmered in white wine and then added to the sauteed beef and sour cream.

Incidentally, splendid bluepoint oysters and cherry-stone clams arrive at the Manhattan twice weekly, rushed by air express from Maryland.

The Manhattan serves luncheons daily from 11 a. m. to 4 p. m. and dinners from 4 to midnight. Sunday hours are 4 to 11 p. m. The restaurant is closed Mondays.

A New Kind Of Proven Medication

FOR PEOPLE WHO REALLY SUFFER FROM HEADACHE!

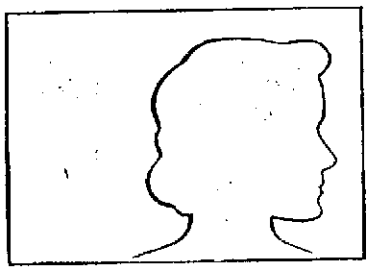

New [redacted] analgesic capsules contain Salicylamide—amazing scientific ingredient proved three times more effective than aspirin!

[redacted] relieves headache pain where other remedies often fail, because . . .

Sentrol is not a pill . . . not a tablet . . . but a high-potency capsule containing a newly-acclaimed scientific ingredient called Salicylamide—proved three times more effective than aspirin, yet as safe as aspirin.

Sentrol relieves pain faster because the amazing ingredient, Salicylamide, reaches the headache zone faster. It loses no time in the bloodstream . . . goes directly to soothe the central nervous system.

Sentrol is compounded for the express purpose of bringing relief to people who really suffer from headache pain. Sentrol is tasteless . . . so easy to swallow . . . does not upset the stomach.

Sentrol is a different type of medication . . . a new formula never before available . . . using a newly-acclaimed ingredient, Salicylamide, proved three times more effective than aspirin, yet as safe as aspirin.

So if you get the kind of simple headaches that make you really miserable with pain, and aspirin doesn't help, you'll be grateful for the blessed relief that Sentrol brings you quickly.

Don't wait until your next headache has you suffering again. Prepare for it by getting Sentrol high-potency capsules today—at all drug counters in handy vials at 33¢ and 59¢.

SO EASY TO SWALLOW . . . TASTELESS . . . DOES NOT UPSET STOMACH.

'This Old House' Goes Down to Make Way for the Oil Barons of '55

Black Gold Again Floods Beach City

By BERT RESNIK and JIM COMBS

Cadillac Lane is a sleepy street right off the main shopping district of Huntington Beach. In less than a month it has out-Texased oil-wealthy Texas.

For this onetime palm-tree-lined side street has become the center of what the community Chamber of Commerce manager describes as "the biggest oil boom we've ever had."

And Huntington Beach had two multi-million-dollar booms in the '20s.

Along Cadillac Lane, officially designated as 2nd St. in the city map books, drilling rigs bloom like dandelions.

Drilling crews stand behind house wreckers waiting for the homes to tumble. Apprehensively, they eye the rigs across the street.

Time is money here, big money. No one knows how extensive is the new oil pool, but everyone knows the quicker they hit it the more they'll get.

There's a story going around town about a man who signed a lease on his place after dinner one evening, then was awakened the same night by the sound of the wreckers pulling off his roof.

If the '20s were fabulous, the year 1955 cannot be considered anything but fantastic for this beach community.

But it's a profitable fantasy for Mr. Average Householder who was fortunate enough to require the mineral rights to his property when he bought his home.

Louis J. Fraser, the town barber, overnight became one of the principal owners of two backyard wells.

"Got to move, of course," he said, "but maybe I can get on the other side of Main St. Figure the boom's moving that way.

"Alice, my wife, is a little disturbed at the idea of moving, but she'll get over it.

"Wait until she sees that first check next month."

Fraser figures it could be a five or six-figure sum. Not bad for an average size householder lot.

And he figures there's more from where that came, enough to allow him to hang up his clippers for the rest of his life.

"I ought to get a decent living out of this," he said.

He's given his share of the barber shop at 106 Main St. to his partner, Web Conklin.

Along with the influx of excited oil workers from Oklahoma, Texas, Arizona and from other parts of California, has come another breed.

"Lease hounds," says H. Lee Norris, a realtor at 205 Main St. "All of a sudden we have hundreds who have entered the real estate business.

"State law requires anybody in the brokerage or lease business to have a license—but these

Rhonda Says Mate Broke Into Boudoir

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Red-haired Rhonda Fleming Saturday accused her estranged husband of breaking down her bedroom door after she returned home from Europe Friday night and declared she would seek court action Monday to throw him out of the house.

The beautiful actress said she took possession of the bedroom and locked the door in a fury because Dr. Lou Merrill, she insisted, wasn't even supposed to be in the house.

But the doctor claimed he owned half the bed and battered down the door with his shoulder, she said.

"I had to sleep on the couch," wailed the shapely actress.

She explained she had planned to seek a long-delayed divorce from the handsome surgeon in Switzerland, where she was resting from picture-making, but that he asked her to return to California for the divorce.

"Before I came home, my attorney informed Lou that he would have to move out of the house," she said. "When I walked in, last night, with my luggage and 12-year-old son, Kent, Lou was in the house. I told him I was tired and going to bed.

"I took a shower, locked the door and jumped into bed. Suddenly he shouted that it was his bedroom and he was going to sleep in it. He broke down the door and came in. I was so tired, I took a pillow and slept on the living room couch."

She said she had instructed her attorney, Jerry Lipske, to seek court action Monday to put Merrill out of the home.

"I bought the house and everything in it," Rhonda said. "He claims he has a certain equity in the house, so I guess we have a battle on our hands."

Slums in the Forest

Visitors to any of our national parks will be interested in the recent Reader's Digest article referring to them as "slums." If the visitors spend most of their time around the swanky hotels in the parks they will not see this slum condition. But if they rent a tent or cabin among hundreds of others, they will recognize the condition described by the Digest article.

It is a controversial discussion of what our national parks should provide. The Digest writer would have all frills such as swimming pools, tennis courts and cocktail bars abolished. He would even stop the continued improvement of roads with six-lane highways right up to the main hotel door. The Digest writer believes national parks should be maintained for nature lovers who go to see the trees and waterfalls. He is against the summer

AEC Unable to Take Any Big Decision

Politics Splits Board 1 to 1, With Third Member Abstaining

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

WASHINGTON (UP)—A voting stalemate has made the Atomic Energy Commission impotent to act on controversial issues.

Informed sources said Saturday that the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee is acutely aware of the situation and plans to do something about it soon.

The stalemate stems from fundamental differences between AEC chairman Lewis L. Strauss and Commissioner Thomas E. Murray.

It is aggravated by the fact that the commission is not up to its full statutory strength of five members.

Under the law, three commissioners constitute a quorum for making policy decisions.

The AEC has three voting members—Strauss, Murray, and Dr. Willard F. Libby.

But Libby, a newcomer to the capital, has taken a neutral position on all issues controversially tinged with politics. Stated as a human equation, the situation is: Strauss vs. Murray equals stalemate.

Dr. John Von Neumann is serving on the commission under a recess appointment by President Eisenhower, but he has been sidelined since the new Congress convened by the fact that he has not yet been confirmed by the Senate.

The fifth AEC membership has been vacant since Joseph Campbell resigned to accept a presidential nomination to the post of comptroller general.

The voting stalemate could be broken by Senate confirmation of Von Neumann.

But the congressional atomic committee has not yet held a hearing on Von Neumann. Chairman Clinton P. Anderson (D-N.M.), fully aware of the AEC's current impotence, has given high priority for such a hearing.

The committee may set a date for it next week. Quick approval of Von Neumann is expected.

For the AEC to be beset by political discord is a relatively new thing. All concerned deplore it. The major villain in the piece is the Dixon-Yates power contract which President Eisenhower last year ordered the commission to negotiate.

Strauss himself, although he supports the contract, has said he would be happier if the AEC had not got involved in this issue.

Murray has stated in congressional hearings that he deplores the injection of politics—the issue of public vs. private power—into AEC business.

He is known to feel the commission's main business, perfection of nuclear weapons and development of peaceful uses of the atom, is more important than any squabble over who provides the electrical energy it needs.

Bay Woman's Death Dream Comes True!

OAKLAND (AP) — Mrs. Jennie Terrell, 38-year-old elevator operator, "dreamed" three weeks ago of the death that came to her Saturday — the death circumstances recorded by her own camera.

The woman's husband, Hardesty, told police that his wife, about three weeks ago, said she "dreamed" she was sitting on a window sill to have her picture taken and fell to her death.

Saturday during lunch hour on the sixth floor of the Medical Building at 3022 E. 14th St., she asked Mrs. Clara Young, 33, of Oakland, another elevator operator, to "take some pictures of me" seated in an open window.

Mrs. Young took one. She cranked the film roll and looked through the viewfinder for another — but Mrs. Terrell was gone. Her body fell in a parking lot six floors below. The developed snapshot showed her sitting in the window, apparently at ease.

Homicide Inspector Leonard Fake said Mrs. Terrell suffered from a heart ailment and had dizzy spells.

Trunk Lid Falls, Child's Head Cut

All Britt Watson, 4, of 1058 Olive Ave., wanted to see Saturday afternoon was the interior of the trunk compartment of his dad's auto.

Dad, Orville Watson, stood by at Seaside Hospital when doctors took five stitches in Britt's head to close the wound caused when the lid crashed down on the tyke. He was sent home after treatment.

Man Rescued From Blazing Bathroom

Trapped in the bathroom of his blazing apartment, a 43-year-old Long Beach man was rescued Saturday night by heroic neighbors who crashed through a locked door and dragged him to safety.

Unhurt in his brush with death was Fred L. Bower, of 502 E. 11th St.

His rescuers were Mr. and Mrs. William Rix, who live downstairs in the same building. They told firemen that they had heard Bower pounding on the floor, but thought he was pulling down a wall bed in his apartment.

"Then a woman came to the door and shouted that the whole upstairs was on fire," Rix said. "We ran up the back stairs and broke down the kitchen door.

"We heard Fred yelling 'Here I am, here I am,' but we couldn't find him in the smoke."

Groping through the smoke and searing heat, they finally located the almost unconscious Bower in the bathroom, where he had crawled in desperation after missing the front door.

The Rixes were aided by an unidentified man, who left soon after Bower's rescue.

Battalion Chief U. L. Monroe said the blaze was started by a cigarette smouldering in the couch where Bower slept.

Only casualty in the blaze was Bower's pet parakeet, Butch.

Snow-Sport Fans Flock to Heights

Southland snow fans were jamming mountain resorts this weekend to take advantage of excellent skiing conditions and sunny weather as the weather bureau predicted a return to normal January coolness in the next few days.

Reports from Lake Arrowhead, Big Bear and Camp Baldy indicated perfect winter sport weather, with no chains required on main roads and snow sufficiently hard packed for skiing.

Big Bear, Blue Jay and Green Valley all reported 36 to 54 inches of packed snow, with temperatures ranging in the 60's with similar conditions listed for other areas.

For the Long Beach region, the weatherman forecast increasing high cloudiness today, becoming mostly cloudy Monday with a drop in temperature.

Public Cautioned of Atomic Tests in Nevada Area

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission warned Saturday that persons near the boundaries of the Nevada test site when a new series of atomic tests is conducted in mid-February "may expose themselves to serious danger."

"The area of danger may extend throughout the portions of the Las Vegas Bombing and Gunnery Range from southeast to northwest of NTS Nevada Test Site," said the AEC announcement.

"Caution is also advised for individuals in the general area. The flash of light, for instance, can cause temporary eye damage under some circumstances to observers who are off-site but who are looking directly at the fireball. The use of binoculars or rifle scopes intensifies the danger."

Ranchers, prospectors, miners, migrants, private fliers and hunters were particularly warned to stay away from the area of the tests.

Young Spaniards' Blood Boils at 'Invasion' by Yankee Bucks

By TOM STONE

MADRID (AP)—Twelve thousand U. S. airmen and sailors are coming to Spain. And the senoritas are blushing coyly.

"This is no good," said a hot-blooded Madrid youth, mad enough to fight a bull. "The Americano, he has much money and the Spaniard he is poor but proud.

"What can I do? I make not many pesetas a day. The Americano makes much much more. I think all that money will turn the head of my sweetheart."

The senoritas are less excited—outwardly, anyway. One, asked what she thought about the Americans coming to Spain, fluttered her long black eyelashes and smiled sweetly.

"We shall wait and see, no?"

The Americans will run five air bases, now under construction or planned, in partnership with the Spanish air force. Six hundred Americans have arrived. Others will come as the bases get nearer completion.

The U. S. Army is not sending troops to Spain, so the airmen won't have to worry about GI competition.

The code of Spanish romance is strict. Duennas (chaperones) accompany senoritas on all dates. The girls play for keeps—a lifetime of wedded bliss. Carefree Yanks are forewarned.

There have been six marriages between young Americans and Spanish girls. Many more are expected.

The United States and Spain are coming together on a mutual agreement concerning such marriages.

Military weddings here are no more difficult to arrange than they are in England, France and Germany, unless one or the other principals is a Catholic and one is not. In that case, dispensation has to be obtained from Spanish Roman Catholic authorities.

Two Catholics or two non-Catholics getting married present little or no problem.

The whole question is so touchy, pending completion of the agreement, that the U. S. Air Force's top chaplain in Spain, Lt. Col. Raymond Stadta, has been asked by his superior officers not to comment.

The Joint U. S. Military Group has issued a statement that "the religious rights of American military personnel in Spain will be fully protected."

A JUSMG spokesman adds: "We're guests of Spain and we must follow her customs."

Evacuation of Tachen Isles Believed Set

Pacific Naval, Air Commanders Confer on Formosa Bastion

By SPENCER MOOSA

TAIPEH (Sunday) (AP) — America's Pacific naval and air force commanders flew to Taipeh today, reportedly to coordinate plans to evacuate Nationalist troops and civilians from the Red-threatened Tachen islands, already reported under Communist artillery fire.

Adm. Felix B. Stump arrived in a military transport plane from Honolulu with Maj. Gen. Sory Smith, commander of Pacific air forces. A Navy spokesman said the admiral would leave tonight to return to his Pearl Harbor headquarters.

Stump lunched with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and scheduled a new conference for 4:30 p.m.

He also met with Nationalist Defense Minister Yu Ta-wei. A high Chinese source said his meetings with the Nationalist leaders "could not have been more harmonious." This was taken to indicate that evacuation plans for the Tachens were virtually complete and that no last minute balking by the Chinese Nationalists has developed.

"Everything is going according to plan," one high Chinese said.

A group of high-ranking Nationalist officers from Formosa arrived at the Tachens today to direct the coming withdrawal of Gen. Liu Lien-yi's 15,000-man garrison, it was stated.

The official Nationalist Central News Agency said one of the Tachen islands was under Communist artillery fire twice Saturday from Yikiangshan Island, which the Communists captured recently. Yikiangshan lies eight miles north of the northernmost of the Tachen group.

Saturday night Nationalist bombers took up the retaliatory fire and in different waves during the night continued to bomb Red military targets along Yikiangshan's rocky coast, Nationalist Air Force headquarters announced. All planes returned safely, the Air Force said.

War Powers Bill Signed by President

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the signing of his own name, President Eisenhower Saturday attained complete, push-button power to fight Red China if necessary in defense of Formosa. He called this a step for peace in the war-charged area.

resort atmosphere and big business that controls the great national parks such as Yosemite.

It is a challenging approach to an important subject. Far too many of our people do make slums of our national parks. They are the kind of people who throw beer cans around and who cut down live trees when there are dead branches, suitable for firewood, in abundance. There are far too many people who go to national parks for the sole purpose of sports such as tennis, golf and social evenings. The Digest article writer insists these people should not be subsidized in enjoyment of their vacations.

The Digest writer gives evidence of what he opposes. He shows that at Yellowstone Park on a given day last year 16,435 tourists arrived. Many of them stood in line most of the day seeking accommodations. When the final decision was made some 6,000 had to sleep in their cars.

There were only 116 rangers for that entire great area. That is 20 less than in 1932. But the visitors were there. Traffic jams were serious throughout the park. Fewer rangers, who are the police force of our national parks, were available than when we had only a sixth as many people visiting those parks.

One who loves these national parks is depressed to realize the Digest writer is correct. Each lover of these parks can visualize the beer cans, the garbage thrown into beautiful pools and streams, and the papers scattered in all directions.

Certainly one cannot credit the people who cause this degradation of the forest with being lovers of nature. They are defilers of all that is clean and beautiful. They are the arsonists who burn this beauty by their wanton carelessness.

Why then should these people be lured to the forests by government-financed tennis courts and golf courses? That is the challenging point made by the January Digest article entitled, "The Shocking Truth About Our National Parks."

As individuals we may not agree with the reasoning. But it should cause each of us to be more careful of our conduct when visiting these beautiful places. This writer would not restrict the many recreational facilities, but he would advocate doubling the ranger force and that severe penalties be given to anyone who contributed to making slums of our last great reservations of national beauty. —L.A.C.

U.N. to Press for Stop-Fire Despite Snubs

UNITED NATIONS (UP)—The western powers went ahead Saturday with plans for a United Nations Security Council meeting Monday to discuss a Formosa area cease-fire despite flat rejection of the idea by both the Chinese Nationalists and the Communists.

Communist China will be invited to send representatives to New York to argue the case before the United Nations, which has repeatedly voted against seating the Chinese Reds as U.N. members.

Peiping radio broadcast another tirade against the United States Saturday, vowing to "strike back with heavy blows" if U.S. armed forces "dare attack" Communist forces attempting to "liberate" Formosa.

At the same time the Nationalists reiterated their "irrevocable" opposition to U.N. attempts to bring about an armistice in the Formosa area, maintaining that they had the right to reconquer the Chinese mainland—the same way the Reds do it—by force.

Despite the flat opposition of both belligerents, there was no let up in U.N. efforts to get a cease-fire. Sir Leslie Knox Munro of New Zealand, Security Council president for January, was expected to take the lead in inviting the Reds to send representatives to the debate, with India playing a prominent role as go-between.

Munro made it clear that the U.N. debate does not involve Formosa or the nearby Pescadores islands, which President Eisenhower has been given congressional permission to defend. He said the debate will be confined to the "question of hostilities in the area of certain islands off the coast of mainland China."

Three Children Die in Blazing Residence

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UP) — Three small children were burned to death Saturday and the sobbing mother said the oldest, 4-year-old Ima Jean, probably started the fire while playing with matches.

The charred bodies of Ima Jean; Russhel Boston Jr., 3; and Clarence Earl, 1, were found in the ruins of their two-room home. Both parents were away when the fire started and returned when the blaze was out of control.

Big Developments Due in Atom-Weapon Field

By ED CREAGH

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission Saturday held out the prospect of new "major developments" in the field of atomic weapons.

AEC said, in a semiannual report to Congress, that "new areas of research" were opened by last spring's "Operation Castle" tests in the Pacific.

It said also new tests to start in about two weeks at the Nevada test site are needed "to obtain scientific knowledge essential to development and utilitization of nuclear weapons for defense of this nation and the free world."

AEC gave no details in the report and officials declined to elaborate on it.

There was unofficial speculation, however, that the "new areas" might have to do with (1) long-range hydrogen-bomb guided missiles, (2) shorter-range missiles aimed at knocking down atomic-armed aerial invading craft, or (3) better ways of making atomic weapons.

Another possibility—that some sort of super-hydrogen-bomb might be in the works—appeared less likely.

The AEC report gave these other progress highlights of the nation's atomic energy program, which it said has cost $13,200,000,000 since its beginning in World War II:

1. "Added emphasis" on peacetime uses of atomic energy as a result of new authority given by the Cole-Hickenlooper act of 1954.

2. Greater participation by private industry in atomic development, especially in experimental production of atomic power for commercial use. The report said AEC now has "evolved a pattern for research and development from which it believes will come nuclear power plants that will compete with other sources of energy."

3. Continued stress on research into the uses of radioactive materials to treat cancer and other diseases.

Trial Dates Reset for 5 in Santa Ana

SANTA ANA—Superior Court trial dates of five men accused under two Orange County Grand Jury indictments charging liquor license manipulations were on new schedules today, as two others won continuance of their arraignments under another true bill.

Judge Franklin G. West vacated the Feb. 7 trial date of Herman Pause, A. G. Eldred and Takeo Takekoshi and reset it for March 21.

Pause, suspended liquor-control chief for Orange County; Eldred, onetime million - dollar - a - year realty operator now in prison for grand theft and forgery of trust deeds, and Takekoshi, a Los Angeles man accused of manipulating liquor licenses in Eldred's El Robert Co., are charged with conspiracy.

Retrial of Charles E. (Red) Devine, executive secretary of the Orange County Central Labor Council, and Harry Lehman, business agent for the Culinary Workers' Union at Long Beach, will be March 28. A trial jury disagreed on the conspiracy -to -commit -grand-theft count linking the two labor leaders.

Arraignment of Al Tossas and Louis Trapani on three counts, one charging conspiracy to bribe liquor officials and the other two alleging conspiracy to commit grand theft from William A. McClure of Dana Point, was continued until March 25.

Tossas, 51, of 924 Dawson St., Long Beach, a cafe man; and Trapani, 40, a beer salesman now in Chino Prison under San Diego County conviction of similar charges, have three times won continuances of their arraignment.

NEW AEC CHIEF?

Richard W. Cook, deputy general manager of the Atomic Energy Commission, was reported in Washington Saturday as due for promotion to general manager, succeeding Maj. Gen. Kenneth Nichols. —(AP Wirephoto.)

AEC Manager Resigning, He Says, to Boost Earnings

WASHINGTON (UP) — Maj. Gen. Kenneth D. Nichols disclosed Saturday that he is resigning as general manager of the Atomic Energy Commission, effective May 1, to go into private business as a consulting engineer.

R. W. Cook, now deputy general manager, is considered a likely candidate to succeed him as operating head of the nation's $13,200,000,000 atomic production complex.

Nichols, a career Army officer who played a leading role in the pioneering of the wartime Manhattan District atomic bomb project, has been general manager since Nov. 1, 1953.

In his letter of resignation, submitted to AEC Chairman Lewis L. Strauss on Jan. 17, he said he wanted to go into private business for "personal reasons."

Elaborating on that statement, Saturday, he told a reporter that, after 30 years of government service, he feels he has an obligation to "earn more money" to provide for the education of his two children. His AEC salary is $20,000 a year.

He emphasized that his departure was not motivated by "any conflict of any kind" over policies or programs. He thanked Strauss warmly for the chairman's "support and confidence during the time I have been general manager."

Nichols and Strauss have been closely allied on both of the two big controversies that have shaken the commission in the past year. Both favored revoking the security clearance of the noted physicist, Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, and both supported the Dixon-Yates power contract.

The AEC has not yet formally acted on Nichols' resignation.

Dick Haymes Settles

War Powers Bill Signed by President

to end the present hostilities in the area, but we also are united in our determination to defend an area vital to the security of the United States and the free world."

Eisenhower, Secretary of State Dulles and the Joint Chiefs of Staff had already worked out orders for initial use of the special authority—overwhelmingly voted by Congress.

Informants said the first problem was use of the U. S. 7th Fleet with air cover for evacuation of the division of Chinese Nationalist troops from the Tachen Islands, and that this operation would now proceed.

The President read a statement after affixing his signature at 8:42 a. m. to the joint congressional resolution. He stressed both the warlike and the peaceful aspects of the unprecedented action, which began Monday when he asked Congress to endorse his Formosa policy and establish beyond question his power to carry it out.

The House first approved the joint resolution Tuesday by a vote of 409-3. Friday night, after a bitter argument over the extent of the Presient's powers and whether he could order a "preventive war" against Communist China, the Senate adopted the resolution 85-3.

Under it Eisenhower now has clear authority through his own constitutional powers and from Congress to use American armed forces to defend Formosa against any attack in the island itself or on any island off the Red China shore. He also has authority to use American forces against any concentration of troops assembled on the Communist mainland for the presumed purpose of invading Formosa.

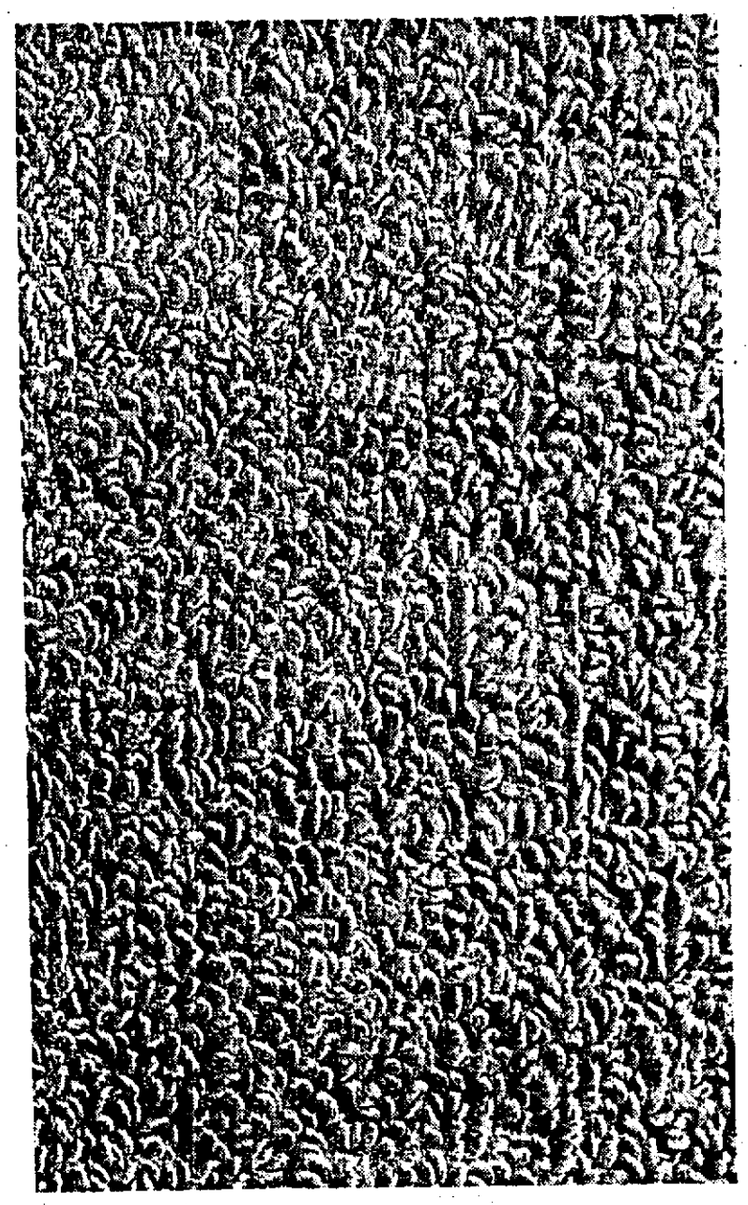

The evacuation of the Tachen Islands 200 miles north of Formosa will involve grave risks of some American losses, administration officials believe, and so will the redeployment of Chiang Kai-shek's forces to Formosa or to such key offshore positions as the Quemoys and Matsus. It was understood here that American pilots will have the right of "hot pursuit" if Chinese jets attack and then run back over the China mainland, a right denied them during the Korean war.

The Eisenhower administration apparently felt no sense of emergency as a result of the signing of the resolution and the imminence of 7th Fleet operations under it.

At 11:09 a.m. the President arrived in Augusta, Ga., for a golfing weekend, and Secretary of State Dulles left about the same time for a week's fishing and rest in the Bahamas.

Aides said both men would be quickly available if officials standing by in Washington needed them.

U.S: Must Use U.N., Dr. Chen Warns Here

This is a year of decision not only in the Far East but in the world with momentous happenings probable in the next few months, warned Dr. Theodore Hsi-en Chen, USC professor, Saturday when he addressed the first Southern California convention of the American Assn. for the United Nations.

Dr. Chen, head of the USC Department of Asiatic Studies and professor of international relations, who recently returned from a trip to Formosa, spoke at the convention in Lafayette Hotel. More than 100 delegates from 24 chapters from Santa Barbara to the Southern California border attended.

DR. HSI-EN CHEN

Formosa, Indo-China and Thailand all constitute "explosive situations," he said, with at the moment the spotlight on Formosa.

"The United States must take leadership with the United Nations," he said, "It can not shirk that leadership. The United Nations has a wonderful opportunity to go into Formosa with education, culture and ideology and give Formosa a life that is not only better but very different from that of the Red China mainland."

Even though it pours out billions in aid over the world, the luncheon meeting of the one-day United States meets not only lack of appreciation but downright suspicion unless it acts through the United Nations, he said.

"I rejoice," he said, "that in Korea the United States acted as part of the United Nations. . . Unfortunately, in Indo-China where the United States has spent millions of dollars, the United States is suspected of sustaining French colonization."

Dr. Chen expects important decisions from the forthcoming Southeastern Asia conference in Bangkok and the Asia-Afro conference in Indonesia.

Eastern Asia countries principally want three things, he said: national independence, economic betterment and reform and modernization. "Reform and modernization, broadly speaking, mean democracy," he said.

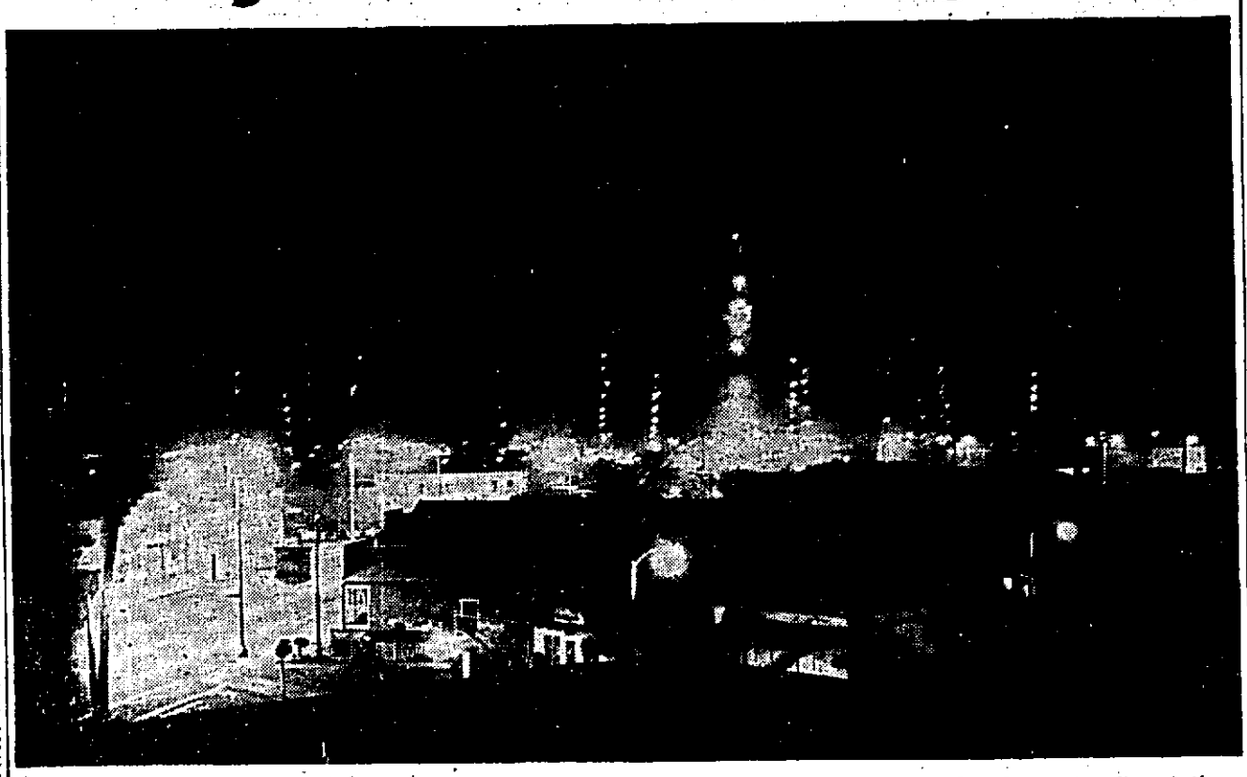

The menace, he said, is that communism promises these things.

He believes that aid first should be given on a military level," for without military might we have nothing—we invite aggression." Then he thinks it should be given on an economic level then on an ideological level.

Applause greeted his statement "A democracy can not afford to support the status quo."

Huntington Beach Booms Night, Day

Egypt and Iraq Wrangle Anew at Arabs' Parley

CAIRO, Egypt (UP)—A fresh outburst of wrangling between Egypt and Iraq over the western-supported Turkish-Iraqi defense pact prolonged the Arab League premiers' conference Saturday night.

The Arab League nations other than Iraq had been expected to bypass an invitation to join Turkey and Iraq and instead ask for American arms to be used in a pan-Arabic security system. Turkey is non-Arab and a partner in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Egyptian officials emerging from what was to have been a final conciliatory session were quoted as saying a new crisis had developed and the expected communique ending the conference would not be issued Saturday night.

'Biggest Oil Boom Yet' Dazzles, Jolts, Begrimes Huntington Beach

fellows are getting away without them.

"They'll come in and maybe buy one per cent of a lease for $6,000, then turn it over the next day for twice that amount."

For it's not only Cadillac Lane that's petroleum plated.

Sixth, Seventh and Eighth Sts. are beginning to enter the picture.

Reginald Pate, mailman, lives at 522 14th St. He figures to be in on the boom.

"They're drilling a half block from me now," he said. "I'm keeping my fingers crossed.

Pate's regular delivery route carries him along Cadillac Lane.

"Regular jungle of derricks now," he said. "Used to be packed solid with houses.

Two motel-courts still stand on the street. As Pete spoke, the "Vacancy" sign on one vibrated with the tempo of the drilling rig next to it.

But it was no longer a sign of the times. The motel rooms have been converted to keep pace with the tremors. They are now field offices for oil companies.

The new boom started when a young Long Beach trumpet player with a college degree in geology hit a layer of oil-rich sand at 3800 feet.

The trumpeter, Jack B. Crawford, 23, has interests in five producing wells in Huntington Beach now and the sound of the pumps is sweet music to his ears.

William Gallienne, secretary-manager of the Huntington Beach Chamber of Commerce, is one of those who was in the community during the oil booms of 1920 and 1926.

"I don't know where this one will end," he said. "This is the biggest one we've ever had."

And it looks big—and dirty.

Streets are torn up. Gardens are lakes of mud. Rubble of the wrecked homes litters the sidewalks.

There's tension, distrust.

There's the fever that comes with being newly rich.

And there is the jealousy of those who haven't. They have dire predictions for the city's decline.

The Huntington Beach News, pen in cheek, editorially answered them. It said:

"We have no social aspirations which towering million-dollar oil derricks embarrass."

If Red Flashers of School Bus Are On, Do Not Pass

SACRAMENTO (UP)—Put your foot on the brakes when you see a stopped school bus with flashing red lights, the California Highway Patrol warned Saturday.

"The law requires all drivers approaching a school bus from either direction to stop if the red lights are flashing and wait until they stop flashing," said Commissioner B. R. Caldwell.

The only exception, said Caldwell, is when the bus is on the opposite portion of a divided highway.

HOLY SMOKE!

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y. (UP)—For 12 years the Jesuit hermitage at St. Andrews-on-Hudson has had its own fire engine waiting for a possible fire. Friday night the barn burned down and the fire engine was destroyed.

Trained Shepherd Dogs Offered by Tex for Adoption

Albert (Tex) Schuepbach, noted dog and reptile expert, Saturday offered for adoption his two black, German shepherd dogs, Little Boy Blue and Bonnie Blue.

Tex has been under the weather lately with a combination of miseries, including asthma and heart trouble. He feels he doesn't have the energy properly to care for the animals.

The dogs are well trained and obedient.

Those desiring to discuss the matter with Tex can find him at his apartment, 1251½ Locust Ave.

Dance Art Topic

Betty Reid of the Art and Philosophy Department of Long Beach Public Library will review books on the dance at a film and book review program at North Branch Library, 5571 Orange Ave., Tuesday at 7:30 p. m.

NEW RECORDS AT CITY LIBRARY

Suites, ballets and sonatas make a selection of delightful listening easy. The Public Library suggests these new recordings from their collection:

"The Ballet" (conducted by Fiedler, Munch, Monteaux, Toscanini and Stokowski); Rachmaninoff, "Sonata in G Minor" (Joseph Schuster, 'cello, and Leonard Pennario, piano); Rossini, "La Boutique Fantasque" (Philharmonic Orchestra); Stravinski, "Pulcinella," with Respighi, "Old Dances and Airs for the Lute" and Tartini, "Sonata in G Minor for Violin and Clavier" Oistrakh, violin) with Beethoven, "Sonata in F Major for Violin and Piano."

KIN'S BLESSING STILL SOUGHT

Yacht Broker, Heiress in Honeymoon Home

NEWPORT BEACH—John A. Miller, local yacht broker, and his new wife, a young English heiress who defied parental wishes to marry Miller last Thursday in Las Vegas, were in their island honeymoon home Saturday, vowing to make their marriage work.

"We're hoping my parents will change their attitude toward our marriage," said the former Josephine Stuart Henderson, of Horsham, Eng., daughter of Birmingham hotel owner C. S. Henderson.

The couple met last June after the pretty, brunette heiress arrived here to visit relatives.

A trip to England several weeks ago failed to win parental consent of the match. Only 18, the girl could not be married in England without her parents' approval, so the pair decided on the Nevada wedding.

Mrs. Miller said her father was "very much against" the wedding. Her mother, Mrs. John Burroughs, London and Horsham, also opposed the union but in lesser degree, she said.

Miller, 32, divorced by his first wife in San Diego in 1953, plans to sail in the Honolulu yacht race next July and his wife said she would fly to the islands to meet him.

Red-Fascist Clash Injures 18 in Italy

ROME, Italy (UP)—Eighteen students were injured, six seriously, in a battle between Communists and Fascists with clubs and bricks at Rome University Saturday night.

Police broke it up. They said the fight started when the Communists waylaid the young Fascists returning from a rally.

PARTY-LINE HOG ARRESTED IN NEW YORK

RHINBECK, N. Y. (UP)—A woman who reportedly refused to get off a party line in an emergency was arrested Saturday under a state law which went into effect only four months ago.

Mrs. Mary L. Kayes, 43, was charged with a misdemeanor for allegedly refusing to hang up and let Fire Warden Donald Townsend report a grass fire which subsequently destroyed a barn. She was released on $500 bail.

Thief Quickly Gave Up Car, Missed $790

A 1955 auto stolen early Saturday from in front of 2708 Rutgers Ave.—by a thief who overlooked $790 in cash and traveler's checks left in the car—was recovered by police later in the day several blocks away.

Officers said the car had been abandoned in the 4700 block on Sunfield Ave. Clothing left in the auto had not been taken.

Earlier, a hatbox which had been in the car was found on the front lawn of a home at 4826 Faculty Ave. Officers said the thief apparently had not looked closely enough in the box to notice it contained $490 in cash and $300 in traveler's checks.

The owner of the car was listed as Frank I. Tyler, a St. Paul, Minn., police sergeant. Tyler and his wife, Eugenia, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Lannon of the Rutgers Ave. address. Lannon is a retired St. Paul detective.

Seaman Ends Life by Gas

WILMINGTON—Clad only in his underwear, Charles R. Johnson, 31, ended his life in a hotel room here Saturday.

Survivors include the wife, Anneliese, of 328, Elm Ave., Long Beach.

Johnson, a merchant seaman aboard the tanker SS Santa Rosa, was found in a hotel room at 736½ Avalon Blvd., by the landlady, Mrs. Helen Brown. Police said he had turned on a gas jet, and put a blanket over his head as he inhaled the fumes.

Italian Star Has Son

ROME (UP)—Sultry Italian Movie Actress Silvana Mangano Saturday gave birth to a son at the Louisana clinic in the fashionable Rome residential district of Parioli. It was the actress' third child. She married Producer Dino Di Laurentiis in 1949 and they have two daughters.

QUEEN WILL REIGN

Heart Fund Drive Opens With 'Kick-Off' Luncheon

Leaders among business and professional men in the Long Beach area will meet with the women's division of the Heart Fund campaign in the kick-off luncheon of the Long Beach Heart Assn. Tuesday noon at Virginia Country Club.

Keynote speaker will be Rabbi Elliot L. Grafman, and a featured guest will be Columbia Pitcures starlet Lucy Marlow, who is Queen of Hearts for Los Angeles County.

She will crown the Long Beach Heart Queen, to be announced at the luncheon. Mayor George Vermillion will proclaim February as Heart Fund month.

The heart fund committee will provide information, education, research and other services in the fight to reduce the toll taken each year by heart disease, the nation's number one killer according to W. G. (Bill) Wilson, general chairman of the campaign.

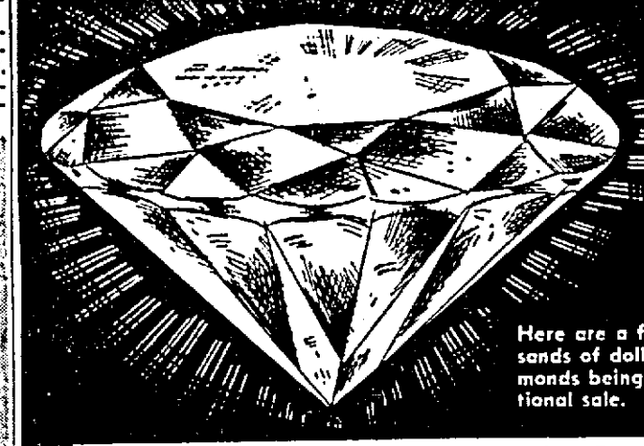

Members of the advisory committee include George Badenhousen, co-chairman; Mrs. J. Roscoe Howell, women's division and Aubrey Edwards, advance gifts.

Other committee chairmen include Robert McNulty, Ken Jackson, Leonard L. Bendinger, Edward W. Sheridan, Don Comfort, Dr. Harold Morris, Mrs. Edith Klein, Ralph Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Killingsworth, Dr. Elmer Clark, Dr. Paul Wilkins, Mrs. Ruth Light and Dr. Pettus G. Secrest, president of the Long Beach Heart Assn.

How to Live Through Auto Crash; Learn How to 'Roll With Punch'

By RENNIE TAYLOR
Associated Press Science Reporter

LOS ANGELES (AP)—You can greatly increase your chances of surviving an automobile crash by learning how to "roll with the punch," says a bone surgeon who has spent years studying the fine points of traffic accidents.

If you see it coming, or even if it looks only like it is going to be a close shave, put your arms on the dashboard and cradle your head in them, he advises. If you're in the rear seat, use the back of the front seat the same way.

How these simple ways of cushioning the head against sudden impact can save life or prevent serious injury was illustrated in an exhibit at a meeting of the American Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons.

The exhibit, a series mainly of graphs and pictures of mangled bodies and automobile wrecks, shows strikingly how a little bit of cushioning helps a lot.

One picture shows how an egg can survive a drop of a foot or more to the hard surface of a table if it is taped to a piece of corrugated paper and lands with the paper between it and the table.

Cushioning can do a similar thing for the skull, said Dr. Jacob Kulowski of St. Joseph, Mo., who made the over-all study.

The head gets 63 per cent of the injuries in car crashes, he added. Legs and arms get 54 per cent, the chest 28, the trunk and pelvis, 17, and the abdomen only 3.

So it is the head, legs and arms that need the most protection. The figures add up to more than 100 per cent because in some instances two or more body areas are hurt.

Quoting studies made at Cornell University, Dr. Kulowski said the average pressures at the instant of an auto crash range from 50 to 400 pounds per square inch.

This far outstrips sample figures given by civilian defense officials for the blast wave of an atom bomb which they put at 5 pounds per square inch. The difference is that the pressure in an auto crash is applied to only a few square feet, where the atom bomb may cover many square miles.

Some things needed in automobiles to reduce injury, Dr. Kulowski said, are scientifically padded dashboards, windshields which will give a little before they break and steering posts which will telescope instead of impaling the body of the driver.

Reduced engine power would help greatly, he added.

"Increased engine power," he said, "is an invitation to higher speed and it is speed which boosts the death rate. We don't need all that extra power. It is not right. It is silly."

Sierra Snow Deeper, but Low on H2O

FRESNO (AP)—The U. S. Forest Service, reporting on the first snow survey of the season in the Sierra National Forest, says the pack is generally deeper and with a higher water content than last year but the water content figures still are slightly below normal.

Rangers Arnold Snyder and George Priest gave these representative findings after a four-day, 80-mile trip by snow tractor and snow shoes:

Chilkoot Lake, elevation 7,500 feet, 67 inches of snow with a water content of 19.6 inches; this compares with last year's 48 inches of snow and 16 inches of water content.

Poison Meadow, elevation 6,850 feet, 55.9 inches of snow with 16.2 inches of water. Last year the figures were 32 and 12 inches.

Cora Lakes, 8,500 feet elevation, 74 inches of snow and 20.7 inches of water. In 1954 the snowpack was 56 inches and the water content measured 14.

Kin of Jailed Airmen Gather, Thank President

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Wives and mothers of U. S. Airmen held in Communist China, some of them choked with tears, Saturday night thanked President Eisenhower for efforts to get their loved ones out of Red prisons.

It was the first time that relatives—13 in all—had been able to get together to share common emotions and experiences. The gathering was made possible by a group of businessmen here.

The women agreed with the State Department that it would be impractical—even foolish—to try to accept the Reds' offer to permit them to visit their jailed relatives, and Herman Talmadge, former governor of Georgia who was principal speaker at a dinner for the group, agreed with them.

In his prepared speech, Talmadge had criticized U. S. foreign policy as wavering but switched from this to say "I'm glad to see that our policy in recent days has changed from one of 'keep 'em guessing' to one that says 'You may go so far and no farther.'"

It brought applause from the 100 persons in the hotel dining room.

Each of the airmen's relatives spoke for less than a minute to express gratitude for being able to meet one another.

As Mrs. Una Schmidt of Boise, Idaho, wife of Airman Daniel C. Schmidt said: "Bringing all of us here has helped settle our minds."

Mrs. Charline Benjamin of Worthington, Minn., wife of Capt. Harry Benjamin, said "I hope you all will pray for us and hope we can get our loved one back with us soon."

Mau Mau Chief Held

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Police made a surprise raid on the servants' quarters of an Asian girls' school in Nairobi Saturday and captured "General" Karloki Chapara. He is the reputed commander of all Mau Mau terrorists in the city.

Reps. Vinson, Short Favor Supership

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy had the support of the two top members of the House Armed Services Committee today in its plans to build a fifth supercarrier of the 60,000-ton Forrestal class.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ga) said that while the carrier already has been authorized, his committee will hold formal hearings on the project with a view of lending its "moral support" when a request is made for funds.

Rep. Short of Missouri, senior Republican on the committee, also said a formal recommendation by the armed services group might help offset reported opposition to the new supercarrier by Chairman Cannon (D-Mo) of the Appropriations Committee.

The Forrestal cost nearly 200 million dollars. Cannon said recently he had been informed that big carriers are highly vulnerable to enemy attack.

Three-State Kidnap Hunt Nets No Clue

SAN GABRIEL (UP) — Suspected kidnaper Harold Wayne Lewis, 28, eluded police Saturday in a three-state hunt which began Thursday when he allegedly abducted his 20-month-old son.

Los Angeles police alerted authorities in Pennsylvania and Illinois after a complaint charging Lewis with kidnaping and child-stealing was issued in the disappearance of his son, Gary Wayne.

The complaint was filed by Lewis' former wife, Olga Marie Lewis, 25. Mrs. Lewis told police her estranged husband forcibly took the child from her four months ago and that she regained custody of him in Chicago with the help of police.

Officers said the suspect had relatives in Illinois and Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Lewis said her husband and another man pulled up next to her car Thursday night. She declared Lewis threatened her with a vial of nitroglycerin.

Dealer Displays Competitor Cars, Too; Hails Experiment

DETROIT (UP)—A motorist in the market for a new car some day may be able to shop for it in an "automobile supermarket," an enterprising Detroit dealer says.

The dealer, Thomas T. Petzold, gave the supermarket plan a test in his showroom this week and pronounced it "a howling success."

Petzold, owner and merchandising manager for the Petzold Motor Sales Co., lined up his chief competitor's cars beside his and invited prospective customers to shop around.

"The public response has been terrific," the businessman beamed. "We were sold out within three days and had to send out an S.O.S. to the factory for more cars."

Petzold instructed his 15 salesmen to make no criticism of the other makes. "We'll conduct this campaign on a high plane without knocking the other man's product," he told them.

More than 200 persons milled about the big showroom at times, comparing styling and prices. Price tags on the three models differed by only a few dollars.

"I'm the first dealer in automobile history to try this method of selling cars," Petzold explained.

"Some day, many car dealers may display competitive products to let the customers choose for themselves in a sort of supermarket for automobiles."

MODEL PLANE DOWNS PILOT

SUNNYDALE (AP) — A model plane caused the grounding Saturday of a 28-year-old Navy pilot of Moffett Field with 3,500 hours of flying time.

Lt. Ernest Callaway, flying the model near his home at 788 Lois Ave., was flattened when the plane hit a high voltage wire. Physicians at the Moffett Field infirmary, where he was taken, said he was "slightly burned."

Four Miners Feared Dead in Cave-in

RAVENSDALE, Wash. (UP)—Four miners were presumed dead today, trapped under 450 feet of water, sand and gravel from a cave-in at the Lundsburg mine here.

John Morris, president of the Palmer Coke and Coal Co., said there was "no chance" the four trapped men could still be alive. He identified them as Nathan D. Russell of Carbonado, Frank Stebley of Black Diamond, Louis Valentia of Ravensdale and John Kovash of Maple Valley.

All four reportedly were between 45 and 50 year old and all four were married.

The men were buried only 2,000 feet from the spot where miner Harry J. English was entombed at the same time about one year ago. A monument to English stands on the surface above the spot where he was trapped.

Morris said the cave-in apparently occurred about 4 a.m. Saturday.

Brownell Asks Better Safeguards for Workers Accused as 'Risks'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Brownell has ordered federal agencies to give more legal safeguards to accused employes in a move to counteract unfavorable publicity on the administration's security program, the Sunday Star said Saturday night.

The newspaper said also that apparently in anticipation of the forthcoming congressional investigation of the security program, Brownell and his legal staff told the agencies that they are not required to spell out to Congress the processes by which they arrived at a decision in any security case.

The agencies also were told, the Star said, to inform the Justice Department immediately of any request by a congressional committee for information in security cases. A Justice Department spokesman declined comment on the story.

The changes in policy, the story said, were laid down at a special meeting called by Brownell with the general counsels of the various departments and agencies.

The Star said the general counsels were told that steps must be taken to offset the unfavorable publicity on the program from the press, various professional and citizens groups and Democratic members of Congress, who are preparing an investigation of the entire program.

The Star said Brownell informed the agency legal representatives that the following procedures should be followed:

1. Witnesses should be required to testify in person at the hearing of an employe on security charges, rather than file a written statement as is done in many cases at present. This would give the employe a chance to confront his accuser.

2. A legal adviser should be furnished by the agency at all hearings conducted by the employe security boards to make sure that the legal rights of the accused employe are observed.

3. Employes in these cases should be given a hearing within 15 days after suspension wherever possible, instead of letting the matter drag for months.

4. Agency heads should be informed of details of a case before any employe is suspended.

5. The rule that employes be furnished with written charges detailing the accusation against them should be closely adhered to.

6. There should be greater adherence to ordinary legal rules of evidence than in the past.

Air Defense Drops Radar Station Plans

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UP) — The Continental Air Defense Command reported Saturday that technical improvements in radar and other electronics equipment have resulted in cancellation of plans to construct new radar sites at eight locations.

These were to have been built near Elizabethtown, Pa.; Bowling Green and Nevada, Mo.; Sioux City, Iowa; Falls City, Neb.; Berlin, Md.; and Shafter and Ferndale, Calif.

The command said deletion of these sites will save $4,139,000 in construction costs and about two million dollars in equipment. Radar coverage needed for defense of the United States against air attack has been obtained without the additional construction, it said.

Rubinstein's Mother, 78, Says She Heard Ired Voices Night of Killing

NEW YORK (AP)—Serge Rubinstein's mother told reporters Saturday she heard angry voices of strange men in their home a few hours before the financier was found bound, gagged and slain.

Mrs. Stella Rubinstein, 78, spoke to reporters at the funeral home where the body of the dead financier lay.

Later an official said she had told authorities about the voices on Thursday, the day of the murder.

The official quoted Mrs. Rubinstein as saying that when the voices woke her up, in her bedroom one flight above her son's, she turned the light on.

Then, hearing nothing further, she turned the light off and went back to sleep.

Mrs. Rubinstein spoke to reporters at the funeral home while two women companions were urging her to be silent.

She said that although her hearing is impaired, she could clearly hear several male voices.

Sitting near the casket, the elderly woman seemed grief-stricken but in command of herself as she told of returning home from the opera at 11:45 Wednesday, the night before the killing.

As she entered the 5th Ave. mansion, she said she noticed the elevator light was out, and "that always meant that Serge was home."

She said she passed his room on the third floor and went on to her own one flight above.

Mrs. Rubinstein said she heard the voices about 1 a. m.

But according to one of Rubinstein's girl friends, he did not leave a night club until 1:30, and it was 2 a. m. before he and the girl finished a nightcap at his home and she left.

In her statement to newsmen Saturday, the mother said she heard the voices coming from her son's study.

"From their voices, there was an argument," she said. "I went into the hall. I called: 'Serge! Serge!' several times. There wasn't any answer."

"I called again: 'Serge! Serge!' but there wasn't any answer."

She said she did not raise any alarm "because he sometimes brought men home," and when the voices stopped, she returned to her room.

GOT A MINK FROM RUBINSTEIN

Rosemary Peters, 19, an aspiring and bosomy actress with no light to shed on Serge Rubinstein's slaying, exudes charm Saturday as she conducts a Hollywood press conference at which she shed none. She did reveal that Rubinstein once had given her a mink coat—which she returned.—(AP Wirephoto.)

Strike Suspends Brooklyn Eagle

NEW YORK (UP)—The American Newspaper Guild (CIO) went on strike against the Brooklyn Eagle Saturday, and the 114-year-old newspaper suspended publication when mechanical workers refused to cross the picket lines set up by editorial workers.

The strike was called as the result of a contract dispute. The guild asked for a $5.80 package increase for a two-year contract, with workers receiving $3.40 weekly this year and $2.40 more next year.

The Eagle offered a package of $1.40 weekly this year and $1 next year.

Girl Tells of Serge's Dates, Gift

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A shapely brunette who aspires to be an actress held a news conference Saturday to tell about her platonic relationship with murdered Serge Rubinstein.

"Serge gave me a mink stole on what he called our 'first anniversary' but I thought too much of him to keep it. I gave it back," said Rosemary Peters, who was Miss Pomona, (Calif.) of 1952. She is 19.

Rosemary didn't add much to the Rubinstein story, except insofar as she was concerned.

Rosemary met him a year ago Christmas at Palm Springs and had several dates with him, she said. Last November, she went to New York to visit him. When Rubinstein was here last Christmas, she saw him also. She was asked if the draft dodger ever said anything about putting her in his will.

Rosemary coyly replied: "Not anything definite, although he would say things like remembering me and the like."

Miss Peters went to the Los Angeles Airport with Rubinstein last Dec. 29 when he returned to New York.

She said he telephoned her last week to say he would be returning to see her. Serge, she insisted, wanted to put her in pictures, but she refused to sign a contract.

She was asked if Serge had any pet names for her. Rosemary blushed nicely, looked to her attorney, who had arranged the conference, and then said:

"Well, yes, but I won't tell."

U.S. Will Sell Butter to Asians

WASHINGTON (UP) — The United States is working out plans to sell melted-down butter to India and Pakistan in an attempt to reduce the government's large stock of surplus butter.

The butter would be sold in the form of ghee — a white, mushy substance made by melting butter and pouring off the more liquid part.

Hoover Urges Birth Control on Red Tape

WASHINGTON (UP)—Former President Herbert Hoover Saturday night recommended "birth control of federal documents" to eliminate some of the 25,000,000,000 pieces of paper the government circulates each year.

He discussed this and related problems of "big government" in a good-humored speech at the annual dinner of National Business Publications where he received the organization's Silver Quill award for distinguished public service.

The 80-year-old former chief executive predicted that "some people will dislike" the recommendations for federal economy and efficiency that will soon be made by his new Commission on Government Reorganization. But he said he will be comforted, in the face of any criticism, by the knowledge that "old reformers never die . . . they get thrown out."

This was an allusion to Gen. Douglas MacArthur's famous remark that "old soldiers never die, they just fade away."

Mr. Hoover's prescription for "birth control of federal documents" was offered during discussion of a survey recently completed by his Commission of Government Paper Work.

He said the study showed it costs the government about $4,000,000,000 a year to prepare, send out and file 18,000,000,000 forms and questionnaires and 7,000,000,000 letters, reports and other documents.

He said his commission will recommend reforms that should save about $250,000,000 a year in this area, but he admitted that this is "perhaps peanuts as government expenditures go these days."

Ex-Son-in-Law of Texas Murder-Bomb Victim Held

SAN ANGELO, Tex. (UP)—Texas Rangers and police routed wealthy Mrs. Helen Harris Weaver's former son-in-law and a jobless carpenter's helper from bed in Houston, Saturday and arrested them on charges of murdering Mrs. Weaver with a bomb planted in her automobile.

An informer turned in the two suspects. They got a quick questioning in Houston and were rushed to San Angelo and locked up in the Tom Green County jail. A Ranger plane flew them part of the way.

The ex-son-in-law is, Harry L. Washburn, 38, who was indicted three years ago on a charge of threatening Mrs. Weaver, 52, with a gun. The unemployed carpenter's helper is Carlton G. Henninger, 37. Both are charged with murder.

Houston police held John McKinnis, 45, an air-conditioning installer, and James Fife, 35, a construction worker, but did not charge them immediately. McKinnis was the informer and may get a $10,000 reward offered by the Weaver family.

Mrs. Weaver, a descendant of pioneer west Texas settlers and a social leader, was murdered Jan. 19. When she pushed on the starter, Nitrogel, packed around the floorboards and wired to the ignition, blew parts of her car half a block and horribly mutilated her.

Suspicion first alighted on Washburn, because of his trouble with Mrs. Weaver three years ago. He apparently was cleared and investigators told Harry L. Weaver, 67 an archeologist, rancher and architect who was her second husband, that he was their No. 1 suspect.

But the facts Saturday indicated that Weaver, far from being a suspect, was the intended victim and that Mrs. Weaver got killed because she tried to start an automobile that the killers suspected her husband would try to drive away.

"That's wonderful, wonderful" Weaver said at his ranch home, 20 miles north of San Angelo when he heard the news. "I suspected Washburn did it."

"I was the intended victim. Washburn wanted me out of the way. I was a man. He couldn't handle me. If he could have killed me, he could have bullied Mrs. Weaver out of all the money she had.

"I am positive that was the reason."

French Chief Causes Duel Cancellation

PARIS (UP)—The duel between Foreign Minister Edgar Faure and the prominent leftist newspaper editor he challenged has been called off, their seconds announced Saturday night.

A joint statement said the seconds decided at a meeting that the incident is to be "considered closed."

Faure, 47, had challenged Jean-Jacques Servan-Schreiber.

Almost coincidentally with the release of the statement, Premier Pierre Mendes-France's office issued a communique on the affair which admittedly had caused considerable concern in government circles.

The communique said that Mendes-France declared that the article in question "gives a fallacious relationship between the facts mentioned and the meaning attributed to them."

There had been reports that Mendes-France had been prepared to intervene personally to prevent any duel, if requested. Faure is regarded as the premier's right-hand man; the 31-year-old newspaperman is a former member of his "brain trust."

The statement issued by the seconds after their meeting mentioned that the Premier's communique had played a major role in their amicable decision.

Crackdown Launched on Smoky Vehicles

LOS ANGELES (UP) — Smog violators are due for tougher penalties in a new 10-point crackdown begun Saturday by enforcement officials.

Arthur J. Will, temporary director of district air pollution control, made the announcement. Motorists with excessive exhaust discharges will be vigorously prosecuted as one of the corrective measures.

Oranges Steady, Shipments Gain

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Sales of California navel oranges spurted last week and prices held steady at about $4 a box F.O.B., Sunkist Growers reported.

More than 700 cars of navel oranges were shipped, an increase of 50 over the preceding week. This week's prorate has been set at 550 cars of Central California navels and 450 of Southern California navels.

Lemon sales were up about 200 cars, unchanged from last week. Prices averaged slightly under $5.75 a box F.O.B., Sunkist said. This week's prorate was set at 250 cars, 25 fewer than last week.

HOW DO I GET OUT OF HERE?

Mighty perplexed bird pauses briefly on filing cabinet Saturday in Municipal Utilities Bldg. on Broadway, unable to find its way back to the great outdoors. The bird and a companion darted into an office in the rear of the building Friday. Employes tried hard, but were unable to guide the skittish creatures back to the door through which they entered. Birds, dining on flowers in a vase, probably will remain in their informal coop over the week end.—(Staff Photo by Bryan Hodgson.)

Red Unionists Ducking for Cover, AFL Declares

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Officials expressed belief Saturday that suspected Communist labor leaders of now-independent unions are trying to "duck for cover into the AFL or CIO until the heat's off."

They privately expressed the opinion that Red labor leaders have received party instructions to dissolve their labor groups or merge them into AFL or CIO unions to hide their identity.

They feel the move was prompted by the high degree of anti-Communist feeling prevailing over the nation and by the new subversive control law passed by Congress last year.

The new law contains provisions for penalizing labor organizations determined to be Communist-dominated. But it carries a specific reservation saying that unions affiliated with the AFL or CIO are to be presumed non-Communist.

One group of AFL officials appeared to feel the allegedly Red-controlled unions could be taken in and suspected leaders then gradually weeded out. Another group contends the AFL should proceed more cautiously to avoid the danger of taking in Reds.

Many of the unions in question were ousted from the CIO five years ago for alleged Communist domination. Their membership has dwindled from more than a million to about half that figure as various groups have drifted back to the CIO or into the AFL.

AFL leaders regard a currently proposed merger of the 70,000-member Fur and Leather Workers International Union with the 282,000-member AFL Amalgamated Meat Cutters Union as an initial step in dissolving the Red-led unions. The fur-leather group is one of the CIO-ousted unions.

Patrick Gorman of Chicago, the meat cutters' secretary-treasurer, told reporters Saturday he was confident that sufficient precautions have been taken in merger arrangements to assure that any Reds in the fur-leather organization can be quickly ousted.

Vote $37,500 Award for Crash Injury

Debating four hours after hearing evidence three days, a jury in Superior Judge Joseph M. Malthy's court late Friday awarded a Marine Corps sergeant $37,500 for a fractured right hip joint he suffered in an auto accident.

Aubrey Chasteen, the sergeant, now on limited duty at Corona Naval Hospital and scheduled to be discharged because of the injury, was hurt July 18, 1953, at 7th St. and Pacific Coast Hwy.

Chasteen's attorney, J. Merrill Lilley, introduced evidence that a defendant in the action, Marvin Snyder, had been drinking and was driving his auto 60 miles an hour when it struck Chasteen's machine.

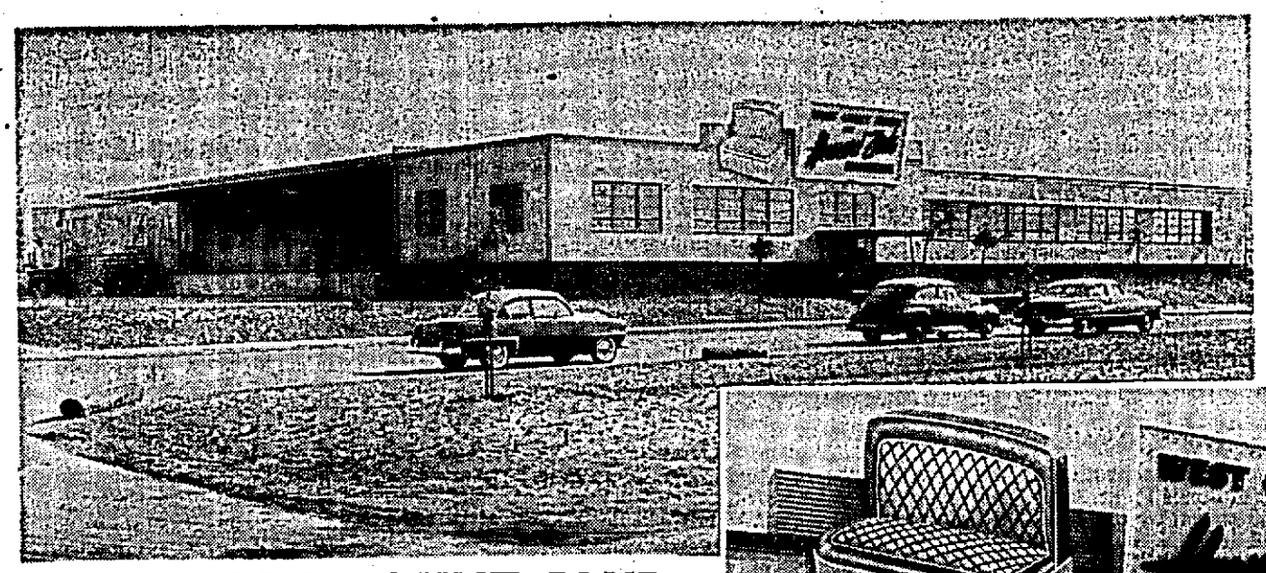

Snyder filed suit for $30,000 against Chasteen, who had demanded $100,000. The suits were consolidated for trial.

PMF Defiant in Plan for North Africa

PARIS (AP)—Premiere Pierre Mendes-France Saturday night said his government is going ahead with its program for North Africa although it may be kicked out of office on the issue.

In his weekly radio address to the French people, the premier said:

"At this moment the attention of the assembly and public opinion is centered on North Africa. On this subject, various circles have shown an emotion, even an agitation, which might, it has been said, endanger the existence of the government. The government duty, nevertheless, to go ahead with its task which it has often outlined to the assembly and which has been approved each time up to now."

Oil Slick From Tanker Traps Thousands of Sea Birds

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (UP)—A 600-square-mile oil slick that trapped thousands of sea birds and threatened to ruin beach resorts on the west coast of Jutland, was blown out to sea Saturday by a light easterly wind.

The oil slick, which was half the size of the state of Rhode Island, spread after the Danish tanker Gerd Maersk jettisoned 6,000 tons of crude oil when it was grounded on a Danish beach.

The oil spread along the coastline and trapped thousands of gulls and other seabirds when their feathers became gummed up when they landed.

Gas Station Robber Gets 5-to-Life

SANTA ANA—For robbing a Garden Grove gas station attendant with a sawed-off shotgun last March, David W. Bremer, 21, of 4823 Ashworth St., Lakewood, must serve a term of from five years to life in prison.

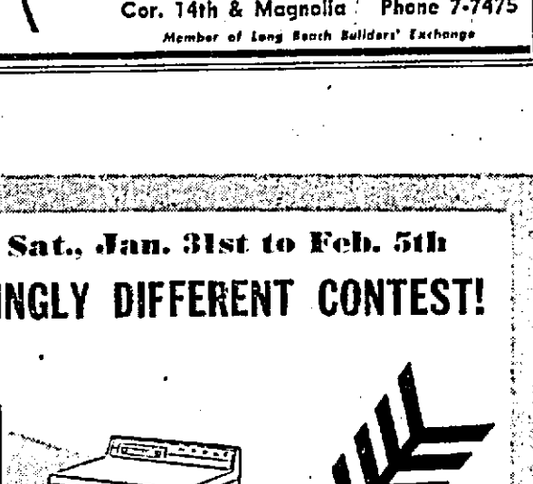

Superior Judge John Shea denied probation to the young man, who had pleaded guilty to the holdup of Earl Ward at the gas station, when he seized $309.

China Gaining Industrial Power at Cost of Famine

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP) — A Syracuse University professor who has just completed a study of China's first five-year plan says Mao Tze-tung's Communist regime is making substantial gains in changing China from a backward agricultural nation to an industrial one.

But, adds Dr. George B. Cressey, the price paid for the change has been a high one.

Cressey is a professor of geography in the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs. He says he based his report on three decades of research. According to Cressey's published report:

Although Red China has made significant progress toward an industrial buildup, an artificial famine has been created through exportation of food to Russia and her satellites in payment for industrial equipment.

But if China's economic potential is fully realized, she may eventually overtake Japan and become the dominant power in eastern Asia, although it's unlikely that China ever will attain the material level of Western Europe or North America. Her chances are limited because of inadequate resources.

Cressey forecasts considerable progress for China in mining, industry, communications and urban growth within the next 10 years, if the period is a peaceful one.

He says the apparent industrial boom stems from China's hard push to reach her five-year-plan goal of having industry produce 70 per cent of the gross national product.

Cressey says improved transportation has been given top priority.

Russ Propose West German Diplomatic Ties at Once

BERLIN (AP)—Russia, through the Communist East German government, Saturday night put out feelers to Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's West German government on resumption of diplomatic relations.

The East Germans in an official statement said the Soviet action ending the state of war with Germany "makes it possible for the federal republic immediately to take up normal relations with the Soviet Union if it (West Germany) wants to."

The German Communists also said that East-West German negotiations on free elections unifying the nation could be held this year if the Paris German rearmament treaties are dropped.

The Communist statement was issued after Soviet Ambassador to East Germany Georgi M. Pushkin conferred with East German leaders. Pushkin recently returned from a Kremlin conference in Moscow.

The Soviets earlier this month said normal diplomatic relations could be established with West Germany if the Paris treaties were dropped.

However, Saturday's East German statement did not call for the giving up of the Paris pacts but said Soviet West German relations could be established immediately.

Western observers said that Saturday's East German statement was just another Soviet tactic to block ratification of the Paris pacts.

Russ Confirm Envoy's Peace Offer to Japan

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet Union announced Saturday night it has formally notified Japan of readiness to start talks aimed at normalizing Soviet-Japanese relations, Moscow radio reported.

The broadcast told of a call by Andrei Dominitsky, chief Soviet representative in Japan, on Prime Minister Ichiro Hatoyama on Jan. 25. It said the Russian, on instructions of the Soviet government, made this statement:

"Being guided by the striving to normalize relations with Japan, the U.S.S.R., as is unknown, has invariably favored a settlement. Its readiness to normalize Soviet-Japanese relations has been expressed in particular in the well-known joint declaration of the governments of the U.S.S.R. and the Chinese People's Republic of 17th October as well as in the statement of the U.S.S.R. Minister of Foreign Affairs Molotov of 16th December, 1954. It is known that Premier Hatoyama in his recent speeches expressed himself in favor of a settlement of Soviet-Japanese relations.

"The wish to normalize relations between Japan and the U.S.S.R. was expressed by the minister for foreign affairs, Shigemitsu, in his statement of 11th December, 1954, as well as in his subsequent statements.

"In view of the aforementioned circumstances, the Soviet side considers that it would be apposite to exchange views on the question of talks aimed at normalizing Soviet-Japanese relations.

"The Soviet side is prepared to appoint representatives for negotiations which could be held in Moscow or Tokyo, by agreement with the Japanese side on this question."

Moscow Radio said that at the end of the interview, Prime Minister Hatoyama informed Dominitsky that the Japanese government would consider the Soviet statement.

199,375 More Cars on Roads

SACRAMENTO (AP) — So you think there are more cars on the highway? Well, you're right.

The Department of Motor Vehicles gave these figures Saturday for the most motor-minded state of all:

Motor vehicle registrations went up by 199,375 to 6,158,183 in the year ending last Nov. 31.

And there were 264,509 more licensed drivers, for a total of 6,250,509.

The department listed its 1954 revenue as $175,023,584, up from $147,737,444 in 1953.

16,000 Vets Await Psychotherapy

WASHINGTON (U.P.) — Harvey V. Higley, Administrator of Veterans Affairs, said Saturday that 16,000 veterans are on a waiting list for beds in mental hospitals.

Higley made the statement in a discussion of veterans affairs on the CBS radio program "Capitol Cloakroom."

Higley said one of the great problems facing his agency is hospitalization for mentally-disturbed patients. He said there are 55,000 beds now available for this type of illness, but the end of the hospital-building program is in sight.

"The peculiar part of it is, building new hospitals isn't going to solve our problem, because what we lack are psychiatrists, psychologists and trained therapists, who know how to handle this problem of the mentally disturbed," he said.

WHAT CONGRESS DID

WASHINGTON (AP)—The status of major legislation at the end of this week:

FOREIGN AFFAIRS: Congress has passed and the President signed a resolution authorizing the chief executive to commit U. S. forces to the defense of the Formosa area. A mutual assistance treaty with Formosa is pending in the Senate foreign relations committee.

MILITARY — Bills to extend the draft law, to establish a new program of reserve strength and to continue dependency allotment laws are pending in committees.

VETERANS — The House has passed and sent to the Senate a bill continuing GI educational rights for men in the armed services by Jan. 31.

RECIPROCAL TRADE — The House ways and means committee is conducting hearings on a bill to continue the reciprocal trade agreements program three additional years.

SCHOOL CONSTRUCTION—Legislation to provide federal aid for school construction is pending in the House education and labor committee.

STATEHOOD—The House interior committee is conducting hearings on bills to admit Alaska and Hawaii to statehood.

PAY RAISES—The House judicial committee is readying for early House action a bill to raise the pay of Congress members and federal judges. The House civil service committee starts hearings next week on bills to raise the pay of postal and civil service employes.

POSTAL RATES—Legislation to increase postal rates, including a one-cent boost in letter-mailing costs, is pending in the House postoffice committee.

TAXES—The House ways and means committee is expected soon to recommend continuance of wartime excise and corporate tax rates due to expire in April.

WAGES—A bill to boost the minimum wage from 75 cents to 90 cents or more is pending in the House labor committee.

FARM PRICES — The House agriculture committee starts hearings next week on a bill to restore farm price props to 90 per cent of parity.

Story Hours Booked for Preschool Tots

A series of story hours for preschool-age children will be presented at 10:30 a.m. each Thursday, beginning this week and ending May 5, at East Branch Library, 4036 E. Anaheim St. Mrs. Jackie Bannon, children's librarian, will conduct the program.

While their youngsters are attending story hours, mothers are invited to attend a program featuring talks and films centered around books and the problems of the preschool child. Louise Bolton, branch librarian, will direct this program.

Interested mothers are advised to register their children by calling 8-9200.

Woman Dies in Fire

LOS ANGELES (U.P.) — Mrs. Janilou Hawkins, 60, a semi-invalid, burned to death Saturday in a fire at her home in Firestone Park, police reported. Firemen who extinguished the blaze said it apparently was caused by a dropped cigarette.

Denmark's Prime Minister Hedtoft Dies in Sweden

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—Denmark's prime minister, Hans Hedtoft, 51, a leader in his country's resistance movement during the Nazi occupation and later a strong supporter of western defense against Communism, died unexpectedly Saturday.

Hedtoft, here for a meeting of the Nordic Council, was found dead in his bed at a hotel. He apparently had suffered a heart attack. His wife died 2½ months ago while he was on the Scandinavian airlines system's inaugural trans-Arctic flight from Copenhagen to Los Angeles. Since then, his friends said, Hedtoft had been depressed.

In Copenhagen, the press agency of Denmark's Social Democratic Party which Hedtoft headed said he would be succeeded as prime minister by Foreign Minister H. C. Hansen.

Hedtoft's death was discovered when he failed to show up at Saturday's session of the Nordic Council.

Hedtoft visited the United States several times in the post-war years. His party's declared support of NATO in February, 1949, clinched Denmark's membership in the western defense alliance. He was a strong advocate of adequate defense for his own country and its allies.

His successor, Foreign Minister Hansen, is a shoemaker's son and a compositor by trade. Hansen also was active in the wartime resistance movement, serving as one of the publishers of its secret newspaper.

INCOMPATIBLE

HILO, Hawaii (U.P.) — Shiro Tsuda, 34, was granted a divorce from his wife, Tomo, in circuit court after testifying that she deliberately put hot chili peppers in his food to aggravate his ulcers.

Modern Dental Plates

Aided by "modern" dental plate materials and "improved techniques," used in the construction of dental plates, Dental Science has followed a "progressive" path that resulted in dental plates more natural in "appearance," better fitting and more "comfortable" to wear than thought possible a few short years ago. Ask to see samples and modern dental plates, uppers, lowers and partials. GOOD dental plates need not be expensive. THE COST IS SMALL.

Bitter Arctic Blasts Boost Deaths to 15

By Associated Press.

Deaths from exposure and overexertion mounted to at fewest 15 Saturday as winter's worst cold wave kept an unyielding grip on most of the eastern half of the nation.

Slight moderation in the abnormal cold was in prospect for the immediate gulf region and the great plains, but elsewhere no relief was in sight.

Subzero cold extended from northern New England westward across the northern lakes region and the upper Mississippi valley and as far south as northeast Missouri and central Illinois.

International Falls, Minn., achieved the national "ice box" ranking for the second time in three days with a -34 degree temperature.

This is the death count from causes attributed to cold and snow since Thursday, when the cold wave struck:

Ohio 6, Michigan 3, Missouri 2 and Illinois 1.

Other minimum temperatures included La Porte and Greensburg, Ind., -16; Duluth, Minn., and Green Bay, Wis., -10; Moline, Ill., -9; Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minn., and Chicago, -8; Milwaukee and Madison, Wis., -5; Columbus, Ohio, -4; Des Moines, Ia., and Springfield, Ill., -3; Cincinnati and Sault St. Marie, Mich., -2.

The U. S. Weather Bureau in Chicago blamed upper level winds 30,000 feet high for the marathon cold wave. These winds have been flowing steadily in a southeasterly direction, draining cold Arctic air into the United States.

Several small low pressure systems following the same southeasterly path have aided in pulling down the Canadian air.

However the presence of dry Arctic air has prevented any blizzards or heavy snows during the cold spell. These occur when Arctic air collides with warm moist air from the Gulf of Mexico.

Trial of Girl as Narcotics Addict Slated

Trial of Donna M. Howland, 19, of 6032 Pimenta Ave., Lakewood, on a charge of narcotics addiction was set for Feb. 7 when she pleaded innocent in Los Cerritos Municipal Court, Thursday.

Miss Howland recently was placed on three year's probation when she pleaded guilty in Superior Judge Joseph M. Maltby's court to possession of marijuana.

She and Robert M. Corr, 22, of 12801 Alamitos Way, Garden Grove, were arrested last Nov. 15. Corr swallowed two marijuana cigarets Miss Holland pulled from her bra when officers approached to question them.

Corr was convicted on the charge to which Miss Howland pleaded guilty.

On Sept. 4, 1953, Corr swallowed 35 benzedrine tablets when he and a companion were stopped by police. At that time he was booked for possession of hypnotic drugs.

Navy Man Rites Monday Evening

Requiem mass will be at 9 a.m. Tuesday in St. Lucy's Church. Interment will be in All Souls Cemetery.

He was a native of Hyde Park, Mass., and he had lived here six years. Surviving are his wife, Gertrude; sons, David and Phillip; daughters, Patricia, Dolores and Sharon, all of Long Beach; his father, Joseph; and six brothers and three sisters.

Tumble off Canyon Wall Hurts Hiker

SANTA ANA—A 22-year-old Anaheim man was in Community Hospital Saturday recovering from shock and a broken ankle suffered Friday night when he fell from a ledge in Holy Jim Canyon, 30 miles east of here.

Donald R. Howard, of 12370 Ball Rd., lay in water for five hours, his ankle caught between rocks, waiting for a rescue party. His wife, Shirley, was with him.

State Division of Forestry officers said Howard, hiking with his wife and another couple, fell from the ledge to the top of a waterfall.

Wife of Former Edison Manager, Mrs. Lynch, Dies

Mrs. Florell Jane Lynch, 66, wife of James A. Lynch, retired manager of Southern California Edison Co., died Friday.

Mrs. Lynch, of 4333 Linden Ave., was a member of First Baptist Church, Women's Music Club, Loyalty Club and charter member of Merret Temple 103, Daughters of the Nile.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by a brother, Loren R. Chesebrough, and two sisters, Mrs. Britta E. Cross and Mrs. Evelyn B. Berardini.

Service will be Tuesday at 2 p.m. in Mottell's and Peek Chapel, Dr. Bryant Wilson officiating. Entombment in Sunnyside Mausoleum will be private.

REGIONAL POLITICS

Rep. Hosmer to Address Young GOP

By THE LOOKOUT

Congressman Craig Hosmer will return from Washington to inspect the home front fences and attend the state convention of Young Republicans in San Diego next week end.

He is one of a group of party leaders, including U. S. Deputy Attorney General William P. Rogers, who will address the Young GOP meeting.

Hosmer will speak at the convention Feb. 5, and be available here in the home precincts on Feb. 4 and 6.

The Long Beach lawmaker is expected to discuss the Formosan situation in his speech. He recently toured the Far East on a Naval Reserve cruise.

In Washington Saturday, Rep. Hosmer called the joint defend-Formosa resolution "a sign of unity and determination."

The people have confidence in the President, he said. "They realize he knows how to use the military tools available, and they believe he will always use them wisely, not rashly. And they know his aim is to prevent rash action on the part of others."

Hosmer will make his home visit by plane. While here, he will hold informal "open-office" sessions in both Lakewood City and Long Beach.

He will appear in Lakewood City Hall, 5044 Faculty Ave., Friday, Feb. 4, between 1 and 3 p.m. Arrangements for space were made by Lakewood City Mayor Angelo Iacoboni.

Between 3 p.m. and 5 p.m. Hosmer will be in his Long Beach office, 115 Security Building.

His field representative, Robert E. Rife, said these office hours were announced "for the convenience of any citizens desiring to present problems to their Congressman."

Rep. Hosmer will occupy a suite at the Wilton Hotel while in Long Beach. Rife said friends of the Congressman are invited to visit him there from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. next Sunday.

DEMO MEETING

"What do we want to do in politics this year?"

That's the question for discussion before the Long Beach Democratic Luncheon Club when it meets Tuesday noon at the Wilton Hotel.

Walter Desmond will preside.

The public is invited. But reservations have to be made not later than Monday p.m., with Mary Renee, Secretary, at 5-6601.

Film Portrays Lincoln's Era

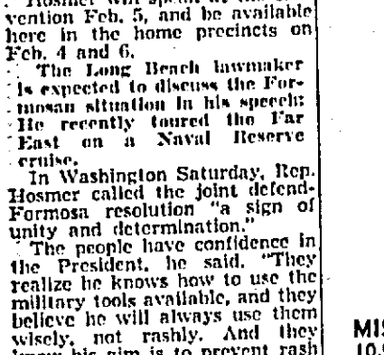

The documentary film, "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," based on Robert E. Sherwood's Pulitzer Prize play, will be shown Friday at 7:30 p. m. at Bay Shore Branch Library, 5390 E. Second St. The public is invited.

The picture tells the story of Lincoln from his arrival in Illinois as a youth of 21 to his rise to the presidency. Raymond Massey plays the starring role with Ruth Gordon and Gene Lockhart featured. If the size of the crowd warrants it, a second screening of the film will be presented at 8:45 p. m., according to Nina Boyle, film librarian.

Gen. Kessler Retires at Hamilton AFB

HAMILTON AFB, Calif. (UP)—Maj. Gen. Alfred A. Kessler Jr., commander of the Fourth Air Force, retired from active duty Saturday after nearly 37 continuous years of service.

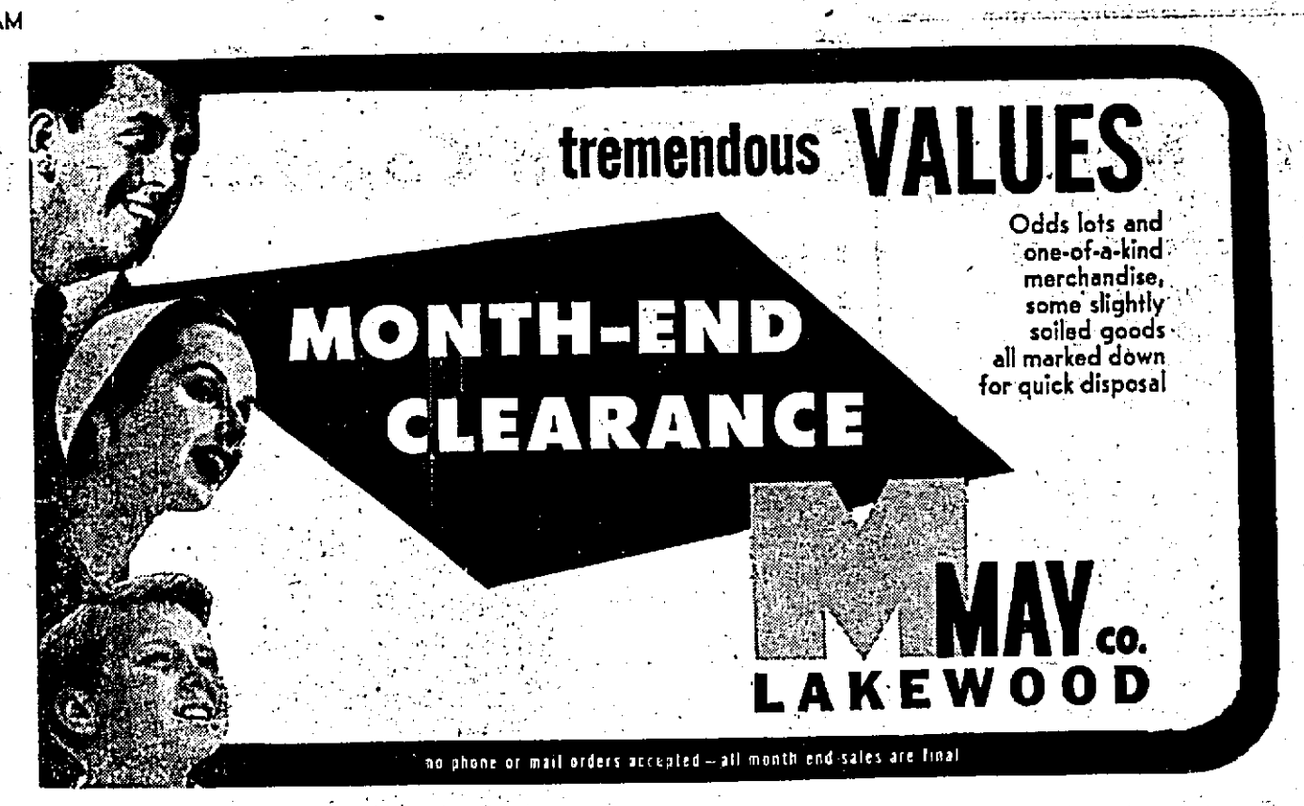

Since September, 1952, Kessler has commanded the Fourth Air Force, primarily directing reserve operations in California, Oregon, Washington, Montana, Idaho, Utah, Arizona and Nevada.

BEACH COMBING

With MALCOLM EPLEY

SAN FRANCISCO—Well, here I am, chilly in San Francisco. It's not cold enough to bundle up, too cold to go unbundled. The native males wear topcoat and hats. Being from the Sunny Southland, I came here without a hat. I don't want to buy one 'cause I like to spend my dough where I make my living, so I compromise by wearing topcoat and no hat. There are a few others doing the same thing, but I doubt if they belong here.

All of this is by way of introducing a report of what happened in a Geary St. restaurant where I lunched.

Just as I entered, the sun came out and sunlight streamed through the front window over a couple of tables. Being in a shivering state, I selected one of these and sat down, much to the surprise of the head waitress. She tried to steer me away while I insisted on the bright spot.

AS I sat there warming myself, two elderly ladies, no doubt permanent residents of one of the many hotels thereabouts, came and sat down at the other sunbathed table. There were 50 or so places in the shade to sit, but they chose that one.

"Ah," I thought, "kindred souls."

But I was wrong. They immediately beckoned the head waitress and complained their table was in the sun. They looked significantly at a Venetian blind which, if drawn, would have shaded both them and me.

The waitress glanced at me, and I gave her a steady look that I hoped told her she had to choose, right now, between us.

Then she took a reading of the sky, where the sun was about to pass behind a hotel across the street. She smiled tolerantly at the old ladies and said:

"The sun is right up there. I'll move it in about five minutes."

AN emergency caused us to make an unexpected trip up here, and because I sometimes chide the good old S. P. in this space, I want to say a good word for it now.

I had a little trouble getting the right man on the 'phone, but when I did, he quickly arranged reservations on the Starlight, which we caught a couple of hours later at Union Station in L. A. He was prompt, courteous and helpful. Of course, I was offering to give him some business, and the service should be good. But I felt it was excellent, and deserving of mention from an occasional critic of the S. P.

Because of the roundabout connections from L. B. to Union Station, we drove to the station, left our car in the garage there, and hope it will be waiting when we get back. Too bad we can't hop a bus right in L. B. and go direct to the central terminal for all passenger train operations in the Los Angeles County area. Oh, well. . . .

GOT on the Starlight and walked smack into another Long Beacher (or what should we call ourselves?) It was H. G. Markworth, the banker and Miss Universe judge, whom we met as we went into the lounge car for a little cribbage, a favorite family pastime while traveling.

"Mark" said he was going to spend four or five days just knocking about San Francisco, locating some familiar old landmarks. Incidentally, he resigned recently from the presidency of the National City Bank.

When we detrained in the morning, Bro. Markworth was on the platform. He was wearing a topcoat and no hat.

DRIFTWOOD—Got out for just enough walk to 'test the well-known "metropolitan" atmosphere of San Francisco—some call it the only real "big city" in the West—and found it still in evidence. You can't quite describe it, but there's a special feeling of depth and tradition about the place. . . . The Bay Area has been having plenty of fog, too, if that makes you feel any better down there. . . . Surprising number of very busy intersections here have no signals whatsoever. And surprisingly little confusion there. . . . Display of handmade cigars in a window, behind which some men were rolling cigars, presented two boxes, similarly labed. Notations on the covers said the cigars in one box were made in San Francisco, the others in Los Angeles. L. A. cigars were two inches longer, if that means anything.

LIGHT YOUR PORCH LIGHTS!

Mothers March Monday

Women Aiming to Top 1954's $30,000 Total

"Turn on your porch lights and open your purse strings."

A shining light will be the welcome sign for 3,000 marching mothers Monday night as they embark on a three-hour quest for antipolio funds in the concluding event of the 1955 March of Dimes.

The march starts at 6 p.m. and will close at 9 p.m.

The women hope to surpass last year's mark, which showed net proceeds of $30,783.59.

Carrying containers marked with "Fight Polio" emblems and personal identity cards, the mothers will conduct a house-to-house canvass, calling at all places where porch lights glow to gather money for the fight against polio.

"We are well organized for the march," Mrs. Charles F. Reed, general chairman, said. In each section of the city area chairmen will direct the march.

Neighborhood fire stations will be temporary depositories for the money gathered. Later the proceeds will be taken to a bank depository. Members of the three Long Beach 20-30 Clubs will assist firemen in receiving the returns.

MILITANT MOTHER

Six years ago Mrs. Frank Luker of 3943 Pine Ave. lay in an iron lung, victim of spinal polio. She risked leaving the mechanical breather long enough to become the mother of a son, Richy, by Caesarian section. Monday night Mrs. Luker, mother of four, will join the March of Dimes trek.

X-Ray Increase Among Factors Seen by Science

By WESLEY PEYTON
Independent, Press-Telegram Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Rep. Carl Kinshaw (Rep., Pasadena) assured a mildly worried delegation from the California legislature that atomic radiation in the state is not now at a dangerously high level and won't be in the foreseeable future.

Hinshaw said he spoke as an "informed" member of the joint Senate-House committee on atomic energy which has considered the radiation problem in secret session. Rep. Chet Holifield (D-Montebello), another committee member, concurred.

The potential danger from radiation was outlined to Hinshaw and other California congressmen at a Capitol luncheon by State Sen. Harold T. Johnson (D-Roseville), chairman of the special Senate committee on governmental administration, and Earle Waters, executive secretary of the committee.

Waters explained the radiological problem arose as a sidelight of the state's civil defense program. A number of scientists working for the state on civil defense problems began to combine research with their other duties, he said, and came to the conclusion that atomic radiation in California was approaching a "potential hazard."

This stemmed from A-bomb tests in Nevada, increased use of radioactive isotopes in industry and hospitals, and, even, an increase in the number of X-ray machines in the state.

Waters agreed the federal government has no control over the X-ray machines but pointed out the Atomic Energy Act gives the federal government complete control over, and responsibility for, the use of all other radioactive materials. In view of this, Waters and Johnson wanted to know what the AEC or some

ZEROING IN

In the saddle of an anti-aircraft gun is Lt. (jg) Adele K. Vermeersch of Long Beach and the Waves. The weapon will be displayed at the Naval Reserve Open House starting Tuesday night on Terminal Island.

Navy, Marine Shows Scheduled This Week

The Naval Reserve and the Marine Corps plan public events this week.

High school and junior college students, particularly those under 18½ years of age, their parents and all service veterans are invited to a Naval Reserve open house at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at the Naval Reserve Training Center, Naval Base, Terminal Island.

A trailer-borne exhibit of Marine Corps gear will be open to the public from 9 a. m. Monday in front of the main post office building, 3rd St. and American Ave. M/Sgt. William M. Pascoe, head of the corps' recruiting office here, will be in charge.

Major purpose of the Naval open house will be to explain to the students and their parents the benefits that may be gained in relation to the Military Training and Service Act. Under existing law men must serve two years active duty and six years reserve time. Differences between ready and standby reserves, as well as other questions will be answered.

According to Comdr. A. W. Anderson, commanding officer of Surface Battalion 11-7, the importance of young men planning military service before they reach 18½ years will be stressed. Once they become 18½, according to Comdr. Anderson, they can not join a reserve unit and thus can not start their six-year reserve service until after completing their two years active duty.

A conducted tour of the center's training facilities will complete the program.

Plan Dental Health Week

The seventh annual Dental Health Week will be observed in the Long Beach area March 7-11 under the auspices of the Council on Dental Health of the Third District, Los Angeles County Dental Society.

Activities planned include school dental health contests, mass distribution of literature and speaking engagements.

Dr. John Whitaker of San Pedro, general chairman, will be assisted by Drs. Douglas W. Stephens, Marvin B. Payne, Clifford Brown, Manuel Kaplan, Robert Jensen, Lloyd Deck, Virgil W. Ridgeway, M. L. Gatov and Lytton M. Swartz of Long Beach, Louis Taylor of Artesia, Arthur Berke of Torrance, Roland Hansen and Morgan S. Ralls of Compton.

City College Sets Travel, Art Forums

Forum and lecture programs in art, gerontology, travel and world affairs were announced Saturday by the City College School for Adults for the new semester opening Monday. All programs are open to the public without charge.

The schedule for this week:

ART: Mary Jane Rice, art instructor and designer for the Pacific Coast studio of the American Crayon Co., will speak Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. in Room 502 of the Lakewood campus art building. Her topic will be "Textile Decoration and Silk Screen Printing." Additional art forums are scheduled on the first Tuesday of each month through May.

GERONTOLOGY: Dr. C. A. Van Pelt Jr., Lakewood physician, will speak on "You and Your Health" Monday at 7:30 p. m. in Lakewood Community Church. He will be assisted by Edwin C. Milligan, senior in the USC School of Medicine, who has done recent studies in geriatrics.

MARY JANE RICE
Art Instructor

"Mental Health for Senior Citizens" will be the topic of Dr. George Tarjan, superintendent and director of Pacific State Hospital, at Dewey Auditorium, 8th and American, at 2 p. m. Wednesday.

TRAVEL: Herbert Williams, Long Beach City College instructor and archaeologist, will present an illustrated lecture on "The Rockies and the High Sierra" Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. in Room 220, Poly High School. This is the first of four lectures on explorations in western North America.

WORLD AFFAIRS: Two World Affairs Forum groups which will meet throughout the semester begin this week, with registration taken in the classroom at the first meeting.

"The World in the News" will meet from 1-4 p. m. Tuesdays in the auditorium of the Bay Shore Branch Library, 5390 E. 2nd St.

DeMolay Order Sets Installation of Poly Senior

Keith Martin, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. D. E. Martin, 3801 Marron Ave., Poly High School senior, will be installed master councilor of Long Beach Chapter, Order of DeMolay, at 7:30 p. m. Saturday in Machinists Hall, 728 Elm Ave. He will succeed John Scofield. Dick Porter, past master councilor of DeMolay, will be installing officer.

KEITH MARTIN

$3,000,000 Controls Plant Opens Formally This Week

EVERYTHING'S UNDER CONTROL

Janet Falla displays a water-heater control of the type to be manufactured at the Robertshaw-Fulton factory here. The smart-looking "Unitrol 200" device was selected last year for display at Pasadena Museum's Good Design Exhibition.

A $3 million plant for one of Robertshaw-Fulton Controls Co.'s manufacturing divisions will be opened here Wednesday with a program attended by several hundred businessmen and community leaders.

The modern steel and concrete structure, which extends for 940 feet along Long Beach Blvd. at the junction of the new Long Beach Freeway, gives Robertshaw-Fulton's Grayson Controls Division twice its former production capacity for the manufacture of automatic controls used in gas appliances.

The program will salute growth of Grayson Controls, which was founded in a one-car garage in Lynwood 26 years ago with $1,000 of borrowed capital. It is now the world's largest producer of water heater controls and becomes one of Long Beach's leading industries.

A replica of the 150 sq. ft. garage in which the first Grayson controls were made in 1928 has been erected adjacent to the big new plant to dramatize the growth of the firm.

John A. Robertshaw, president of Robertshaw-Fulton with executive offices at Greensburg, Pa., will participate in the program that formally opens the new plant.

Publisher Talks to CC's Forum

Herman H. Ridder, publisher of the Independent, Press-Telegram will outline his views on the 1955 business outlook before Chamber of Commerce Breakfast Forum Wednesday morning at Wilton Hotel.

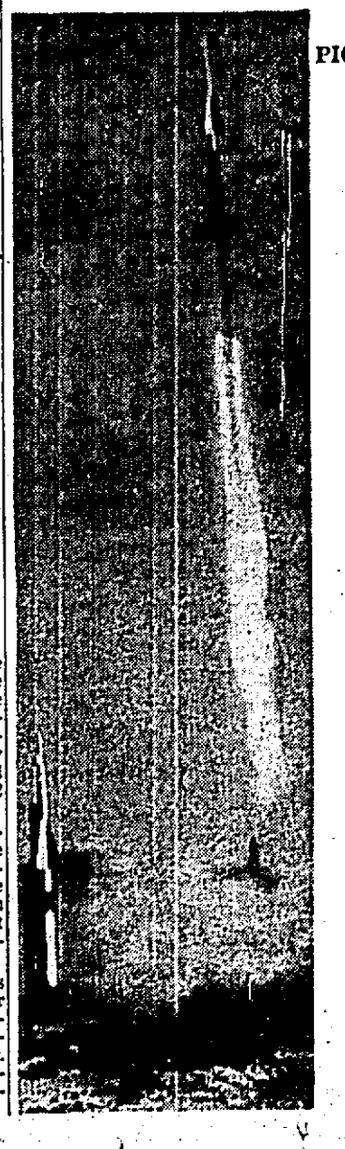

The publisher will also report economic trends in South America as they impressed him during his recent visit to the southern continent.

NEW KIND OF DE-ICER?

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A Los Angeles man got aerial free delivery of ice Saturday.

Alton M. Ludvickson said he heard an early morning "whoosh" and went outside to find a chunk of ice in his yard. He said his home is on the path of planes using the Los Angeles International Airport and that the ice was dropped from a plane.

Torrance Next for Nikes?

PICTURED in this official U. S. Army photograph is a Nike guided missile of a type which may become a familiar sight at Torrance Municipal Airport.

Army engineers are surveying the field with the idea that a portion of it might be used as a base for the weapons. Nikes are designed to intercept and destroy enemy aircraft.

Bases similar to the one proposed for the field already ring strategic areas of Los Angeles County, with installations at Fort MacArthur in San Pedro and near Los Alamitos Naval Air Station in Orange County, at Los Angeles Airport and in the Glendale area; among others.

Military authorities stress that missiles are never fired from a base near a populated area "unless absolutely necessary."

Father of 5 Girls Bids for School Board Post

A father of five girls Saturday announced he will be a candidate for the Board of Education in the April election.

He is Richard W. Barnes, 32, a chemical engineer who resides at 1057 E. 66th Way.

Born in Salt Lake City, Barnes is a graduate of the University of Utah and holds a Master of Science degree from the University of Washington. He is a chemical engineer at the Dominguez Refinery of Shell Oil Co.

A lieutenant commander in the Naval Reserve, he is a member of the city's Armed Services Commission. He served in the Navy during World War II and the Korean conflict.

Barnes, who has lived here for eight years, has been engaged in Boy Scout activities for five years. He is superintendent of youth activities for the Long Beach Stake of the Church of Latter-day Saints.

Two of his daughters, Betty Jo, 11, and Bonnie, 8, attend Long Beach schools. His preschool children are Susan, 5, Nancy, 2, and Beverly, 1 week.

There will be three vacancies on the school board in April. The three incumbents, Drs. Walter Boyd and Dwight Sigworth and L. H. Brewer, have indicated their intentions of bidding for re-election.

50-Year-Old UP Train to Arrive Today

Commemorating the 50th anniversary of completion of Union Pacific's line from Los Angeles to Salt Lake City, 100 members of the Railway and Locomotive Historical Society today will ride from Los Angeles to Terminal Island aboard a 50-year-old train.

To further dramatize the event, a 6½-inch gold spike will be driven into a railway tie at 11 a.m. at Douglas junction, near South St. between Paramount Blvd. and Cherry Ave.

Driving the spike will be Adolph D. Hanson of Salt Lake, Union Pacific general manager for the South Central district, and K. V. Hackman of Arcadia, director of the Railway and Locomotive Historical Society, who will wear the garb of a railway president of 50 years ago.

Aiding them will be Ralph Evans Wells Jr., son of the original general manager of the San Pedro, Los Angeles, Salt Lake railway. Wells remembers, as an 8-year-old boy, riding the first train over the Los Angeles-Salt Lake route.

Union Pacific officials say it will take the ancient train from 10 a.m. to noon to travel from Los Angeles Union passenger terminal to Terminal Island.

A Long Beach fire department pumper will supply water to the thirsty iron horse at the Artesia St. crossing, between Cherry Ave. and Paramount Blvd.

Compton Man Faces Trial on Narcotics Rap

COMPTON—Rubin Villalabos, 30, of 3280 Folsom St., will be tried in Los Angeles Superior Court Feb. 10 on charges of possessing marijuana cigarets.

Villalabos was arrested by Compton policemen Merle Andrews and James A. Emmons who said he was driving erratically.

A search of the car uncovered marijuana cigarets and he was charged with possession of narcotics. Bail was set at $2,500.

L. B. State Adds Nine Teachers to Faculty

Nine teachers have been added to the faculty of Long Beach State College for the spring semester, bringing the total number of full-time teachers to 129, according to Dr. P. Victor Peterson, president of the college.

Mrs. Marie R. Johnston, who is working on a doctor's degree at UCLA, Mrs. Freeda P. Wilson, a teaching assistant at USC, and Dr. John D. Williams of the University of Tennessee will become assistant professors of education.

Herbert A. Thomas, science instructor at Santa Ana high school, will become assistant professor of natural science. Dr. George E. Stevenson, director of an Air Force project on marine geology at USC, will join State College faculty as an assistant professor of geology. Dr. James F. Ragland, who holds a doctorate in history from Stanford, will be an assistant professor of history.

Milton A. Orowitz, now studying at the University of California, will become an English instructor. Mrs. Winifred H. Higgins, formerly on the staff of the State Teachers College of Salem, Mass., will become an assistant professor of art. Mrs. Edna H. Barbour, business instructor at Los Angeles Harbor Junior College, will teach business education at State College.

Buses to Serve Junior League Rummage Sale

Third annual rummage sale sponsored by the Junior League of Long Beach will take place Monday and Tuesday in the Exhibition Hall of Municipal Auditorium. Sale hours on Monday are from 10 a. m. to 8 p. m. and on Tuesday from 10 a. m. to 2 p. m.

As a convenience for customers a shuttle bus for which there is no charge will circle constantly through the day. Its route will be down Pine Ave. from Seventh St. to Ocean Blvd., east to American Ave., north to Seventh and back to Pine.

In addition to men's, women's and children's clothing other items on sale will include furniture, household appliances, costume jewelry and bric-a-brac. All proceeds will go to philanthropic endeavors in the community.

other federal agency intended to do about it.

Before Hinshaw and Holifield assured them there was no need for alarm, Waters had indicated the Legislature might call for a congressional investigation.

"They told us at the AEC that they were aware of their responsibility and were doing everything necessary," Waters declared. "But our scientists, including Dr. Stafford Warren of UCLA, say there is a potential hazard. We're in the middle."

Waters added the Legislature intends to conduct hearings into the subject next Feb. 10-11 and might, as a result, ask for a congressional investigation.

The federal civil defense program, or more specifically the lack of one, also perturbs Johnson and Waters.

They repeated to California congressmen charges that lack of firm federal guidance has killed any nationwide civil defense program.

Reliance on a let-the-states-do-it policy, they assert, has resulted in only a few states, such as California and New York, doing anything. The rest have done nothing, with the result that there is no overall civil defense program.

The probable outcome in California, Johnson and Waters indicated, will be maintenance of a so-called "civil defense" program capable of meeting natural disasters, such as earthquakes and floods. Their committee is expected to recommend that any CD "program" beyond this be kept on paper.

Waters, Johnson, Col. Albert Sheets, committee consultant, and Stanley Pierson, acting state director of civil defense, all complained of a "vast lethargy" among the California public regarding civil defense. This, combined with a federal tendency to pass the buck to the states, they declare, has paralyzed the program.

Hinshaw, Holifield and several other congressmen agreed the situation was unfortunate, but none seemed to think Congress could do much about it. As Hinshaw put the problem:

"We have seen such rapid developments in both atomic atack and atomic defense in the past five years that it is almost impossible to settle on any one civil defense program and promulgate it before the next development makes it outmoded."

What's new with Chevrolet... everything!

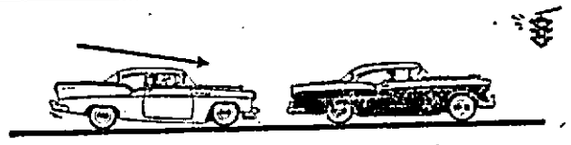

Here are many ways of saying that the 1955 Chevrolet is utterly new from road to roof, from grille to taillights. But the total of these changes is the significant thing, for they add up to a kind of car that has never existed in the world before. It is a low-cost car, with low-cost gasoline economy and low-cost maintenance. But in everything else it rivals the finest of high-priced cars—in scintillating styling in silken ease of handling, in thistledown riding comfort, in blazing acceleration, in the full luxurious range of power assists and drive options. You can look at it and tell it is a precedent-shattering car. You can check the features and appreciate the brilliant advances in engineering. But you can't possibly know how astonishing it really is until you drive it . . . and that is what we sincerely ask you to do.

New 162-h.p. "Turbo-Fire V8" engine has ultra-short stroke; 8 to 1 compression ratio.

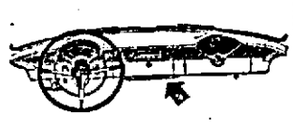

Sweep-Sight windshield gives safer wide-angle view.

Tubeless tires are standard on all models, offer more protection against blowouts.

New "Blue-Flame 123" engine has six-cylinder economy, better cooling and lubrication.

Anti-Dive braking control checks tendency of front end to nose-down during fast stops, keeps car "heads up."

High-level ventilation intake at base of windshield picks up cleaner air above road fumes.

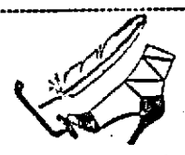

Central glove compartment is handier for the driver.

Full-Fold rear seat in station wagons gives nearly 11 inches longer cargo deck—because seat cushion folds flat too!

European-styled grille presents the most distinctive "face" of any car on the American road.

Air Conditioning unit (optional at extra cost) fits under hood of V8 models, steals no space from trunk.

Powerglide† automatic transmission now offers smoother shifts, has more durability.

Swing-type brake and clutch pedals permit draft-free sealing of passenger compartment.

Curved glass rear-quarter windows on station wagons give maximum visibility—and add a striking new style note.

New interior fabrics in two-tone combinations harmonize with exterior colors.

Controls Co. Opens Plant on L.B. Blvd.

Controls Co. is an example of a small enterprise that has grown with Southern California to become an important local industry.

From the 150 square foot garage and a first annual payroll of $9,000, the Grayson Division grew rapidly. A plant built near the original garage was expanded through the years to cover 130,000 square feet of floor space and an entire Lynwood block.

Expansion speeded with the purchase of the plant by the Robertshaw Thermostat Co. in 1936, again with the merging of the local company with other control and instrument firms throughout the nation to form the present Robertshaw-Fulton Controls Co.

The new Long Beach facility has 237,000 square feet, almost twice the capacity of the former plant. Over the next year and a half, production and personnel will be doubled.

The payroll, only $9,000 the first year, will reach approximately $9,000,000 annually.

At present the Grayson Division employs 950. The new plant can accommodate 2,400, and employes will be added as production requires.

The total investment, including land, building and new equipment, is approximately $7 million.

READY TO OPEN

Formal opening is set Wednesday for Robertshaw-Fulton's Grayson Division factory at Long Beach Freeway and Long Beach Blvd. Building cost is $3,000,000.

Pomp Ordered for Parliament

BONN, Germany (AP)—Speaker Eugen Gerstenmaier and the three deputy speakers of the Bundestag are under orders to start wearing cutaways. And everyone in that lower house of Parliament will have to rise when the speaker enters.

It's all part of a campaign by West German legislators to make sessions of Parliament more dignified.

Beard Crop Sown for Jubilee "Harvest"

SWIFT CURRENT, Sask. (AP)—The men of this southwestern Saskatchewan city are starting early this year in growing whiskers for the Frontier Days festivities held each summer. They are cultivating "jubilee beards" in honor of the province's 50th birthday.

Formosa Resolution

DECISIVE VOTES in House and Senate show once again that in time of crisis Americans know how to stand together in the national interest.

To lawmakers who considered swift approval as a major value of a defend-Formosa resolution, it was agonizing to see Sens. Morse, Langer and a few others start a delaying debate.

In a matter such as this, in which speed and unity are important for psychological reasons, delay robs the action of some of its impact.

However, the Constitutional processes were served. The argumentative Senators certainly were within their rights. After all, the hazard of submitting a question to Congress is that a discussion may take place.

Immediately the question was raised whether Mr. Eisenhower was asking for power which might be interpreted as authority to "hit first." If so, could it mean we might strike the Chinese mainland? The fear was expressed that the resolution might give to military commanders, by Presidential delegation of authority, the power to launch "preventive war" on their own initiative.

Whatever the implicit or explicit meanings of the resolution, it is hard to believe that Dwight Eisenhower will act recklessly with a grant of authority, any more than he would act so on his own authority as Commander-in-Chief.

It is his pledge, in any event, to use our forces only to protect our vital interests. He would do that in an emergency, even if it meant acting first and getting Congressional confirmation later—as has happened before in our history.

As for the Congressional resolution being mishandled by subordinates, the President put Senators at greater ease when he said it is not his intention to delegate the authority.

The President's idea is to show the Red Chinese in a dramatic way that we intend to defend Formosa. A gesture to prevent the Reds from making any aggressive decisions based on a misunderstanding of our mood.

But in the last analysis, there can be no criticism of Senators who voiced sincere misgivings. When an aggressor attacks, as at Pearl Harbor, it is clear to Congress what it must do. In the face of uncertainties such as those surrounding the Asian picture, the course is less clear. Nobody wants to take a step which might cause war. Yet, nobody would want to omit doing something which might head off the tragedy.

The President obviously arrived at the conclusion that something was to be gained in the interest of peace and national security by making his request. A few Senators and Representatives thought otherwise. There followed an honest conflict of judgments.

But Congress overwhelmingly favors the judgment of the President. And this support in our opinion reflects accurately the general sentiment of the public.

Getting In Over His Head?

JOHN S. KNIGHT

World Knows U. S. Not Bluffing

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER is getting the support he needs in the Formosa crisis.

By overwhelming majorities, both the House and the Senate have said that the United States should defend Formosa, the Pescadores Islands and "closely related localities" with whatever force may be required.

KNIGHT

The world now knows that this isn't the Dulles brand of bluff and backdown that almost got us into the Indochina mess during the critical battle of Dien Bien Phu.

This is the real thing; not State Department bluster.

Military intervention in Indochina would have ignited the wrong war at the wrong place. We had neither the available ground troops for duty in Indochina nor suitable targets for what we sometimes describe as the "massive threat" of our airpower.

Formosa is different. It is vital in our Pacific defenses. If the Chinese Reds overran Formosa, both Japan and the Philippines would be outflanked by the enemy.

Moreover, Formosa can be successfully defended.

If Chou En-lai is determined to "liberate" Formosa and thus risk war with the United States, the military advantages would be on our side.

DELAY

My only criticism of Eisenhower's action is that it was delayed too long to gain the maximum psychological benefit.

The President's decision to act came none too soon, but it was done in exactly the right way with full respect for the role of Congress. Red China is finally on notice that the United States will fight if we are pushed too far. The responsibility for war, if it comes, is clearly not ours.

Although Congress responded to the President's statesmanship with full measure of support, a small group of Senators marred the proceedings with some injudicious and unrealistic flyspecking on the Formosa resolution.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota offered an amendment limiting the defense area to Formosa and the Pescadores. Had it been adopted, the Humphrey amendment would have prevented any retaliation against the Chinese mainland in case of attack, thus repeating the blunder made in Korea where the Reds enjoyed the luxury of a "privileged sanctuary" across the Yalu river in Manchuria.

Then we have Sen. Ralph Flanders of Vermont, who won no laurels for objective thinking during the McCarthy hearings, mouthing the nonsense that "this is preventive war."

Sen. Wayne Morse, the Independent from Oregon, also found it impossible to stay out of the headlines. The Oregon senator failed to specify how he would cope with the problem facing President Eisenhower.

Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana expressed apprehension lest Chiang Kai-shek and "his friends" get us involved in an all-out war with China, even if this should mean war with Russia."

The opinions held by these individual senators are challenging, but not persuasive.

President Eisenhower has no thought of "unleashing" Chiang Kai-shek for an assault upon the mainland of China. The President has never engaged in sabre rattling. He is against preventive war. It was Eisenhower's decision to keep out of Indochina.

We must therefore believe that the President is not trying to start a war, but to prevent one.

Let the Humphreys, Kefauvers, Flanders, Morses and Longs remember this:

VITAL POINT

Formosa is vital to our defenses.

Chou En-lai, whose troops fought ours to a bloody stalemate in Korea, says he intends to conquer Formosa.

The U. S. is pledged to defend Formosa. Moreover, self-interest dictates that course of action.

Are we risking war by granting this authority requested by the President?

Of course!

But the greater risk to our security is to let Formosa fall to the Communists.

Our defense lines must remain in the Far Pacific, and not be withdrawn to the coasts of California, Oregon and Washington.

BRUCE BIOSSAT

If You Err, Why Not Admit It?

ONE OF THE MARKS of decency and fairness in human life is a man's willingness to admit error. Sad to relate, it's a mark whose imprint appears to have become a trifle faint in this turbulent, competitive age.

In public affairs, of course, it has long been an axiom of rather doubtful merit that the politician shall not acknowledge error if he can avoid it.

BIOSSAT

Yet it is pretty clear that people are often captivated by engaging frankness, their sympathies won by evidences of human frailty in public figures. They are ready to forgive much.

Despite this, the trend seems to be the other way. Our politicians, of both parties, have developed to a fine art the technique of not conceding their mistakes. The result is often exactly the opposite of what they desire. They get into more rather than less political trouble.

TRUMAN EXAMPLE

Former President Truman's famous "red herring" remark is a striking example. In the atmosphere which prevailed during and right after World War II, a great many Americans were gullible about Russian Communist intentions. As a nation, we were slow to alert to the new peril.

Mr. Truman might have said that his administration, caught up in this atmosphere, had likewise been slow to appreciate the danger. That was the fact. Instead, he met plain evidence of Red infiltration with the brash comment that it did not exist.

The illustrations are manifold. Both parties are well known to be divided organisms, but party chieftains never let themselves be trapped in public acknowledgment of that situation. One wonders who they think they are fooling.

But the public men aren't alone in all this. The private citizen seems more on edge, in this abrasive civilization of ours, than he used to be.

Admitting responsibility for error seems to be viewed by some people as not merely unwise but a positive sign of weakness. Apologize for your own mistakes and you'll sometimes find that you get a cold, stony stare in reply.

COMMON REACTIONS

This could mean: "Well, what did you do it for in the first place?" Or it might mean instead: "You fool, why do you apologize? I wouldn't if I'd stepped on your toes."

Exaggerations? It depends a little on where you live, but this sort of thing is common in many places in the nation.

Every day that passes, there are more Americans alive than the day before. The growth in our numbers is changing the life we lead. If this new life is not to be an increasingly painful experience, we need to do more and more to accommodate to each other. Admitting our mistakes can be a big part of that accommodation.

PETER EDSON

Strauss Law: What Can Happen Will

WASHINGTON — Adm. Lewis Strauss, as chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, feels he has had more than his fair share of troubles with Congress and the public. These troubles have arisen over such things as the atomic energy law, the Dixon-Yates contract for private power in the Tennessee Valley, and the Oppenheimer security case.

EDSON

Adm. Strauss told the National Press Club that the main purpose of AEC's public information department was to keep him out of trouble. But even these skilled public relations men haven't been able to do that, so he has hired a personal, special assistant to work on this problem. He is Everett Hollies, former Mutual Broadcasting System commentator.

As an expression of how sensitive he is about poublic relations, Adm. Strauss has written what he calls the Strauss law:

"If anything bad can possibly happen, it probably will."

HANDBAG

When U. S. Ambassador to Italy Clare Boothe Luce was in Washington last summer, she complained about having to carry around a woman's handbag, with all the things in it that women carry in handbags.

When Mrs. Luce returned to Washington recently, it was observed that she carried no handbag to conferences. Instead she carried all the things she used to carry in a handbag in her brief case. She had done away with the handbag she detested so much—by getting a bigger one.

FALLING HAIR

As a sample of red tape slowing up the U. S. refugee immigration program, Scott McLeod, State Department Security Administrator, points to one requirement that all applicants state on their public health declaration whether they have ever had falling hair.

Mr. McLeod says he never could see the need for this and similar questions, though he admitted he was not a medical expert.

Cracked one balding member of the press corps: "Who doesn't have falling hair?"

KILOCYCLE COPS

The name "Kilocycle Kops" has been stuck on the Federal Communications Commission Engineering and Monitoring Bureau. It investigates atmospheric noises that interfere with radio and television signals. Here's an odd case recently uncovered:

Monitoring for interference in Portland, Ore., a mobile unit traced a strange signal to an apartment house. A homemade shortwave receiver was found. It had been discarded by its owner two years before, but the power cord was left plugged in and the switch was turned "On." The fire and interference hazard was ended, and the owner was given an explanation on why his light bills had been so high.

KERR TAX CUT

Sen. Bob Kerr (D-Okla) announced in a recent newsletter to his constituents that he will strive during this session of Congress to "Amend the tax law to benefit the many instead of the few."

In response to a query, however, the Senator's office makes clear that this resolution does not apply to any changes in the tax laws which give big depletion allowances to the producers of oil and natural gas, of which he himself is one.

What Sen. Kerr's letter to the Oklahoma voters was intended to convey is that he is planning to have the U. S. income tax exemption raised from the present $600 to $700 a person. During the last session of Congress Sen. Kerr joined with Democrats Walter George of Georgia and Allen J. Frear Jr. of Delaware to make this $100 increase in exemption effective. But the Eisenhower administration opposed the idea and it never got to first base.

Sen. Kerr does not believe tax depreciation for oil and gas producers benefits just the few. He claims it benefits the many and that if it were not in effect, oil and gas prices would be higher than they are, through decreased production.

NOT TVA IDEA

It will probably take a Congressional Appropriations Committee investigation to drag out all the facts, but the Eisenhower budget cut of Tennessee Valley Authority funds from $214 million this year to only $2 million for next year was not the idea of TVA officials.

The original TVA request for new construction funds is now a closely guarded secret. Government agencies aren't supposed to talk about how much their initial requests for funds are cut by the Budget Bureau and the White House.

But it was generally known beforehand that TVA has big plans for expansion to meet its constantly expanding power market. These plans were brushed aside while the administration thinks up new plans for financing power development by some means other than direct government appropriation.

DAVID LAWRENCE

Speech by George Great Act of Statesmanship

WASHINGTON — Seldom in the history of the United States Senate has there been an address of statesmanship comparable to that delivered by Sen. Walter George of Georgia, Democrat, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, as he upheld President Eisenhower's request for unrestricted authority to use the armed forces to defend Formosa and the American defense line in the Far East.

LAWRENCE

In contrast to the petty quibbles of some of his colleagues and the narrow interpretations which they interjected to hamstring the American armed forces if they should be attacked from the small islands off the coast of China, the Georgia senator clear in his speech that this is not the time to give the enemy a privilege sanctuary of retreat, as was the case in Korea.

Such Americanism is a thrilling exhibition of the spirit that has governed the nation in all its past crises. It was especially stimulating to hear this doctrine from the lips of this senator—a veteran in experience in foreign affairs—as he cast aside all partisanship and focused on the central issue.

For, instead of leading to a "preventive war"—which is the smoke-screen raised against all proper defense measures whenever it suits critics to use that term to break down American firmness—Sen. George showed how the American policy could deter the aggressor, prevent a big war from happening, and insure peace.

ALTERNATIVE

"I asked each man here," declared Sen. George, "if the Congress of the United States is willing to withhold its moral support from the President of the United States under these circumstances, what is your alternative? I ask each man what is his alternative?"

This was a challenging point addressed to the restrictionists—those who would, in effect, notify the enemy that American ships could be fired on and that the American Congress was unwilling to vote the authority to fire back.

Sen. George's most telling point—and one that was persuasively presented, too, by Sen. Knowland, Republican leader, in the previous day's debate—is that nobody knows from what point Formosa might be attacked and that it is imperative to notify the Red Chinese there would be unrestricted retaliation.

The effectiveness of the resolution is that it tells the whole world America not only will defend Formosa but will not hesitate to bomb the approaches within a radius of several hundred miles if such a step becomes necessary to protect American ships and military installations.

SAME OLD CRY

The same old cry—which has been heard again and again in instances of appeasement or in episodes in which there has been a fateful hesitation—has been repeated this week in the Senate. It is that the passage of the resolution might bring on war. Risks are always present in the evolution of international policy, but an unwillingness to make a clear statement of what counter-force will be brought to bear against an attacking force can only lead, as it has many times before, to an outbreak of a major war. The "London Daily Mail" in an editorial says that such a clear warning as President Eisenhower can give by means of the joint resolution might—if issued before 1914 and 1939—have prevented two world wars.

More and more members of the Senate have begun to see the joint resolution not as a narrow legalistic instrument of international policy but as a pronouncement on a moral issue—to make the aggressors respect the neutrality of Formosa. For Formosa today has not been given to the regime on the mainland because it has violated international obligations, including a flagrant act of aggression in Korea.

The Chiang Kai-shek government is still the recognized government of China so far as the United States is concerned. Under international law, any request for military help from a recognized government is granted in accord with tradition and custom.

DREW PEARSON

Nixon-Knowland Relations Strained

WASHINGTON — Those who attended the White House dinner in honor of Vice President Nixon came away more than ever impressed with the strained relations between the two young Republicans from California, Nixon and Senate Minority Leader Knowland.

The dinner was much like any other official dinner, except for one thing. Guests arrived punctually. Each wife was led by a uniformed naval or military aide to the receiving line while her husband trailed behind like a lost sheep. Guests carefully shown their place in the line and given a little card to tell them who their dinner partner was and where to sit in the state dining room. A loudspeaker also discreetly announced their names as they walked across the shiny floor of the White House.

PEARSON

All this was according to careful White House protocol and exactly as other White House dinners have been conducted for years — whether Republicans or Democrats were in power.

However, there was an important difference. Mrs. Nixon and Mrs. Knowland did not speak. And Sen. Knowland and Vice President Nixon merely exchanged a cool formal greeting.

Democratic senators and congressmen had some things to say under their breath about the Vice President who had lambasted their loyalty. But on the surface they were just as polite and genial as Ike himself was toward the Vice President. Furthermore, the President had a cordial chat with Bill Knowland, despite the hammering Knowland had given him regarding Formosa.

But not even when the men adjourned to the Green Room for cigars, coffee and liquers after dinner did the Vice President and Sen. Knowland engage in any friendly conversation. They were polite, aloof, cool.

WHY COOL?

Other Republican senators at the dinner of course knew why. At the Chicago convention which nominated Eisenhower in 1952, Knowland was offered the Vice-Presidential nomination by Sen. Taft if he would desert his old friend, Gov. Earl Warren, and switch the powerful California delegation over to Taft. Seldom has a young politican been so tempted. Taft was not a young man. And Knowland's support would have meant not only Taft's election but later Knowland's probable succession to the presidency.

However, Knowland remained loyal to the man who had appointed him to the Senate—Earl Warren.

If he had listened to Taft, Taft would have been nominated and Knowland would be President of the United States today.

Meanwhile, however, Nixon was conspiring behind the scenes, bolted the California delegation and led the stampede to Eisenhower in return for the job Knowland turned down—the Vice Presidency.

Since then, the two young Californians have been engaged in a bitter battle for control of the Republican party in California—a battle which Knowland has been winning. The eventual winner will control the California delegation at the next national convention and have a leg up on the Presidency or the Vice Presidency.

TOWN MEETING

Eloquent

TO THE EDITOR:

I wish to comment on the eloquent, revolutionary speech on the subject of wars, past, present and in the future, by Gen. Douglas MacArthur on the occasion of the dedication of a monument in his honor in the park named after him in Los Angeles.

Gen. MacArthur said, "We must break out of the straightjacket of the past. There must be always one to lead, and we should be that one. We should now proclaim to all our readiness to abolish war in concert with the great powers of the world and the result might be magical . . . The next great advance in the evolution of civilization cannot take place until war is abolished."

From the greatest general in our history this revolutionary change of thought and action as quoted above can only be compared in world significance to the conversion of St. Paul to the Christian religion on his way to Damascus, when he saw the Great Light and instead of being the chief persecutor of the Christians, became at once its greatest advocate and missionary.

History has shown that agreements among modern nations are no longer observed, unless both profit; however, both sides can be trusted, when each side does profit. The abolition of war has been the dream of man for ages, but every agreement has been broken as fantastic. However, that was before the invention of the hydrogen bomb demonstrated that mass destruction is possible and waging of war is no longer an ethical question, but the survival of the human race.

Peace, the abolition of war and the savings of billions of dollars consumed by mass destruction, would bring economic prosperity and increase the standard of living for all people throughout the earth.

A. R.

Word Picture

TO THE EDITOR:

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's speech was the clearest word picture of the conditions in the world that I have ever heard.

This speech, I believe, should be printed in every language of the world and sent by special messenger to every leader of every country in the world.

Better still, it should be sent out by recording with attachments enabling the leaders to listen at their convenience.

It should help the world save itself from itself.

Secret

TO THE EDITOR:

During the process of framing the Atomic Energy Act, last year in the Joint Atomic Congressional Committee, Lewis L. Strauss, Chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, was the sole representative of that commission before the committee. Other members complained of being denied a part in it. It appeared that all proposals suggested by Strauss were approved by the President and accepted by the committee.

Most of the policies embodied in that law were earmarked "secret," and as yet the public knows very little about the law. The law contains rates to be charged for fissionable material to private industries.

Sen. Clinton B. Anderson (Dem.-N. M.), new chairman of the Joint Committee, asked for and received from Strauss a list of those rates to be charged, and after looking them over, they were marked "Top Secrets" which he bitterly disapproved. Mr. Anderson told members of the committee that the charges proposed by the commission were just another Dixon-Yates giveaway."

Mr. Strauss has been caught in a few vital misstatements. I believe if Mr. Anderson can save the support of the public, he will come up with a righteous demand for the removal of Strauss from so important a position of power over the affairs of all the people of our country.

GEORGE BRISTOW.

Senator Soaper Says---

Both parties favor shorter campaigns in 1956. This not only would save money but give the candidate an opportunity to fend off queries with, "That's an excellent question, and I wish I had time to answer it."

The most puzzling thing about the gangs of juvenile delinquents is the way every member is a good boy who just happened to run with bad companions.

Among the most painful of childhood diseases is the flu, when contracted by the fifth-grade boy on the day a heavy snow closes down the schools.

Now that the robins are violating their contract by hanging around all winter there is an opening for a new harbinger of spring.

If competitive free enterprise takes over the development of atomic power it shouldn't be hard to imagine the ads: "Use Whizzo, the atomic fuel which uses only large, sun-ripened atoms."

You can always tell the dwellers in the remote suburbs by what they bring into the office summer or winter—tomatoes or galoshes.

The president of a large motorcar company says the public demands more speed "and if we don't give it to them we're dead." And if you do, they are.

The lowest marriage rate in 20 years is reflected in a life insurance company's statistics, as well as in reduced sales of ash trays, pickle forks and bon-bon dishes.

I Owe It to You

There would be little I could think . . . And less that I could do . . . Without the inspiration and . . . The help that comes from you . . . Without the courage and the hope . . . That you instill in me . . . And all the other ways in which . . . You give me energy . . . And if I ever reach the goal . . . That I am dreaming of . . . I know that it will be because . . . Of all your faith and love . . . You brush aside my lethargy . . . You put away each fear . . . Until at last my least success . . . Belongs to you, my dear . . . And yet you want no credit, though . . . You will accept all blame . . . How can I help but love you for . . . The way you play the game?

Community Chest Adds Drive Director to Staff

A campaign director has been added to the Community Chest staff, Roland Robbins, president, announced Saturday.

Chest directors met Floyd E. White at their regular monthly meeting when he arrived to start preparation for next fall's United Neighbors Campaign.

White, who holds a master's degree in social work from USC and is a graduate of Pomona College, comes here after three years work on the Los Angeles Community Chest staff.

"As a native of Long Beach I have a more than usual interest in seeing that the area has the needed health, welfare and youth services our growing community needs," White told directors.

After graduating from Poly High School, White served with the Long Beach National Guard 251st Regiment in the Pacific for four years.

During his post-graduate work he did casework with the Long Beach Family Service and staff work at the Pasadena Community Chest. He has been a member of the Elks and Junior Chamber of Commerce as well as the Association for the Study of Community Organizations.

Hall Favored for R. Cross National Job

Long Beach Red Cross board of directors has nominated Ross E. Hall for membership on the board of governors for the American National Red Cross, it was announced Saturday by Llewellyn Bixby, chapter chairman.

The board of governors has 50 members, of whom eight are appointed by President Eisenhower, who is honorary chairman of the organization; 12 are elected by the board itself as members at large and 30 are elected by chapter delegates at the national convention.

Hall, an honorary member of the local board of directors, has an impressive record of service as chapter chairman, vice chairman and director of Long Beach Red Cross. In 1952 he was appointed member of the advisory council for the Pacific area.

He is past president of Rotary and Long Beach Dinner Club, vice president and executive committee member of Long Beach Community Hospital, a member of L. B. Shrine and Long Beach Community Players. Since 1949 he has been chairman of the Selective Service Board. He is a partner and manager of the Century Lumber Co.

SLEEPING OFF THE BEDLAM

In a "quiet" farmhouse where he went to write a novel, only to be snowbound with a noisy brood of visitors, Herbert Gage (played by Marvin Cloyd) brings rafter-rocking comedy to Long Beach Community Playhouse in the current play, "January Thaw." Here he's crowded out of his bedroom to the living room davenport where he's being tucked in for the night by the maid, Frieda (Adella Cooper), and his wife, Marge (Nancy Copeland).

It Happened Last Night
By Earl Wilson

HOW GOES GOBEL

NEW YORK — The burning question all over America is, "Will George Gobel last?"

As the owner of a George Gobel haircut, I hope so—and I insist he's as permanent as horseshoes. (Gobel offstage asks, "Whatever happened to horseshoes?")

Gobel and my crewcut have a kinship. I "got trimmed"—in Las Vegas, curiously enough—last July. A few days later, wandering through the lobby of the Hotel Mapes in Reno, I saw Gobel's round yet squarish face—and said hello.

"Hi!" he said, and with a quick handshake, hurried on.

I'd seen him a few times on TV and covered his cafe opening at the Waldorf previously where I had said he was great—but hardly anybody else around the Reno lobby recognized the young man.

Now; six or seven months later, he's so famous that total strangers shout, "You can't hardly get that kind no more" or "I'll be a dirty bird" to me—thinking I'm George, because of our similar hairdos.

Gobel'll last, I feel, because he is, himself, a very funny man.

He often outfunnies his writers.

I happened to be watching him rehearse at NBC in Hollywood for a New Year's Eve sketch. Throughout that show, George wanted to go out New Year's Eve partying—and his wife wanted him to stay home and not drink anything.

Midnight—the New Year—had come . . . the hour for hugging and kissing. George was to kiss "Alice," his wife, just after shaking hands with a man who'd dropped in.

The idea of a sober husband saluting his teetotaling wife with a handshake instead of a smooch tickled Producer-Writer Hal Kanter who cast aside the script and said:

"Put a gold star opposite George's name."

Gobel's comedy has an intellectualism of a type that most successful comedians would consider a trifle dangerous. Gobel spoofs it with his own rash of double negatives, or a cliche—yet there are moments when he wishes to demonstrate that he did pass the 6th grade on something besides a bicycle.

In one script, his writers leave him a note saying:

"We've gone to lunch. Your writers, the Bronte Sisters."

George shakes his head moodily.

"That's Charlotte's work—Emily would never have done that," he decides.

In another script we find the words: "This is Tennessee Ernie. He really comes from Tennessee. Some shows would say he comes from Arizona to get a howl, but not us."

To this Gobel adds: "Documentary comedy is what it is."

Not very funny—unless Gobel says it. Let it be mentioned that Ava Gardner was one of his big fans back there in Reno when he wasn't yet a big name and went back to see him twice. She dug it.

I feel that in 1960, George Gobel will still be around.

WHAT SHE WANTED

UP TO DATE

Proud of her newly installed 1955 car license tabs is black-haired Nedra Prouse of Long Beach. "If you don't have your '55 tabs," Nedra cautions, "remember penalties start next Saturday."—(Staff Photo by Bryan Hodgson.)

TIME FOR TABS

Car License Deadline Set Friday

Motorists have just one more work week—five days—in which to get their 1955 auto license tabs.

After next Friday, warns Director Paul Mason of the Department of Motor Vehicles, penalties will be added to registration renewal and license fees.

The penalties, Mason explained, are mandatory under the Motor Vehicle Code. They're pretty stiff, too. For example:

On all late renewals the flat registration fee of $8 is doubled to $16 and the license fee is increased by 50 per cent.

The deadline for owners making renewals in person at permanent or temporary motor vehicle offices is the close of business Friday afternoon. The permanent offices are open from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. Temporary offices in nearly 100 banks throughout the state, which handle renewals only on presentation of the pre-punched cards from Sacramento, are manned by Department of Motor Vehicles personnel during banking hours.

Motorists who did not receive the pre-punched cards may renew by presenting their 1954 white slips to any permanent office of the department.

Here are permanent offices of the Department of Motor Vehicles, in the Long Beach area:

700 E. Broadway, Long Beach.
17206 S. Woodruff Ave., Bellflower.
303 E. Palmer St., Compton.
12131 Front St., Norwalk.
1317 Cravens Ave., Torrance.

And here are the bank stations of the Long Beach area:

Pacific National Bank, 2200 Pacific Ave., Long Beach; Security-First National Bank, 102 Pine Ave., Long Beach; Bank of America, 5401 N. Long Beach Blvd., N. Long Beach; Bank of America, 8233 E. Firestone St., Downey; Bank of America, 131 W. Anaheim St., Wilmington; Fishermen and Merchants Bank, 407 W. 7th St., San Pedro; Citizens National Bank, 4300 Tweedy Ave., South Gate; Peoples Bank, 5247 Hazlebrook Ave., Lakewood Center; People's Bank, 4145 Viking Way, Lakewood.

Nazi Push in Near East Topic of Zionist Rally

Dangers faced by Jews in the rise of Nazism in the Near East will be discussed at a public rally under the auspices of the Long Beach Zionist district at 8 o'clock tonight in Temple Israel Social Hall, 3rd St. and Loma Ave.

"News dispatches reveal that former Nazi generals are organizing anti-Semitic terror campaigns throughout the Arab countries," declared Rabbi L. Shalom Ravetch, president of the Zionist district. "Jews are being arrested and tortured again just as they were in Hitler's Reich."

Rabbi Ephraim F. Einhorn of Temple Beth David of the San Gabriel Valley, who was born in Vienna, has traveled widely and has visited Israel five times, will speak.

Elyakum Shapira will play Israel folk songs on the accordion; Lee Greisman will sing songs of Israel, accompanied by Jeannette Goldstein and the Los Angeles Israeli Youth Dancers.

CC Adult School Slates New Classes for Spring

Five new classes will be offered by the City College School for Adults when the spring semester opens Monday at adult centers throughout Long Beach.

Titled "Preparation for the Senior Years," a new course designed primarily for younger and middle-aged persons will be offered Tuesday evenings, 7-10 p. m., in Room 419 of Poly High Adult Center. Instructor is Harvey Franklin, gerontology specialist.

Lip reading for adults, the only class of its kind offered in the area, will meet Wednesday evenings, 7-9 p. m., Room 419, Poly High. The course is offered for adults with impaired hearing and others who wish to learn speech-reading techniques.

Two new classes in Community Drama will be given at the Jordan Adult Center, meeting Monday and Wednesday, 7-10 p. m. Adult drama classes will also continue at Wilson Adult Center. Both groups will give public performances during the semester.

First adult driver education class ever offered locally will be given Thursdays, 7-10 p. m., at Jordan Adult Center. Instructor will be Vincent Jones, examiner for the State Department of Motor Vehicles.

READ THESE AMAZING TESTIMONALS

Dear Dr. Chan: "The day I came to your office with my mother and brother I was about to give up hope of getting rid of my asthma attacks. I spent hundreds of dollars for shots and pills, but yet found no results. After reading your advertisement, I tried you for my last resort and was thrilled to find that I responded wonderfully. After the first treatment I was able to breathe normally and could sleep better for the first time in months. Now I am feeling fine and hoping others will benefit from my experience with Dr. Chan's Natural method."
Signed, Mrs Vivian Murray.

To Whom It May Concern: "For over 20 years I have been going from one doctor's office to another hoping to find someone to help me with my asthma and stomach conditions. No one knows how much I had suffered until I came to Dr. Chan. Night after night I had to sit up because I wasn't able to lie down to sleep I was coughing and wheezing most of the night, besides my stomach was full of gas. After taking Dr Chan's Herbal Therapy for one week, I began to improve. Now after five months of continuous treatment, my asthma and stomach troubles are just about over I wish to recommend this treatment to anyone who is anxious to get well. I am sure that Dr. Chan will do all he can to help you as he has helped me." Signed, Mrs. Tina Smith.

Determine Wins Maturity on Foul

BUMPING DOWN SANTA ANITA STRETCH

Miz Clementine (on rail), with Eddie Arcaro up, duels Determine down to the wire in rough going in Santa Anita Maturity Saturday. Miz Clementine won, but was disqualified for interference. Determine, with Ray York in the irons, was awarded top money.—(AP Wirephoto.)

Disqualify Calumet Filly for Stretch Bump

By DAVE LEWIS, Sports Editor

SANTA ANITA PARK—Calumet Farm's hard-hitting filly, Miz Clementine, who was cheated out of a chance to run in the Santa Maria Handicap a week ago when left in the barn by mistake, encountered more trouble here Saturday as she came within a "bump" of becoming the first member of her sex to win the rich Santa Anita Maturity . . . but after leading Andy Crevolin's Determine to the wire by a head in the $163,360 turf classic she was disqualified for interference in the stretch and placed second.

Thus, first money of $87,000 went to Determine . . . moving him up to No. 15 in the all-time money-winning standings with a total of $461,535. Miz Clementine earned $30,000 for her "bump" routine.

James Session was third in the mile and one-quarter event, 3½ lengths farther back, while Allied was fourth another 3¼ lengths to the rear. Then came Spring Count, Duke's Lea, For Free, Correlation, and Ole Travis, who was pulled up at the half-mile pole by Jockey Bill Pearson when his saddle slipped.

It was the fourth disqualification in a stakes race at Santa Anita and the second in a $100,000 event.

In the other "fouled up" finish in a Hundred Grander, Intent was disqualified for bumping Miche in the stretch of the 1952 Santa Anita Handicap and first money awarded to the gray charger from South America.

And like Miche, Determine also is a "grey!"

YORK BLEEDING

Determine's pilot, Ray York, blood streaming from his nose as the result of catching a flying clod in the face in midstretch, declared "I really think I should have won the race. I was right with Miz Clementine from the three-eighth pole on in and she made us lose ground all the way through the stretch."

The veteran Eddie Arcaro was aboard Miz Clementine. He explained that she was drifting out a little in the stretch and "when I hit her left-handed about the 16th pole she swerved before I could get hold of her and straighten her out. Funny thing, about that. She used to lug in as a 2-year-old when I rode her in Chicago. But she was trying to drift all the way in this race."

A study of the patrol films, shown to newspapermen after the race, showed that the stewards' decision to disqualify Miz Clementine was fully justified.

When the Crevolin standard-bearer and the Calumet filly came thundering into the stretch, Miz Clementine bore out and brushed Determine.

The films show Arcaro whipping Miz Clementine with his right hand to straighten her out momentarily.

But as Determine came on again just outside the eighth pole, Miz Clementine began drifting out . . . carrying Determine clear to the middle of the track.

SWITCHES WHIP

Then, unable to use a right-hand whip to straighten her out again because he would hit Determine and York, Arcaro switched the whip in mid-stride and desperately whacked her left-handed. But this time Miz Clementine responded by barreling into Determine with a real "body block" . . . forcing York to take up.

Arcaro quickly pulled Miz Clementine off Determine and steered her to the inside rail . . . but by this time the damage had been done and even though she was able to hold off Determine, the stewards flashed the "Inquiry" sign as the horses passed under the finish line.

Allied, Determines' running mate, roared into an early two-length lead followed by Miz Clementine, Spring Count and Determine.

Miz Clementine and Determine moved up on the pacesetting Allied down the backstretch and then zipped by him as they headed in the far turn.

By this time, it was obvious that it was going to be a two-horse race . . . with the rest of the field lagging behind.

HOLDS ON TO LEAD

Miz Clementine never actually lost the lead after she and Determine moved to the front with five-sixteenths of a mile to go.

Several times Determine drove up to look her in the eye, but was never able to move ahead of the stout-hearted Calumet filly.

Three times in the stretch York tried to wrest the lead from Miz Clementine, but each time was frustrated by the filly's erratic running.

It was a thrilling race from start to finish with Determine and Miz Clementine staging one of the greatest stakes duels since the immortal Noor-Citation match in the 1950 San Juan Capistrano Handicap which has been described by many experts as the greatest horse race in history.

Determine carried top weight of 126 pounds to Miz Clementine's 117. Time for the mile and one-quarter was 2:00 2/5 over a fast strip . . . two-fifths of a second off the track record.

Determine, coupled with Allied, paid $5.10, 2.30 and 2.10 across the board; Miz Clementine, tied up with Duke's Lea in the betting, returned $2.10 and 2.10, while James Session, an entry with Ole Travis, paid $2.20 to show.

Heavy wagering on the show end produced a minus show pool of $2,021 for the race.

Duke's Lea, rated by many as the most dangerous part of the Calumet entry, raced into a contending position down the backstretch, but when it came time

Rams Sign Three Assistant Coaches

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Football League Los Angeles Rams Saturday announced signing of three assistant coaches to help spark their comeback campaign.

Sid Gillman, newly named head coach, brought the trio along with him from the University of Cincinnati. They are line coaches Joe Madro and Lowell Storm and backfield coach Jack Faulkner. Madro and Faulkner have worked with Gillman for the past six years and Storm for two seasons. Gillman expects to name two more aides, men with pro experience, within the next two weeks.

The action was disclosed at the close of a three-day meeting of NFL club owners here.

Three of the Rams' early draft picks arrived in New York Saturday to discuss contract terms—linebacker Larry Morris of Georgia Tech, halfback Ron Waller of Maryland and halfback Billy Teas of Georgia Tech.

Waller and Teas are expected to sign with little difficulty, but Morris is known to be negotiating with several Canadian teams.

Walks 100 Yards in 17 Seconds for New Mark

BURBANK (UP)—Bill Mihalo, who holds some 45 amateur and professional world's walking records, marched to a new professional mark for 100 yards Saturday before 20 spectators at Burbank Memorial Coliseum.

Mihalo did the 100 yards in 17 seconds flat, breaking the old record of 18.4 seconds set by Bill Donovan in 1889.

Three Share Golf Lead

Mayfield, Souchak Tie Palmer

PALM SPRINGS (UP) — Shelley Mayfield and Mike Souchak came roaring down the home stretch to catch front-runner Johnny Palmer on the 18th hole Saturday and the result was a three-way tie for the lead in the $15,000 Thunderbird Invitational golf tournament at the 54-hole mark.

The trio deadlocked at 201—each 15 under par for the distance, with the final 18 holes to be fired today.

As great as has been the shotmaking of this trio, 12 are within four strokes of the front—so it's a wide-open battle.

While Palmer, who led for the first 36 holes, faded to a one-under par 71 Saturday, Souchak checked in with a 69 to go with previous rounds of 66-66; and Mayfield added a 68 to his earlier 63-70. Palmer had a 62 his first round and a 68 Friday.

Right on their heels, with 202 totals are youngsters Bobby Rosburg, San Francisco, and Bud Holscher, Santa Monica, along with Bo Wininger of Oklahoma City and Wally Ulrich, Rochester, Minn. Wininger and Holscher had 69s Saturday, Rosburg a 67, and Ulrich a 69.

It was another great day of par-cracking efforts for the select group of professionals invited to compete in this event. The best round was a 64, scored by former National Open champion Julius Boros, which brought him into a tie with defending champion Freddie Haas, who had a 67 Saturday.

Boros was out in 31, helped with an eagle-two on the 405-yard fifth hole. His drive was out about 250 and he tanked a five-iron shot from there.

There also was a 65, by Freddie Wampler of Indianapolis, which brought him in with a 204 total.

The bad news of the day fell to Dr. Cary Middlecoff, the Memphis dentist now playing out of Klamesha Lake, N.Y. Middlecoff started off the day well in contention with a 136 score.

He had a 34 going out, but missed the ball completely twice when he had to swing left-handed from behind a tree on the 12th hole and he took a seven on the 320-yard par-four hole—rated the easiest on the course. Even with that he came in with a 72 and has a 208 score for the 54 holes.

NO SENTIMENT FOR 10 TEAMS

National League Abandons Plans for Early Expansion

NEW YORK (AP)—The National League Saturday abandoned the idea of expanding to a 10-club league. President Warren Giles said "It is my conclusion there is no sentiment for any 10-club league now."

Giles said no "formal or informal" vote was taken at Saturday's league meeting, but the expansion idea was discussed for an hour and a half.

Giles said the general sentiment of the club owners seemed to be that expansion to 10 clubs might dilute the other eight teams already in the league. Other reasons cited, he said, were that there would be too many second division clubs in a 10-club league and that there weren't enough ball players of major league caliber to go around.

Asked if the action, taken at a special league meeting to look over schedules of a possible 10 club league, did not give the American League an edge in the majors' battle for new territory, he replied:

"We realize all those things. If they (meaning the American League) want to go to 10 clubs, let them. Maybe we'll be better off than they."

"Practically everyone feels some cities not in the majors now eventually will be in the majors," he explained. "How and when I don't know, but it is inevitable. Maybe by transfer. Maybe by a third major league, but I don't think so."

Giles said the owners spent hardly any time at the meeting discussing the so-called "dry run" schedules for a 10-club league which he had sent them in advance.

The National League action came on the eve of a scheduled meeting today of the American League's realignment committee.

"And if other cities had major league parks," he continued, "they might be closer to the majors than they are now. I don't think it would be difficult to get sentiment to shift a franchise."

In the next breath, however, he added:

"I don't like to encourage any city to pass a bond issue to build a major league park."

Asked whether the National League action ruled out expansion to 10 clubs "forever," he predicted that such expansion "won't be the subject of discussion in the league very soon."

Giles would not name any cities as possible future league cities because, he said, the National League does not want to kill minor league interest in such cities. The ones that have been mentioned most prominently in the past include San Francisco, Los Angeles, Montreal, Toronto, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Houston and Dallas.

BASEBALL NEWS

Yank Offer Low: Mantle

COMMERCE, Okla. (UP)—Outfielder Mickey Mantle said Saturday he will reject the first 1953 contract from the New York Yankees because the salary figure is too low.

Mantle said he will send a letter today to the Yankee front office "to tell them I think I should receive a little more than they offered."

ATHLETICS—Alex Kellner, whose arm troubles were reported ended, signed his contract. Pacts were also received from catcher Bill Shantz and first baseman Lou Limmer. Sixteen signed contracts have now been returned.

PHILLIES — John Meyer, 23-year-old righthander who was 15-11 with Syracuse last season, signed his contract.

RED SOX—Veterans Mel Rolling and Billy Consolo and rookie infielder Lee Damman came to terms with general manager Joe Cronin. Rookie pitcher Ike Delock (17-10 at Louisville) also signed.

GIANTS—Veteran hurler Jim Hearn and Alan Worthington and Ronnie Samford inked pacts, bringing to 26 the number of players now in the fold.

BRAVES—Front office announced Saturday that rookie catcher Roger Jongewaard of Long Beach will train with the club this spring. Jongewaard hit .333 with Boise last year.

SEALS—Mike Donahue, young catcher, returned his signed contract.

CAMPBELL TO CAPTAIN

Patton One of Newcomers on U.S. Walker Cup Team

NEW YORK (UP)—Bill Campbell of Huntington, W. Va., runner-up in the British Amateur championship last year, was named captain Saturday of a nine-man Walker Cup golf team which will play Britain's best at storied St. Andrews in Scotland, May 20-21.

He was one of four members of the successful combination selected on the squad which also includes ebullient Billy Joe Patton of Morgantown, N. C., amateur sensation of the 1954 season.

Veterans returning beside Campbell are Harvie Ward Jr., of San Francisco, former British Amateur champion; Don Cherry, the crooner from Wichita Falls, Tex., and James G. Jackson of Glendale, Mo.

Newcomers, in addition to Patton are Lt. Joe Conrad of San Antonio, Tex.; Bruce Cudd of Portland; Ore.; Dale Morey of Indianapolis and Richard Yost of Portland.

Alternates who will get the assignment only in case one of the regulars cannot make the trip are in order, Rex Baxter Jr., of Amarillo, Tex., Hillman Robbins Jr., of Memphis, Tenn., and Edward Meister, 37-year-old Cleveland trade magazine publisher.

Notable omission was Bob Sweeny, 43-year-old socialite runnerup to Arnold Palmer for the National Amateur championship last year.

USSR GOES 'ALL-OUT'

Russia Far Ahead of U.S. in Plans for '56 Olympics

CHICAGO (AP)—Russia is far ahead of the United States in planning for the 1956 Olympic Games, according to Michigan's track coach, Don Canham.

Canham told the Midwest chapter of the U. S. Olympians the Russians plan to take 400 athletes to Afghanistan for six weeks of conditioning in preparation for the Olympics at Melbourne, Australia. The climates of Afghanistan and Australia are much alike.

"Our present plans call for trials in Los Angeles in November with the qualifiers going on from there to Australia," Canham said.

Canham asserted that Russia will be strongest in track events where the United States is weakest—distances from 5,000 meters up, the hammer throw, javelin throw and the two major walking races.

"We waste a lot of time talking about the 'amateur spirit' and how there is no team scoring in the Olympics," he said.

"Meanwhile, Russia is working to beat us, so it can use its victory for propaganda purposes."

Fetchick Leader in Imperial Valley Open

BRAWLEY, Calif. (UP) — Mike Fetchick, Scarsdale, N. Y., playing a cool and deliberate game, took the lead after three rounds in the $5,000 Imperial Valley Open Golf Tournament Saturday. He fired a 6-under-par 64 on the Del Rio Country Club course for a 54-hole total of 199.

Paul Harney, Worcester, Mass., with seven birdies and some fine putting, scored 63 for a total of 200. Tied at that mark with Harney are Bob Harris of Chicago, who posted a 65, and Wesley Ellis, Westwood, N. J., with a 66.

Slender Al Brosch of Garden City, N. Y., birdied eight holes and set a new course record of 62.

The leaders:

Mike Fetchick	67-68-64—199
Paul Harney	71-66-63—200

PGA Seniors Lead Shared by M. Dutra

DUNEDIN, Fla. (UP) — Louis Chiapetta of Sylvania, O., and Mortie Dutra of Los Angeles turned their backs to a chilly north wind Saturday and shot sub-par golf to vault into a three-way tie for the lead in the 54-hole National PGA Senior golf tournament.

Mike Murra of Wichita, Kan., who shot a brilliant 66 Friday, slipped to a 75 on the second round and dropped back into a tie at 141 with Chiapetta and Dutra. Chiapetta carded a two-under-par 70 and Dutra a 71.

The leaders:

Mike Murra	75—141
Mortie Dutra	71—141
Louis Chiapetta	70—141
Denny Shute	70—142

Dennis Clary in Critical Condition

TUCSON, Ariz. (UP) — Dennis Clary, a wrestler who books out of Los Angeles, was in critical condition at St. Mary's Hospital here Saturday night.

Clary appeared in a match here Thursday night and collapsed in the ring scarcely after the contest was under way.

The attending physician said Clary's right arm and right leg are paralyzed. He said that no injury or clot on the brain was found following a second operation, but added that the paralysis "may be the result of some other injury or disease."

Once Over Lightly

by DAVE LEWIS

Basketball's most forgotten men are the members of the three teams which tour with the Harlem Globetrotters—the Washington Generals, Toledo Mercuries and Philadelphia SPHAS.

The latter initials, incidentally, stand for South Philadelphia Hebrew Athletic Society. And the strange part of it is, the SPHAS have produced many hoop greats in the past 40 years such as Francis Burns, Charles McCormick and Bob Peterson . . . but have not yet developed a truly outstanding Jewish star.

The players on the three teams touring with the Globetrotters, are usually dismissed—often rudely—by fans as merely "professional stooges."

But that is not entirely the case even though the three teams collectively have succeeded in beating the Globetrotters only three times since 1951.

They'll have another go at it this week in two appearances in Long Beach at the Municipal Auditorium on Monday and Friday nights.

Toledo was the last of the three regular touring teams to beat the Globetrotters, pulling off the stunt in Minneapolis by an 87-74 count late in 1951 shortly after Washington toppled the "Trotters two nights in a row in Syracuse and Philadelphia.

How does it feel to lose all the time?

Well, the "opposition" doesn't like it.

As Pete Monska, playing-coach of the SPHAS, says . . . "It is believed that we fall over and play dead to make the Globetrotters look good. But not if we can help it. Our boys have their pride and they don't enjoy losing. The Philadelphia team hasn't beaten them in four years, but some nights we come awful close and we sure keep trying."

The natural question, of course, is what is the future of "playing straight men for a slapstick comedy act?"

"Well," Monska points out, "the players do their best to improve themselves because going up to the NBA (major league of basketball) is the big incentive. Several already have made the grade. For instance, our George Dempsey graduated from the SPHAS to the Philadelphia Warriors on the strength of what he did against the Globetrotters."

ANOTHER SPOKESMAN for the "forgotten men" states that the Generals, Mercuries and SPHAS are in a sense farm clubs only a notch under the level of the NBA. "There are many borderline cases who need only a year or two experience with us to make the NBA," he says.

Many people think the Globetrotter games are strictly "vaudeville."

"But that isn't the case, either," one of the playing-coaches declares. "Oh, there are times when we have an agreement not to interfere with their baseball and football routines, but the rest of the time we are playing for blood.

"Many times when we give them a close run for it, the customers complain the Globetrotters weren't funny enough. Well, on many occasions they don't have too much time to be funny because they have to knuckle down.

"The Globetrotters usually don't start their out-and-out clowning until they are safely out in front by eight or 10 points. When the scores are close they can't gag it up and the fans go away keenly disappointed and sore at us. The so-called 'patsies' are the villians for holding them so close.

"Once the Globetrotters get ahead by a few points, they are capable of keeping you from scoring even while they're fooling around . . . so at times it may look as if we aren't bearing down.

"But let the score get close and the Globetrotters immediately apply tremendous defensive pressure, slam the door in your face and cut the comedy.

"After all, the Globetrotters are experienced professionals who have been together longer than any unit of the opposition and their victories are entirely legitimate!"

THE GLOBETROTTERS are particularly proud of their new tag of "Uncle Sam's Ambassadors of Good Will."

They have played on all six continents of the world and in 27 years up to the start of their current tour they had played a total of 5,050 games and lost only 280.

The only part of the world in which the Globetrotters have not yet been seen is the area behind the "Iron Curtain."

But Abe Saperstein, majordomo of the Globetrotters, has plenty of evidence that sports fans in Russian-dominated countries behind the curtain are anxious to see the Negro cage magicians perform.

He has thousands of letters from people in Red-controlled countries asking him to bring the Globetrotters to their cities.

But Communist leaders have consistently turned down Abe's requests to take the Trotters behind the curtain because the Globetrotters themselves are living proof that Soviet propaganda is based on lies.

Touring abroad presents many problems and "ingenuity" is perhaps the most important ingredient of the Trotters' tour.

For instance, when they landed in Nuremberg, Germany, last summer, it had been raining hard for three days. They were supposed to play outdoors, but it was impossible under such conditions.

Since the advance sale was ex-

DOESN'T KEEP BOOK

Bevo Still Hitting 45 Points a Game

SPOKANE (UP)—Clarence (Bevo) Francis, who drove the scorekeepers frantic in college, is on the last lap of his $17,000 professional basketball tour and figures he is still averaging 45 points a game.

"I'm not really sure, though," Bevo added. "We don't keep a score book any more."

The "we" is Bevo and Newt Oliver, his young coach at Rio Grande (Ohio) College and now the mentor and front man for the barnstorming Boston Whirlwinds.

Francis, 22, and Newt quit Rio Grande together last year after Bevo's sophomore season and signed up for $30,000 with Abe Saperstein of the Harlem Globetrotters who also runs the Whirlwinds. Newt gets $13,000.

"We've been playing pro on the road now nearly every day since last June 28, more than 150 games," Bevo said. He has worn out three pairs of size 13 basketball shoes.

"I'm getting about 45 a game and shooting better than I did in college. If I was in college now with the new free throw rule, Newt figures I could be averaging 60 or so."

Francis has just built a six-room home in Wellsville, Ohio, for his wife and 2-year-old son, Frank, and is paying it off on basketball.

"I'd like to keep playing as long as I can, maybe in the National Basketball League. I can't play in the NBA until my Rio Grande class graduates in 1956. Then I'd like to get into the ice cream business."

Gerber Leads in Bowling Tourney

With one-half of the field of 224 bowlers finished, Kate Gerber held the lead in Class A singles in the ninth annual Long Beach City Women's Bowling Tournament at the Belmont Bowl Saturday night.

Gerber totaled 494 for her singles lead and shared top spot in doubles event with teammate Lil Crawford, who also grabbed an early margin in the Class B singles with a 559 total.

Results after two squads had finished:

Class A—Singles: Kate Gerber, 494; Doubles: Gerber and Lil Crawford, 1127; All Events: Margo Anderson, 1490.

Class B—Lil Crawford, 559; Doubles: Bunny Garrison and Helen Holmes, 919; All Events: Lil Crawford, 1540.

Halbrook Sharp in OSC Win

SEATTLE (UP)—Oregon State used its portable court—an air-tight defense—to hold Washington scoreless for 8½ minutes of the first half Saturday night and rolled easily to a 57-43 Pacific Coast Conference basketball triumph.

It was Oregon State's eighth victory without a defeat in Northern Division play.

The tilt was a nip and tuck affair until just after the middle mark of the first half. Washington was leading, 19-17, when the Staters jammed home the defensive cork. The few shots that Washington was able to get away were hurried and the rebounding of 7-3 Swede Halbrook and Jay Dean kept the door firmly closed on Washington.

Meanwhile the Beavers ran a string of 13 points and left for intermission with a 30-19 lead.

Halbrook picked up 17 points in the first half. He got most of them merely by holding the ball above everybody's flapping hands and gently introducing it to the basket. He picked up four more in the second half to make his total 21, high for both teams, and fouled out with 7:22 minutes in the game.

Tony Routed; Rosewall vs. Hoad in Finals

ADELAIDE, Australia (UP) — Tony Trabert's dream of a clean sweep of the world's major 1955 tennis titles was exploded Saturday when he was trounced in the singles semifinals of the Australian championships by Ken Rosewall of Australia, 8-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Rosewall now will meet countryman Lew Hoad in Monday's final in a bid to regain the national championship he won in 1953. Hoad gained the other final berth Saturday with a 6-1, 6-4, 6-4 triumph over Rex Hartwig of Australia.

SIX OVERTIMES!

Minnesota Takes Over First, 59-56

(Compiled from AP and UP)

LAFAYETTE, Ind. — Minnesota's Gophers battled Purdue's Boilermakers through six overtime periods Saturday night and won undisputed first place in the Big Ten basketball race, 59-56. The number of extra sessions equaled the American collegiate record.

Purdue, a 102-88 loser at Minnesota only Jan. 15, was left in a last place tie with Ohio State.

Only 12 men got into the 70-minute struggle, six for each team.

The Boilermakers gained a three-point lead in the sixth five-minute overtime period but got excited and lost the ball once by throwing it out of bounds and once by double-dribbling.

The teams went into the sixth extra session tied at 49-49.

Ohio State's Johnny Miller and Chuck Ellis took over for injured Robin Freeman Saturday as the Buckeyes came from behind to upset Northwestern, 91-90, in the nationally televised Big Ten game.

The victory broke a four-game losing streak for Ohio State as Miller scored 33 points and Ellis, a 5-foot-10-inch junior, contributed 31. Northwestern's defeat, its third in six conference games, knocked the Wildcats out of a chance to gain at least a tie for first place.

Illinois romped to a new Chicago Stadium scoring record, rolling to a 95-69 decision over Loyola in the opener of a double header.

Paul Judson and Phil Judson sparked the Illini attack as Paul dropped 25 points and Phil 14. Senior Billy Ridley netted 15.

In the second game of the doubleheader, played before 12,181 fans, Michigan State tripped DePaul, 88-72. Julius McCoy scored 25 points for the Spartans.

24 Rookies to Report

Contracts have been mailed to 36 players by the Los Angeles Angels, President John Holland announced Saturday, with 24 of the documents going to men who have never before worn the local regalia.

And of the remaining 12, pitchers Lenny Hinchman and Paul Menking have seen only brief service with the Angels, Menking several years ago, and Hinchman a few weeks last season. Spring training opens March 1 at Fullerton.

The only actual holdovers are catcher John Pramesa, infielders Leon Brinkopf, Tommy Brown, Gene Mauch and Bud Hardin; outfielders Bob Usher and Dick Smith, and pitchers Cal McLish, Turk Lown and Joe Hatten.

Complete roster with records and 1954 club of each player:

Holdovers

Catchert John Pramesa, .294. Pitchers: Joe Hatten, 13-17; Turk Lown, 5-3; Cal McLish, 13-15; Lenny Hinchman, 1-4; Paul Menking, 1955) 0-0. Infielders: Gene Mauch, .267; Bud Hardin, .242; Tommy Brown, .263; Leon Brinkopf, .231. Outfielders: Bob Usher, .254 and Dick Smith, 240

Newcomers

Catchers: Bob Murray, Macon, .213, and Bob Hyich Magic Valley, .232. Pitchers: Bob Anderson, Cedar Rapids, 3-1; Raymond Bauer, Des Moines, 12-10; Fred Burdette Macon 1-0; Dick Drott, Cedar Rapids, 5-7; Paul Hoffmeister, Beaumont, 5-8; Carl Johnson, no pro experience; Joe Kunel, Macon and Des Moines, 7-0 and 4-3; Billy Muffett, Shreveport, 5-11; Sam Nunn, Des Moines, 4-3; George Piktuzis, Armed Forces; Dwight Stoddard, Magic Valley, 17-2.

Infielders: Ted Bell, Modesto, .296; Buster Clarkson, Dallas, .327; Bobby Howard, Armed Forces; Don Luttrell, Gainesville, .260; Jim Clark, Vancouver, .255.

Outfielders: Bill Schlander, Macon, .300; Bob Coats, Macon, .310; Jim McDaniel, Des Moines, .349; Bud Heslet, Shreveport, .264; Tom Nyrad, Armed Forces, and Burdy Thorlby, Des Moines, .255.

Santee Sets Indoor Mile Mark

Easy Win in 4:03.8; Bob 15-2

BOSTON (UP)—Peerless Wes Santee, America's reigning king of the outdoor mile, added the world's indoor record to his glittering track laurels Saturday night when he captured the Boston Athletic Association Hunter Mile in 4:03.8, almost two full seconds better than the previous mark.

The lithe Olympian thus took over from fellow Kansan Gil Dodds as indoor mile record holder. Dodds, the galloping parson, had established his record of 4:05.3 in New York in 1948.

As Santee streaked across the finish line a full 30 yards ahead of Gunnar Nielsen of Denmark, the capacity crowd of 13,909 gave him a thundering ovation.

Santee said he was unaware that he had the record in his grasp. "I was keeping my mind on my running and was out there to win or lose but doing my best," said the marine officer trainee.

"When I started the race I was just out to run. If I won I won. If I lost I lost," he added.

Nielsen had no excuses or complaints to make about Santee's victory.

The Copenhagen pressman, who finished himself in a creditable 4:08.2, said, "I knew I lost the race right from the start. He was the better runner and that's all there was to it."

TERRIFIC PACE

Little Dick Ollen of Northeastern University set a terrific pace for Santee as he led the Kansan for the first six laps. Ollen's time at the quarter was 56.7 seconds and Santee was just three-tenths of a second off that pace.

Ollen faded at the seventh lap as Santee and Nielsen took over. The victor's time at three-quarter point was 3:02.1. Bob McMillan of the armed forces track squad was third and Billy Tidwell of Kansas State Teachers fourth.

Rangy Herman Wyatt, formerly of San Jose State, established a new BAA and Boston Garden record in the high jump with a leap of 6 feet, 10¼ inches. It beat the Jean Negro's own Boston record by a quarter-inch and eclipsed an inch and a quarter of the BAA mark Wyatt shared with Navy dentist Ken Wiesner.

Horace Ashenfelter of the New York Athletic Club maintained his two-mile mastery over FBI colleague Fred Wilt by taking the Billings run in 8:55.5, 2½ seconds off his own BAA and Boston Garden record.

The Reverend Bob Richards of Long Beach, Calif., 1952 pole vault champion, won his specialty at 15 feet, 2 inches, far below his announced goal of 15-9. It was the 62nd time he bettered 15 feet.

NINTH IN ROW

Nifty Harrison (Bones) Dillard won his ninth consecutive BAA 45-yard hurdles title by racing over the barriers in 5.6 seconds, one-tenth of a second slower than his meet record.

In one of those infrequent lapses, the five-man field in the Hollis 600-yard run ran an extra lap which was declared won by Pitt half-miler Arnold Sowell in 1:14.3. Indoor record is 1:09.5.

The defending meet champion, Mal Whitfield, holder of the indoor record, quit in disgust just before the end of the standard 600 yards when he noticed the apparent error.

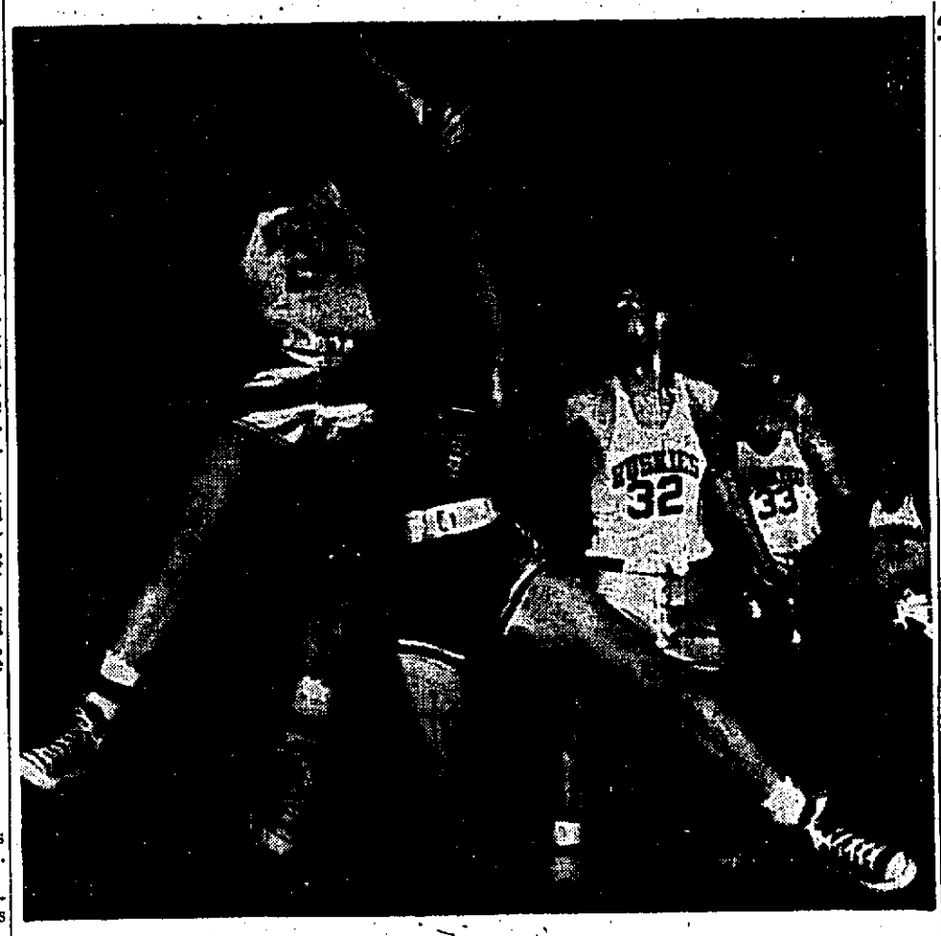

In the 50-yard dash Rod Richard, former UCLA star and another member of the potent armed forces squad, won a nip and tuck battle with Art Bragg of Baltimore in 5.4 seconds. Richard's time was a tenth of a second off the meet record.

Ducks Withstand BYU Rally, 81-76

EUGENE, Ore. (UP) — Oregon, despite a spectacular rally by Brigham Young in the last 6½ minutes, defeated the Cougars, 81-76, in Saturday's non-conference basketball game.

BYU, trailing 19 points with seven minutes to go, closed the gap to five mostly on the scoring of Terry Tebbs, 150-pound guard who scored 20 points.

Oregon's Jim Loscutoff and Max Anderson shared scoring honors for the game, however, with 24 points each.

Tribe Tops Broncs; Dons Easy Winners

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—Stanford's fast-breaking cagers rallied in the second half Saturday night to defeat Santa Clara, 72-67, after the University of San Francisco crushed California, 84-62, in a Cow Palace doubleheader here.

Kenny Sears of the Santa Clara Broncos was high for the night with 31 points but this effort was not enough to offset the driving lay-ins of Stanford's George Selleck and the fine shooting from outside by Russ Lawler.

Stanford, trailing 25-32 at the half, pulled even at 47-47 with 12 minutes to play as Lawler dropped in two quick field goals.

Ron Tomsic put the Indians briefly ahead 49-47 but Sears tied it up and then put the Broncs ahead 51-49.

Lawler and Sears then swapped field goals as the score ran to 55-53, but Tomsic then put the Indians back in the lead for good with a pop shot.

Stanford squeezed the margin up to 67-59 and went into a stall with three minutes to go. This cost the broncos a pair of fouls which Selleck and Bill Bond converted into four more points to wrap up the game.

In the opener, USF rolled to a 20-0 lead in the first eight minutes of play against Cal.

The big gun in the Dons' attack was Jerry Mullen, who sank 23 points before fouling out with five minutes to play. The San Francisco forward scored 19 points in the first half, sinking 11 out of 12 free throws during his splurge.

The win marked the 14th straight victory for the third-ranked Dons since they lost to UCLA early in the season. USF later made the Bruins one of their string of 14 victims in a lop-sided encounter.

California's Bob McKeen was definitely off, being held to three field goals and only getting one in the first half.

Bill Russell, towering USF center, made McKeen look bad most of the evening as he consistently beat him on the backboards and easily kept the ball away from the six-foot-seven-inch Bear's reach.

BIG BAD BRUINS

Bane Leads UCLA to Rout of Cal Poly

LOS ANGELES (UP) — The fast-breaking UCLA Bruins demolished Cal Poly of San Luis Obispo, 84-55, Saturday night in a non-conference game which saw forward Ronnie Bane run off with scoring honors for the second night in a row.

Bane tanked 26 points despite being benched most of the second half. He tossed in 22 Friday night against an equally outmanned Santa Barbara College team.

The issue was never in doubt as the Bruins registered their 10th straight home court victory in Westwood gym. They ran up an early, 28-9, lead and were ahead, 43-26, at the half.

Guard Morris Taft scored 16 points and Willie Naulls collected 13 for UCLA. High man for the Mustangs was guard Tony Nunes with 11. Ernie Hall and A. Grandberry sank 10 each for the losers.

Friday night's and Saturday night's games served primarily as conditioners for the powerful UCLA squad, which takes on California next week end in a two-game Pacific Coast Conference Southern Division series.

Aztecs Down Fresno State

FRESNO (UP)—The San Diego State Aztecs went into a first place tie in the California Collegiate Athletic Association by whipping Fresno State, 73-65, in a basketball game here Saturday night.

The San Diego win put the Aztecs in a deadlock with Cal Poly for the loop lead.

Vaughn Whips Perea, Recaptures Title

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Willie Vaughn, 159¾, Los Angeles, scoring with solid left hooks and jabs in the late rounds, recaptured the state middleweight title from Oakland's Sal Perea, 153, in a split decision 12-round main event at Legion Stadium Saturday night.

Vaughn decked Perea twice in the third round and once in the fourth. Vaughn, himself knocked down in the fourth, staged a strong comeback, though handicapped by bad cuts over both eyes.

Perea won the title from Vaughn on a fourth-round TKO in San Diego last November.

2,538 BREAKS POINT RECORD

PHILLIPI, W. Va. (UP)—Carl Hartman of Alderson-Broaddus broke the all-time small college basketball scoring record by dumping 35 points Saturday night against West Liberty to bring his total to 2,538 in competition with four-year schools.

Hartman's effort led the Battlers to a 101-76 victory over West Liberty.

The new total beats by one the 2,537 points scored by Johnny O'Brien of Seattle in three seasons ending in 1958.

It ties the major college record set by Frank Selvy of Furman last season.

Lions Nod Portland

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Loyola of Los Angeles, led by center Bob Cox with 23 points, defeated Portland University, 80-75, in a tight basketball game Saturday night.

Portland took an early lead and held a 12-point advantage at one point in the first half. Portland was out in front 49-43 as the period ended.

Cox sank three hook shots to tie the score 49-49 early in the second period. From there the lead changed hands frquently until Loyola pulled ahead to stay in the closing minutes.

Portland's Bob Altenhofen was high for the game with 27 points—one more than Tom Salvino turned in for Loyola.

Wildcat Rally Trips Vandy

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UP) — Kentucky rallied in the last five minutes of play Saturday night to win a 75-71 decision over Vanderbilt.

The win left the top-rated Wildcats with a record marred only by a surprise one-point loss to Georgia Tech.

The Wildcats breezed through an easy first half but found themselves backed up as a Vanderbilt rally chopped down a 17-point lead to tie the score at 60-60. However, Kentucky, sparked by forward Jerry Bird, broke the tie with a rebound shot that put the Wildcats ahead to stay.

49 FOR SHAVLIK

107-96 Loss to Wolfpack

RALEIGH, N. C. (UP) — A super-charged Villanova team upset North Carolina State for the second time this season Saturday night, 107-96, despite a record 49-point scoring performance by State's All-American candidate Ron Shavlik.

Making the second-ranked Wolfpack a favorite victim, the fast-breaking Wildcats forged into a lead with a sudden burst early in the second half and couldn't be caught. Three Villanova stars scored better than 20 points.

Shavlik also set a stadium rebound record with 35.

IN THIS CORNER
with DICK ZEHMS

Reaction to the suggestion made in this space a week ago for the creation of halls of fame or athletic libraries at SC and UCLA came quick and fast from Trojan and Bruin headquarters. Surprisingly, the University of Oregon responded.

All approve. Money to finance such projects, of course, is the main problem. However, herewith are the encouraging responses, dropped off by the mailman:

"Dear Dick: I was very interested to read your column proposing athletic halls of fame for the universities in this area. SC certainly has had a wonderful athletic heritage in its first 75 years and must have had literally dozens of outstanding athletes in the past who are worthy of inclusion in such a hall.

"It would be very fitting if this could be built into Heritage Hall, the proposed new athletic building on the SC campus. Heritage Hall is part of the university's 'century plan' which is being initiated in 1955, SC's diamond jubilee year.

"If with the help of alumni and friends, Heritage Hall can be built in the near future, it would of course be the ideal location of a Trojan Hall of Fame. Such a building, housing athletic offices, training quarters, dressing and equipment rooms, varsity lounge, trophy room and a hall of fame, would be a fine tribute to SC's great roll of coaches of the past, among them Howard Harding Jones, Sam Barry, Dean Cromwell and Jeff Cravath, and the student athletes with whom they built SC's great athletic heritage. Best Regards,

"H. D. Thoreau, Director of Publicity, SC."

The UCLA response was just as gratifying, to wit:

"Dear Dick: I read with a good deal of interest your column last Sunday about a hall of fame for athletes and teams at UCLA.

"I think it is a wonderful idea and something that could be expanded a great deal, but we have an excellent beginning in our Bruin Trophy Room in Kerckhoff Hall. In it we have honored a great many of our former stars and we are continuing to do so even though we are a little crowded for space. You might tell your readers about this and suggest that we can do a better job if one of them would like to donate the funds to erect a hall of fame. Sincerely,

"Vic Kelley, Director of UCLA News Bureau."

Out of the Pacific Northwest came a surprising missive:

"Dear Dick: I noticed in your Sunday column you liked the Stanford idea of a hall of fame and suggested UCLA and SC follow suit.

"I wouldn't know whether Oregon or Stanford got started first, but Stanford jelled the idea faster. We have been kicking the idea around in staff meetings ever since last spring and are about ready to go.

"We have plans already on the board for a new lounge in the revamped McArthur Court which will be 25 by 50 feet and will be devoted to trophies, letterman's activities, the hall of fame, etc. It will be equipped with a pullman kitchen, a large TV set, record player, leather furniture and all that can be included to make a comfortable place for current lettermen to meet and former lettermen to use when they return to the campus.

"We expected to get underway this month, but will now wait until later in the spring. The room will not be available until we can move the business office into new quarters. This is all part of the revamping of McArthur Court (Oregon's field house) which boosted the seating capacity from 8,100 to 10,000 and added a new office building. This cost us about $300,000 and was all paid for by the Athletic Department from its reserves. We had 10,321 people in the place last Friday night, so the expansion seems worth while.

"A number of lettermen, incidentally, have offered to contribute to a fund which would help furnish the new room. We think it will be nice when done. Regards,

"Art Litchman, Director of Athletic News Bureau, Oregon U.

Progressives, these publicity and news bureau directors. Let's go from here, men, with formation of two committes—hall of fame membership and finance. But let's not be too pretentious about the building or room. It's what goes into it that counts the most!

SMALL TALK. Sacramento's Solons, needing catching help, are thinking of making outfielder Chuck Essegian, former Stanford gridder, don the mask and chest protector. . . Dedication of the Frank L. Chance Research Fellowship Foundation will be held Thursday at the City of Hope Medical Center with many baseball dignitaries attending.

Pittsburgh Judge Samuel Weiss is on the right track when he says the military salute, signal for unnecessary roughness in football, should be changed to clenched fist followed by the salute. . . Weiss and numerous veterans groups think the military salute is deserving of more respect.

Illinois' Harry Combs calls basketball a sick game and the bonus rule is the reason. . . Remind me to show more respect for the statements of Hank Greenberg, Cleveland's general manager. . . When he called Bob Lemon the "best player in baseball" he won a lot of friends in Long Beach.

MONDAY, FRIDAY NIGHTS

Trotter Troupe Hits L.B. for 2 Games at Auditorium

A perennial high point in Long Beach basketball comes up this week when the fabulous Harlem Globetrotters play at Municipal Auditorium Monday and Friday nights.

The world-renowned Trotters play the Toledo Mercurys in Monday night's main event, following a 7:30 p.m. preliminary between the Philadelphia Sphas and the Washington, D. C., Generals. The Harlem five will play the winner of that prelim Friday night, following a game between the loser of Monday night's opener and the Mercurys. Tickets for both dates are available at Proctor's Sport Goods, 128 W. Broadway, and at the Boxoffice today from noon to five and all day tomorrow.

Reece (Goose) Tatum, the clown prince of basketball, is all set for another big evening. Leon Hillard, the world's greatest dribbler; seven-foot Walter Dukes of All-American fame; Bill Garrett, J. C. Gipson, Ermer Robinson, Josh Grider, Clarence Wilson, "Handy Andy" Johnson and Ken McBride will be striving to keep the Trotters' current win streak unblemished.

The Toledo Mercurys are built around Burton Spice, 6-6, from Toledo University. Also from T. U. are Jack Kennedy, 6-1, and George Lindeman, 6-3, guards, and tricky little Frankie Sloan, 5-7, forward.

Much interest in the first game is centered around Bill Spivey, seven-foot All-American from the University of Kentucky who plays center for the Generals, but who is shifted to forward when player-coach Red Klotz, 5-7, the Villanova all-time great, needs more height in his lineup. It is then that Richard Thiesen, 6-10, Duquesne University, moves into the center slot.

The peppery Sphas have a fine record and this year's team is among the best in the long history of the club. The team boasts of Pete Monska, 6-3, West Chester (Pa.) State Teachers, coach and guard; Paul Brandenburg, 6-4, North Carolina State College; Charley Burns, 6-1, Panzer (Pa.) College; Bob Lojewski, 6-8, Temple University; Bob Peterson, 6-10, University of Louisville; Joe Smythe, 6-4, Niagara (N.Y.) University; Marvin Kaulkins, 6-6, Lafayette College, and Tom Brennan, 6-6, Villanova.

Between the halves of each game, the Trotters' management will present some fine variety acts. They include Richard Bergmann, the phenomenal world's champion from Great Britain, who meets Dick Miles in a table tennis match; Jimmy and Yvonne Garner, who do a trampoline stunt; the Farias Duo, Cuban handbalancers extraordinary; and Peter Woodrow, English juggler.

AIR ACADEMY MEETS 'NAME' TEAMS IN '61

DENVER (U.P.)—Air Secretary Harold Talbott said Saturday that the new air academy won't be ready to tackle big-name football like Army or Navy before 1961 at the earliest."

Freshmen cadets entering the interim academy at Lowry Air Force Base in Denver late this summer "will be getting in some good practice" with an eight-game schedule against regional frosh teams, Talbott said.

He added that no football coach has been signed as yet. A stadium will not be constructed before 1957.

RACING ROUNDUP

Sea O'Erin Easy Victor at Hialeah

MIAMI (U.P.) — Hasty House Farm's mud king, Sea O'Erin, ran off with the $18,175 Royal Palm Handicap Saturday before 16,744 chilled fans at Hialeah Park.

Morning rain slowed down the track to Sea O'Erin's liking, and the four-year-old Shannon 2nd colt scampered home three lengths in front of six rivals to win $12,600 for Mr. and Mrs. Allie Reuben of Toledo O., owners of Hasty House. It was the colt's first victory since last May at Lincoln Field when he ran through the mud to top the Peabody Memorial.

Bruce Campbell's Ram O'War, the long shot in the field, made a game bid in the stretch under the urging of jockey Eric Guerin but couldn't catch the romping winner. Immense finished third, one length behind Ram O'War and four lengths ahead of Helfast.

Sea O'Erin ran the mile and one-eighth in the slow time of one minute and 53 seconds.

Meanwhile at New Orleans' Fair Grounds Marvin E. Affeld's Spur On, with Harold Keene up, rallied in the stretch to defeat Joe W. Brown's Bobby Brocato and Ray Broussard, the nation's leading jockey, by a neck in the third running of the $13,750 Pelleteri Handicap.

Spur On, who had a pair of running mates in Two Fisted and Pursuance, moved from fourth at the top of the stretch to challenge the front-running Bobby Brocato for the lead. A rousing finish carried the seven-year-old son of Whirlaway to a photo-finish decision, while Bobby Brocato wound up one and one-half lengths in advance of Mrs. J. H. Woodcock's Epic King for place.

Norse in 12-Inning Workout

The "Whites" defeated the "Reds," 14-2, Saturday as coach Bill Hicks sent his Long Beach City College baseball team through its first game practice of the season at the Viking diamond.

The Whites iced the game in the first two innings, scoring four in the first and three in the second. Third baseman Norm Alzueta led the Whites at the plate with a single and a double, while outfielder Milt Wilhite and catcher Jim Johnson got two hits for the losers.

Following the 12-inning game, Hicks announced that he was pleased with the pitching performance turned in by Ray Ramirez and lefthander Roger Hull. Other pitchers seeing duty were righthanders Bill Gaw, Bob Elzenga, Bob Nash, and Gary Zingg and southpaws Dick Sowers and Jim Palmer.

Hicks has three regulars and seven lettermen back from last year's team which won the Metropolitan Conference and state diamond crowns. Hicks is in his first year at the reins of the Vikes, taking over for his brother, Joe, who is currently stationed at Ft. Ord.

The squad will be strengthened Monday when lefthanded pitchers Bill Balcom and Gene Glanoli will enroll at LBCC. Balcom hurled and played the outfield for Poly High last year, while Glanoli was recently discharged from active duty with the Army.

2 Wins for Burbank Casters

Clint Flynn of the Long Beach Casting Club and Bill McGuire and Jack Kritner of Burbank scored wins Saturday in the opening day of the annual Mid-Winter Casting tournament at Recreation Park.

Flynn bested teammate Lee Moran in a shootoff to capture the ⅝ ounce skish distance event; McGuire was class A victor in the trout distance fly and Kritner won class A in the salmon distance fly.

There were no outstanding efforts as the competitors were warming up to the task of competing in today's major events. More than 100 casters will vie today while only 14 competed Saturday.

World's dry fly champion Don Meyer of Burbank was not up to his usual brilliance but is one of the favorites today.

Saturday's results:
⅝ ounce skish distance—Clint Flynn, L. B., long—221; avg.—216. Lee Moran, L. B., long—219; avg.—207¼. William Waters, L. B., long—180; avg.—178½.
Trout distance fly—Class A, Bill McGuire, Burbank, long—168; avg.—155½. Clint Flynn, L. B., long—167; avg.—152. Don Meyer, Burbank, long—147; avg. 143¼. Class B—William Waters, L. B., long—120; avg.—113¼.
Salmon Distance fly—Class A, Jack Kritner, Burbank, long—203; avg.—183¼. Clint Flynn, L. B., long—178; avg.—172½. Joe Moreaux, Burbank, long—181; avg.—167½. Class B, Fred Bradley, L. B., long—160; avg.—158½. Class C, William Waters, L. B., long—112; avg.—111.

Ameche Object of Many Offers

NEW YORK (U.P.)—All-America Alan Ameche, object of "numerous trade offers" by National Football League clubs, is not on the market—at least for the time being—the Baltimore Colts insisted Saturday.

Ameche, the ground-gobbling fullback from Wisconsin, was Baltimore's first draft choice and the Colts didn't have title to him one hour before they were deluged with offers.

The Detroit Lions offered end Leon Hart, former Notre Dame All-America, plus two players for Ameche. General Manager Nick Kerbway of the Lions admitted "we've made Baltimore one helluva offer for Ameche."

Don Kellett, general manager of the Colts, revealed that "numerous offers" had been made for the 21-year-old Ameche, who churned out 641 yards in 146 carries for a 4.4 average per carry last season and broke all Big Ten rushing records during his spectacular Wisconsin career.

"But we're not going to make any trade for Ameche at this meeting," Kellett said. "We're going back to Baltimore where we'll think over all offers."

"We are going to sign Ameche for Baltimore and we do not intend to trade him," Kellett said. "The same goes for quarterback George Shaw, our bonus pick. Naturally, if we receive an outstanding proposition we will consider it, but we don't have any desire to trade Ameche or Shaw."

As in the case of Ameche, the Colts received several offers for Shaw soon after they received title to him. The San Francisco 49ers offered the Colts a list of 10 players, including end Gordie Soltau, the league's leading scorer in 1953.

The owners, who previously had agreed to provide professional coaching for the College All-Star team, voted to allow the All-Stars one practice scrimmage prior to the college exhibition, provided that the game itself is played under pro rules.

They also voted a temporary increase to 35 men in the player limit of the All-Stars. In the past the game has been played under college rules.

The owners voted that the league's share of the gate will be two percent after payment of the rental fee. In the past, the league's share was four percent on the first $10,000 and two percent thereafter.

No new signal has yet been selected for the unnecessary roughness penalty. The military salute has been ruled out.

The HOT CORNER
by VERN STEPHENS

Many times the question has arisen about whether or not various ballplayers are "guess hitters."

A guess hitter, of course, is one who tries to guess what the pitcher is going to throw next.

It's not a good idea to try and outguess pitchers. Guessing what the next pitch is going to be often is the reason behind a player getting beaned or hit by a pitched ball.

There is a difference between a "guess hitter" and a "thinking hitter."

The latter type are always dangerous at the plate and will go a lot farther than batters who leave everything up to guesswork.

In other words, it would be better not to guess at all. Just hit away when a good ball comes in.

But it's good to have "thinking" hitters on your club.

Ted Williams is a good example of a hitter who is always thinking when he goes to the plate. Some insist that he is a guess hitter . . . but he never guesses what the next pitch will be.

But he's probably the hardest guy in the bigtime to fool because he's always thinking. And they say "never throw Williams the same pitch you retired him on because he'll be looking for it the next time at bat."

Most good hitters, of course, always look for a pitch that a pitcher has got them out on in a similar situation.

IT TAKES A LOT OF THINKING ON THE PART of a hitter because he has to hit against the opposing pitcher, catcher and managerial staff.

Some hitters even hit against the catcher. For instance, some catchers don't have strong or accurate arms and when a runner is on first base, he will call for fast balls so he can get the ball quicker so that if the runner tries to steal, he has more time to make the throw. Then, too, a fast ball is easier to handle than a curving ball and a catcher can get off a throw quicker.

Good hitters know this and are looking for the fast ball to be thrown in that situation. And if the pitcher gets it anywhere near where the batter wants it, then out of the park it'll go.

This is only one of the many reasons why a good catcher with a strong arm is so important to a club.

During the team meetings before a game when you go over the opposing players' strong and weak points, a manager will point out that "Joe Jones" can't hit a curve ball in the clutch.

If anyone on that team happens to be traded later to the club that Jones is on, he promptly informs him of his "weakness" and Jones will look for the curve ball when he is at the plate in a clutch situation.

THERE ARE SO MANY THINGS TO THINK ABOUT when you are hitting that it would be difficult in this short space to list them all.

It is supposed to be a fact that all good hitters have natural ability to start with and that you can't make a hitter just by practice.

But take the case of George Kell, who has a lifetime batting average of over .300 and has led the American League in hitting twice.

George couldn't hit a curve with an ironing board when he first came up to the major leagues. But he was determined to correct this weakness so he hired a fellow to pitch to him and every morning he would go out to the ball park and do nothing but hit curve balls by the hour.

He became so accustomed to swinging at curves that he has become one of the league's best hitters.

Because of this excellent example of what hard work and determination can do for a fellow, I for one discount the theory that hitters are born and not made!

LAUGH OF THE WEEK: When Yogi Berra of the Yankees first came up to the majors he was probably the worst bad-ball hitter ever to come along and he especially had a tendency to swing at the first pitch no matter where it was thrown.

His manager, Bucky Harris, took him aside one day and gave him a little advice. "Take it easy up there, Yogi. Don't just swing at anything. Try to think before you swing and don't hit at the first pitch!"

Yogi went up to hit a few minutes later and watched three straight balls go by . . . all of them right down the middle for strikes.

When he returned to the dugout and threw himself down next to Bucky, he grumbled . . . "How do you expect a guy to think and hit at the same time?"

'YOU'RE THE MANAGER'

Can You Outfox Leo?

(Third of a series)
BY BEN OLAN

NEW YORK (U.P.)—In the comparatively short space of 5½ months, Leo Durocher became a genius.

When the fiery New York Giants manager brought his club home fifth in 1953, many of the Polo Grounds faithful were yelling for his scalp. A year later they loved him. So did the sportswriters and sportscasters who voted him "manager of the year" for 1954 in the annual Associated Press poll.

How did he do it?

Willie Mays, Johnny Antonelli and Dusty Rhodes, to mention only three, helped a lot. Many close observers also felt, however, that Leo, himself, had a great season. More often than not he picked the right pinch-hitter or relief pitcher and even when he went against the percentage it paid off.

Here's a chance for grandstand managers to test their wits with Durocher.

Following are six situations that seemingly called for a strategical move by Durocher during the 1954 season. Score one for yourself if the strategy you decided on would have worked to your advantage. A score of five or six entitles your friends to call you "Lippy."

In all cases, (L) represents a lefthanded batter or pitcher, (R) stands for a righthanded batter or pitcher and (S) signifies a switch-hitter.

Remember, YOU—not Durocher—are managing the Giants. Remember, too, Leo didn't always call 'em right. Okay? Then, let's play "you're the manager."

1. The Giants are leading Brooklyn, 4-3, in the top of the 7th at the Polo Grounds. Sal Maglie (R) is pitching for New York. With one out a double by Sandy Amoros and walks to Junior Gilliam and Pee Wee Reese fill the bases for the Dodgers. Duke Snider (L) is the next batter with Jackie Robinson (R) to follow.

WOULD YOU:

A. Replace Maglie?

B. Leave him in?

2. The game against the Redlegs at Cincinnati is tied, 2-2, in the top of the 9th. Fred Baczewski (L) is pitching for the home team as Don Mueller opens the inning for New York with a single and advances to second on an outfield error. Willie Mays (R) is the next batter with Billy Gardner (R) to follow.

WOULD YOU:

A. Order Mays to sacrifice?

B. Let him hit away?

3. Johnny Antonelli (L) is pitching against the Pirates at Pittsburgh and the Giants lead, 2-0. It's the last of the 8th and with none out Gair Allie walks and takes third on a double by Curt Roberts. Eddie Pellagrini (R) is the next batter with Bob Skinner (L) to follow.

WOULD YOU:

A. Let Antonelli pitch to Pellagrini?

B. Walk Pellagrini intentionally?

C. Replace Antonelli?

4. It's the last of the 7th at Brooklyn and the Giants are ahead, 5-4. John McCall (L) is on the mound for New York. Gil Hodges opens with a single and when McCall throws Sandy Amoros' sacrifice attempt into rightfield, there are Dodger runners on second and third. Hoyt Wilhelm (R) relieves McCall and retires Jackie Robinson and Carl Furillo on infield flies. Roy Campanella (R) is the next batter with pitcher Jim Hughes (R) to follow.

WOULD YOU:

A. Walk Campanella intentionally?

B. Pitch to Campanella?

5. The Cubs and Giants are tied, 2-2, at Chicago in the last of the 11th. Starter Sal Maglie (R) is pitching for New York when Ernie Banks singles and takes second on a sacrifice by Gene Baker. Hank Edwards (L), batting for Ted Tappe, is up next with Joe Garagiola (L) to follow.

WOULD YOU:

A. Relieve Maglie with a lefthander?

B. Leave him in?

6. There are none out in the last of the 8th at the Polo Grounds with Chicago in front, 6-4. Hal Jeffcoat (R) is pitching for the Cubs. Al Dark opens with a single and moves to second when Hank Thompson draws a base on balls. Dusty Rhodes (L) is the next batter and Jim Davis (L) replaces Jeffcoat as the pitcher for Chicago. Don Mueller (L) and Willie Mays (R) follow Rhodes.

WOULD YOU:

A. Order Rhodes to sacrifice?

B. Put in a righthanded pinch-hitter for Rhodes?

C. Let Rhodes hit away?

Here's what happened!

1. Marv Grissom relieves Maglie and gets Snider on a pop to the infield and Robinson on an infield grounder. Giants win, 4-3 (April 13).

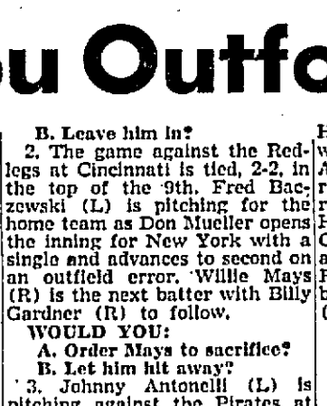

2. Mays attempts to sacrifice, but Mueller is tossed out at third base. The budding rally expires and the Redlegs win, 3-2, in the 10th on Bob Borkowski's single (June 6).

3. Grissom replaces Antonelli and gets out of the inning with only one run. He hits Pellagrini with a pitched ball and after Skinner's sacrifice fly, Marv holds Pirates as New York wins, 2-1 (Aug. 10).

4. Wilhelm pitches to Campanella, who cracks a single to left, scoring Hodges and Amoros, and Brooks win, 6-5 (Aug. 14).

5. Maglie is left in the game and retires Edwards on a fly to Don Mueller and Garagiola on a foul to catcher Wes Westrum. Giants win, 4-2, in 14th on a Willie Mays homer (April 20).

6. Bobby Hofman (R) bats for Rhodes and sacrifices, but Davis retires Mueller and Mays without any scoring and Chicago wins, 6-3 (Aug. 5).

ceptionally good, it was decided to use the building where the Nuremberg war trials were held. However, there were no seats or any floor in the building and there was no time for the Globetrotters to transfer their portable court to the hall.

Saperstein learned, however, that there were 200 big flat-top desks stored in the building, left over from the trials. So they were placed next to each other to form a comparatively big double-deck court. Baskets were rigged at each end.

Some 4,000 folding chairs were rented and placed around the court and that night the Trotters played ontop of the desks before a capacity crowd.

The desk tops were very slippery, but the Globetrotters managed to come up with one of their best performances of the tour.

Nohting seems to be able to stop them!

Local Lawn Bowlers Third in Tourney

The Recreation Park Lawn Bowling Club tied for second place in the Southern California Lawn Bowling Assn. Officers tournament at Arroyo Seco Saturday. The Park team was composed of Dr. Raymond Carey, Frank Furman and Tom Hunter.

GAIN FINALS

Romack and Lesser Win

MIAMI (U.P.) — Pacific Coast stars Barbara Romack and Pat Lesser—two of amateur golf's prettiest—fought their way through a chilling Florida rain Saturday to gain today's 36-hole finals in the 23rd annual Doherty Women's golf tournament.

Miss Romack, a petite 22-year-old National Amateur champion of Sacramento, recovered on the back nine to beat chubby Joyce Ziske of Waterford, Wis., 4 and 2. Miss Lesser, a University of Seattle coed, eliminated Cookie Swift Berger of Buffalo, N. Y., 4 and 3.

Grandle Sets Swim Marks

Long Beach's Gary Grandle set individual records Saturday in the 40-yard freestyle and 20-yard backstroke to make him the record holder in every division in the midget class, which downed Santa Ana, 20-18, in a swim meet at the YMCA Saturday.

Nine new records were set as Long Beach made a clean sweep, winning the prep division, 25-23, and the junior class, 20-11. L. B. finishers:

Midgets
60-yard medley relay (Gardner, Grandle, Still), 43 sec. (New L. B. YMCA record); 20-yard freestyle—Tipton, 13.8; 20-yard breaststroke—Grandle, 14.0 (new L. B. YMCA record); 20-yard backstroke—Marsh, 18.1; 40-yard freestyle—Grandle, 28.2 (new record); 60-yard freestyle relay (Still, Marsh, Grandle, Garner), 54.1 (new record).

Preps
60-yard medley relay (Mehler, Ghew, Hossella), 36.8; 20-yard freestyle—Crow, 12.0; 20-yard breaststroke, Sunderman, 17.0; 20-yard backstroke—Wrye, 24.4 (new record); 40-yard backstroke—Booth, 24.7 (new record); 100-yard freestyle—Cook, 1:16.4; 60-yard individual medley—Wrye, 37.2 (new record).

Junior
120-yard medley relay (Booth, Wrye, Moseley), 1:10.6 (new record); 40-yard freestyle—Moseley, 21.5 (new record); 40-yard breaststroke—Wrye, 24.4 (new record); 40-yard backstroke—Booth, 24.7 (new record); 100-yard freestyle—Cook, 1:16.4; 60-yard individual medley—Wrye, 37.2 (new record).

for him to move on the leaders he had little left and faltered badly in the final five-sixteenths.

In the supporting feature, the $25,000-added San Gabriel Handicap at a mile and one-quarter over the turf course, the English-bred St. Vincent came surging through the stretch to register a spectacular victory over the favored Star of the Forest in a thrilling four-horse "blanket finish."

St. Vincent photoed Star of the Forest by a head with Novarullah only a nose back in third. Scotsmans Bond was only three-quarters of a length farther back in fourth place.

The veteran Johnny Langden overcame much trouble in the rough trip in driving St. Vincent through a bulky 19-horse field in the time of 2 minutes flat, which equals the fastest mile and one-quarter race ever run over the turf in this country!

Award '58 Bobsled Meet to Squaw Valley

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland (U.P.) — The International Bobsleigh and Tobogganing Federation Saturday night confirmed a three-year suspension of Stan Benham of Lake Placid, N. Y. and tentatively chose Squaw Valley, Calif., as the site for the 1958 world championships.

PARTICULARS

by JERRY WYNN

The announcement this week of plans for a championship course at Rancho Palos Verdes was exciting news for Southland and, in particular, because of its accessibility, Long Beach area golf.

Links construction hereabouts has lagged terribly in recent years while the amount of existing play and number of potential golfers has spiraled.

Nation-wide figures released recently by the National Golf Foundation show that there are now 5,076 courses in operation as compared to 5,800 in 1931! Although Southern California leads the nation in total courses, its steadily - increasing population has made golf facilities also markedly inadequate.

But the point of enthusiasm concerning the new Palos Verdes site is not just the addition of a single new course. It's the caliber and beauty of the proposed course, to cost n million dollars, which should be a boon to area golf.

Just as Robert Tyre Jones holds a place in the sun as a golfer, Robert Trent Jones is regarded as the very finest of golf course architects—and it will be he who will design the Palos Verdes layout.

Among his best-known products are the links at West Point, the Dunes in South Carolina, Michigan's Oakland Hills and the Peachtree Golf Club in Georgia. He has remodeled the Augusta National course, home of the Masters; New Jersey's famed Baltusrol, the 1954 U. S. Open locale, and is now preparing the Olympic course in San Francisco for this year's U. S. Open.

The Palos Verdes course will be located a mile from the ocean on a shelf of land which rises from 900 to 1,200 feet on gently rolling terrain. There will be an unobstructed view of the ocean from three directions. Expensive homes will be built in the cliffs above.

The course will spread in two directions from a central clubhouse and will be built to stretch up to 7,200 yards for championship play. Construction will begin in May with a target date of 16 months for completion.

Said Jones:

"I'm convinced a course can be built here that will compare favorably with the greatest layouts in America. It will be similar to Augusta National in its park-like appearance."

Asked what he considers the most beautiful courses, Jones named Cypress Point, Banff, Jasper Park and one that he is presently building in the Bahamas. He added that the Palos Verdes course will rank with these.

The toughest holes?

"The 10th at Cypress Point is the greatest golf hole in the world. Augusta's 11th is the greatest par 4 and the 18th at Pebble Beach is the greatest par 5."

The new course will be financed by the Great Lakes Carbon Corporation and the Capital Co., a subsidiary of Trans-American Corp., who are joint owners of the 7,000 acre Rancho Palos Verdes area.

Its progress will be eagerly followed by the entire Southland golfing community.

A SHORT COURSE—Play in the Meadowlark March of Dimes tournament continues today . . . Dr. Harold Morris of Virginia CC has been elected president of the So. California Dental Golf Assn. NEW TWIST

Triple Tag Aud Feature

For all those who think last week's six-man tag team wrestling main event at the Municipal Auditorium was the last word in grunt and groan circles, Promoter Louie Miller has a new twist this week.

The same cast of characters, same place, same time — Thursday—but this week it will be three out of five falls with no time limit. This addition is to soothe the rancored partisans who howled last week at the ungentlemanly method by which Lord Athol Layton, Kubla Kahn and Gene Kiniski triumphed over Sandor Szabo, Alo Leilani and Don Arnold. And Miller guarantees two referees.

Speed Skate Lead to Bartholomew

ST. PAUL (AP)—Aging champion Ken Bartholomew clamped an iron grip on the lead in his bid for a 10th senior men's title Saturday at the halfway point of the National Outdoor speed skating championships.

The 34-year-old Minneapolis telephone line inspector whipped through near zero temperatures to victories in the 440-yard dash and 5-mile and finished second by a razor-thin margin to young Gene Sandvig of Minneapolis in the two-mile.

Stan Fail, of Paramount, Calif., who whipped Bartholomew in the Great Lakes championships last week, placed third in the two-mile but otherwise had no luck.

Poly-Wilson Clash Tops Week's Slate

Poly High and Wilson High, traditional crosstown rivals, clash Tuesday night at the Long Beach City College gym with a share of the Coast League lead at stake. The crucial contest highlights a busy local prep and college schedule for this week.

Both the Hares and Bruins have 4-1 records in league play to date and are currently tied with Jordan High for first place in standings. The two Long Beach schools shared the league title last year, each winning one of the two league games with the other.

Coach Charlie Church's City College quintet will enjoy a rest Tuesday before taking on Santa Monica in a Metropolitan Conference game at the Vike gym Friday night. The Vikings are currently tied for first place in conference standings.

Long Beach State College, with a 7-6 record, goes against LaVerne College Tuesday night and plays Chapman Friday night. The week's schedule:

TUESDAY

WHEELS VS. JERSEY FIVE

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Long Beach's Flying Wheels, fresh from a 65-20 tuneup victory over the Chattanooga Big Wheels Friday night, take on a powerful, national champion Jersey Wheelers quintet tonight at the Bethesda Naval Hospital here.

Leading the Wheels into action tonight will be captain Fritz Krauth, who scored 20 points in the victory at Chattanooga in the opening clash of the Long Beach team's annual coast-to-coast wheel chair basketball tour.

Rounding out the starting five for the Wheels will be forward Gene Haley, center Larry Eaks, and guards Wally Frost and Morris Moorhead.

Table Net Stars in L.A. Thursday

Southern California sports fans are in for a rare treat when four-time world champion Richard Bergmann, of London, makes his first appearance in Los Angeles Thursday at the California Table Tennis Center, 831 N. Highland Ave. Bergmann captured the world title in 1937, 1939, 1948 and 1950.

New York City's Dick Miles, eight-time U. S. title-holder and considered the greatest player this country has produced, will oppose the former world champion.

Jr. High Cage Title to Rogers

Rogers Junior High 9th graders were handed their first defeat of the season Saturday by Lindbergh, 53-45, but, nevertheless, copped the City League championship as Marshall, who could have tied for the title with a win, was upset by Washington, 48-39.

Jack Economou, who tallied 22 points against Lindbergh, Jim Ricketts and Kent Peterson led the Rogers scoring attack all season with Peterson doing most of the rebounding.

Franklin's 7th and 8th grade fives won their respective divisions handily, with the former downing Hughes, 59-38, and the latter taking the measure of Washington, 49-39.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

Perhaps such shoots as this are necessary, but this columnist fails to find anything sporting in a recent slaughter of buffaloes at Ft. Huachuca, Ariz., where the Arizona Fish and Game Commission decided to get rid of 240 of 300 animals because the herd had grown too large.

The herd was one of the largest remaining in the west. After it had been reduced to 60, the AF&GC announced that the buffaloes would be shipped to a northern Arizona ranch. It seems that they are interfering with a housing project on the Ft. Huachuca military reservation.

So far, so good, but it was the way in which the animals were killed that caused a ripple of sarcasm among real outdoorsmen.

Hunters, chosen by lot, stood partly concealed in bushes at the end of a 200-foot runway. The buffaloes had been herded into corrals and were then chased out into the runway. Hunters didn't open fire until the animals were about 20 yards away. Then, if they didn't kill, mounted wardens chased the wounded animals back toward the hunters again. This continued until the animals were dead or so badly wounded that their throats could be cut.

Each hunter got a quarter of the meat. The other three-quarters were sold by the commission at $25 per quarter.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS

Yellowtail have been on the move in the San Diego fishing area, mostly up and down. One day the anglers get them on the surface, the next day they get them deep or possibly not at all. But bonito and kelp bass have been keeping the fishermen busy when boats are able to operate. Storms interfered with several days of fishing since the first of the year.

The International Game Fish Assn. has reorganized its committees to bring about better efficiency in record keeping, to promote equal competition and to gather scientific information. In making its changes, the IGFA named Gene Tunney, former heavyweight boxing champion to the executive committee. He will serve with Dr. George C. Chuck of Long Beach and M. C. (Joe) Gale of the Cabo Blanco Club. Dr. Chuck has been an active member of the IGFA for several years. Michael Lerner is president of the IGFA, which has its headquarters in the American Museum of Natural History in New York.

Strange as it may seem, the rockfish boats operating off Malibu Pier are getting an occasional steelhead or young salmon. Such catches are rare and the result of some steelie getting lost and straying southward.

WINTER DERBY

Silver Lakes Ranch, near Corona, has started its winter fishing derby and plans to award $200 in prizes each month. First monthly derby day has been set for Feb. 13. The angler catching the largest fish each day automatically qualifies for the monthly derby day. Silver Lake Ranch is privately operated and stocked and a charge is made for each person fishing.

New Mexico game wardens met in Albuquerque Monday, but they carefully kept the session secret until all had returned to their home districts. The game department explained: "Poachers would have had a field day if they had known that the wardens weren't around."

B. F. Gladding & Co., Inc., South Otselic, N. Y., has a new 1955 pamphlet on "How to Take More Fish," combining it with its catalogue of fishing lines. It is an informative little booklet and may be had at no cost by addressing a card to the company.

STRAY FEATHERS

"Stray Feathers From a Bird Man's Desk" (224 pps. $3.75. Doubleday & Co., Inc., 575 Madison Ave., New York, 22, N. Y.) is a result of Austin L. Rand having lived with birds for many years. You don't have to be a fisherman or a hunter to appreciate this fine volume, 60 chapters of real, honest-to-goodness ornithology.

Rand has been curator of the world-wide bird collection at the Chicago Natural History Museum for many years, but his interest dates back to his boyhood days in Nova Scotia where he first started studying and collecting.

Bird lovers everywhere should get many chuckles out of Dr. Rand's book, as well as much information heretofore not classified. The book is well illustrated with Ruth Johnson's line drawings.

COOT SEASON EXTENDED

The Department of Fish and Game has extended the coot season in 28 counties where lands are being damaged by the birds. Nothing larger than a 10-gauge shotgun may be used and the season must end no later than April 15.

Bruins Host Cal; SC Battles Tribe

UCLA, SC, Loyola and Los Angeles State have big appetites this week—basketballwise. They may try to bite off more than they can chew.

Southern Division rivalry resumes after a two week layoff on Friday and Saturday night, with the Bruins entertaining California's Golden Bears in the Westwood pavillion, while SC's defending champion Trojans go north to play Stanford at Palo Alto.

While the home court advantage naturally will be with coach Johnny Wooden's boys, they may find the Bears a harder nut to crack than did SC and Stanford. New Berkeley coach Pete Newell figures the two-week rest was just what the Bears needed to make them force the issue through February.

Beaten twice by the Bruins, SC lays its hopes for a title repeat on the line against a potent Indian quintet now rated a definite championship threat. Stanford and UCLA are tied atop the standings at 3-1 each, followed by SC 2-2, and California 0-4.

Los Angeles State's Diablos and Loyola's Lions are ticketed to flirt with dynamite this week. The Diablos, coached by Sax Elliott, play Utah's powerful Redskins in Salt Lake City Wednesday and Thursday, then make a quick flight to Ann Arbor, Mich., for a one-night battle Saturday with the Michigan Wolverines.

Loyola makes a quick trip to the San Francisco area for a game Wednesday with College of Pacific, University of San Francisco Friday in Cow Palace, and Santa Clara Saturday, same place.

Pepperdine's Waves will stay close to home. They meet Redlands U. in the Wave gym Friday night, play against the Aztecs at San Diego State Saturday.

BOWLING ALONG

Feature L.B. Careers in New Series

One of the most ambitious feature series ever attempted in bowling history will be introduced in The Press-Telegram's column on Long Beach pin activities—Bowling Along—starting this week.

The series will highlight the bowling careers of local pin performers and will run several times weekly.

It's a series of general interest which all bowling fans will want to follow.

The series, starting in Monday's Bowling Along column, is the first step in The Press-Telegram's plan for extending its coverage on the popular and ever-expanding ten-pin sport to create more interesting reading for bowling enthusiasts.

Niday Enters Feb. 20 Race

Cal Niday, the one-legged driving wonder from Pacoima, Saturday became the first driver to sign an entry blank for J. C. Agajanian's 100-lap national championship midget auto race at Gardena Stadium Sunday, Feb. 20.

Niday, veteran Indianapolis pilot, won the initial midget race at the 139th and Western oval last Sunday. He managed to lap the entire field, a rare feat in the auto racing world.

Holder of the second fastest qualifying time in history of the Indianapolis 500 miler, Niday will again chauffeur Dan Quella's sweet-running No. 5.

$100,000 Improvement for Dohrmann Pine Ave. Site

Continuing the expansion of the downtown Long Beach, the management of Dohrmann's announced Saturday plans for $100,000 improvement of a new Pine Ave. location for the store.

With the announcement last Sunday that J. C. Penney Co., will spend $3,500,000 on a new major store building covering the half block square on the northeast corner of Fifth St. and Pine Ave., which included the Dohrmann store, the company completed negotiations to move to 528 Pine Ave., immediately to the north.

Manager W. M. Hodding said his firm will take possession of the new premises about May 1 at which time the extensive modernization will begin.

The Horace W. Green & Sons Hardware Co., which is vacating the building after 25 years, has under construction a large new store in the L. S. Whaley Los Altos Shopping Center. At present the company has a store in Los Altos at 2123 Bellflower Blvd., and another store at 4420 Atlantic Ave. Further expansion is planned, officials said, but nothing is ready to announce at this time.

George Ditson Jones, realtor who specializes in downtown properties, represented Samuel R. Lee, owner of the new location, in the leasing arrangements with Dohrmann. He also negotiated the big construction and leasing program last week with the Penney Co.

Preliminary architectural plans for the new Dohrmann store were prepared during lease negotiations so there will be no delay in actual start of the work, said J. R. Cummings, vice president.

Voicing strong faith in the future of downtown Long Beach, Hodding said the new store will be of the most modern type.

Among features of the new Dohrmann's store will be an unusual ceiling treatment with special lighting effects designed expressly for displaying china, glass, silver and other homewares.

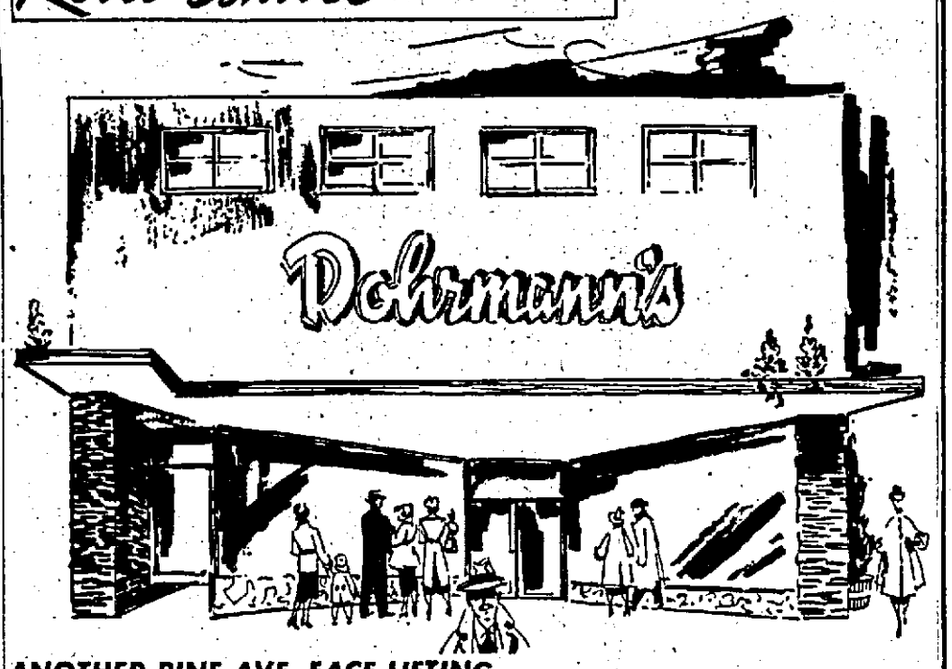

The exterior in modern brick treatment will be spectacularly highlighted by recessed windows literally turning the entire first floor into a magnificent "window display," Hodding added.

The Dohrmann organization is as old as the State of California, covering the Southland, in addition to Long Beach, with stores in Los Angeles, San Diego, and the store recently opened at Beverly Hills.

"After carefully considering many areas in Long Beach," Hodding stated, "we felt that the downtown area continued to be best suited for our requirements."

Realty Financing Course to Open

Co-sponsored by the Board of Realtors, the University of California will offer a course in Real Estate Finance, beginning Feb. 9. There will be 12 meetings held each Wednesday night, at the John Dewey High School. The fee will be $18 and the instructor will be Glenn R. Bracken, head of the Bracken Mortgage Investment Co. here. Information on the course may be obtained at the realty board office. Such subjects as where and how to obtain funds for financing; trust deed investments and refinancing of distressed properties will high light the course.

ANOTHER PINE AVE. FACE LIFTING

This an artist's rendering of the planned new front of the building at 528 Pine Ave. where Dohrmann's will take over. They must move because of the $3,500,000 new J. C. Penney building which will be erected on the site of their present store.

A 'FUN HOME'

Beautiful inside and out, the Magazine Cover Homes in Anaheim will hold grand opening this week end. Previewed last week with overwhelming response, the homes are designed by Cliff May and feature patio, living at its modern best. Walls of glass surround living and bedroom areas to bring "outside inside."

Designed by May, 'Fun Homes' Near Disneyland Now Selling

"The grandest grand opening yet," that's the theme this week-end when another of the popular Magazine Cover home sites opens in Anaheim, sales head Gene Mahaffey said today.

Designed by contemporary award winning Cliff May, the Magazine Cover Homes offer the newest in styling and are located in one of Orange County's top locations. The homes are situated along eucalyptus lined Ball Rd., just off the Santa Ana Freeway between the Lincoln Blvd intersection and Disneyland.

The homes will be available in both 3- and 4-bedroom, 2-bath plans with luxurious kitchens with built in colored gas range and oven, indirect lighting effects, built in brick planters in living area, forced air heat, fireplace, glassed-in tile shower, full floor to ceiling windows, and three patio areas partly fenced.

"We call it 55's 'fun home'," Mahaffey explained. The sales manager pointed out that the May homes are built for California living with abundant patio and planting already planned for—plus the interior spaciousness.

The May homes will be offered for no down payment to veterans with prices ranging from $11,225 to $16,000. Monthly terms for principal and interest on some models will be only $57.68.

IN PREVIEW TODAY

Featuring large homes for as low as $11,630 with no down payments except costs and impounds and only $58.89 per month principal and interest, Lampson Plaza at Lampson and West St., in Garden Grove, is holding a preview showing today. This is one of the models. The homes have 3 or 4 bedrooms, 2 baths and fireplaces. Visitors from Long Beach may drive east on Garden Grove Blvd. to West St., and north to Lampson Ave. The Lampson Plaza unit is a Tri Built Homes, Inc., project.

Aldon's Buena Plaza Is Drawing Throngs

Sales at Aldon Construction Co.'s Buena Plaza reached $750,000 after last week end as homeseekers by the thousands were attracted to the grand opening of the final section of the first unit of the new community of 1955 "Masterpiece Series" 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes at Miller St. and La Palma Ave., near Knott's Berry Farm, in Buena Park.

Major added attraction in this section of 250 houses was the offer of a Western Holly de luxe automatic clock control gas range and eye-level oven, built in at buyer's option, according to an Aldon spokesman who disclosed that cost of this luxury feature is only $1.99 a month, added to the low vets' monthly terms of $71.49 for principal and interest.

Veterans may buy Buena Plaza's "Masterpiece" homes without paying a dime to move in, E. "Billy" Hamburg, general sales agent, explained. No cash is required even for costs or impounds, Hamburg said. Arrangements have been made for low terms for non-vets.

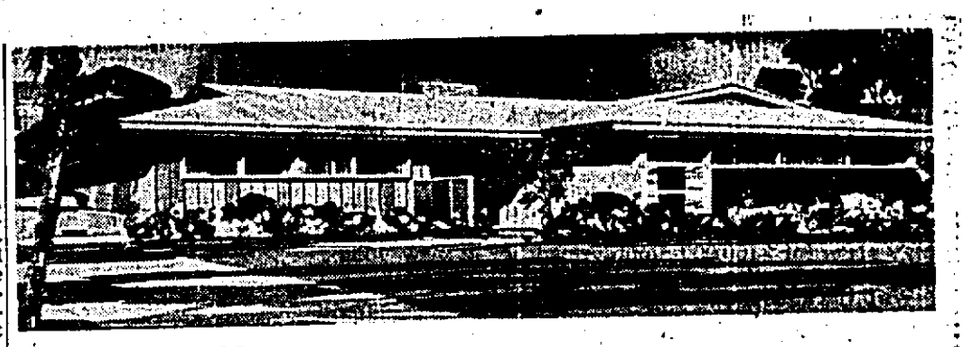

In addition to the optional Western Holly built-in ranges, available in five pastel colors, stainless steel and copper, kitchens in the Buena Plaza homes have comparably luxurious features such as natural-finish birch or knotty pine cabinets; big double sinks with lustrous, self-edged coved drainboards and splashes; Waste King garbage pulverators; Dish-Whiz semi-automatic dishwashers; copper-finish range hoods and exhaust fans.

Other key attractions which distinguish these houses are average living areas of 1350 square feet, plus two-car garages and porches; sliding doors of crystal glass and ceiling-high brick or slumpstone fireplaces in the living rooms; 75,000 BTU thermostat-controlled forced air heat; service areas adjoining kitchens; 50-gallon "family-size" automatic water heaters; custom-designed lighting fixtures, and parquet hardwood floors.

Each home contains 4 bedrooms, or 3 bedrooms and an extra room which may be used as a den.

There are 22 designs, including farmhouse, colonial, modern and provincial. Representative of these widely diversified stylings are six model homes, furnished by Aaron Schultz and open daily and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Buena Plaza, located at "the crossroads of the Southland," is quickly accessible from Los Angeles via the Santa Ana Freeway past Norwalk to Valley View Ave., there turning north. From Long Beach take Carson St. (which becomes Lincoln Ave.) to Miller St., then turn north to the six exhibit homes.

SALES SOARING

At Buena Plaza, where Aldon's 1,350-square-foot, four-bedroom, two-bath homes are sold to vets on nothing down, no cash for costs or impounds, sales totaled $750,000 following last week end's grand opening of the final section of the first area at Miller and La Palma, Buena Park. Special added attraction is optional purchase of built-in Western Holly range.

Designing Home for Mason Kight

Roy L. Kitter & Associates of South Gate announced they are preparing plans for the construction of a large home at Corso di Napoli and Savona Wk., Belmont Shore, for Mr. and Mrs. Mason Kight. It will contain 2,000 square feet with all the built-in features and will have 7 rooms.

'Heart Desire' Contest This Week in Butler Bros.

A unique contest in which customers of Butler Bros. store in Lakewood Center will be given free chances to win any item of merchandise which they choose in the store, regardless of price, was announced Saturday by Wallace Bruce, manager.

Entry blanks for the "Pick your prize and win your Heart's Desire" contest will be available this week only, starting Monday, at the Butler Bros. store. No purchase is required to enter, Bruce said.

On the entry blank, the contestant will list his name, address, phone number and a complete description of the item of merchandise in the store which he would most like to win. Entries will be deposited in the "Heart's Desire" box at the store.

Entry blanks are available from any Butler Bros. sales person. Three winners will be drawn from the box. Each will win what he named on the entry blank.

IN JR. EXECUTIVE

One of the many models of the L. S. Whaley Co. Jr. Executive homes offers this compact kitchen which contains luxury features such as electric table-top built-in range, built-in oven, dish washer and exceptionally fine-grained cabinets.

Jr. Executive Home Unit Near Sellout

Sales of the "Jr. Executive" homes in the newest L. S. Whaley Co., development in Los Altos are cintinuing at the fastest pace of any unit in the history of the company, officials report.

With a sellout of the luxury-featured homes expected shortly, Dave Davenport, sales manager of Los Altos Realty Inc., said for the first time in years "we may be caught short with nothing to sell."

Planning the developments of Los Altos many months in advance, the Whaley organization did not anticipate the rush demand for the "Jr. Executive" homes and will have no other unit ready for occupancy for some time, although crews are busy on new projects.

"Mr. Whaley believed Long Beach home buyers wanted a better than average type of home and he constructed these two units of Jr. Executive Homes, continued Davenport. "And the sales have been phenomanal. It proved he was correct."

With approximately two-thirds of the homes sold, Davenport said there still are available most of the models.

Under a new financing planned worked out by the company, men in service may buy the homes on terms very comparable to G.I. financing. This has proven attractive to many service families in the area. Under the G.I. financing the men had to be out of service to obtain it.

New FHA financing also permits the sale to non-veterans of the luxury homes on low down payments on 30-year financing.

The unit may be reached by driving Bellflower Blvd. to Los Coytoes Diagonal.

Davenport said a few choice lots remain for sale in the Park Estates section of Los Altos. Information on them may be obtained from the Park Estates office at Pacific Coast Hwy. and Anaheim St.

North American Expands at Downey

North American Aviation, Inc., is calling for bids on construction of a large electronics assembly building and a new cafeteria for the plane assembly plant at 12214 Lakewood Blvd., Downey. The electronics building will contain 208,000 square feet and the cafeteria 24,000 square feet. A selected list of contractors will submit bids Feb. 9.

Will Build Plant on Fullerton Site

Arcadia Metal Products Co., Arcadia, has purchased a 10-acre site on Acadia St. just north of Orangethorpe Ave. in Fullerton for the construction of a new manufacturing plant.

Orangewood Estates No. 2 in Fullerton Is Opened

A new second unit of 121 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes is being opened today at Orangewood Estates, following the sellout of the initial unit of 136 homes in this popular "Sterling Series" rising on the south side of W. Orangethorpe Ave., just east of Brookhurst, in Fullerton.

Like those in the earlier unit, the new homes are being placed on the market in the $14,000 to $15,450 category, with vets able to buy for nothing down but costs and impounds and monthly payments from $72.10 for principal and interest, it was announced.

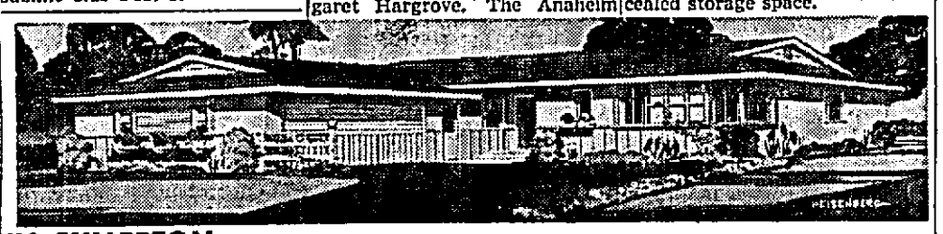

Spokesmen for the W. E. Robertson Co., developers, reported wide interest in the 120 square foot utility room in the spacious two-car garage, which architect Max Maltzman described as a "bonus area flowing from the wholly efficient use of space."

The custom-styled dwellings are offered in a wide choice of color schemes planned by Margaret Hargrove. The Anaheim Furniture Co. provided furnishings for the model homes, five of which are on display every day.

One of the most favored features about Orangewood Estates, according to recent buyers' surveys, is its convenient location near the Santa Ana Freeway. Visitors may follow the Freeway to Orangethrope Ave., go east on Orangethorpe to the models just east of Brookhurst.

The homes have slumpstone and Norman brick fireplaces, some with copper hoods, built-in Western Holly deluxe colored gas ranges and ovens and built-in barbecues in the concrete patios, linked by sliding glass doors and sliding screens to living room.

Also featured are 80,000 BTU thermostat - controlled Rheem forced-air heating, Waste-King garbage pulverators, Dish-Whiz dishwashers, kitchen exhaust fans, hardwood paneling, No. 1 hardwood floors, stall showers, showers over tubs and, in some models, breakfast bars with concealed storage space.

IN FULLERTON

New second unit of 121 three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes, typified above, is being opened at Orangewood Estates today on the south side of W. Orangethorpe Ave. just east of Brookhurst, in Fullerton.

$299 DOWN TO VET OR NON-VET

Golden West Park is offering large homes, such as the one pictured here, for the low down payment of $299 to both veterans and non-veterans. They are in Anaheim.

Plans Subdivision at Obispo, 68th St.

Engineer Vic Case is preparing plans for a subdivision to be located at 68th St. and Obispo Ave. It will be developed by A. K. Skinner and West Homes Development Co., Hawthorne. Plans call for dividing a 5.43-acre tract into 27 lots.

Non-Vets Get Same Deal as Vets in Golden West

Brisk, steady sales of 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes in Unit No. 3 of Golden West Park in suburban Anaheim, continue to point up a definite and growing need for sensibly-priced, spacious homes designed especially for non-veterans with large and growing families, according to officials of Mac-Bright, Inc., builders and developers.

Featuring more than 1,300 square feet of actual living space exclusive of attached two-car garages, Golden West Park homes are being offered non-veterans as well as vets for only $299 down, Walker & Lee, Inc., sales directors, point out, "and they're being sold almost as fast as they're put on the market".

Two most popular features of these "completely contemporary" dwellings, is their amazingly flexible "center hall plan" and "master-bedroom suite," a plan whereby the master bedroom can be converted into an entirely separate living unit, with its own entrance, full bath and deep walk-in closet, by simply closing the hallway door.

Attractive exteriors of these homes include colored rock roofs and colored composition shingles as well as genuine redwood siding. Each home plot also has a bearing orange tree on its own large 60-foot lot.

Designed for the utmost in work and step-saving convenience, Golden West Park homes feature complete Youngstown steel kitchen units with white cabinets; Formica drainboards; double sink; Waste King pulverators; two Holly wall heaters with secondary heat exchanges; rust-free aluminum screens; large French doors; colored asphalt tile on all floors; modern slab doors; Crane bath fixtures and Schlage hardware. In addition, sewers, curbs and sidewalks are already in and paid for, builders cite.

Furnished model homes are on display from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Golden West Park may be easily and quickly reached from Los Angeles by driving east on the Santa Ana Freeway to Lincoln State Highway crossing in Anaheim. Continue south on freeway four-fifths of a mile to West Street and watch for model homes. From Long Beach, homeseekers are advised to drive east on Carson (Lincoln) to Santa Ana Freeway; turn right four-fifths of a mile to West Street and Golden West Park.

Bank Deposits, Realty Sales Both Show Increase Here

Long Beach economy, based on money in the bank, strengthened considerably the past year even with record sales of $162,986,264 in real estate.

Although buyers of much of the realty may have dipped into savings accounts to make the purchases, growth of the city both by new residents and financially, resulted in an increase of more than $20,200,000 in deposits as of Jan. 1, this year, compared to the same date last year.

Figures from all banks show the total deposits were $395,949,066.93 on Jan. 1 while they were $375,735,204.85 on Jan. 1, 1954. On Jan. 1, 1953, they were $356,616,421.14.

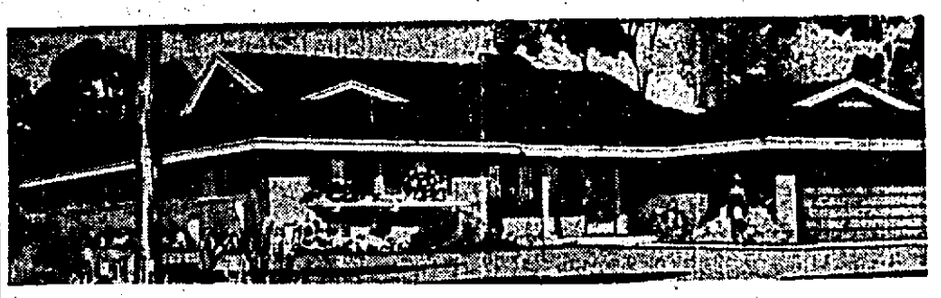

Realty sales in Long Beach and Lakewood as compiled by Barbara Moss, executive secretary of the Long Beach Board of Realtors, show the near $163 million involved 12,701 properties. The previous year there were 13,678 sales but the total involved was $160,450,000.

By districts the sales last year were:

Area	Sales	Amount
Belmont Shore	381	$6,754,807
Belmont Heights	189	3,950,966
3rd to Anaheim	529	7,626,385

TOTAL	$395,949,066.93

IN GRAND OPENING

This is one of the styles of the Magnolia Manor "Wonder Homes" that are being offered to non-vets for a move-in price of only $295. The grand opening is this week end. Built by Dal-Mor Builders, the homes are located on Magnolia Blvd. just off the Santa Ana Freeway between Buena Park and Anaheim.

Magnolia Manor Opening Second Big Anaheim Unit

The opening of the second unit of Magnolia Manor will take place today at the Anaheim location, the Dal-Mor Builders announced. The new homes have many new advantages added to the already popular "wonder homes."

Located on Magnolia Blvd. just off the Santa Ana Freeway between Buena Park and Anaheim, the new unit of "wonder homes" will be available in both 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath plans with some models offering more than 1,300 square feet.

The sales policy of the second unit will be much the same as the fast selling first group with the Magnolia Manor homes being offered to both veteran and non-veteran for the same low move-in price of $295, sales agent Frank McFarland explained.

The homes are in the ranch motif with double garages, tile sinks, natural wood cabinets in kitchen, breezeways, the latest in heating, and other features.

Magnolia Manor's initial unit near the same choice Magnolia Blvd. location was one of Orange County's fastest selling sites last year and the builders stressed that early reservations point again to a fast sell-out. "We urge non-vets to act quickly for the sales plan we offer at the 'wonder homes,'" McFarland said.

Agency Moves

American Medical Agency, formerly of 812 Pine Ave., have moved to Times Building, 215 American Ave., Suite 1206. There is a new owner, but under the same management of Lee Block.

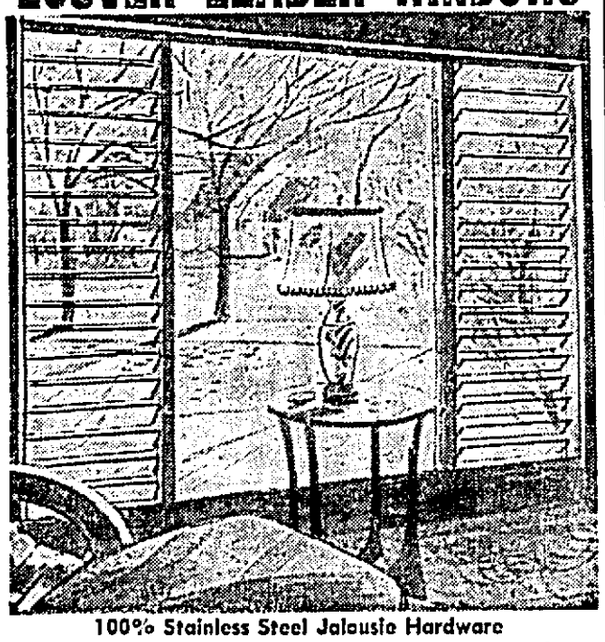

Three Attending National Sessions

Reg Dupuy, Clive Graham and Barbara Moss, all national officers, are attending the National Association of Real Estate Boards board of directors' meeting being held in Washington through Feb. 3. Dupuy will be officially installed as National Regional vice president of this western area. Graham is to be installed as National Regional vice president of the Brokers Institute and Mrs. Moss is retiring National president of the Secretaries Council. Having been national chairman of the Multiple Listing Service and assisted in installing this service in some 28 boards, Mrs. Moss has been invited by Herbert U. Nelson to speak before the Board Presidents meeting on "A Vehicle to Success—Multiplelisting."

SMART DESIGNING

Shown above is a typical Luxury Homes living room. Smart architectural design and styling give all Luxury Homes' rooms a feeling of spaciousness.

Luxury Homes Only Minutes From L. B.

Easy accessability to the Long Beach industrial and business areas is an important asset of "Luxury Homes," the completely new tract of contemporary homes in Garden Grove.

New freeways and modern highways take the 'Luxury Home" resident to metropolitan Long Beach, as well as surrounding area, in a matter of minutes.

Acclaimed the "moderate priced" home with the "luxury priced" features, these homes are outstanding examples of fine architecture and design.

Incorporated in each residence are more than 44 extra features adding to a comfort and livability unmatched by all others in the same price range.

Veterans can buy a "Luxury Home" for absolutely no cash down. Payments for these 4 bedroom, 2 bath homes are as low as $63.88 per month. Four model homes are on display daily between 10 a.m. and 8 p.m. at Brookhurst Avenue and Bell Road in Garden Grove, site of the popular homes.

Ultra-modern accessories such as the built-in oven and range top, handy garbage disposal, cosy built-in breakfast nook, and unusually large closets are included to meet the needs and desires of growing families.

An emphasis is also placed on outdoor living, with a huge backyard area enclosed with decorative redwood fencing provided every home. Incinerators and clothes poles have also been provided for the housewives convenience.

Over 15 exterior designs give each home a mark of distinction and individuality. Front landscaping is also included with attractive California shrubbery featured.

For the children of the community, a free bus service takes them each day to modern Orange County schools.

SPEED LIMIT IDEA . . . The purpose of the proposed legislation setting up a 65 mile per hour maximum speed limit in California, in addition to the existing 55 mph "prima facie" limit, has recently led some quarters to the opinion that this move would represent an increase in the speed limit.

Actually, the objective of this measure is just the opposite. It would definitely forbid exceeding 65 mph in any situation, which, under the "prima facie" limit, is now possible.

For the "55 mph prima facie" limit makes it possible for motorists to exceed this speed under conditions where they can prove that the increased speed was not hazardous. Consequently, it is not uncommon for motorists to drive at 80, 90 mph or more in certain areas.

"We feel that such high rates of speed are dangerous under any conditions," says the Automobile Club of Southern California, "and that is why we believe an absolute speed limit, in addition to the 'prima facie' limit, should be established.

SPACIOUS ROOMS

Windsor Village homes at Garden Grove feature spacious living rooms, as shown here, as well as large rooms throughout the home. They are priced from $10,900.

Brisk Sales Shown in Windsor Village

Sales in Windsor Village continue at a brisk pace, according to George G. Petrow, spokesman for the McCarthy Company, sales agents for the Banner Development Co.

Offering the popular California contemporary architecture, Windsor Village homes are priced from $10,900 to $12,445 and are available to veterans on no down payment financing with monthly payments, principal and interest of less than $60.

The kitchens of Windsor Village have been particularly praised, according to Petrow. Designed to give the housewife maximum space with step-saving efficiency, Windsor Village kitchens feature louvered windows, ceramic tiling, garbage disposals, Stanthony hood, with light and fan. Appliances may be included in the loan if the buyer desires.

Spacious living rooms have walls of glass and a huge fireplace that buyers have found exceptionally appealing. The controlled heat. Bathrooms feature Westinghouse electric heaters and beautiful colored American Standard fixtures and stall showers.

The distinctive Windsor Village exteriors are of California redwood. Louvered shutters, decorative Dolomite roofs, weatherstripping on exterior doors, gutters, and downspouts are other features. Front and side lawns are landscaped.

Models of the homes are open on Gilbert St., just south of Ball Road in Garden Grove. Visitors drive out Santa Ana Freeway to Huntington Beach Blvd., (Highway 39) south to Ball Road, east to Gilbert St., and south to Windsor Village. From Long Beach, visitors drive out Seventh St., (Garden Grove Blvd.) to Gilbert and north to Windsor Village.

Broker Moves

Ann Greenwood, realey broker, has moved her office from 3131 E. 7th St., to 4105 E. 4th St., she announced Saturday.

Many Prudential Loans Made Here

Real estate loans totaling $842,450 were approved in Long Beach during the full year 1954 by the Western Home Office of Prudential Insurance Co.

Harry J. Volk, vice president in charge of western operations, said that the 1954 total was all for residential purposes.

REALTOR OF WEEK

Arnold Berg Wins Honor After Leaving Presidency

During his year as president of the Long Beach Board of Realtors Arnold Berg supervised the weekly breakfast drawings to honor the Realtor of the Week and never once did his own name appear. Yet the first week that he stepped from office his name was the winner.

Born and raised in Minot, N. D., Berg graduated from the Minot High School and attended the University of Minnesota and Minot State College. Later he completed a course at the University of Washington in business law and administration.

For some time Berg was employed as manager and supervisor for the MacMarr stores in the state of Washington, having direct charge of 18 stores. In California he managed several stores for the A & P and then entered the ice cream manufacturing business in Los Angeles on his own. He also was production manager for the Electrical Development Co. in manufacturing submersible pumps for the Navy and received a citation from President Roosevelt for tripling the production of the pumps.

In 1943 he entered the Officers Training program for the Army and was stationed at Camp Walters, Mineral Wells, Tex. After being discharged from the Army he entered the real estate business in Long Beach in 1945 and found this new venture immediately successful. His office is at 418 E. Broadway.

Berg likes to travel and is a hunting and fishing enthusiast. He is immediate past president of the Long Beach Board of Realtors, a member of the Society of Residential Appraisers, Realtor Speakers Club, Chamber of Commerce, American Legion Post 27 and the Elks Lodge No. 888. He and Mrs. Berg celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary last year. They live at 2135 American Ave.

Berg served as a director of the local board three years and advanced from vice president to president last year. He was a director with the State Realty Association three years and a member of the County Council three years. He has just been named state chairman of multiple listing for this year.

This week's Salesman of the Week, honored by the Realty Board, is Steve Spindell, one of the best known members of the board.

A New Englander by birth, Steve went to school in Boston and graduated from Harvard in 1922 with a degree as a mining engineer. He followed this profession in West Virginia and Utah and then represented several granite and quarry concerns as their Mid-West sales representative until coming to California in 1942 to go to work with Cal-Ship as a group leader in hull engineering. He was in charge of the machinery foundations and superstructure planning.

Following the war Steve obtained a real estate license and went to work with the Rex L. Hodges Co., and last year joined the E. T. Moore Co., to manage their income property division.

Steve's success in realty has been very high and only last Wednesday shared with another realtor a $60,000 income property sale.

Steve was a director of the State board in 1953 and of the Long Beach board last year. He is past secretary and vice president of the Society of Residential Appraisers.

Mr. and Mrs. Spindell reside at 3021 Mariquita St. and his office is at Carson St. and Lakewood Blvd.

'Doug' Riach to Cleveland

Douglas A. Riach, for six years the director of sales and merchandising for General Foods Maxwell House coffee division in Long Beach and Los Angeles, is being transferred to Cleveland, O., where he will become territory manager for the company.

D. A. RIACH

Riach, whose home has been at 5220 Carita Ave., attended UCLA until he joined the Army in World War II. He entered as a private and was discharged as a captain. Recently installed as vice president of the Exchange Club, Riach has been active in various civic affairs and is past president of the Long Beach Food Sales Association. Mrs. Riach and their young daughter are joining him in Cleveland.

Pembrook Offering Vets Homes for Nothing Down

Remaining homes in Pembrook Village, popular Westminster development of rustic architectural styling are now available to veterans at no down payment and no cost to move in, it was reported by Bruce Bartleson, sales manager of Hanson & Hintz, developers.

"We have secured this new financing for the remaining units of Pembrook Village," stated Bartleson, "because of the request of so many veterans who have found in Pembrook Village the one home that meets their standards of quality, architectural beauty, and modern conveniences."

Of the homes remaining in the development, there are still choice lots available, Bartleson explained, due to cancellations of unqualified buyers.

Among the features of the homes are cedar shake roofs, batten-and-board, used brick, and diamond-paned windows, which create the Early American exteriors. Interiors of the dwellings are modern with such contemporary features as sliding glass walls in the living rooms, acoustical ceilings, snack bars, and interior planters.

Other qualities are cross ventilation in bedrooms, flush-lighted entryways, entry halls, two-car garages, hardwood floors, mahogany slab doors. Kitchens are U-shaped and have natural birch cabinetry, and garbage disposals. Pullman baths are equipped with electric heaters, it was disclosed. Prices are from $11,700 to $12,700.

Visitors drive out Seventh St. to Huntington Beach Blvd. (Highway 39), turn south to Tenth St., and west to the model homes.

SEE MONEY BUGGY

More than 1,500 persons attended the open house Thursday night for the new Bixby Knolls branch of the Bank of America, which will be opened for business Monday. An innovation is the lack of teller windows and cash drawers. The clerks will operate along a glass counter using money buggies such as the one shown here by Miss Shirley Mayne. Also pictured are Julian R. Davis, vice president in charge of statewide public relations for the Bank of America; R. J. Carmody, manager of the branch; Mayor George Vermillion and Supervisor Burton W. Chace.

Crowds at Magnolia Estates' Big Opening

Thousands of home-seekers attended last weekend's grand opening of Magnolia Estates, highlighted by showing of four furnished model residences, and heavy throngs are expected today, it was announced by spokesmen for the new Exhibit Homes development of 99 3- and 4-bedroom, 2-bath dwellings in Anaheim.

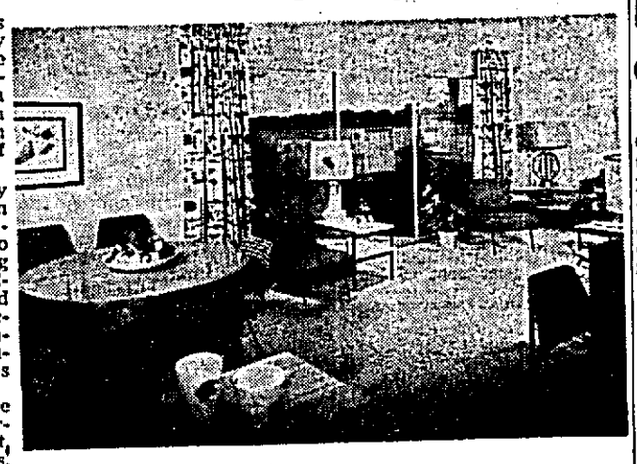

The exhibit homes, decorated and furnished by C. Tony Percira, will remain on display daily on the west side of Magnolia Ave., between La Palma Ave. and Crescent Ave., south of the Santa Ana Freeway, according to Louis A. Towne, president, and Richard H. Doremus, vice president of Exhibit Homes.

Sales were reported greatly increased following the opening of the furnished homes, with veterans able to buy at nothing down, except costs and impounds, and monthly payments from $61 for principal and interest.

The full price of the homes is from $11,950. Visitors can easily reach the property by taking the Santa Ana Freeway past Orangethorpe Ave. to Magnolia Ave., turning south on Magnolia to the model homes just south of La Palma on the west side of the street.

"The exceptional community advantages of Anaheim, chosen for the Magnolia Estates development, offers proximity to schools and churches, shopping facilities, theaters and other advantages," a spokesman pointed out. "Moreover, within easy access are major employment centers, with year-around opportunities, in both Orange and Los Angeles counties."

Features shown to advantage in the model homes include thermostat-controlled forced-air heat, all metal sliding glass doors, steel sash windows, decorator-planned color schemes, lath and plaster construction, custom lighting fixtures, picture windows, ceramic tile kitchen counters, all chrome bath accessories, stall showers with ceramic tile floors, and large dining nooks in kitchens.

NEAR FREEWAY

Magnolia Estates, with initial unit of 99 three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes now on sale, is typified by above interior. Location of property is west side of Magnolia Ave., between La Palma and Crescent Aves., south of Santa Ana Freeway.

Local Office Honored for Sales Record

The Long Beach branch office of Allstate Insurance Co., winner in a recent nationwide company sales contest, was honored recently by the company's top executives at a dinner at the Statler Hotel, Los Angeles, according to Raymond H. Loewe, resident manager.

Allstate agents and their wives from Long Beach: Carl Allen, Bill, Armstrong, Howard Baker, Lynn Baker, Will Baker, Dan Bott, Jack Dew, Tony Freeman, Wes Godfrey, Dave Goodman and Cecil Hodges were present at the dinner along with sales management personnel of the Long Beach office.

Markdale Rushes Opening of Second Norwalk Unit

Sales of the first unit of Markdale, the modern three-bedroom, two-bath development in close-in Norwalk, have exceeded expectations of the builders and is now completely sold out. As a result of this unprecedented demand for nearby properties, the builders have moved fast and the grand opening of the second unit is scheduled for this week end, according to Pioneer Land Co., sales agents.

The modern construction of these Contemporary dwellings, they said, plus the fact that they are situated just five minutes from a multimillion-dollar shopping center—Norwalk Square—has evoked tremendous approval from the thousands of visitors to the site during the last few weeks.

In addition to the custom-built effect that lends distinction to every home in the development, the builders called attention to the modern functional interior. Designed for the growing family, the whole sleeping section can be shut off from the living and recreational areas of the house. Offered to vets for no money down, monthly payments are $67.28, principal and interest.

It was reported that many employees of nearby Rheem Manufacturing and North American Aviation have already bought homes in this contemporary development featuring a private bath in the master bedroom, forced-air heating with a summer switch for cooling, built-in breakfast bar, garbage disposer, patio, open beam ceiling, and range hood plus fan. But transportation which connects with all points, runs along adjoining Norwalk Blvd.

Markdale is reached via the Santa Ana Freeway to the Pioneer turnoff in Norwalk—directional signs are posted.

Banner Park Designing Is Great Appeal

Popularity of Banner Park, the new Garden Grove development on Hazard St. just west of Harbor Blvd., is attributed to the fact that these homes represent a rare combination of contemporary and conventional design, according to Frank Hart, sales manager of Walker & Lee, sales agents. "Buyers have been enthusiastic of these unusual homes," continued Hart, "praising them for their distinctive beauty and quality construction."

In Banner Park, veterans are buying the dwellings for no down payment. Priced from $11,800, the homes are also being sold to non-veterans on FHA financing terms. Monthly payments are approximately $67.

King-size lots are another advantage to living in Banner Park, Hart disclosed while listing features of the homes. These include open beam, celotex insulated ceilings, mahogany paneling, garbage disposals, built-in Western Holly ranges and ovens, Stanthony stove hoods with electric light and fan, Kenkork tile floors in living room, dinette, hall, and bedrooms and asphalt tiling in bathrooms and kitchen. The use of walls of glass greatly increases the amount of visual living space in the homes, Hart said.

Models of Banner Park homes are open daily and evenings to 9. They are reached by driving out Seventh St., which becomes Garden Grove Blvd., or Westminster to Harbor, turning south on Harbor to Hazard.

Walter Enlers to Be in Show

Walter Enlers of the Howard Amos Men's Store, Long Beach, will be a participant in a novel men's style show, a feature of the 37th annual convention of the National Association of Retail Clothiers and Furnishers Feb. 22 at the Biltmore Hotel, Los Angeles.

Models will be young merchants from various parts of the country themselves wearing clothes that they expect to be good style in their part of the country in the coming season. The merchandise shown is to be judged by a jury of young motion picture stars and starlets who will comment on the clothing from a consumer viewpoint.

Luxurious Baths Offered in All Homes

Two colorful baths get the modern family in a Brookhurst Golden Key home off to a pleasant start for the work and school day. These luxurious baths are color harmonized with pastel fixtures and sparkling ceramic tile. Featured are spacious Pullman lavatories which afford convenient counter space for shaving and applying makeup, as well as plenty of storage space for towels and other items, where conveniently available.

Lighting is especially arranged to best advantage. Touch-Plate lighting is used throughout the Brookhurst Golden Key homes. Baths have electric exhaust fans, and homes are equipped with large-capacity water heaters for an ever ready supply of hot water.

Conveniently located at Gilbert and Bixby Sts. in Garden Grove, these new 3 and 4-bedroom homes are built by Henry C. Cox and Affiliated Companies. There is no down payment required for qualified veterans. Four furnished model homes are open for inspection daily and Sundays.

The new offices of Henry C. Cox and Affiliated Companies are now located at 10062 Chapman Ave., just east of Brookhurst.

Bristol Park Terms Low for Big Homes

Featuring nearly 1,300 square feet of flexible living area, qualified veterans may buy a $10,700 three-bedroom home in Bristol Park in suburban Santa Ana for nothing down except impounds, and with easy monthly payments of $55.11 that include principal as well as interest.

Four-bedroom dwellings in Bristol Park, fully priced at $11,985, carrying veterans' monthly terms of $61.77 including principal and interest ,are also available for nothing down, report M. J. Brock & Sons, Inc., builders of this development of 361 luxurious California homes designed around the ever popular center-hall plan. Convenient FHA terms are also available to nonvets, builders point out.

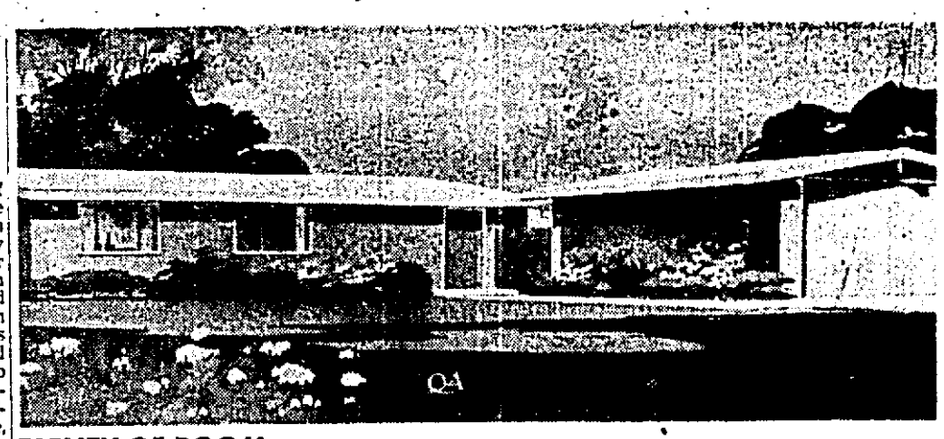

Center-hall plan enables all members of the household to traverse each room in the house without disturbing members of the family or guests in any other room, cite Walker & Lee, sales directors.

"This floor plan has been a tremendously potent sales stimulant to veterans with young, growing families who require the spaciousness of these four-bedroom dwellings, and the assured privacy of this floor plan," they continue.

Particularly popular with home-seekers are the brands of fixtures and appliances that give Bristol Park homes push-button comfort and convenience in every room. They include forced-air furnaces, 75,000 BTU; aluminum sashes; American Standard plumbing fixtures; brass-finish locks; exhaust fans and hoods with concealed lights; Biltwell kitchen cabinets; Coronado chrome bathroom fixtures; Arcadia sliding glass doors with sliding screens; Matico asphalt tile, and roof decking that provides 1½-inch insulation.

Other quality refinements are double sinks; decorative non-glare lighting fixtures; open beam ceilings; heavy slab doors; picture windows; decorative redwood fencing around patio areas; lifetime brass and copper plumbing; spacious walk-in closets; open kitchens; decorator colors.

To reach Bristol Park, where ornamental street lighting, curbs, sidewalks and streets are already in and paid for, home-seekers are advised to take the Santa Ana Freeway to Harbor Blvd.; turn right at Harbor Blvd. and go south to Edinger; east on Edinger approximately 1½ miles to Bristol, then south to Delhi and development. Two model homes furnished by Barker Bros. are on display from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. seven days a week.

PLENTY OF ROOM
Bristol Park homes in Santa Ana contain nearly 1,300 square feet. The homes offer terms to veterans of nothing down and low monthly payments.

CHARMFUL LIVING
Combining graceful California contemporary architecture with the latest in home features, Moore-Built Homes is opening the seventh unit of Moorepark today in Orange County. This is a living room in one of the model homes.

Moorepark Unit No. 7 Is Ready for Public Viewing

The ever-increasing popularity of Moore-Built Homes is expected to push sales past the record-breaking mark set in the previous six unit of Moorepark when Moorepark, Unit Seven, is open to the public this week end. This was the prediction made today by Aubrey Reynolds, vice president of Moore-Built Homes, builders and developers of the dwellings which have earned the reputation as "the fastest-selling homes in Orange County."

Graceful, California contemporary architecture has proven its desirability in the past and distinguishes the homes in the seventh unit, Reynolds said.

Priced at $11,050, the homes are available to veterans without down payment. Monthly payments, including principal, interest, taxes and insurance, amount to $67.

Three bedrooms, with one or one and one-half baths, the dwellings are on lots with frontages up to 73 feet.

Aimed at pleasing families, the homes were planned to be "family-size" throughout, with extra features found in every room. Kitchens have a large dining area, modern finish mahogany cabinets, a service desk, garbage disposals and ceramic tile drainboards.

Privacy in every room is assured with the circular hall plan which grants access to other parts of the house without using the living room as thoroughfare. Choice of a wide range of colors for interiors and exteriors is given buyers.

Other features of the dwellings are wood-burning fireplaces with log-lighters, pullman baths, plastic-coated kitchen and bath ceilings and walls, work-saving utility rooms, insulation and weatherstripping, double garages, planked mahogany paneling, oak hardwood floors, two wall furnaces, multibreaker circuits, electric lights in walk-in closets and mahogany slab doors throughout.

Visitors may see models of the Seventh Unit of Moorepark on Euclid Ave., between Chapman and Katella. From Los Angeles, drive out Santa Ana Freeway, turn south on Euclid. From Long Beach, take 7th St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) to Euclid and make a north turn to the model homes.

Wing to Plan Villa Changes

Kenneth S. Wing, prominent Long Beach architect, has been retained by the Morris Hotel Chain to make major alterations on the Villa Riviera Hotel.

Reconstruction of the hotel's garage and creation of an elaborate sunken garden, flanking the 16-story structure are projects already under way. Removal of the fountain in front of the Villa and replacement with distinctive landscaping are contemplated.

It was also revealed by a spokesman of the Morris Hotel Chain that Mary Filiatrault has been appointed assistant manager of the Villa Riviera, in charge of promotion.

FILLED WITH EXTRAS

Casas Lindas Estates grand opening last week revealed many extras are offered in the new homes. They are priced from $12,500 and vets may buy for nothing down.

Opening for Casas Lindas Draws Many

The tremendous crowds which attended the opening of the second unit of Casas Lindas Estates were enthusiastic in their praise of the new Garden Grove development, according to a spokesman for Eastern Builders Co., developers.

"The custom-type design and quality of Casas Lindas Estates is evidenced by the great number of "extras" found in these 3- and 4-bedroom dwellings," it was stated.

The homes are priced from $12,050 and are available to veterans at no down payment, impounds only. FHA financing is available to non-vets.

Among the many "custom" extras in Casas Lindas are touch-plate wiring, with master control panel, papered walls, forced air heat with thermostat control, walk-in closets, and efficiency kitchens.

Lots are landscaped, there are hardwood floors, wardrobe closets, aluminum sash, concrete driveways, and all utilities are in. Curbs and gutters and paved streets are also found in the development.

Close to schools, churches, shopping and recreational centers, Casas Lindas Estates are on Ninth St., between Chapman and Garden Grove Blvds. Visitors drive out Seventh St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) to Ninth, turn left to the models. From Los Angeles, drive out Santa Ana Freeway to Chapman, turn right (west) on Chapman to Ninth, then left (south) to Casas Lindas Estates.

Solon Sees Quick OK on Federal Pay Hike

WASHINGTON (UP)—Chairman Tom Murray (D-Tenn.) Saturday predicted quick action by the House civil service committee on the administration's request for salary increases for some 1,500,000 postal and other government workers.

Murray told a reporter that hearings, to begin on Tuesday, should be ended in two or three weeks. He said the committee intends to act on the pay raises before considering any bill to raise postal rates.

Lincoln's Home to Open 2nd Floor for Public Visits

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Six second-story rooms in the house where Abraham Lincoln lived from 1844 to 1861 will be opened to the public, Feb. 12, the 146th anniversary of the Civil War President's birth.

Heretofore, the hundreds of thousands of persons who visit the Lincoln home each year have had access only to the first floor. There were 425,000 visitors in 1954.

Six months was required to ready the upstairs rooms, including those of Lincoln, his wife and a son, Robert Todd Lincoln, a guest room, a maid's room and a trunk room.

The heavy traffic flow through the 116-year-old frame house, the only one Lincoln ever owned, had to be considered in the restoration project.

Italian Border Clash

TRIESTE, Italy (AP)—Italy said Saturday Yugoslav border guards fired on an Italian military patrol which unintentionally crossed into Yugoslav territory along the Trieste frontier. One Italian soldier was slightly wounded. Yugoslav officials expressed regrets for the incident.

'Free Rent' Until April for Balboa Vista Buyers

"Free rent" until April 1 is promised buyers of Balboa Vista Homes near Newport Beach.

With only $395 plus small closing costs, immediate occupancy is assured buyers and their payments of $42.26 monthly, principal and interest will not start until April 1.

Each is a three-bedroom home for a total price of $7,995. All bedrooms are twin-size and the homes have 1,345 square feet under the roof. American Standard colored bath fixtures, Youngstown steel kitchen cabinets, Thermador electric heaters in the baths, genuine lath and plaster, picture windows and 40-gallon hot water heaters are among the features of the homes.

Andes Realty, sales agents, have model homes open daily to 7 p. m. The homes are just north of the Harbor Blvd. cutoff at Pacific Coast Hwy., in Newport Beach.

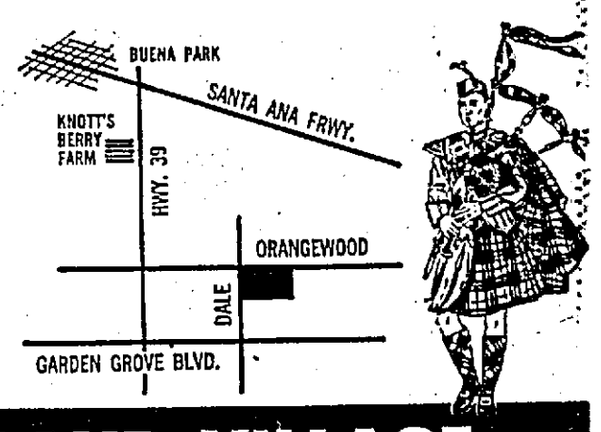

To Show Film Before Realtors

Dean C. Davisson of the legislative department of the Chamber of Commerce will present the film "It's Everybody's Business" at the breakfast meeting of the Long Beach Board of Realtors Tuesday at the Lafayette Hotel. The Kiwanis Club quartet will sing. Lewis K. Cox is program chairman. The movie is a new animated picture in technicolor depicting the growth and development of business.

START NEW CENTER

Ground was broken last week on a new 10-acre shopping district to serve the growing Garden Grove area. The center will be at the corner of Chapman Ave. and Brookhurst. Bill Tietz, president of the Tietz Construction Co., said the center will house a big Thriftimart, drug store, variety and department store and several smaller shops. This is the artist's conception of the center which will be convenient to residents of Melody Estates, Melody Park, Skylark Terrace and adjacent subdivisions.

TYPICAL SHAMROCK HOME

Salesmen for Shamrock Village homes in Garden Grove say the offer to furnish the kitchens with major appliances is appealing to buyers. The appliances are applied to the home loans.

Shamrock Village Terms Are Appealing to Buyers

The offer to completely furnish the kitchens with major home appliances, including ranges, automatic washers and refrigerators, has high appeal with visitors at Shamrock Village, revealed Frank Hart, sales manager of Walker & Lee, Inc., sales agents for the Garden Grove development. The new home-owners can arrange to have the amount of the appliances applied to their loan, thus reducing the cost of furnishing their new homes while offering appliances most desired by consumers, reported Hart.

Other advantages to buying in the three- and four-bedroom subdivision are the features of construction in the homes. This attention to construction details, said Hart, indicates the growing appreciation of building points by buyers and proves the importance of such features as rock wool insulation and weatherstripping, oak hardwood or cork floors, mahogany slab doors, 40- or 50-gallon water heaters, television jacks and outlets and thermostatically controlled heat, all found in Shamrock Village homes.

Ceramic tile work surfaces are bright assets to the kitchens which are equipped with garbage disposals, said Hart. Bathrooms are big and bright with colored fixtures. They have Marlite over tubs, pullman baths, stall showers and there are electric heaters in some models, he revealed.

Color harmony of the homes is decorator-planned, both inside and out, to assure the buyer of contemporary color schemes throughout the dwelling. Another much appreciated feature is the professional landscaping done on front and side yards of the oversize lots. Priced from $10,400 to $11,700, the homes are available to veterans on no down payment financing terms, and not one cent required to move in, it was stated.

Shamrock Village is on Harbor Blvd., just north of Garden Grove Blvd. Visitors from Long Beach drive out Seventh St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) and turn left on Harbor.

Elgin Watch Plant in L. A. Gets Project

ELGIN, Ill. (AP)—Elgin National Watch Co., has been awarded a research and development contract for guided missile components to be handled at its new west coast electronics subsidiary, Elgin-Neomatic Inc., Los Angeles, G. W. Fraker, general manager of the Elgin Ordnance Division, said today military security prevented disclosing any details of the contract.

State Insurance Group to Be Here

Insurance men of Southern California will meet Monday noon at the Lafayette Hotel for a regional meeting of the California Association of Insurance Agents. Principal speakers will be B. Franklin Knapp, state vice-president, and Maurice Stanley, regional director. Host group will be the Long Beach Insurance Association with Joseph P. Kesler, president, presiding. Richard E. Barton is program chairman.

TV Tele-Vues

by TERRY VERNON

EDWARD STEICHEN . . . Dean of Photographers

There is little doubt but that "Toast of the Town" (2) at 8 o'clock will capture the lion's share of the TV audience tonight for just about everyone you've ever heard of in radio is due to appear.

Here's a partial list of the stars you'll see and hear as Ed Sullivan presents a "salute to radio, 1920-1955," as based on Ben Gross' book: Jack Benny, Edward R. Murrow, George Burns, Eve Arden, Rudy Vallee, the Pickens Sisters, Gene Autry, Edgar Bergen, Art Linkletter, Ed Wynn, Gertrude (Molly) Berg, Edward Arnold, Milton Cross, Norman Brokenshire, Ed and Pegeen Fitzgerald, George Shelton, Paul Whiteman, Ben Grauer, Vincent Lopez, Andre Baruch, Red Barber, David Ross, Roger Pryor, Ted Mack, Lanny Ross, Jessica Dragonette, Jay Jostyn, plus stars of 18 daily soap operas.

Harry von Zell will be the emcee for the Hollywood originating portion of the show, while Sullivan will hold down the fort in New York.

CONVERSATION — "A Conversation With Edward Steichen" will have the dean of American photographers in a filmed interview looking back over his 75 years (4) at 2:30 p. m.

SPECTACULAR — In all but the Pacific time zone, "Toast" will be up against a Max Liebman "spectacular" in color, but out here we'll have them at different times, thanks to Toast's kinescoping. However, eastern rating services will have a tough job checking viewers' preferences. On the color show (4) at 4:30 p. m. will be Herb Shriner, Perry Como, Bill Hayes, Jack Russell, Danny Scholl, Pat Carroll and Kitty Kallen. High light is a jazz version of "H. M. S. Pinafore," the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta.

9 P. M. DILEMMA—We have a tough choice at 9 p. m. as Channels 2 and 4 vie for viewers. CBS stages the G. E. Theater starring Johnny (Cry) Ray in "The Big Shot." This is the story of a young singer named Johnny Pulaski who goes to the big city for an audition, is accepted, but refuses when they want to change his name. His sweetheart tells him his name won't matter if he can sing and sure enough, in time, this proves to be true. Johnny will introduce a new song called "Path to Paradise" on the show and if it is as successful as "Let Me Go, Lover," which was introduced on "Studio One," then it'll be a sure-fire hit. . . . Over on Channel 4 they throw in Peter Lind Hayes and his wife, Mary Healy, with a light-hearted comedy called "The Way Things Happen." Peter plays a TV writer who is on the verge of divorcing his wife (Mary) and through a series of flashbacks the story tells how they met, fell in love, were married, and the events leading up to the decision to break things off. Ratings recently have given G. E. the nod over Philco-Goodyear.

MORE DRAMA — A young woman, a successful commercial artist, is married to an equally prosperous industrial engineer. Loretta Young stars as the wife who believes her husband's secretary wants the husband to get a divorce. "The Loretta Young Show" (4) at 10 p. m. . . . Hans Conried stares longingly at a coat in a second-hand store window, as a down-at-the-heel theatrical producer. His yearning for the coat sets the theme for his grab at success. Play is (7) at 7:30 p. m. . . . Ethel Waters stars in the title role of "Speaking to Hannah" on "Your Favorite Playhouse" at 9:30 (2).

Words and Music

By JOHN B. CALLAGHAN

Ever get tired of staring at four walls? Well, the people behind the scenes of "I Love Lucy" figure that you do . . . even when those four walls aren't your own, but the thin walls of the set that represents Lucy and Desi's apartment in the TV show.

They decided that "four wall fatigue" was one reason for Lucy's fall from the No. 1 spot in the popularity sweepstakes . . . so they worked on an answer. You've seen it . . . the cross-country tour that set Lucy, Desi, Fred and Ethel against fresh backgrounds each week, with new story twists and new characters introduced. This change of scenery, plus the addition of name guest stars on many future shows, is designed to boost Lucy back to the top . . . the position she's held unchallenged for several years.

Television's current No. 1 boy, Jackie Gleason, looks bigger than ever . . . and seems to be making more money than ever, too. The hefty meals Jackie has been putting away in recent months haven't been eaten just because he couldn't push himself away from the table. With an interest in a reducing gimmick, Jackie had to be portly enough to be a dramatic example when he started to take off weight. You'll see the results . . . a thinner Jackie Gleason . . . except for the place where his wallet is.

The only TV service that really hits the wallet hard is inaccurate service. It pays to deal with specialists in service. We're specialists on all the sets we sell . . . which means you get the finest installation and after-sale service when you buy from PENNY-OWSLEY MUSIC CO. OF LONG BEACH, 4334 Atlantic Blvd. Phone LB. 40-7406.

Card of Thanks 2

WE LIKE to express our most sincere thanks to all our guests for taking part in our wedding ceremony and wishing us the best of luck; especially Brother Crain for his highly appreciated prayer that will lead us to happiness if it is God's will. Hearty thanks to our friends, Mrs. Virginia Petty and Mrs. Leta Jeffreys for giving their time and help in making our wedding a pleasant one.

WHAT'S in a NAME?

To the employes of Pioneer Trailer Co. at 6661 Long Beach Blvd. it symbolizes the place we hold in the trailer industry — A Pioneer. We have watched the industry grow from an infant to the industrial giant it is today. And our part in its growth is not insignificant. From the beginning our policy of recognizing trailer buyers' needs, wants, desires & fulfilling them has paid handsome rewards to our customers. We today enjoy the reputation of being one of the cornerstones of the trailer industry, & because of an increasing effort on our part to maintain high standards of doing business we not only gain new customers every day but we also enjoy the benefits of continued repeat business from our old customers. With this wealth of experience & understanding we are in a position to supply every trailer buyer with his fondest wish in trailering comfort. Our efforts extend beyond the immediate sale, to complete after sale service. We have served the trailer industry & served it well & now our only desire is to serve you. It would be wise to buy a used trailer from such a company as this. Give us an opportunity to talk to you. We know it will be worth your while.

Thank you,

Mrs. Afton Sackett & Employees

Sandlarks Play Cupid for Tots

One of two large fund raising events by Sandlarks, Long Beach Guild to the Children's Home Society of California, will take place Saturday, Feb. 12, in the community room at Bank of Belmont Shore. It will be a Valentine dinner dance for members, their husbands and guests.

Large red hearts of satin ribbon on which dance tiny cupids will set the theme for the party, proceeds from which will be used by Sandlarks to aid needy children. Supervising activities for the affair are Mmes. Howard A. Jones, Martha Ford and John M. Deal.

The local Guild is one of 40 throughout the state aiding the society with its help for children, for natural parents and for couples who want to adopt children. Sandlarks serve the society through volunteer work and fund raising events. Members in these groups give unselfishly of their time and effort as they work in behalf of little children.

Among the vital services which volunteers perform are: Sewing and mending baby clothes, clinic assistance, furnishing transportation to boarding mothers and babies, and providing the community with adoption information. These fund raising efforts produce much of the income necessary to carry on the society's adoption services.

Mrs. Robert F. Edds is president of Sandlarks this year. Serving with her are Mrs. Fred C. Lehman, vice president; Mrs. Charles E. Walker and Mrs. Martha Ford, secretaries, and Mrs. Daniel W. Farnham, treasurer.

The other event each year is "Christmas Fantasy," the selling of holiday decorations donated by local merchants.

'WILL YOU BE MY VALENTINE?'

Compliment Miss Kuster at Shower

Miss Beverly Kuster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Kuster of 4235 Chestnut Ave., was surprised recently at a bridal shower attended by 50 of her friends at University of Redlands. Hostesses at the event were Miss Kuster's six bridesmaids, Misses Joni Marshall, Marilyn Hansen, Lee Miner, Martha Trotter, Patti Lewis and Dottie Stoica.

This gathering also served as a farewell party for the honoree who will be graduated in February from the university. She will wed Robert Kulp Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kulp of this city, Feb. 5.

Bidden were Barbara Balfour, Merianne Smith, Robyn Frye, Sue Lawrence, Carol Kleppe, Mitzi Reese, Donna Sutton, Shirley Snyder, Doris Proffitt, Marion Draper, Verna Billard, Genie Riddle, Carolyn Petersen, Sallye Saunders, Arlene Hansen, Gretchen Smith, Berta Brummett, Ann Conley, Ann Hollenberg, Jean Andersen, Martha Fundenberg, Darlene Gustafson, Mary Ann Black, Grace Brinnstool, Marcia Shannon, Carolyn Lamb, Arlene Campbell, Sonia Helske, Jane Cheney, Pinky Mohn, Joan Davies, Ann Reidman, Jerri Naugle, Sandy Robbins, Gloria Yohe, Mickey Van Deventer, Maggie McKinney, Patty Hayden, Sue Mouser and Joan Ashla.

Gamma Phi Beta

Gamma Phi Beta Alumnae will be entertained Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Edward Lovell, 3914 Pine Ave. All Gamma Phi Betas in this area are invited.

Rick Racker Style Show on Tuesday

Rick Rackers, Junior Auxiliary to the Assistance League, will have a fashion show at their luncheon meeting Tuesday at Assistance League Clubhouse.

Eleven girls from the West Side Girls Club will model fashions from Penney's.

The Rick Rackers sponsor a charm and modeling course at the girls' club. This program is directed by Virginia Utecht, assisted by Priscilla Toft. Tuesday's young models were selected as the best in the class.

Joan Dummit will be the commentator, and Carlene Jaques will play the piano.

Dorothy Anderson will assist the girls.

Mrs. Harold G. Appleton, chairman of the West Long Beach Girls Club for the Assistance League, sponsor, and Mrs. J. A. Goldsmith, girls' club director, will be special guests.

Ruth Van Derhoof, Dorothy Anderson, Marilyn Osborn and Nancy Walker will be in charge of the luncheon, at which the 11 girls will be honored guests.

CUPID PLAYS LEADING ROLE

Tiny cupids will set the theme of the Feb. 12 dinner dance by Sandlarks, just as the members play the role of cupid during the year to assist homeless children find parents. Holding the Valentine heart, above from left, are Mmes. Charles E. Walker, Maurice Ruckle and Ed Craigo, who are serving on the dinner committee. Sandlarks is the Long Beach Guild to the Children's Home Society of California. More than 16,000 children have found parents during the 62 years the society has been in operation.—(Staff photos by H. 'Come Any Sunday in Month' Say Novel Buffet Invitations

By Betty Wentworth
Independent Women's Editor

We're going to start with a flash-back procedure today and revert to December when friends received their holiday greeting cards from Tess and Francis Heusel. Very pretty they were and with a surprise element because appended was an invitation to buffet supper parties at the Heusels "any Sunday in February. Please state your preference."

Now here, say we, is something new under the sun, and also a great trust in the law of "averaging" which has been vindicated because Tess says the 250 guests bidden are distributing themselves very neatly as if by preconceived plan. Tess is using red antherium for bright accents for the four parties, each one being from 4 to 7 p. m. at the Heusel's home, 4147 Country Club Dr.

Friends who have been invited to assist include Drs. and Mmes. Harold H. Morris, Gordon Brown, Don Murphy, Walter Furie, Walter D. Gilkey; Supervisor and Mrs. Burton W. Chace, Mrs. Winifred Carney, Mrs. Patricia Cameron, Messrs. and Mmes. James McGranahan, George Trammell, Frank Reagan, Lawrence A. Collins Sr., Chester Yunker, Gus A. Walker, Stuart Lemon, Harry H. Newton of Miraleste, Walter Dabney of Huntington Beach and John Woods of Sierra Madre.

Invitations are in the mail for a morning coffee to be given by Margaret (Mrs. George B.) Hanson, Mildred (Mrs. William N.) Deatherage and Wayve (Mrs. Albert H.) Osborne on Feb. 10 from 10 to 12 o'clock.

Those who will be assisting receive the 200 guests bidden are Mmes. John Squire, Dwight Robbins, Francis C. Hertzog, Lawrence A. Collins Sr., John Moore, Victor Mingers, Logan H. Goodknight, George Stilson, Jay L. Reed, Harvey Lochridge, Earl Burns Miller and Francis B. Settle.

Valentine's Day may consist of the exchange of pretty and sentimental cards to most of us, but to Juanita and Smithy (Harry Curtis) Smith it's far more exhilarating because it's the day of their departure on the first leg of a sojourn abroad.

They sail on the USS "Constitution" on Feb. 17 and will disembark at Naples. From then on their schedule is a lovely fluid thing with places like Sicily, islands in the Aegean, Greece, Istanbul, and Africa standing out especially. They're to be gone an indefinite length of time and that's as definite as they or we can be.

Many are the bon voyage parties large and small being planned in their honor, with one taking place tonight hosted by Bunny and Bev Riley in their quaint and charming abode. Friends of the honored couple have been invited from Los Angeles and throughout the city.

Next Saturday morning Digur Weber and Bunny Riley will cohostess at a breakfast at Digur's home, 6711 E. Ocean Blvd. Bunny's ironstone and antique milk glass will be combined with Digur's silver and there are to be violets if they're to be had anyplace! The guest list of 35 is composed entirely of Juanita's peninsula friends.

Then on Feb. 6 Ellie and Frank Person are pouring cocktails from 5 to 7 at their ocean front home (we plan to go early if it's a clear night to enjoy the sunset over the Pacific from their broad view windows).

Every now and then we figure we're doing too much typing and too little of everything else. For instance when we hear about Fran Soldini's plans for a new painting class we yearn to be among her lucky students. She's embarking on a new series of ten weekly lessons on Wednesday afternoons with class members composed of former and new students. Now here's what appeals to us: The first hour, using a model, they'll learn dynamics and rhythms in figure drawing in various mediums, and the second half of the class is to be devoted to discussion of personal problems involved in paintings and drawings each has done at home in her own little ivory tower. Nice, eh?

Those fortunate creative ones to be in the class are Leonie Pray, Pat Bartell, Mildred Beckstrand, Rosemary Wilson, Esther Steinman, Marian Lewis, Elsie Holt and Gloria Henson.

Here's a tip to husbands who are pondering on what to give to their favorite bride when her birthday rolls around. Alma McFarland's Doug dreamed up a dinner party at the Bel Air Hotel with tickets for the ballet afterwards, with Alma feeling as much in the spotlight as any prima ballerina.

Whipping off to Palm Springs to watch the experts swinging in the golf tournament and to spend the week end were Lucille and Charles Sherman, Marjorie Hight, and Madolyn and John Christopher.

"Teahouse of the August Moon," that smash hit at the Biltmore, lured Betty and Joe Kesler and Vivian and Monty Yunker on Friday eve with dining beforehand in the big city.

And off again, this time to Montevideo via New York, is Doug Graham. Consider how really nice this is, what with it's being summertime down there. Length of his stay is indefinite but he'll wind up in Lima before winging back to the Nawth country and Marilyn.

Leaving yesterday for a week of fun and frolic in the crispy air and on the swooping slopes of Sun Valley were Tom Cummins, Wyley Netherlin, Tom Gressll and Conrad Karriker. We hear Emilie Ann Bell was also speeding to the resort and today Peggy Chill and Rae Schoenborn depart.

To Entertain at Luncheon

Long Beach members of Delta Gamma will have as their guest at Thursday's luncheon Mrs. Daniel C. Hay, Santa Monica, first vice president of the national board of officers.

Mrs. William A. Wilson, 225 Corona Ave., will be hostess and assisting her will be Mmes. C. W. Fisher, G. W. Moore, C. W. Seeley and R. J. Tarpy.

Plans for the Founders' Day dinner March 3 at the home of Mrs. W. B. Havekorst will be discussed. A benefit event has been scheduled for Feb. 7, with Mrs. Charles P. Lupher as chairman. Funds will go to the Nursery School for the Visually Handicapped Children in Los Angeles.

Ebell Club

Beatrice Crall, narrator and monologist, will present the program at Ebell Club tomorrow at the clubhouse. Her subject will be "Victor Herbert," and her narration will be accompanied by harp music played by Miss Eileen Schaefer, popular harpist. Mrs. James Bryan Murray will preside. Group V, Mrs. F. R. Clark chairman, will serve the luncheon.

Harriet Pullen Marries James Miller in New York

News of wide interest to her many friends in the Southland comes from New York City telling of the marriage on Jan. 22 of Harriet Leebrick Pullen to James Lee Miller of Connecticutt, formerly of Ashland, Ohio. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Leebrick of 4360 Lime Ave.

The ceremony took place at 4 p. m. in the Marble Collegiate Church on Fifth Ave. of which Dr. Norman Vincent Peale is pastor, with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Buckley of New York City attending the couple.

The bride wore an afternoon dress of turquoise blue brocade with a matching hat and corsage of white orchids. Following the vow exchange a wedding dinner took place in the Cotillion Room of the Hotel Pierre. On their return from a brief honeymoon the new Mr. and Mrs. Miller will make their home in Riverside, Conn., a suburb of Greenwich.

The bride was graduated from UC at Berkeley where she was affiliated with Kappa Alpha Theta, and her husband is an alumnus of Dartmouth University.

Season's Toppers Are Soft as a Warm Spring Day, Saucy as a March Breeze

INSPIRATION FOR "Fiesta," left above, a ruffled brimmed sailor in black and white polka dot silk with a tiny, matching parasol, comes from Havana, the native land of designer Adolfo. This is in Emme's collection of stunning hats for spring. Next is a mushroom cloche made entirely of white silk rose petals with two roses at the side of the deep brim and is a Walter Florell design. Laddie Northridge designed the forward-tipped little shape of white cotton lace in flower design, effectively irregular in outline. The complexion veil is sheer and light. The last two on the right are from the Dutch Masters Series by Sally Victor. Gray, red, beige and gold ribbons form abstract designs on the white straw bonnet. It is called "Mondrian Bonnet." Straw caning in a round little hat with upturned facing of pale blue velvet forms "Still-Life." The flower arrangement consists of pink, blue and yellow flowers, red currants, a bird and a butterfly. These are examples of what the smartly-groomed woman will wear from spring.

BUILD PLAYHOUSE

Las Madrinas Guild members of Auxiliary to Children's Memorial Hospital busily engaged building an 8'x10' playhouse for some lucky little girl to be awarded at the "Have a Heart, Help a Child" Carnival Feb. 5 at Lakewood Country Club are Mrs. Robert McNulty, on ladder; Mrs. Rexford Welch, on the roof; Mrs. Alonzo Bennett, in the window, and Mrs. R. J. Burdge, with wheelbarrow. This is the Guild's main project for the event. Nightingales, the junior group to the Auxiliary, will distribute tickets for a week end in Las Vegas; Northern Lights Guild will distribute a set of luggage and Fiorella Guild members will handle the chili beans booth during festivities from noon 'til midnight. The public is invited to share in the fun and thereby aid the Auxiliary and its affiliated groups in their work at Children's Hospital.—(Staff photo.)

Shimmering Gowns Star at Reception

By VIRGINIA WELDON KELLY
Washington Staff Correspondent

Exotic national costumes, Dior and Balenciaga creations, glittering uniforms and the broad scarlet, shoulder to waist decorations, of diplomats were the components of the glamorous White House diplomatic reception—the final function in the White House season of formal scheduled entertaining.

In former years, 2,000 have been invited to the reception. This year the guest list—including members of the Senate Foreign Relations and House Foreign Affairs Committees plus the State Department hierarchy plus Washington civilian society numbered less than 800.

Only Ambassadors, Ministers, Minister-counselors and service attaches were invited—this was very disappointing to the many Embassy First Secretaries who are mostly in the career foreign service of their countries.

Mrs. Eisenhower and Mrs. Nixon undoubtedly wore the most beautiful gowns at the reception. The First Lady chose a portrait gown of watermelon peau de soie with a long line fitted bodice and a "yards and yards" bouffant skirt. She carried a matching bag on which was pinned an orchid, the gift of the Boone County, Iowa, Republican Central Committee. Mrs. Eisenhower's filagree golden necklace and pendant earrings (with pearl cascades) were of Middle East origin.

Mrs. Nixon's floating skirted gown of white tulle had an apron of black chantilly lace and fetching white tulle frou-frou up the back.

The Vice President told me that he and the Nixon children think that is "Pat's" loveliest gown.

Mme. Iguchi (wife of the Japanese Ambassador) and their daughter wore exquisite hand painted kimonos. Mme. Iguchi chose pale blue with a gold brocade obi. Miss Iguchi wore peach with a heaven blue obi.

Mme. Koo (wife of the Chinese Ambassador) wore a fabulous Chinese gown of peach antique brocade with a collar necklace of pendant diamonds, pearls, and jade.

Mme. Yang (wife of the Korean Ambassador who was in California) wore a sheath gown of black velvet with a black lace stole.

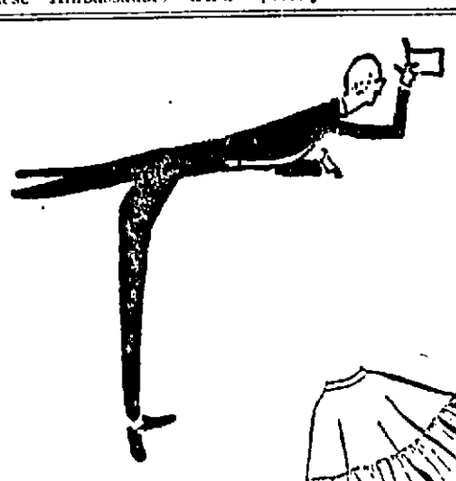

Mme. Leutorio, wife of the Philippine Charge d' Affaires, wore a butterfly sleeved national gown of ivory satin embroidered in jewels in a floral design.

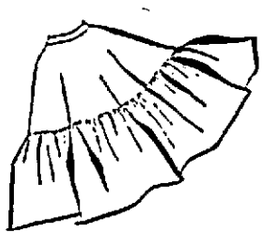

Senora de Esteves Fernandes, wife of the Portuguese Ambassador, wore an emerald satin Dior with a raspberry stole, with emeralds and diamonds.

The new U. S. Ambassador to New Zealand, former Senator Robert Hendrickson and Mrs. Hendrickson attended. They will fly to their new post on February 8.

Also at the reception were both Ambassador Lodges (Henry Cabot and John) with their tall, golden-haired wives.

Peruvian Ambassador Senor Dr. Fernando Berckmeyer wore a traditional ambassadorial uniform—the jacket completely encrusted with gold.

Some Stories Are Too Good to Keep!

By IOLA MASTERSON

Every time the sun goes up and plunks down again in the west things happen, people talk; are mad, glad, sad; a lot of what goes on isn't worth repeating but some things are too good to keep!

Two stories—one recent and the other of ancient vintage—come to mind for today's word jumble. A couple of weeks ago we told you how Lois and Bob White and Lyman and Nancy Lough were getting ready to hop a sky boat for an ozone sailing trip to Europe. Little did we suspect what would happen to one Robert White. Here's what: The travelers were in place at International Airport well in time to stow luggage with the plane people, stand around and chat excitedly with their many bon voyage wishing friends, even slip up to the Flight Deck.

Too much time, we guess, because after everyone was aboard el plano, Lois, Lyman and Nancy looked around and, lo! No Bob! Quick to the stewardess and request the plane be held or that man White paged. No time now! Motors are revved and they're up there looking down and Bob is down there looking up!

Thanks to modern science and American ingenuity there just happened to be another plane around that had in mind a flight over to Chicago four hours later. Bob was on that one, you can be sure, and in the cold gray light of a certain dawn he made connections with his travel mates.

Now the other story, this one old, is something of a classic now. It goes back to World War II days when Captain Miner Heine was skipper of a warship stationed over there in the vicinity of the Britishers proud possession—the Rock of Gibralter. Seems Miner and his ship had occasion to pass by that Rock right frequently and the English guarding the stoney palisades learned to recognize every curve and bend of his boat. One day, however, he came steaming through as usual all ready to give the usual merry wave of a jib, or whatever the Navy waves when in friendly waters, when a sternly blinking light interrupted Miner's intentions with it's brisk and businesslike "what ship?" "Oh, well," sighed the Captain, "guess the boys are tightening the reins a bit today" and blinked back smartly the name of his craft. Immediately the "Rock" blinked back again "What ship?" After two more such abrupt exchanges Miner, his patience frayed and his cargo beginning to roll, flashed back a message to sizzle the soul of any true subject of the crown: "What Rock?"!

"Old college students never die, they just serve on committees" and that's timely for two reasons this week—one of the reasons being that we spotted Al Vignolo, Myrl Ott, Dave Eagleson, John Paap and Dr. Bill Van Derhoof in deep conversation over food at the Lafayette Thursday noon when they conferred with Arnold Eddy in regards Long Beach's part in the Diamond Jubilee anniversary this year of USC. Alumni here hope to make quite a do of the event. Did you know there are about 2000 of the old grads right here in town?

We're confident that Virginia Waters is completely content with her roll as Mrs. Franklin Waters so its difficult to say "she missed her calling." But, by jiminy, her talent as a comedienne was something to behold when she commentated the Junior League fashion show of rummage stuff Wednesday morning at the Virginia Country Club. She wasn't joking, however, when she told the assembled ladies that the League's presale today will be terrific. From 5 to 9 p. m. at the Aud. people will be admitted by ticket only. Every League member has a limited number of these ducats and if you know one of the damsels, just step right up and ask her!

Tracy Walker was in town last weekend on one of her too infrequent visits to the old home stand from her home near Silver Lake, Los Angeles. She and cute-as-a-button Matthew (he's twoish now) were visiting Tracy's dad, Charlie Stone.

As far as the eye could see there were packing crates at Elizabethe Tucker's house this week as she crated and wrapped in preparation for her move to 1030 E. Carson (Apt. H) where she'll be comfortably close to that home of hers going up on Amelia Dr.

Here's a little something to slip under your bonnet to remind you to take 'em off when Josephine Matthews or Ann Lawing pass by! They deserve the traditional "hat's off" salute for the bang-up job they did on the Ebell Club's annual Tichenor Clinic benefit when the most ever was raised for the worthy cause.

It's a good thing Hilda and Dr. Earl Donaldson know how to roll with the punches. They decided to go up to Mt. Baldy last Sunday to let the children play in the snow and see the world from a different angle. Within the first-half hour of their visit four 'n a half year old Dean fell smack in a very wet and cold mountain stream and seven and a half year old Diane gleefully disappeared behind a snow bank only to reappear in a few minutes carrying her shoes and sox, her feet meanwhile, the temperature of little twin chunks from the ice age.

Long shadows from March are casting themselves on us now. First wispy shade crossed our path with the news that a serious committee meeting took place at Hope Cunningham's Monday with chairman Joan Beebe, Mrs. Frederick Smock, Madeleine Heim and Lois Wray huddling in thought to make early plans for the first Girl Scout's Birthday Fair to be held at the Auditorium in the month of lions and lambs. The G. S. will have exhibits and a show to acquaint the public (and especially younger Scouts) with the functions of the group.

163½ Park Ave. has become an address of bubbling happiness and baby formula since Wednesday when Marjory and Randy Whitney brought their first baby, little Barbara Susan, home. Born Jan. 5, Marjory and the little charmer have been staying with some doting grandparents name of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Gunn! Vital statistics also include that she weighed seven pounds and thirteen ounces and arrived at Harriman Jones.

Gladdes Neff of Tichenor Clinic has made, we betcha, New York ring with the words Long Beach these past couple of days. She has been in the big city as a new member of the national committee of six to serve for two years with the American Physical Therapy Association. She flew away from here way last week for a stopover visit with a sister in Chicago then on to N. Y. for the national committee meeting Jan. 26 to 29 and now she'll be readying to return, stopping briefly in Iowa to see her parents en route.

In the case of Vern Castle and his brother, Lou, surprises came double last Sunday at the Towne Club when Kay Hill tricked them and gave the two a laugh-filled birthday party. Joining the fun were Pat and Jerry Phelan, Sally Phelan, and Audrey and Ginger Castle.

They put their hearts into it as well as their feet and—well, anyhow how else could three earnest couples come up finalists in a tango contest—and all so good the judges couldn't decide which couple to give the nod, so they just nodded to all! Camilla and Eugene Le Grand, Helen and Bob Wilson and Pauline and Jack Dilday did this Tuesday night at the Shrine Greeter's party at the seltsame Towne Club. Judges in a quandry were hizzoner Judge O. K. Morton and Mrs. Morton and Martha Ann and Doug Burkman. Click-click - - - click - - - click. Click-click - - - click - - - click.

Things dear to a new mother's heart will be opened by Pearl Cooper at Balboa Bay Club on Tuesday when Wilma Arnold and Iris Hicks bid close friends for luncheon and shower in honor, not only of Pearl, but of that fine new addition to our community, young Matthew Cooper!

Last Saturday night Bobbie and Jim Vance got a telephone call from Esther and "Ted" Tedford and there was an invitation attached. Esther and "Ted" wanted Bobbie to come over for a few minutes for a happy birthday wish. So Bobbie said "in a minute" and over she walked to her neighbors house at 5589 Vesuvian Walk. Yep, there they all were ready with a surprise party for her and waiting behind the door to yell their greetings when she walked in were Helen and Phil Hahn, Jean and Bud Du Brock and Dottie and Irwin Miller.

The King of the Beasts were in frolicsome mood last weekend in Reno at the district convention of Lions and none were more "wild" than the 60 or so Long Beach area "roarers" who descended on the Nevada city. They had a reason. Theirs was the duty to bring the 1956 convention to Long Beach. And they did! With two fabulously large hospitality hours they wooed their fellow clubmen into meek submission on the old theory that "candy is dandy but . . ."! President Walt Hoffman of the local club, aided and abetted by Phil Hattery, Ed Shaw, Johnny Webb and Eddie Baker, to name a few, turned the trick. Get out your cages and oil your padlocks because we can look forward next year to 3000 or more stalking Lions, the kind that make the forrest variety look like kittens!

Dr. Greg and Joan Hoskins moved themselves and little son, David, up to Ft. Ord last week where Greg will take over Captain's duties in the Army Medical Corps.

This is the final windup on a lot of excitement. You see, the Hoskins bought a house. The very next day he got his Army orders which whooshed him back to Texas for indoctrination courses. Right then David decided to arrive and back came Greg on special leave to greet his first child. Then back to Texas, back to Long Beach, and on to Ft. Ord!

Welfare Projects Planned at Delta Theta Tau Parley

Mrs. E. L. Johnson of Gamma Delta Chapter of Delta Theta Tau Sorority is presiding as province chairman of the 25th Delta Province convention which opened a two-day session yesterday at the Hotel Mira Mar in Santa Monica. Former resident of Long Beach, Mrs. Johnson now resides in Whittier.

Delta Theta Tau is the largest non-academic organization of its kind in the United States, with more than 15,000 members. It was founded in 1903 in Muncie, Ind., for the advancement of philanthropy.

Delta Province consists of 29 chapters throughout California. Each chapter sponsors a special project in its own area, but the province as a whole sponsors one project. The Sunshine Mission School at Riverside was its last project. The Long Beach chapter sponsors the Don George Memorial Fund which provides camperships for junior high school boys and girls. Members also assist at the Long Beach General Hospital.

At the conclave a new province project will be presented, that three scholarships in the amount of $150 each for the training of teachers in the special field of the mentally retarded, hard-of-hearing and partially sighted be provided by the sorority.

During the convention a special tribute will be given to members who have been active for 25, 30 or 35 years. Mrs. Raymond Gayton of Long Beach will be one of those to be honored.

The Silver Slipper Ball was an event of last evening and a cocktail party, brunch and luncheon were other activities arranged for delegates.

Among members attending from the local chapter are Mmes. Bernard Quinn, Edna Freeman, C. E. Perry, Willard Knapp, Harry Poist, Raymond Gayton, E. Seibert and Willis Lyman.

Nationally, the sorority is remodeling a 28-bed section to be known as the Delta Theta Tau wing to the Magnetic Springs Polio Foundation at Magnetic Springs, O. This foundation will provide complete service in a rehabilitation program equal to that of the famous Georgia Warm Springs Foundation. The sorority also supports the Delta Theta Tau Nursing Service at

Altar Society

St. Anthony's Altar Society will gather for a covered-dish luncheon Wednesday noon. Rev. James O'Callaghan will be guest speaker, and musical selections will be presented by Roland Piquette, program chairman.

Music, Drama Plans Event

Music and drama dept. of Ebell Club will meet at 10:30 a.m. Monday in the auditorium of the clubhouse, when a special program will be presented by Mrs. Merton Betts Smith, chairman, who will bring several leading artists from the Singers Workshop.

Entertainers in costume from recent productions will be accompanied by Rose Bishop, pianist. Laura Killingsworth, soprano, who sang the leading role in the "Song of Norway," and Bill Johnson, tenor, will combine their voices in selections by Edvard Grieg.

Excerpts from Gilbert and Sullivan's comic opera, "The Mikado," will be given by Betty Kimber as "Yum-Yum," Jackie McFadden, as "Peep-Bo," Babette Mann as "Pitti-Sing," Arthur Carah as "Ko-Ko," and Henri Scanlon as "Nanki-Poo." Concluding the program, Mrs. O. S. Lindenberger will present a brief from the "Reviewing Stand of Theater and Music." This is the only department scheduled to meet Monday, Mrs. Smith announces, and an overflow attendance is anticipated, necessitating use of the auditorium.

Founders' Day

Actives and alumnae of Theta Upsilon Sorority attended the annual Founders' Day luncheon Saturday in Statler Hotel. The sorority was founded at the University of California, Berkeley. Gathering to honor the founders were Mmes. William Price, Violet Butler and Wolf DeLyre of Long Beach.

Announce February Events for Lakewood City of Hope

Lakewood Chapter of the City of Hope is announcing a full calendar for 1955. Starting with a meeting in the home of Mrs. Sy Moreno, 3702 Lees Ave., with 60 women present, the chapter decided it had grown to such proportions that it was no longer possible to meet in the homes of members, and future sessions are now to be held in the Lakewood Elks Hall, 4433 Village Rd.

The chapter is leaving its charter open until the end of February to increase its membership. Anyone interested is asked to notify Mrs. Isidore Schwartz, membership chairman.

City of Hope is a non-sectarian group. In its hospital the City of Hope places its specialized skills at the disposal of patients who cannot take advantage of medical resources in their own communities. The latest techniques and methods are employed, and the money for this large project is raised by chapters such as the one just formed in Lakewood.

At the meeting in Mrs. Moreno's home, Mrs. John Yates presented to the chapter the proceeds from the coffee benefit held in her home during the holidays.

Mrs. Ray Rosenblatt, ways and means chairman, is announcing the first large fund-raising event to which the public will be privileged to attend. It is to be a "Hi Neighbor Night" in the form of a supper and dance Feb. 19 at the Elks Hall, in Lakewood. As the title implies, it will be a friendly, informal affair, designed to acquaint people of Lakewood and surrounding communities with the new Lakewood Chapter of the City of Hope and its objectives, and to raise funds for the organization.

Also open to the public will be a movie on the City of Hope to be shown Feb. 16 at 8:30 p.m. at the Elks Hall. Installation of officers is slated for Feb. 5 in the new meeting place and will be open to the public.

Welfare for Veterans Told by L.A. District Federation

By RUTH REECE
Press-Telegram Club Editor

Another example of what clubwomen can accomplish when they set their minds to it, was revealed in a report reaching this desk this past week from Veterans Affairs committee of Los Angeles District, CFWC, of which Mrs. George W. Cornelius is president.

In addition to the truckload of books and bulbs collected and delivered before Christmas, 42 clubs in the district participated in sending $2.50 checks to 342 non-compensated veterans at Sawtelle. The Los Angeles County federation party at Sawtelle provided $100 in cash gifts, in addition to candy, cookies, homemade cakes, cigarettes and gifts valued at $261, and served more than 1000 men.

Funds from the Veterans Project Pool provided gifts for 42 paraplegics in two wards and as many arrested TB patients in another ward of the Long Beach Hospital. Ten dollar coupon books for food and clothing were provided for the families of two veterans in San Fernando Hospital and $10 was contributed toward a record cabinet for the women's ward at San Fernando.

The Chaplain's Service Corps received a $6 donation. All together, the total came to $1,237.30. This was over and above the welfare work done by individual club social service committees.

Democratic Club

An especially interesting program is being announced for members and guests of the Democratic Women's Study Club for Wednesday at the Wilton Hotel, according to the president, Mrs. Walter C. Williams

Starting at 10:30 a. m., current events will be given by Mrs. Eva Moise, legislation chairman. Mrs. Candace Rinearson, study hour chairman, announces a color film called "Everybody's Business" will be shown through the courtesy of the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce.

Don Rose, chairman of the Los Angeles County Democratic Committee, will be the luncheon speaker. Reservations are to be made with Mrs. Lucian F. Remley, 10½ Mira Mar Ave., not later than Monday evening.

NLB Women's Club

City Manager Sam Vickers and Dr. Frank Harnett, assistant director of schools and municipal recreation, will appear before North Long Beach Women's Club at a luncheon meeting Wednesday in Houghton Park clubhouse to present the beautification plan of F. Elwood Allen of Bennington, Vt., for the improvement of the city of Long Beach. Mrs. Ruel Hird, program chairman, assures members and friends of the club that this will be an opportunity to hear at first hand the plans to use the tideland money to beautify this area.

Because of the importance of the program, Mrs. Ralph D. Gott, president, announces that it will be an open meeting so that all those interested may hear the speakers and become informed as to the future city plans with the tidelands money.

Group Five, Mrs. Nelson Torpey, chairman, will be in charge of the luncheon and decorations. Reservations are to be made with Mrs. Edna Odell, 6129 Brayton Ave. Music will be provided by Mrs. Richard Bailey, vocalist, and Mrs. Pat Davidson Jr., pianist.

D. of A. Council

Long Beach Daughters of America, Council No. 17, will have a progressive dinner Saturday, starting with the soup course at 5:30 p. m. in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Gabrielson in Downey.

Salad course will be served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Worsham, 3923 Ashworth St., and the main course at the Wilton Hunt residence, 1833 Maine Ave. Dessert and coffee will be served by Mr. and Mrs. Willis Allen, at their home, 2785 Cedar Ave. Guests will remain for an evening of cards.

Many guests are expected from other councils in this area. Visiting members are invited, and may make reservations with any of the hosts.

Newly installed officers of the council are Dorothy Allen and Lora Watson, councilor and associate councilor; Margaret Tolby and Leslie Gabrielson, junior past councilor and associate; Willis Allen and Jean Worsham, vice councilor and assistant; Ruth Loop and Minnie Hunt, conductor and warden; Genevieve Keene and Roy Kittle, inside and outside sentinel; Caryl Cronin and Anna Kittle, recording secretary and assistant; Wilton Hunt and Juanita Worsham, financial secretary and assistant; Lila Hawkins, treasurer; Donald Worsham, trustee; Dorothy James and Karleen Moore, color bearers, and Fred Miller, pianist.

New members recently initiated were Mmes. Belle Cunningham, Gertrude Pierce and Genevieve Keene.

Co-op Nursery Group

Plaza Cooperative Nursery No. 1 will meet Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Donald Hummel, 2614 Nipomo Ave. A panel of three members will present a study of the behavior profile, the cultural, and creative activities of the nursery school child.

Parents interested in the cooperative nursery school are required to take the course entitled "Guiding Children's Growth" offered by the adult education centers. Further information may be obtained from the chairman, Mrs. Bea Matlock, 2637 Knoxville Ave.

Library Group

The 60th anniversary of the oldest Long Beach women's club, the Alamitos Library Association, will be observed at a gala luncheon in Alamitos auditorium. Past presidents will be honor guests.

Hostesses will be Mmes. Paul Crotinger, Edward C. Morgan and Florentine A. Vaughan. Luncheon will be served at 12:30 p. m., and the program will follow.

P-T.A. Congress Supports Child Center Program

That the California Congress of Parents and Teachers has an action program now in effect was proven in January at the board of managers meeting in San Francisco. Eighty-four members of the board, Mrs. A. Kenneth Spencer of San Gabriel, president, met at Bellevue Hotel to hear reports of chairmen who had been working closely with district and local people, as well as resource persons in several fields, to determine what important child welfare needs require special attention at this time.

The Board reaffirmed its previous stand on child care centers, voting to support legislation which provides that the program will be continued without a terminal date, administered by the State Department of Education and supported by state funds and parents' fees. They urge the participation of the parents in the program. This action followed the report of a special committee previously appointed to study and evaluate the present child care center program in California. Questionnaires were sent to all areas of the state, and district presidents were asked to visit centers and to talk with administrators and legislators, to determine the importance of continuing child care centers.

Prior to the regular board of managers sessions, the education study committee and the legislation committee held a joint meeting to hear Dr. Lawrence B. White of Long Beach and Dr. Arthur F. Corey of San Francisco present the pros and cons of proposed legislation affecting the state's teacher tenure laws.

Following this presentation, board members conducted an intensive study of all available material on teacher tenure laws and issued the following statement:

The CCPT, through its long established education platform, supports the principle of teacher tenure. It is assumed that tenure provides the security which enables the teacher to make full use of his time and energies for the instruction and guidance of children.

It is also intended that tenure shall facilitate the continuing professional growth of the teacher. CCPT believes that to attract and hold those persons who have the qualifications for teaching, the principle of tenure is necessary and desirable.

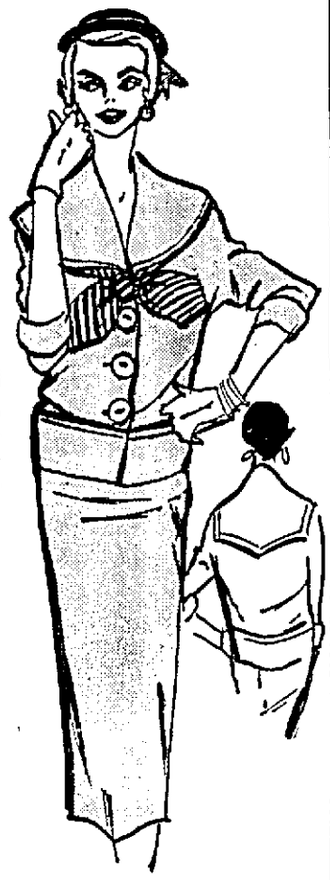

The dismissal of unfit teachers has long been a problem of major concern to the California Congress of Parents and Teachers. We are deeply concerned about the estimated .07 per cent of teachers in California schools who are unfit to teach the children in their classrooms. Their dismissal, at present, is far too difficult with the current procedures for enforcing tenure laws or possibly because of the laws themselves. The dissatisfaction generated, year after year, by such teachers is cumulative, damaging to the children in their charge and to the relations between parents and schools. The congress believes that this problem is of such scope and importance that an effective solution is imperative.

We further believe that all possible alternatives have not been fully explored, and resources exist which could assist in evolving the best solution to this problem. If the principle of tenure is to be maintained, we believe that the ramifications for the dismissal of teachers and the procedures to be used should be carefully weighed and that impersonal and competent counsel should be secured to assist in this process.

Sue Kirste, Phil E. Kay Engagement Announced

The betrothal of Miss Sue Kirste and Phil E. Kay was announced recently at the Long Beach City College Sweetheart Prom. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Kirste of 174 Claremont Ave., and her fiance is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Kay of 5101 Via Veranada.

Mrs. Kirste, a graduate of St. Anthony's High School, is a sophomore at City College where she is a member of Ramayana and president of Kassai.

Her fiance, a graduate of Jordan High School and City College where he was affiliated with Engineers and Thane, is serving in the Air Force stationed at Los Alamitos Air Station. No date has been set for the nuptials.

County Institute

Burnett Women's Christian Temperance Union will conduct a county institute Tuesday at 10:30 a. m. in Atlantic Ave. Methodist Church with county officers, Mmes. Bertha Brunker, Irene Olds, Ada Rundell and Miss Helen Sutherland participating. Mrs. Clara Fay will preside at the business session. Devotions will be led by Mrs. Nellie Lamb. A covered dish luncheon will be served at noon.

Mary Reid Is Engaged

Of interest to their many Southland friends is news of the engagement of Miss Mary Jo Reid and Dean R. Snipes. No date has been set for the vow exchange.

The bride-elect, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Reid of 4246 Marber Ave., is a graduate of Polytechnic High School and a student at City College where she is affiliated with Order of Ramayana and Phi Sigma Phi.

Her fiance, son of Comdr. Rodney F. Snipes, USN, and Mrs. Snipes of 5315 Harvey Way, is a graduate of Wilson High School and attended City College where he was a member of Tilsmen. He is now serving in the Marine Corps, stationed in Florida.

Mrs. Buckman New Leader

Garden Room at Mottell's was the setting for the installation of officers for Young Californian's. As installing officer, Mrs. Drew Inboden presented the oath of office to the president, Mrs. Claude Buckman; vice president, Mrs. Robert Hill; treasurer, Mrs. Frank Kirkland; recording secretary, Mrs. Richard Scott; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Woody Woodard, and publicity chairman, Mrs. Robert Wilmot.

Preceding the evening ceremony dinner was served at the Manhattan Restaurant during which each of the incoming and outgoing members was given a lace handkerchief tied with blue and yellow satin ribbon in the form of a corsage.

The past president, Mrs. John Mendizza, received an embroidered felt skirt from the group. Mrs. Claude Buckman was selected the outstanding member for this season and received a gift. Following the presentations, members enjoyed bridge for the remainder of the evening.

Card Party

St. Barnabas will have a card party Thursday in the Parish Hall at 8 p. m. The public is invited.

Miss Bruce Bride-to-Be

The engagement of Miss Eleanor Bruce and Charles L. Rimpley was revealed at a recent meeting of the Women's Education Honorary at State College by passing the traditional box of chocolates.

The bride-elect, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bruce of 2420 Royeroft Ave., is a graduate of Wilson High School and attended City College where she was a member of Ramayana and Kassai. She is a past honored queen of Bethel 77, Job's Daughters. Miss Bruce will receive her B. A. degree this month from State College and plans to teach in this city.

Her fiance, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. LaVerne Rimpley of 822 Raymond Ave., is a Wilson High School graduate and attended City College where he was a member of Engineers. While attending Pomona College he was a member of Sigma Tau. He is serving in the Army at Fort Ord. No date has been set for the wedding.

Split Personality

No, you didn't put it on backwards. It's a dress with a split personality—high and demure with a cowl neckline in front, plunging to a V-line almost to the waist in back. Last lovely foolishness—a rhinestone clip in back.

Homelife With Alyce

By MARYALYCE RIVARD

Bet all the wives will agree that about 60 per cent of the arguments could be eliminated if the husbands conceded promptly that they were wrong.

Mix a generous scoop of raspberry jam into some whipped cream. Yummy on plain white cake or packaged vanilla pudding or what have you.

For cleaning those pesky small pieces of cut glass or crystal —simply wet with cold water, rub entire surface with dry baking soda. Rinse with clear hot water, allow to dry and polish. You'll find this a great temper saver when you try to clean those hard-to-get-at crevices that attracted you to that candy dish.

Read some place where a woman gained 20 pounds while she was in jail. This is enough to keep 90 per cent of the female population on the right side of the law. Too bad a few more of the men aren't fussy about their figures, maybe we wouldn't have such a crime problem.

If you find that you gnash teeth every time you attempt to remove an ice tray because it simply won't let go, don't attack it with a butcher knife after this, but rather brush the bottom with a coat of unsalted fat or shortening and wipe off the excess with a paper towel next time before you fill them. They'll come unstuck as if by magic.

Dash and Energy Seen in Club Activities

By ANNE GILCHRIST

Two major events in as many weeks have fully occupied members of the Third District Dental Assistants. Their installation dinner of Monday night when Viola Engle took office as president, was preceded by the Southern California State Dental Assistants Association Mid-Winter convention, the fourth annual such conclave. Long Beach chapter was official hostess for this big meeting, headquartering at the Lafayette Hotel.

Dr. Garwin Harris, one of the guest speakers, discussed the helpful subject, "Some Observations on X-Rays." Dr. Donald B. Chatterton chose to speak on, "Patient Preparation and Prosthetic Dentistry in Children" and Dr. Paul Pickering on, "Plastic Surgery."

A friendship luncheon divided the afternoon and morning sessions. Lovely table decorations were used, the work of Eva Hastings.

A fashion show and program delighted the audience of Assistants gathered from all over the Southland. Rosemary Leedom, Harriet Beadle and Martha Stegen, in top hat and tails, did a whistle producing soft shoe dance. Of course, the fashion show delighted the ladies with it's style motif of "Spring Into Summer." Among the models were Third District members Lee Barrick, Della Peters, Theresa Lovely, Katherine Van Etten, Marie Perhall and Chesna Duis.

Credits for the success of the big conclave was due in great part to Betty Uhls, president of Southern California State Association, Mary Rowley, educational chairman, Miss Duis, arrangements chairman and Rose McIlvaine, program chairman.

Zonta Club

President Myranna Coon of Zonta Club opened her home for buffet supper and meeting and included were both members and guests. Vivian Showwalter introduced and greeted such special guests as Clara Christe, Lucille Murdock, Angenine Elmore, Vere Thamer, Lt. Phyllis McAlpin, Pearl McAlpin, Maxine Hill, Mary Noonan and Vera Clark.

The evening also marked the initiation of several new members to the service women's club. Joining were Lily Murphy (real estate), Winifred Sadler (co-owner, Riley's Cafeterias), Betty Murphy (attorney), Margaret Hoisington (school social worker) and Olive Hodges (mortgage broker).

Dr. Laurel Weibel, Zontian and on staff of Los Angeles County Hospital, gave the evening's craft talk and told of her early education and specialized surgeon's training.

Edna Roach announced Zonta's rummage sale would be held on Feb. 8 at 314 Locust.

Quota Club

Quota Club of Long Beach had the unique experience of being entertained by the husband of a member whose classification is the same as hers. Dr. Sylvia Kahlstrom is a charter member and so, when program chairman Marjorie Haston asked Dr. Sylvia to provide the January program, she brought husband, Dr. Carl Kahlstrom, into the picture.

Dr. Kahlstrom showed his beautiful color pictures of a trip made to Europe for the purpose of attending a medical meeting in Amsterdam and of enjoying a vacation with his two daughters who were attending high school in Montroux, Switzerland. Quota members followed the doctor and his family from Chicago to Newfoundland, Scotland, Denmark, Sweden and south following the Rhine to Zurich and Lake Geneva.

The musical portion of the evening was also a "family affair," for it was provided by Dr. Kahlstrom's nephew, Jim Kennedy of Azusa, accompanied by Mrs. Cloyce Bogle.

Many prominent guests enjoyed the evening with the members.

Margaret Ives B&PW

Judge Roberta Butzbach was member-speaker at the dinner and program meeting of Margaret Ives Business and Professional Women's Club, given in the Mirror Room of the Lafayette. She was introduced by program chairman Mrs. Dan Mottell, formerly Beryl Linville. Judge Butzbach discussed legislation problems dealing with equal rights for men and women. Going back to ancient history, she pointed out that in the so-called dark ages, Moorish women were accorded equal rights to hold property, public office, to be rulers of tribes and to control wealth. It was the Anglo-Saxon race which regarded women as chattels.

Judge Butzbach noted that some of the proposed legislation of the present day could mean a better break for men, giving them equal rights with women — especially in regard to custody of children.

Music by the Elderbloom Club, directed by Cornelia Pollard, completed the program.

New members introduced by membership chairman Clara Christe were Mary Noonan, (illustrator, Terminal Island Naval Base), Ruth Sharp, (WAC, stationed at Ft. MacArthur and a sister of president Maude McNeill), Opal Mayer (Milady's Beauty Shop, owner), and Angeline Elmore, supervisor, voucher examiners, U. S. Naval Shipyard).

Several guests were welcomed, including Ruth Turner, president of the B&PW Club of Battle Creek, Mich., and Zula Taber, member of the San Francisco club.

Women's Transportation Club

Towne Club was the scene of the Women's Transportation Club's January dinner meeting with president Toni Paino in charge.

Plans were set for the first half of 1955 and attendance at the annual West Coast Conference of Women's Traffic and Transportation Clubs was discussed. This latter event takes place in February in Seattle.

Mary Kay Kelly (Western Air Lines) was appointed chairman of a fund-raising project which will be announced soon.

Long Beach Nat'l B&PW

Long Beach National Business and Professional Women gathered for social meeting Monday evening at the YWCA with Lurene Spear presiding.

Membership chairman Ella Barre was in charge of the program, which formally initiated new members Florence Brown, Mary Ann Dorgan, Wilma Forstch, Gladys McPike, Ruth Shoemaker, Eunice Snyder, Pernell Van Decar and Gwen Wilson.

Special guest was Lily Anthony, chairman of the harbor section, who gave a short history of the club and presented each new member with a key ring carrying the B&PW emblem.

Margaret Derry, president of the Manuela Nieto B&PW Club, presented several members, who explained the symbols of the emblem. Taking part were Margaret Smith, Ruth Bailey, Ilene Serles, Catherine Campbell and Eve Tichenor.

Merriest part of the program was provided by Happy King, handwriting analyst, who gave her impressions of characteristics shown by various members' writing.

Kathryn Campbell, accompanied by Connie McBade, sang several selections. Ella Barre was in charge of the refreshment hour, assisted by Catherine Campbell and Ruth Bailey.

Red Cross Volunteers Begin Work

Welcoming and honoring the colonels in the home gifts division of Red Cross, Mrs. A. A. Carrey, chairman of the home gifts division for the 1955 campaign, presided at a luncheon Wednesday at the Assistance League Clubhouse.

Hostess for the luncheon was Mrs. Carol Scott, president of the Assistance League. Mrs. Malcolm Epley, vice chairman of the home gifts division, opened the program with the Flag salute. Guest speakers were Virgil B. Gillespie, chairman of fund raising, and Roland R. Bach, Long Beach Red Cross chapter manager.

Mrs. Francis Heusel told of the plans for the benefit fashion show, sponsored by the Retailers, Associated, which will be March 1 at 8 p. m. in the Municipal Auditorium. Lawrence Welk and his orchestra will provide music and entertainment.

Mrs. Harrison Moore, ticket chairman of the fashion show, announced that tickets were now available through the Retailers, Wilma Hastings, Charm Unlimited and Red Cross. Mrs. Orville Cole, program chairman, gave a dramatic summary of the New York stage play "Tea House of the August Moon."

Area chairmen introduced were: Mrs. L. H. Brightman, east area; Mrs. Alice Mathews, south central; Mrs. Charles Scott, north central; Mmes. John Marriner and John Hackett Jr., west side; Mrs. Carl Petersen, North Long Beach; Mrs. Don Murphy, Los Cerritos, Bixby Knolls and California Heights; Mmes. James Hayes and H. K. Baldwin, Los Altos and Lakewood Plaza; Mrs. L. H. Johnson, south Lakewood; Mrs. Ellsworth Gardiner, north Lakewood.

HONOR COLONELS

Welcoming colonels in the home gifts division of Long Beach Chapter, American National Red Cross, at a luncheon Wednesday were Mrs. Harrison Moore, left, ticket chairman; Mrs. A. A. Carrey, home gifts division chairman for the 1955 campaign, and Mrs. Orville Cole, program chairman.—(Staff photo.)

Corduroy Suit

A corduroy suit has a long life for a schoolgirl. If it's bought in a light pastel, it can go through dyeing each winter till it winds up its life as a black suit. It's new each year and the knee and elbow fading that corduroy undergoes is concealed.

Tom Hoxie to Emcee Red Cross Style Show

Tom Hoxie has been named master of ceremonies for the Red Cross benefit fashion show to be staged in Municipal Auditorium on the night of March 1.

The show will feature Lawrence Welk and his orchestra, with more than 100 models showing spring fashions from the various local stores.

Hoxie is no stranger to the emcee role, having had more than eight years experience in the radio broadcasting field, and has staged and produced fashion shows in Portland and Salem, Ore., and for two years was master of ceremonies at war bond shows throughout Oregon and Washington.

He is advertising manager of the Columbia store in Long Beach and last year produced and emceed the March of Dimes show in Anaheim and the Miss Torrance selection contest in Torrance.

Titled "Fashions in a Musical Mood," this year's production will surpass any of the previous shows in beauty and staging. M. E. Taylor, head of the Long Beach Shrine Stagecraft, has already arranged for the settings of the four scenes. With Welk's famous band as the focal point for entertainment, the production offers a wide variety of musical and fashion moods.

Wilma Hastings will again act as commentator and reports that nearly all the Long Beach stores will participate.

Tickets will be on sale at various stores and by Red Cross volunteers.

easy reducing
science now helps you take off your fat while you eat the foods you choose

Do you like sweets, candy, cake, butter, gravy, potatoes? Have you tried one thing after another to reduce, spent dollar after dollar for pills and tablets and in spite of everything you've tried you're still too fat? Well, be as skeptical as you like, but NOW, right NOW, there's a wonderful new kind of capsule that helps you take off pounds and inches of ugly fat safely, quickly and so much easier you hardly know what's happening. You don't suffer starvation dieting hunger, you take no drugs, you don't exercise. In fact, you don't even diet one bit more than you want to, because you automatically eat less and here's why . . .

counteracts hunger
Just recently a well known scientist perfected a new tiny capsule that combines not one but ALL THE RECOGNIZED proven aids to reducing. It combines the vitamins and minerals often lost when cutting off fattening foods containing these needed vitamins and minerals. It combines the vegetable cellulose that has no calories, yet expands when it absorbs water, thereby helping give the feeling of a full contented stomach. In fact, these tiny capsules are so packed with vitamins and minerals, protein and non-caloric filling food, they actually equal and exceed many a meal.

fat goes fast
You'll be surprised at the fat you lose the first week, the inches that disappear the first month. No hunger, no strict dieting, no drugs, no exercise. And the cost is absolutely nothing unless you grow slim, more youthful looking, more active and enjoy better health.

Miss Darlene Durning

Miss Bessie Johnson

Campbell-Durning to Say Marriage Vows in May

May has been chosen as the wedding month of Miss Darlene Durning, daughter of J. Lyle Durning of Cincinnati, Ohio, and C. Wyatt Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Campbell of 5042 Coldbrook Ave., Lakewood.

Miss Durning, who received her education in the eastern city, has made her home the past year with here uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond W. Zetler, 324 Redondo Ave.

The prospective bridegroom, a graduate from Excelsior Union High School, attended City College and served the past four years in the Navy.

Pair to Wed in Arizona

The engagement of Bessie Johnson and Theodore J. Demos, son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Demos, 1726 E. 3rd St., was announced at a dinner party given recently by the bride's mother, Mrs. Harry Johnson of Phoenix, Ariz.

The pair will recite vows in June in Greek Orthodox Church, Phoenix.

The bride-elect, a graduate of Arizona University, is a teacher in Phoenix. Her fiance was graduated from University of San Francisco in 1953 with a BS degree in foreign trade.

Joanne Strange

ENGAGEMENT

Betrothal of Rose Ambrose and Dean Anderson has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Ambrose, 1872 Pine Ave. The bride-elect is a graduate of Poly High School, and her fiance, son of Mrs. Viola Nance, 3229 Arbor Rd., was graduated from Jordan High School. No date has been set for the nuptials.

Set Date in April

April 2 has been selected as a wedding date by Miss Joanne Strange and Guy Gum. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan L. Warner, 6130 Lincoln St., Hollydale, and her fiance is the son of Mrs. Clara Gum, 6040 Lincoln St., Hollydale.

Both young people are graduates of Paramount High School. The prospective bridegroom served in Korea with the Marine Corps and is now continuing his studies at Compton Junior College.

Patricia Sue Hendrix

Reveal Troth of Daughter

Engagement of Patricia Sue Hendrix, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hendrix of this city who moved to Tulsa, Okla., a month ago to James Lee McGuire is being announced today.

The bride-to-be is a graduate of Poly High School where she was a member of Portia Welfare Club. Her fiance, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. McGuire of Tulsa, Okla., is a graduate of Anardarko, Okla., High School and is a junior at Oklahoma A&M College where he is an engineering student. He is a member of Arnold Air Society and American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

PEO Luncheon

Unaffiliated members of PEO Sisterhood are invited to a luncheon at 12:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Victor Hugo. Reservations are to be made with the hostesses, Mrs. R. V. Nicholas, 4200 Blackthorne Ave., or D. F. Atwater, 535 Manila Ave.

Petticoats

The newest of feminine petticoats features lacy tiers of black nylon tulle over bright red nylon. This is the perfect slip companion for the full-skirted black taffeta cocktail dress.

Shirt Dress

The middy shirt-dress is the latest to join the nautical-look trend in suits, coats and blouses. It's versatile too, when worn with or without a belt and scarf.

Box Suit

The elegantly tailored look is seen in a two-piece Black Watch plaid box suit, and a banker's gray fitted suit with velvet collar and cuffs.

Clan Plaid

A good schooltime wardrobe-stretcher is the reversible jumper. Of corduroy, in autumn-toned colors, the reverse side is a smart clan plaid.

New Pantaloons

The ultra-feminine girl will be interested in new pantaloon pajamas. They feature a tucked front, and the collar and cuffs are trimmed with lace embroidery.

Virginia Milliken Bride of Dr. Oliver Thomas

The wedding of Virginia Milliken, Berkeley, to Dr. Oliver Thomas, Long Beach, took place in the chapel of First Congregational Church, Berkeley, recently.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. Blanche Milliken, Sioux Falls, S. D., was given in marriage by her brother, Charles Milliken, at the double ring ceremony. She was becomingly gowned in a floor length Chantilly lace over white satin. A lace crown held her veil and she carried a bouquet of white orchids and stephanotis.

—Larsen Photo
Mrs. Oliver Thomas

They were united in marriage by the Rev. Richard Roe.

Dressed in white lace over pink taffeta ballerina gowns and carrying bouquets of pink and white carnations were Mrs. Roy Richardson, sister of the bride, matron of honor, and Miss Charlene Dodge, bridesmaid.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Loyal P. Thomas, 2435 Earl Ave., was attended by Andrew Laird of Berkeley as best man. Ushers were Dr. Peter Yee of San Jose and Samuel Barboo of Berkeley.

At the reception in Pilgrim Hall Mrs. Milliken received wearing a rose biege lace frock with sequin trimmed hat and the bridegroom's mother was attired in navy blue tulle over taffeta with matching hat.

The former Miss Milliken is a graduate of the University of South Dakota where she was a member of Pi Beta Phi. The bridegroom is a graduate of Poly High School, Stanford University and Stanford School of Medicine, where he was affiliated with Alpha Kappa Kappa, medical fraternity. He is now a second year resident in internal medicine at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in Oakland.

After a honeymoon trip to Carmel Dr. and Mrs. Thomas are residing at 85 Glen Ave., Oakland.

BRIDE-ELECT

Announcement is being made today of the betrothal of Cleo Nell Hare, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred T. Hare, 1071 Newport Ave., and Murry Cecil Wooten, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marlin C. Wooten of 1045 Obispo Ave. Both are graduates of Wilson High School and she is a student at B&TD, City College. Her fiance, who also attended that school, is serving in the Army.

Mrs. Walter Case

Regional Post Bestowed on Mrs. Case

Selection of Mrs. Walter Case, president-manager of Long Beach Community Players, as representative of Region 1 of the newly organized National Association of Community Theaters, was announced this week. The region comprises Southern California and all of Arizona.

The association, comprising the largest community theaters of the nation, was organized to perpetuate the living theater and to help establish and maintain high theater standards.

As representative of Region 1, Mrs. Case automatically becomes one of the 16 members of the board of trustees of the association.

Mrs. Barton Fetes Friends at PCC

Mrs. E. F. Barton entertained recently at luncheon and bridge at the Pacific Coast Club for a coterie of friends.

Miniature dancing dolls marked places at the large banjo-shaped table for Mrs. Richard Barton, daughter-in-law of the hostess; Mmes. William Lawler, Alley Merritt, Lloyd Moore, Fred Rohow, J. C. Root, Frank Rogers, Edwin Richards, Murray Satterfield, Charles Sudduth, Leland S. Steeves, Jack Schwamm, W. W. Sault, F. W. Thompson, E. B. Taylor; L. May, G. Aubrey Thomas, Robert Thomas, Lyman Vaughan, Albert White, Wilmer Weber, Arthur Woll, Roy Montgomery, Peter Wadley, J. Harry Crawford, J. Woelfel, William Besler, Raymond Bell, J. Blythe, F. M. Arrowsmith, R. Burleigh, Betty Benwell A. Cassady, C. C. Cammack, Ellery Carr, Lewis Corman, G. Davis, Hubert Delmore, E. Pollock Gladden, P. P. Goldbaum, Manuel Coularte, Charles Garrison, E. V. Green, Arthur Gilbert, Edmund Kidder, Joseph Kelly, John Littig and Harold Larner.

NEW LEADER

Mrs. F. W. Thompson, wife of Capt. F. W. Thompson, USN, MC, was chosen recently president of Wives of Navy Doctors Club. The old and new board gathered Friday at a luncheon party in the Thompson home in Portuguese Bend.

Black Pumps

The large rhinestone buckle is making a comeback on fall shoes again. It's seen on the delicately-heeled black pump for dress-up wear.

Cardigans

Cashmere cardigans, for campus and casual wardrobes, are being made with the popular button-down collar this fall.

Miss Potter to Be Wed

Formal announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Chester Potter of 2525 Monroe St., Dominguez of the engagement of their daughter, Wanda, to Howard Reese, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Reese of Costa Mesa.

Miss Potter is a junior at Banning High School where she is active in the Damsel's Club, the Latin Club, picture editor of the Port Light, the school paper.

She is affiliated with Signal Hill Bethel 109, International Order of Job's Daughters.

Mister Cupid to Reign at Gala February Parties

By VIRGINIA NEWTON

Hearts, darts and Mister Cupid are the talk of the party the popular Officers Wives Club of Long Beach is planning. A cocktail hour will begin the event Wednesday at the Officers Club, Allen Center, followed by dinner and dancing. Hostesses chairman is Mrs. Leo May and her committee includes Mmes. W. A. Pace, E. G. Kidder, J. A. Kelly, E. P. Gladden.

Reservations should be called in by Tuesday, Feb. 1 to Mrs. F. A. Dolan or Mrs. R. M. Whelpley.

Remember all wives of officers attached to services afloat and ashore both active Navy and retired, are most cordially invited to join their friendly club and a special invitation is issued to all to bring their husbands and enjoy this gay spring time party.

Very recent new arrivals in the service set here are Capt. and Mrs. V. J. Neola, who are now staying at the Crawford Motel and come from the east coast. Capt. Neola will assume command shortly of the USS Mathews, AKA 96.

Happy to report that Mrs. A. B. Underwood has returned from Corona Naval Hospital and is doing nicely at her Lakewood home.

Speaking of Corona, Mrs. T. L. Wiper also has returned home from her session there and is much improved.

Club news includes the announcement that the Nautical Club has changed its monthly luncheon date to the third Thursday of each month. And Officers Wives Club members are reminded that because of the Valentine dinner dance there'll be no February luncheon meeting.

Lt. and Mrs. Charles Price enjoyed several days skiing in the mountains recently.

Capt. and Mrs. Leslie D. Kaiser left last week for Camp Kilmore, N. J., and in March the captain will leave the states for Germany and Mrs. Kaiser will return here and await her port call to follow.

Capt. and Mrs. Leo May have as their house guest from Rome, N. Y., Mrs. Robert Evans.

Capt. and Mrs. Ralph Prado entertained at a dinner party recently, Lt. Ray Dickerson and Mr. and Mrs. Pat Daley.

Friday evening Chaplain and Mrs. Ward D. McCabe entertained a group of friends at a delightful dinner event.

Also on Friday Mrs. Phillip Ruth entertained at a most attractive luncheon party at the Apple Valley Steak House and those attending were: Mmes. E. W. Hermanson, C. A. Murray, Dell Cohn and M. Steltenkamp.

Comdr. and Mrs. R. M. Whelpley entertained at a lovely cocktail and dinner event honoring their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Larkin of Westwood and Tucson, Ariz. Among the guests were Capt. and Mrs. M. C. Heine, Comdr. and Mrs. W. A. Pace, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Dolan and Mr. and Mrs. John Ninocks.

All that big black smoke hanging low over the Amphibious ships last week wasn't the start of another "invasion"; t'was just clouds from the large economy cigars handed out by Capt. E. Z. Grabowski, who is with the staff Amphibious 7, over the happy arrival of a baby daughter, Pamela.

On Wednesday at the Officers Club, Allen Center, the Gold Star Wives of this city will enjoy a luncheon meeting with the Service Wives Coordinating Committee. There'll be Comdr. H. Thomas Adams as guest speaker, and all service wives are invited to attend. Reservations should be phoned in as soon as possible to Mrs. Leon Foreman of 2009 Marber Ave., Lakewood.

There's an SOS out for additional volunteer workers to help at the Naval Base Nursery during the times of special luncheon and social events at the base. Those being able to offer their time should contact Mrs. Claude Ricketts, chairman of Volunteers. Chairman of the nursery now is Mrs. Woefel.

Wedding vows, uniting in marriage the former Helen Lipsett, daughter of M/Sgt. and Mrs. Z. M. Lipsett, and Ross Latimer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Latimer Sr. of Hollywood were exchanged in the Christ Memorial Church in Studio City.

Rear Adm. and Mrs. George J. McMillin have as their house guests from Washington, D. C., Capt. and Mrs. Dwight Chandler.

Coast Guard officers' wives are reminded that they are cordially invited to attend the interesting and important series of lectures pertaining to Navy Relief to be given from Feb. 8 for a four-week period on each Tuesday and Thursday from 9:30 to 12:30 at Allen Center, by Miss Myrle James of Washington, D. C.

Reservations should be made as soon as possible with Mrs. Leslie E. Concannon of 3060 San Anselino Ave. Navy and Coast Guard officers' wives are welcome to use the Naval Base Nursery during these lectures, and Mrs. Roland Smoot, chairman of Volunteer Women, suggests anyone being able to volunteer time to help the nurse in the nursery at those hours should call Mrs. Claude Ricketts of this city.

PLAN VALENTINE PARTY

Little Mike McCrory poses as a Valentine for Mmes. E. A. Poulter, T. G. Byrne and his mother, Mrs. E. E. McCrory, from left, as they make preparations for the Valentine party Feb. 12 at Allen Center by Coast Guard Officers Wives' Club. It is the annual spring dinner dance by the club. More than 200 invited guests will enter the Center through the huge Valentine archway for the evening's festivities.—(Staff.)

FASHION RED HEARTS

Setting the Valentine theme for the annual spring cocktail and dinner party by Officers Wives' Club of Long Beach are committee members, from left, Mmes. E. P. Gladden, William Pace, Leo G. May and E. J. Kidder, as they fashion red hearts to be used in decor. In place of the monthly luncheon by the club, members will entertain their husbands Wednesday beginning at 5 p. m. in Allen Center. There will be dancing during the evening.—(Staff photo.)

Audrey Share Named to Royal Dancing Academy

Audrey Share, 217 Quincy Ave., has received word from the Royal Academy of Dancing in London that she has been elected by their executive committee to be an associate member of the Royal Academy of Dancing.

The Royal Academy of Dancing was founded a number of years ago for the purpose of establishing a high standard of instruction in classical ballet as well as to foster its development. Membership in the academy is offered to those who have accomplished the syllabus of training outlined by that body. This includes rigorous examination in both the practical work as well as theoretical knowledge of this dance form.

A scholarship system for worthy students of dance is also maintained by the Royal Academy, and the Academy supplies the teachers for these pupils. Mrs. Share was the youngest scholarship teacher ever employed for this purpose. One of Mrs. Share's students was John Hart, currently leading dancer with the Sadlers Wells Ballet Company.

Miss Margot Fonteyn, of the Sadlers Wells Ballet Company is president of the Royal Academy. Queen Elizabeth is the patron of this dance body.

Cactus Club Elects Staff

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Klenke opened their home in Wilmington for a luncheon meeting of the Long Beach Cactus Club, at which time Jack Klenke was re-elected president; W. Sherwood Bell, vice president; Mrs. A. J. Aakjers, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Ray McGaughey, librarian; and Mrs. William H. Loomis, publicity.

Named to the board of directors were George Miller, R. S. McGaughey, R. H. Keck, and J. J. McIntosh. As this year marks the 25th anniversary of the founding of the club, the president read a history of its organization. Among charter members still active in the club are Jasper Kaufman, W. S. Bell, Jack Klenke, E. Nutter, and Mace Taylor Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Rush and Mrs. William H. Loomis were elected delegates to represent the club at the national convention of the Cactus and Succulent Society of America July 8, 9, 10, 11, and 12, in El Paso, Tex.

Homer Rush showed color films of Oregon's Columbia River gorge, of salmon fishing, northern California mountain scenery, Oregon caves, Carlsbad Caverns, and many views of Utah, Yosemite National Park, desert scenes of New Mexico and Arizona, concluding with close-ups of antique furnishings of Scotty's Castle in Death Valley. Mrs. Rush was narrator. The February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Loomis, 419 E. 16th St.

Talks Given on Religion

"Religion in the News" was discussed by Mrs. Lucy M. Findlay at a meeting of the Bible Dept. of Ebell Club, with Mrs. H. P. Dunlop, chairman, presiding. Mrs. Findlay spoke of the vast amount of coverage in newspapers and magazines of religious subjects, of the increase in construction of church buildings and of the recent $20,000,000 donation by John D. Rockefeller Jr. for furthering Protestant theological training, the largest single donation for this purpose on record, she pointed out. Mrs. Findlay concluded with a resume of an article by Norman Vincent Peale.

Mrs. B. Tuckley Thompson, soloist, sang two selections, with Mrs. Clifton Patterson at the piano and Mrs. Josiah S. Mertz discussed "Faith," defining it in terms of the dictionary, of outstanding theologians and laymen, and as given by the Apostle Paul. After referring to the long listings of Biblical men's accomplishments through faith, Mrs. Mertz named as large a number of accomplishments of present day engineers, scientists and inventors, completing her list with a quotation from President Eisenhower, "Faith is the mightiest force that man has at his command. It impels human beings to greatness in thought, word and deed."

In closing her talk, Mrs. Mertz gave excerpts from "Personal Security Through Faith," by Dr. Russell Ditzen, rated by critics as one of the most inspirational recent books for practical living. Mrs. Dunlop paid tribute to Mrs. Minnie M. Cleaver, chaplain, who was unable to attend.

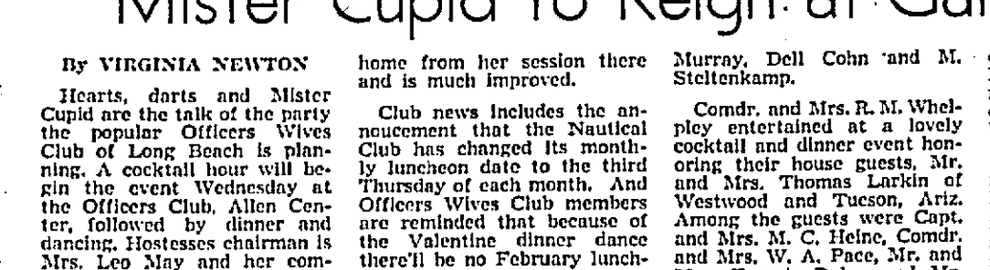

Compliment Bride-to-Be

A pink and white color motif was carried out at the bridal shower given a few days ago for Miss Margaret Jean Lahane by Miss Frances Wysa. Setting for the event was the home of Mrs. A. T. Goedde, 3725 Lime Ave. Pouring at the the tea table were the mothers of the bridal pair, Mrs. Jere Lehane and Mrs. L. Lewis.

Guests included Mmes. Roy McMillan, William Campbell, Max Highstone, Harold Goldhamer, Gordon Joplin, Mary Eberhart, Etta Galbraitte, Hugh C. MacDonald, Fannie Noyes, Floyd Wheatley, Avalon Noyes, Douglas Starr, Ernest Jensen, Dick LeMair, R. W. Thomas, Helen Wright, Perry Reed, John Glimmerveen, John Hanley, Walter Goine, Lawrence Goine, Newton Benedict, D. Cipolla and James Cipolla.

Water Colors on Exhibition

By VERA WILLIAMS
Independent-Press-Telegram Art Editor

Long Beach art exhibitions:

Pacific Coast Club, 850 E. Ocean Blvd.: Freda Marshall and Eugene (Buck) Luff paintings.

Long Beach Branch, Los Angeles County Medical Assn., 814 Pine Ave.: Lois Cytron paintings and drawings.

Bank of Belmont Shore, E. 2nd St. and Santa Ana Ave.: Richard Arnold paintings.

Municipal Art Center, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd.: Latin-American and Brian Connelly paintings; art mart.

Lafayette Hotel, Broadway and Linden Ave.: Spectrum Club paintings.

City College Art Gallery, 4901 E. Carson St.: Contemporary prints.

Six water colors and two drawings by Lois Cytron, Long Beach artist whose work has been widely exhibited over the United States, are shown in the Long Beach branch of the Los Angeles County Medical Assn. Watercolors: "Valley," "Sea and Rocks," "San Pedro," "Reminiscence," "Ferndell," "Trees and Stream." Both drawings are labeled "My Garden."

Mrs. Cytron is a member of the California Water Color Society, Artists' Equity, Laguna Beach Art Assn. and Southern California Artists Guild. She has had one-man shows in Palos Verdes and Long Beach. Her work has taken a number of prizes.

Western scenes predominate in the exhibtion of canvases by Freda Marshall and Eugene (Buck) Luff, a quadraplegic, patient in Veterans Administration Hospital, in Pacific Coast Club Gallery. Freda Marshall has given unstintingly of her time, without remuneration, to teach hospital patients and encourage them with their art work. This exhibtion includes some of the finest paintings of both artists.

Ben Messick of Long Beach is one of 25 American artists invited to enter the Grumbacher Water Color Techniques exhibition March 16-26 in Grand Central Art Galleries, New York. A preview and reception are slated for March 15 for the artists and the public.

Three years ago Messick (then also one of 25 chosen artists) entered a casein in a Grumbacher travel loan exhibit which has toured America. The State Department now has asked that the exhibit be sent abroad for a series of showings in Europe and the British Isles.

Virgil M. Bullock of Long Beach, who has recently purchased a home at White Point in San Pedro, has been elected president of the San Pedro Art Assn. Other new officers are Alice Hawkins, vice president; Wynne Jewers, treasurer; Ruth Butcher, recording secretary; Marie L. J. Hanson, corresponding secretary; Jean Acalin Wilder, historian and press chairman.

Bullock did undergraduate work in Long Beach City College, had 2½ years of duty in Korea and obtained his B. A. and masters degrees in education at USC. He teaches ceramics, stagecraft and water colors in Wilmington Junior High School.

One of Austria's most illustrious artists, Ernst Huber, will have a show through Feb. 11 in the Tower Gallery of Los Angeles City Hall.

Adding a pleasant and distinguished note to the upper corridors of the Henry E. Huntington Art Gallery, San Marino, is a recently acquired Wedgewood basalt bust of John Milton, a gift of the Friends of the Library. It is about 15 inches high, of rich blackness and is believed to have been the work of Hackwood, Joseph Wedgewood's best modeler, in the late 18th Century.

Morse-Abbe family portraits in the Pasadena Art Museum, 46 N. Los Robles Ave., Pasadena, include portraits attributed to Ralph Earl, 18th Century Connecticut painter, and Samuel F. H. Morse, famous as an inventor but an accomplished painter and first president of the National Academy of Design.

INSTITUTE NEW AUXILIARY
Joining the many auxiliaries in the city which serve as affiliates to their men's organizations is the newly formed Igola Club, ladies' auxiliary to Independent Garage Owners. At the initial meeting and installation last week at Brower's were, from left, Mabel Sutton, Terry Jurgensen, Sybil Lee, new president, and Anne Mauck. The club will be social and for welfare work in the community.—(Staff.)

Pave Road to Friendship With Unselfish Service

By ANGELO PATRI

Boys and girls, you want to be counted in on anything that goes on about you. You want to be invited to the parties, given a part in the play, asked to help with a community project, just to be recognized as the fine up and coming young person you are. Well, just what can you do that people need to have done? Better take an inventory of your talents and skills.

Can you sing before an audience? Can you talk clearly with dramatic appeal? Maybe you can cook? Drive a car? Use tools well? Perhaps you have social grace so you can act as an usher or as assistant to a hostess? Or are you quick about figures so you can be useful in an office job? Can you type? Do packages up with an air?

You have one skill you can be sure. Maybe more. Cultivate whatever gift you have and offer it freely whenever there is need for it. That is the way to enrich your personality and make friends for yourself. Service to others is really service to yourself. You see there is a time when selfishness is born of truly unselfish acts. When you give yourself without thought of reward your unselfishness becomes the best kind of self love. Try it and see what a rich reward is yours in terms of affection.

This recipe is offered to the boy or girl who is worrying about being unpopular. Stevenson said that to have a friend you must be one. How can anyone know you want to be friendly if you stand on the sidelines, your face darkened by discontent, your whole attitude, perhaps your words too, indicating your low mood?

Of course, you will be left out if you act as if you wanted to be. People will let you alone if you insist but they will be delighted to take you in if you will let down the bars of your fear and offer to lend them a hand in whatever is going on. Sharing is what breaks down barriers.

To share you must be able to do something that needs doing. That is why you need to sit down and think about what you have to offer the people you would like to know. Nothing? Can you smile? That helps. Can you offer a compliment to someone who has done something well? That will make a friend for you right then and there. And surely there is one thing you can do.

Don't look for top place. Stars rise slowly. Take the job nobody wants and make it a place of honor by doing it so well that everybody is grateful for it. Say the cleaning-up job? If you haven't a big talent take a little one and pick up the broom, organize the cleanup squad and see how popular you will be. You'll be promoted in popular favor, never fear, and your star will rise in time. But you will have to do something.

Bed-Wetting Habit in Children Is Controllable

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Case N-336: Billy Q., aged 12, is a brilliant boy in seventh grade.

"But he is rapidly becoming a nervous wreck," his worried mother explained. "He plays in the school band and is unusually talented, too. But the band has been asked to go to our state capital in two weeks.

"That will require Billy to stay away from home overnight. And he is terrified. He has tried to develop medical complaints to justify his staying home, but the band director tells him they simply must have Billy on hand.

"And the entire secret of Billy's dread is the fact he still is guilty of bed wetting, and he is fearful that if he sleeps away from home over night, his secret will be discovered. "Dr. Crane, I know seven mothers in our P-T.A. who have children with this same problem. What can a parent do to help a child in this situation?"

Enuresis (bed wetting) is normal in all babies at the beginning. But most youngsters have learned to control their urinary bladder by the time they are 3 years of age. However, a goodly percentage still carry along this infantile habit. And many students both in high school as well as college are still its victims.

Indeed, many men were discharged from military service because of this same complaint and some people never do get over it. But bed wetting simply indicates inattention to the pain sensations that bombard the brain from a full bladder.

The bed wetter is thus much like the person who ignores the ringing of the alarm clock beside his bed. Such a husband may vow that the alarm never went off, yet his wife knows that it did. Indeed, the husband may reach out and turn it off in her sight, yet deny to her that the alarm ever sounded.

This act of ignoring a certain type of stimulus can become a habit in very short order. And that's why the bed wetter ignores the pain sensations of a full bladder. The cure of bed wetting consists, first of all, in the victims working up great ire at himself and resolving to pay attention to the discomfort of his full bladder, even while asleep.

He is much like the chronic alcoholic in that neither can effect a cure by relying on other people to do the job for him.

Mamma and papa actually harm the confirmed bed wetter by getting him on his feet and walking him to the bathroom in a half sleeping state.

Bed wetters should take no fluids after 4 p. m. each day. They may profitably take a pinch of salt at supper time to help hold water in the system.

Set an alarm clock to go off about two hours after retiring and be solely responsible for listening to it. When it rings, jump out of bed and go to the bathroom. This alarm clock method may cure you in two or three nights.

Some victims have acquired control by interrupting the act of urination during the day at various points to assert the dominance of the brain over the bladder. A final and sure-fire cure is to fix up a simple electrical shocking device with dry cells and a doorbell buzzer. You can do this for a few dollars.

Send for my bulletin called "The N-Uroclast," enclosing a stamped return envelope, plus a dime. Use it as a last resort if the other methods have been tried and failed.

Students of All Nationalities Learn Art of Modeling at Exclusive French Capital School

By NADEANE WALKER

PARIS (AP)—The tall brunette walked rapidly along a line chalked on the salon floor, her legs bound with a lasso knot just above the knees. The other end of the rope was in the firm grasp of a pretty blonde instructor, and a misstep rated a sharp yank.

It's all part of the day's work at the Paris School for Mannequins, where young hopefuls are taught the mannered art of the fashion parade. "Supprimez le posterieur!" (polite French for "pull in your backside!") is the cry that rings out most frequently through the classroom.

Regina Varell, head mistress of the only model's school in the French fashion capital, is herself young and pretty enough to make an excellent mannequin. Her students are of all nationalities, for the prestige of a Paris diploma is enough to bring the ambitious from afar. Graduates are to be found in most of the world-famed French high fashion houses, as well as in the most expensive dress establishments of other capitals.

The school is small and exclusive. Three classes, each with five girls, currently make up the entire student body, and Miss Varell is the one woman faculty. But besides French students, she has at the moment American, English, Romanian, Italian, Swedish and Danish girls.

Entrance requirements are high—literally. Successful applicants must stand at least 5 feet 5½ inches in their stocking feet, besides having attractive faces," "harmonious silhouettes," and some indications of aptitude. The course runs two to three months and costs about $50 for three lessons a week.

Miss Varell does not impose a weight limit, for a little excess poundage can be slimmed off, but students must be reasonably slender. The first thing a student is asked to do is to take off her shoes. Her barefoot walk reveals the natural inclination of the body and any posture faults, which come mostly, says the head mistress, from too high or too low heels or from stiff shoes. Next to the "posterior in the air" stance, the boyish stride is the worst posture fault, she finds.

The lasso trick eventually corrects both: it limits the length of the step, and by a yank on the rope the instructor can make the mannequin throw her shoulders and upper trunk backwards to balance a protruding posterior. The student must react or fall forward.

Soon she is delicately pointing her toes and moving in a queenly glide. To make her hold up her head and arch her neck like a swan's, the school has placed giant mirrors on the walls, and the student must walk between, looking at herself in passing.

As soon as she is off the rope and has learned to carry her arms and hands loosely and naturally, Miss Varell starts loading her down with accessories — gloves, then a hand bag, then an umbrella. The mannequin learns how to carry them gracefully, and in the case of gloves and coat, how to peal them off and put them on with easy assurance while in full stride (roll the glove cuff down before putting the fingers in; take the coat by the lapels at bust height and let the shoulders slip off.)

The handbag, the apprentice mannequin learns, should be carried with the strap over the left arm midway between the wrist and elbow (or if an envelope bag, in the crook of the left elbow), to leave the right hand free for an umbrella.

The mannequin school is one branch of the Ranville Institute, founded in 1935 by Marcel Ranville to teach charm and chic to Frenchwomen of all ages. Ranville, former teacher and journalist, admits frankly that he got the idea on a trip to America, and flatteringly enough, he takes the American woman as a sort of ideal.

Miss Varell explains: "American women have no complexes. They're taught to be sure of themselves as young girls in school. But Frenchwomen are full of inferiority complex. They're afraid of criticism."

Nowadays, she says, a lot of French businessmen's wives are finding themselves lost in the social whirl, and they come to the school for help. A large charm class is made up of middle-aged and even elderly women learning, like the young mannequins, to walk gracefully, sit down, get up, and carry their accessories with ease.

Among her nuggets of wisdom: "Never sit with crossed legs if you have thick thighs" and "it pays to buy good shoes even if they're expensive." She finds some basic figure differences in American and French girls. Americans tend to wider shoulders, thinner figures, and curved-in backs; French girls are rounder and straighter.

But the Americans, she says, "are French mannequins' keenest competitors. They're so fresh, so healthy, with such natural ease. They're the fastest learners of all. Faults? Well, perhaps they're a bit too bony."

Some of her thumb-nail characterizations of nationalities: German girls — They're very thin and very gay (this at first surprised her). Finnish—Their charm is similar to a real Parisienne's. Swiss—Very pretty, but a bit flighty and not very hard workers.

Oswald Jacoby

This Hand Has Choice

"What is the best play for the contract of three no-trump on the accompanying hand?" asks an Atlantan correspondent. "South wins the first trick with the queen of hearts and must then decide whether to go after the clubs or the diamonds.

"In the discussion in our club, it was argued that both are roughly even-money shots and that the choice between the two plans is no more than a guess. Is this true, or is there a real choice?"

There is a real choice. There is a decided edge in favor of trying to develop the clubs.

Let's look the situation over carefully. South can count two heart tricks and four spades. He needs three tricks in the minor suits in order to make his contract. While developing his tricks he can afford to lose the lead only once, for otherwise he will be overwhelmed by the long heart suit.

If South goes after the diamonds, he needs both the king and queen in the West hand with any distribution of the diamonds; or he needs a 3-3 diamond break with the honors split. The combined chance is substantially less than an even-money shot (about 43 per cent if you want to pin it down).

If South goes after the clubs he will make two club tricks if East has the ace. This is a straight 50 per cent chance. In addition, South will make the clubs if East has J-10 alone, even though West has the ace. Therefore South has a bit more than an even chance for the clubs, but only substantially less than an even chance for the diamonds.

There is one further argument. If South goes after the diamonds and succeeds, he will make only nine tricks. If he goes after the clubs and succeeds, the whole suit may come in, and he will make 11 tricks. All other things being equal, it can't hurt to play for the extra tricks.

Why Grow Old?

New Interests Exercise Mind

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

January's "Today's Health" carries an interesting article by Sen. Thomas C. Desmond concerning aging. Sen. Desmond is chairman of the New York State joint legislative committee on problems of aging.

He says, "Aging is involuntary. To slow it down we must seek to stimulate older people to continue growing by learning new skills and hobbies, developing new interests, engaging in new tasks, meeting new people and accepting new ideas.

"Monotony, complacence and boredom, are sure signs that nothing new is being tried to challenge and stimulate the mind. Every day is like every other. Because decay starts where growth leaves off, growth must be continued."

The truth of this has been demonstrated over and over again. Doctors know that their offices are visited often by patients who are physically sound but who actually feel ill because they are bored. Our emotions affect the chemistry of our bodies, our heart beat, our circulation and our respiration.

It has been noted in the Day Centers of New York City that older people visit the clinics for treatment of their ailments much less often after they have become interested in the activities of the Day Centers and have made some new friends.

Many men and women have remained alive much longer than seemed possible medically because they wanted to finish a job or were tied to life by a strong positive emotion. Happiness and eager interest are wonderfully fine medicines!

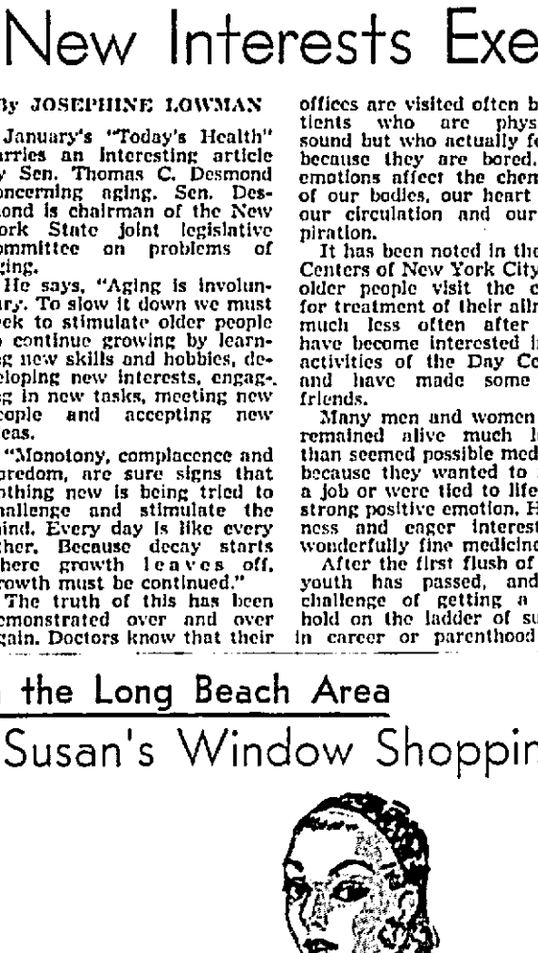

After the first flush of early youth has passed, and the challenge of getting a foothold on the ladder of success in career or parenthood has been met and conquered, folks are likely to begin decaying rather than growing.

Age consciousness is one of the main reasons for this. Do not be bounded by it. Exercise your mind and your emotions with new interests, new activities and new friends. Age has nothing to do with the adventure you can find in daily living. It depends on your attitude, your determination to keep growing.

Child Care

Child, 2, Eats Only Desserts

By BEULAH FRANCE, R. N.

(Q) "Henri started feeding himself and ate everything put on his plate. But now, at 2½, he won't eat anything but sweets and desserts unless he's fed by me. Even then he refuses to swallow. He only weighs 24 pounds and I am desperate! What shall I do?—MRS. J. M.

(A) Mrs. J. M. also tells of bribing, praising, scolding, spoon-feeding and leaving the youngster alone. "Nothing worked."

Your six-page letter, Mrs. M., is replete with resentment, but not one word was written about the state of Henri's health, physical, mental or emotional.

Bony structure plays a part in what a child's weight should be. So do height, heredity, amount of activity and condition of bowels. You mention none of these. Nor do you describe disposition, sleep, habits nor conditions which brought about the complete reversal of his routine of feeding himself and eating everything.

Something happened. No child suddenly loses a hearty appetite without any reason. You do not speak of having consulted a physician, yet no one else could give you as good advice as a doctor who sees and studies your child and gets all the details you omitted from your letter. Surely you must know that.

If you haven't discussed this problem thoroughly with the physician who is in charge of Henri's health and welfare, do so immediately. Give him all the facts. Hold back nothing; even doctors aren't mind readers.

There are very helpful, inexpensive leaflets and books about all types of eating and feeding troubles. I am sending you a list of these telling titles, authors, publishers so you may send for whatever literature you believe would best suit your needs. All readers are invited to request this information and literature, and doubtless many will. For despite the fact that enjoyment of eating is natural and normal, hundreds of parents write every week to Child Care complaining about eating problems in infants or older boys and girls.

Ask Beulah France to help you with your child care problems. Write her in care of the Press-Telegram, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope for her reply.

'Hard Times' Dance Given

Officers' Club on the Long Beach Air Force Base was the recent setting for a "hard times" costume dance hosted by base officers. The unique affair was enjoyed by a capacity attendance of appreciative members and guests.

Setting the pace for a fun packed evening, members of the ladies' club presented a series of skits, climaxed by a hilarious takeoff of a Spike Jones number.

With Col. Thomas Wiper in the role of persuasive auctioneer, box lunches prepared by members of the ladies' club were auctioned—proceeds going to the March of Dimes. Further swelling the funds were proceeds from an apple and pencil sale, conducted in true sidewalk huckster style by Mrs. Gus Kraft, who originated the clever idea.

Costumes ran the gamut from grain sack and barefoot creations to discard finery of the "depression" vintage. In an evening dress of dilapidated elegance, Mrs. Edward Garett received an award for the most unique costume for ladies. Honors among masculine contenders were won by Capt. Leslie Keiser as an improverished laborer.

Installation

Marie Maxon was installed as president of J. U. G. Rebekah Club at a recent meeting in the home of June Shepard. Serving with her will be Ivy Bradshaw, vice president; Belle Cunningham, secretary; Minnie Olive, treasurer; Leah Washburn, historian. Among the club's many philanthropic projects was the presentation of an invalid walker to the IOOF Home in Saratoga.

Mrs. Ormond Johnson

Leave Today for Conclave

Mrs. Ormond T. Johnson of 5903 Olive Ave. will leave today by plane for Chicago, Ill., where she will participate in the annual board meeting of the National Association of Girl Scout executives.

Mrs. Johnson, executive director of the Long Beach area council of Girl Scouts, is starting the second year of her presidency of Section 12-south of the national organization. This includes California, Arizona and Nevada. The national association is a voluntary organization dedicated to professional development through the comparison of skills and techniques. Presidents of the 12 sections and committee chairmen will attend the board meeting.

Court Adds to Roster

Mrs. Evelyn Weckerle of San Francisco, state regent of the Catholic Daughters of America, attended a recent banquet and initiation of new members into Court St. Ann 763, CDA, held in Ebell Clubhouse.

Other guests included Mrs. Manila Caprino of Los Angeles, vice state regent, Mrs. Elsie Clancy of Alameda, state secretary; Miss Agnes Gual, Mrs. Wilma Lewis, Mrs. Josephine Bombardier and Mrs. Eva Messerschmitt, past state regents. Mrs. Marie Morgan, grand regent, initiated new members, and Mrs. Adeline Hinesberger, district deputy of Court St. Ann, assisted. Guests speaker was Rev. Roland Zimmerman, chaplain of the court.

A reception followed the ceremony. Mrs. Isabella Lopolito and Mrs. Eva Gandy presided at the tea table. Mrs. Betty Jacobsen was general chairman.

Relief Corps

Women's Relief Corp 93 will meet Wednesday at 12:30 p. m. in Veterans Memorial Bldg. Mary McDonald will preside.

Del Mar Rebekahs

Del Mar Rebekah Lodge 275 will be host to lodges of District 84 at a school of instruction Tuesday at 8 p. m. in Machinists Hall. Dorothea Niles Martin, president of Rebekah Assembly, will be instructoress. Aline Ewers, District 84 deputy president, will be general chairman.

Family Counselor

"Family Happiness and Marriage Counseling" will be discussed by Miss Ann Herndon, counselor for Family Service of Long Beach, Tuesday at the Evening Branch meeting of National Council of Jewish Women. The session will be held in the community room of Bank of Belmont Shore. Refreshments will be served by Mrs. David Powers and Mrs. Theodore Hartstein.

Molly Mayfield

Desires Business Career

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I am a widow with two young children. The first few months after my husband was gone I completely withdrew into myself. I went through the mechanics of living, taking care of my children, talking, sleeping and eating. Then one fine morning I awoke to the fact that the world was going right along without me.

I gave myself a good pep talk: You've had 10 happy years, now get out and make something of yourself for the boys' sake. As yet I've failed to do this. I haven't known just how.

Until four years ago I had worked for a business office, typing, filing, contract work and billing for 10 years. I love detail and responsibility and feel I have initiative. So don't you think there is a chance for me in the business world?

Of course, right now I could only work mornings or afternoons, but as the boys grew older I could handle a full-time job. I would simply love to start with some concern and really learn the business and stick with it. I guess what I need (I know it's what I want) is a Pygmalion to train me and I would really try to do him credit.

Does this sound silly to you? After all, I'm only 28. Life should not be at a standstill for me yet. And there isn't much danger of remarriage with two children. Not with all the unattached blondes out front there!

What do you think of my idea, Mrs. Mayfield? Or am I slightly nuts for thinking there is still a career open for me? —HOPEFUL.

DEAR HOPEFUL:

Let's put it this way. If you DIDN'T think there was a career open for you you'd be slightly nuts.

Twenty-eight is a simply swell age to start in business! Having the two children to worry about might at first seem a slight handicap, but actually not. They give you an added incentive to forge ahead and make them proud of you. Furthermore, the more successful you are, the more advantages your boys can have.

It seems to me, though, that you shouldn't limit yourself to a part-time job. If you're ambitious and really bent on going ahead then I'd start now and take on a full-time setup. Other women with children have — and they've managed very well.

It seems to me extremely important for the children for you to get started on that career as soon and as fully as possible.

Maybe a good way to start would be to go to business school and sort of get "caught up" again. And then, contacts come through these schools which might lead to your Pygmalion. Also, it would pay you to list yourself with various employment agencies.

At any rate, don't sit back and wait for this job to land in your lap. Go out and GET IT!—M. M.

Attorney Harry Albert

Chef of the Week

Attorney Albert Holds Court Over Lamb Stew

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

He's known as the Beau Brummell of the courts—and as the man of a thousand ties, with handkerchiefs to match each one. He's always turned-out as a man should be—like he's been put together casually—not added up on purpose. Today's nominee for Chef of the Week, Atty. Harry Albert, keeps his suit case packed ready for instant flight. Its contents will do him for one day or seven.

Starting from Brooklyn, N. Y., Albert moved to Worcester, Mass., as a youngster. Receiving his A. B. degree at Clark University there, he also took graduate work in education and psychology.

World War I had become an actuality, and he spent considerable time atop a horse in the U. S. Cavalry. With the advent of the Armistice, he put his education to practical use, and became principal of the high school at Walpole, N. H.

In 1923 the urge to go west overtook him, and Albert came to California. His actual arrival in Long Beach was quite by accident—he got lost! He liked what he saw, however, so parked his car at the corner of First and Pine, the site of the Board of Education. He just plain walked in and applied for a teaching job. The late William Logan Stephens was at that time superintendent of schools, and he, too, liked what he saw. With two teaching positions open, and 2,000 applications on file, it was Albert who was given the job. He spent the next six years teaching mathematics in the Long Beach high schools.

Never satisfied with standing still, Albert began the study of law. In 1929 he was graduated from Southwestern School of Law. He then served Long Beach for a year as Deputy District Attorney for Los Angeles County, a position he held for six years. He has practiced in Long Beach since 1936.

President of the Los Angeles County Civil Service Commission, which has under its jurisdiction some 12,000 county employes, Albert is also a past commander of the Arthur Peterson Post, a past governor of the Royal Order of Moose, and past president of the Long Beach Masonic Club and of the B'nai B'rith.

His kindnesses to the less fortunate are many and always anonymous. Politically he's very decided, yet has been known to cast his vote for the man and not the party. As to hobbies, it's a toss-up between reading and cooking. Today, he has lamb stew in the making.

LAMB STEW

Use shoulder of lamb cut in small pieces. Brown in butter with chopped onion. Cover with boiling water; let simmer 2 hours or until tender; ½ hour before done, add small potatoes, carrots and small white onions. Fifteen minutes before done, add fresh pears cut in halves or quarters.

Show Slides of Navajo Indian Area

A colorful trip through the Navajo and Hopi area was enjoyed by means of slides shown by Mrs. Howard Rollins at a meeting of the travel dept. of Ebell Club, with Mrs. Walter Hunsaker, chairman, presiding. The slides were taken by Mr. and Mrs. Rollins when on a recent trip.

Beautiful sunsets, unusual rock formations, the Totem Pole, 1003 feet high which casts a shadow of 30 miles, the Ear of Wind, and the Triple Arch were a few of the scenic interests of the trip, part of which, Mrs. Rollins related, had been traveled on 100 miles of dirt road and another 200 miles of "Make Your Own Road."

"One of the 11 Hopi villages, Old Oraibi, is reputed to be the oldest American village of continuous habitation," Mrs. Rollins said, adding that at Walpi, the Hopi tribe holds its annual ceremonial snake dance. "It is not an uncommon sight," she said, "for tourists to recognize old clothing on the Hopi and Navajo children; clothing which probably had come in boxes from Long Beach."

In the Navajo land a large mission with a cluster of modern buildings is maintained by the Presbyterian churches. In this group of buildings, the slides revealed, are a high school and a church constructed entirely by Indian labor. While most of the Navajo country is arid, and wells must be drilled for water, in Canyon de Chelly, water can be obtained by natives digging only a few feet, due to an underground stream, Mrs. Rollins told the group. Dallas, a picturesque Navajo, the son of the chief medicine man of the tribe, acted as guide to the Rollins party which included their young daughter, Candace.

Another highlight of the trip was the annual fair of the Navajos at Window Rock, Ariz., with natives in tribal costumes. Slides of the locale of "Spin a Silver Dollar," which depicted the needs and the customs of the first Americans were shown.

Music: Challenge to Our Children

Young people need something to do that is both interesting and demanding of their talents. For this family at least, a quartet has filled the bill

by MRS. RALPH R. GUENTHER

FORT WORTH, TEX.

OUR MUSICAL family is a source of continual amusement and, perhaps, amazement to our neighbors.

The fun, they tell me, starts shortly before 8 a.m. when they see my husband Ralph dashing off to an early class in the music department at Texas Christian University. He's usually juggling a bulging briefcase, a flute, a music stand and a baton.

Next comes Randie Jean, 12, whose bicycle has been especially adapted for carrying a violin on one side of the back wheel and a briefcase on the other. Last—but not least, by any means—is Sally Jane, 8. She trudges off to school on foot with a satchel slung over her shoulder, a 'cello in one hand and her lunch in the other.

Fortunately for all concerned, my main job is keeping house, and music is only my hobby. My instrument is the piano.

Few of our neighbors who enjoy watching the Guenther family struggle out with its instruments and, I think, too few Americans generally realize what music can mean to a home. In fact, when Sally first got her 'cello and was proudly boasting about it to friends at school, one of them asked, "Is it a pet?"

Of course, music came naturally in our family since Ralph is a professional musician. I was his accompanist before we were married, and playing together has been deeply rewarding to both of us.

But we had no guarantee that our children would like music. However, family singing and private piano lessons preceded their instrumental training in the public schools. So it was our family's greatest thrill when, at last, we could all play together in a quartet of instruments that blend well.

Now we are learning the secret of why music has always been so great and so much a part of life in Europe. There small groups have always gathered to play with and listen to each other.

Such an activity is possible with a little time and practice. Like most children, our girls have to be reminded to practice. We've tried to make it easier by starting the day early enough so that they can practice a half-hour before school. That leaves afternoons free for play or Campfire Girl activities.

Music is a discipline as well as a joy. We feel that young people today, more than ever, need to have something to do that is both interesting and demanding of their talents and abilities. For us, at least, the family quartet has filled the bill. ■

Would You Have Stared?

LONDON.

WHEN BRITAIN'S 6-year-old Prince Charles and 4-year-old Princess Anne appear in public without fanfare, that's news.

It happened the other morning when the two youngsters and their governess (convoyed by an inconspicuous detective) walked through Green Park from Buckingham Palace to Clarence House to visit "Grandma"—the Queen Mother.

The pictures on this page are the first ever made of the royal children walking in a public park. The photographer reports that just three strollers turned to look.

"British reserve," he observes.

BACK HOME, children and governess follow detective into side entrance of Palace.

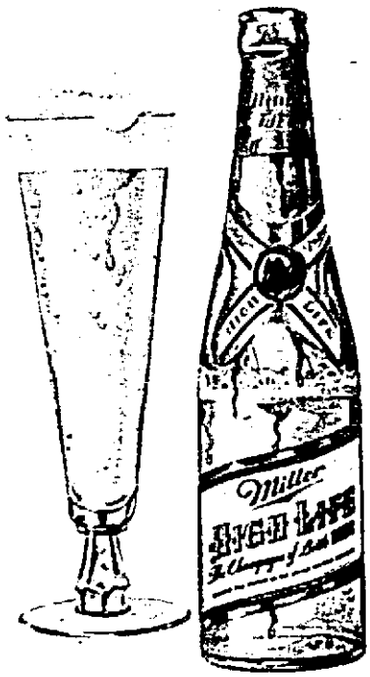

A Royal Favorite

CELEBRATES 100 YEARS IN AMERICA

Over a century ago, European nobility enjoyed a famous beer, brewed in a royal castle at Sigmaringen by the renowned master brewer . . . Frederick Miller. His superb beer was of such quality that it was acclaimed throughout the continent. With generations of tradition and skill, and a heritage for perfection in brewing behind him, Frederick Miller brought this royal beer to America in 1855 . . . and made it available to a nation where everyone wanted something finer.

Today . . . as through the past 100 years . . . Miller High Life still embodies the age old formula, the craftsmanship and art, the fine ingredients, that made it a royal favorite, and has made it an American favorite among those who appreciate good taste and enjoy good living.

Those Bomb Tests —and Your Health

Does radioactive "fall-out" actually threaten America? Here are the revealing facts behind one of the hottest arguments in years

ATOMIC CLOUD soars lazily over Yucca Flat, Nev., watched by newsmen covering this recent "shot."

by ROBERT P. GOLDMAN

Next month, in a sandy, desolate wasteland just 70 miles from the glittering hoopla they call Las Vegas, Nev., another chapter will be written in the incredible story of atomic weapons.

Once again, the word has gone out from Washington to the people of southern Nevada and Utah: the Atomic Energy Commission is preparing a test site at lonely, barren Yucca Flat. Once again, the AEC has announced simply, "atomic devices" will be tried out.

And once again, millions of Americans feel that familiar sensation—half excitement, half dread—that first appeared when A-bombs shattered Nagasaki and Hiroshima in World War II.

Those bombings, so far, represent the only wartime use of atomic energy. But they followed the dramatic test at Alamogordo, N. M. (July 16, 1945), which, in the nine years since, has multiplied into a series of tests involving not only A-bombs but H-bombs, not only the U. S. but Britain and Russia.

By now, these tests have blown up one of the biggest controversies of our times. Do atom and hydrogen bomb tests "poison the air"? Do they endanger your health today and possibly the health of future generations? Or do they not?

At the core of the controversy is a new, menacing word: "fall-out." To understand the arguments, we need to understand this word.

When a bomb explodes, two kinds of atomic radiation occur. The first is immediate. Deadly gamma rays and neutrons are thrust out by the exploding atoms, almost instantly killing or maiming everything within their range. The second is slower. It is "residual" radiation, a weaker form which gradually loses radioactive "sock." This latter form is contained in fall-out.

When a bomb is detonated on or near the ground, or in water, particles of dust, dirt, debris and tiny fragments of the bomb itself are blown sky-high. These particles, all radioactive, comprise the actual fall-out—for what goes up must come down. The big particles, containing "hotter" doses of radioactivity, come down first, relatively close to ground zero. The smaller ones may not come down for hours, days or even weeks.

These tiny particles are picked up by air currents at altitudes of 30,000 feet or more and are carried away in broken, shifting, invisible "clouds." Ultimately, the particles may fall on the ground, on buildings, on crops, in water—anywhere in the world. As the fall-out is swept by winds farther and farther from ground zero, its radioactive punch becomes weaker and weaker.

Thus, last year, when 23 Japanese fishermen were injured (and one later died) following U. S. hydrogen-bomb tests in the Pacific, the captain of their ship said it "rained rice powder." He and his ship were close to ground zero (close for an H-bomb, that is; they were about 80 miles away). The rice powder was really "hot" fall-out.

On that occasion U. S. air-weather personnel on an island well over 100 miles from ground zero saw "flecks" coming out of the sky. Those, too, were fall-out—but in this case not hot enough to do any harm.

To measure the "strength" of fall-out, the U. S. Weather Bureau operates collecting stations all over the country. Whenever and wherever the tiny particles come down, they are collected on sticky paper "platforms" and in small suction machines, then carefully checked for radioactivity. In addition—although it has not been admitted officially—there are U. S. planes in other parts of the world which, outfitted with special devices, collect air samples for similar analysis.

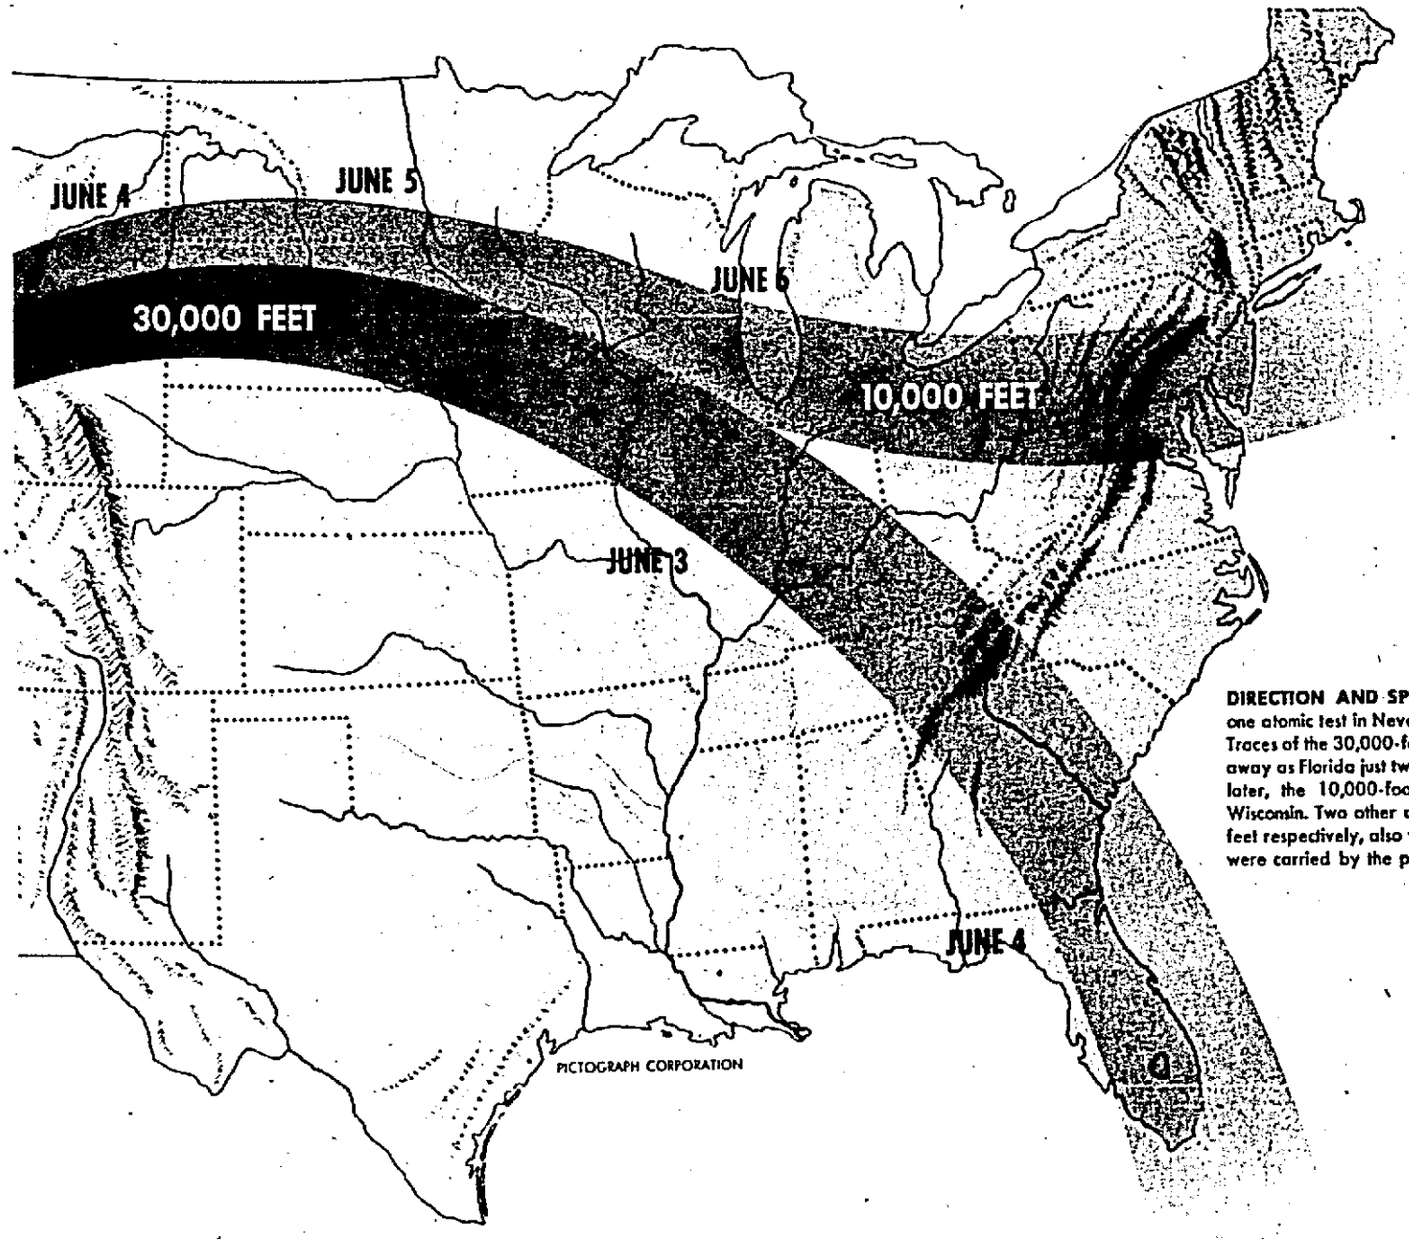

This collecting network provides basic information on bomb tests everywhere on earth. It tells our scientists what fall-out goes where, and how powerful it is. It is only one of many measures designed to safeguard humanity before, during and after tests.

Yet the public remains apprehensive. And even some scientists have called for a halt to all U.S. bomb testing. They take the stand that the tests are a threat to public health and safety.

When that Japanese fisherman died last September, an educator in Belfast, Northern Ireland, called it "a symbol of science getting out of hand." A few score such experiments would leave "unpredictable death" drifting about the world, he said.

Recently a Midwestern university expert told PARADE: "It would be highly desirable to ban tests by international agreement."

On the other hand, a second expert says: "I am not overly concerned about the danger to health now or in the future." A third adds: "There is no danger now or in the future from tests."

DIRECTION AND SPEED of fall-out "clouds" after one atomic test in Nevada are indicated on this map. Traces of the 30,000-foot cloud were detected as far away as Florida just two days after the test; two days later, the 10,000-foot cloud had gotten only to Wisconsin. Two other clouds, at 24,000 and 35,000 feet respectively, also were tracked from this test. All were carried by the prevailing westerly air currents.

In the light of this disagreement, PARADE has gone to high Government authorities directly concerned with A-bomb and H-bomb tests. They cannot be identified, or even quoted directly. However, they have supplied a revealing "fall-out calendar" that tells where and when those tiny particles have made headlines—and what lay behind the headlines. Here it is:

What Actually Happened?

Summer, 1945: About a dozen cattle, 15 to 20 miles from ground zero at Alamogordo, N. M., were hit by fall-out. They suffered minor burns. Hair on their backs and flanks fell out. Gradually the hair grew back in patches. Cows in the herd since have had calves; all were born normal and healthy.

Spring, 1952: Another herd of cattle was affected, this time 15 to 20 miles from the test site at Mercury, Nev. Some animals suffered minor burns; hair fell out, later grew back. Scientists at the test site barbecued one of the steers, ate the meat just to prove it was not contaminated.

Summer, 1952: A broken "cloud" containing radioactive material passed over Chicago just as it started raining. What was later called "radioactive rain" fell in and around city. The strength of radioactive fall-out was extremely slight. The average person could have drunk only that rainwater for a lifetime without chance of injury.

Spring, 1953: About 20 horses, 8 to 10 miles from ground zero in Nevada, suffered minor burns. All recovered. A widespread rumor that sheep deaths in southern Utah resulted from fall-out was investigated by health experts. They found no evidence to justify the rumor.

Spring, 1953: Another "radioactive rainfall" occurred, this time over Troy, N. Y. It resulted from the same atmospheric conditions as the Chicago rainfall. Again, you could drink only Troy rainwater for a lifetime without a chance of harm.

About the same time, hail falling in the Washington, D. C., area was found to contain minute amounts of radioactive material. It, too, was harmless.

Spring, 1954: The second U. S. H-bomb test was held at Bikini Atoll in the Southwest Pacific. More than 100 inhabitants of three of the Marshall Islands, up to 300 miles from ground zero, were injured. A total of 74 received burns on head and neck; these now are healed. A total of 39 lost the hair on their heads; the hair of all 39 has grown back—in the same color and texture. Two of the Marshallese women have had normal babies. A third baby is reported on the way.

At the same time, 31 U. S. weathermen disregarded safety precautions and exposed themselves to H-bomb fall-out. (Had it been an A-bomb, the danger of injury at this distance normally would have been nil.) Later, exhaustive examination of the men revealed no illness. What were thought to be minor body burns in a few cases soon cleared up.

The 23 Japanese fishermen, also exposed, suffered burns. Later, all were reported seriously injured internally. Twenty-two were released from a Tokyo hospital on "home leave" last Christmas. The 23rd man died. This developed into a touchy diplomatic problem for America. But it can now be revealed that some U. S. experts seriously doubt that this man died from effects of the bomb. He is said to have contracted hepatitis (a liver disorder) not necessarily associated with radioactive injury.

In addition, U. S. authorities secretly question the Japanese policy of "dumping" the tuna caught by the 23 fishermen and other catches shortly after the bomb was detonated. Indications are that tuna from the first catch—probably—and fish from later catches —definitely—were edible. They had, in other words, not been severely damaged by radioactivity.

The West Coast Wasn't Hurt

U. S. experts further tested fish just outside the Bikini and nearby Eniwetok lagoons and found them safe to eat. Thorough inspection of tuna reaching the West Coast, shortly afterward, revealed no trace of radiation injury.

Some days after this Bikini test, hydrogen-bomb fall-out also appeared on the U. S. West Coast, some 5,000 miles from ground zero. It was about 500 to 1,000 times weaker than radioactive levels which produce injury. A few days later, fall-out was detected on the East Coast. It was even less potent.

As for the fall-out from British and Soviet tests which has reached this country, the levels of radioactivity have been far too low to cause injury.

Do bomb tests now spell danger for future generations?

"HOT" FALL-OUT is analyzed in this elaborate machine operated by an AEC technician. Rolls of 100 fall-out samples are fed into the machine, "counted" and recorded.

This, then, is the "box score" on the immediate, fall-out effect of the bomb tests over the past decade. In only one, last year's hydrogen-bomb blast, were people injured. A man died, but his death may not have been caused by H-bomb fall-out. Animals have been injured in U. S. atom tests.

Fall-out has, at times, caused rumors of all sorts to spread through the country like wildfire. But the fact is that fall-out has not affected the general health of the American people. It does not cause epidemics of known diseases, nor does it cause new, different or mysterious diseases. Fall-out does not make you feel one way or another. It does not change the course of illness as it occurs in everyday living.

Even Close Up, You're Safe

This is true whether you live in Maine, California or close to ground zero at the Nevada proving grounds. Even the people in communities closest to the proving grounds have been exposed to radiation levels far less than 1/100 of the dose considered dangerous. The water they drink and the air they breathe have not been contaminated by test fall-out.

The tragedy of the Pacific tests last year will not be duplicated in Nevada for many reasons—among them the fact that atomic, not hydrogen, devices are shot off at Yucca Flat. Atomic bombs have only a fraction of the blast "yield" of hydrogen bombs. The AEC and our defense experts know exactly what that A-bomb yield is.

With the H-bomb, this was not true. The blast yield was twice what our scientists had estimated it would be. So was the "danger zone." The latter, before the test, was calculated at 200 miles east and west and 100 miles north and south. After the blast, the zone was placed at 335 miles east and west and 150 miles north and south. But the bombs shot off in Nevada simply are not big and powerful enough to produce that effect.

There remains one major question in the minds of many of our top scientists. This involves the body characteristics passed on via the genes from one generation to another, and the mutations or changes in those characteristics.

Some scientists feel that bomb tests today may be condemning future generations perhaps 200, 500 or 1,000 years from now. They offer this explanation: The earth's surface has a low "background" of radiation caused by cosmic rays from outer space. World-wide bomb tests are gradually raising this natural background level.

This raised level, in turn, could destroy the ability of our genes to be reproduced in a normal manner. Such inability in the basic body cells could, in future generations, lead to the birth of freakish, abnormal babies.

That is the contention. It is highly controversial. A prominent California scientist, supporting it, has said: "There is no possible escape from the conclusion that the bombs already exploded will ultimately result in the production of numerous defective individuals—if the human species itself survives for many generations.

"And every new bomb exploded, since its radioactive products are widely dispersed over the earth, will result in an increase in this ultimate harvest of defective individuals. Some such defectives would be present if the bombs had never been invented; the point is that the number due to the bombs will be added to this irreducible minimum."

He added, "It may well be that the possible gains [from bomb tests] are worth the calculated risk. But it must be remembered that the risk is one to which the entire human race, present and future, is being subjected."

That scientist's attitude has been echoed in this country and in Great Britain, where one authority recently declared that there is a grave danger to the future of mankind from test explosions "if they are not controlled in time."

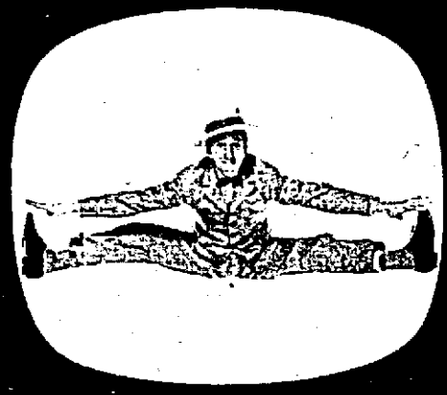

Policy-Makers Aren't Worried

These are strong statements. However, Government and other scientists responsible for making U. S. policy regarding bomb tests simply do not "buy" them.

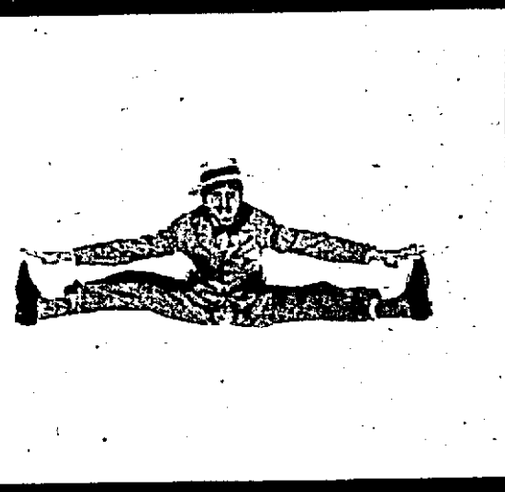

Present Government policy is predicated on the conviction that bomb tests as they are being conducted represent no threat to public welfare now or in the future. Says one high official: "There is no cause for alarm, either on the basis of past tests or on the basis of any conceivable testing program—American, British or Russian."

Long before any dangerous level of air contamination was reached, he adds, U. S. officials would know about it and would know what to do about it.

All this, of course, applies to peacetime bomb testing. If war comes, all bets on the danger of fall-out are off. ■

BOBO + SID = BOBO OLSON

His own skill and his manager's fatherly shrewdness blend to make this middleweight a unique champion

by LLOYD SHEARER

SAN FRANCISCO.

CARL "BOBO" OLSON, middleweight champion of the world and current Fighter of the Year, is a bright light in the gloom of today's boxing picture.

A solid citizen of this town, happily married, financially solvent and the law-abiding father of four children, Bobo at 26 is that rare title-holder whose good name has never been tainted by scandal, high jinks or underworld overtones.

Since boxers, for the most part, reflect the standards of their managers, this is as much a tribute to Sid Flaherty as it is to the Honolulu-born Olson. A tall, shrewd, untalkative bachelor of 41, Flaherty is not only Bobo's manager but his closest friend. These two have formed the most successful prize-fighting firm now operating and a true father-and-son relationship.

For example, the $64,000 purse that Olson netted for defending his title against Pierre Langlois last month went directly into a trust fund set up by Flaherty. "The trouble with many fighters," explains the latter, who controls a stable of 32 of them, "is that they make large sums of money in short periods of time. Practically all of them started out in life as poor kids. They spent extravagantly, and in the later years they're broke.

"It's not going to happen to Bobo or any of my other boys. When Bobo retires he's going to have enough to live on. That is, if he continues to listen."

To date, Olson has listened. When he fought Kid Gavilan in Chicago last year, Flaherty flashed unobtrusive hand signals all through the bout. Bobo won. Of the Langlois fight, Olson says, "I knew what the Frenchman had by the second round. Maybe I could've put him away before the 11th. But Sid said, 'Take it easy.' And what Sid says is good enough for me."

In managing the middleweight champ, Flaherty's basic objective is the acquisition of money. Therefore the team of Olson & Flaherty is prepared to take on all comers. Since Bobo won the world title by beating Randy Turpin in New York on October 21, 1953, he has fought seven times, increasing the assets of his trust fund by an estimated $225,000.

How long can Bobo last at this pace? Flaherty's estimate is another 10 to 14 years. Olson laconically answers, "I don't know." His small, dark-haired wife says, "I'm sure Bobo will retire before he's 30. He doesn't like to fight any more. After all, he's been fighting most of his life."

Life for Carl Elmer Olson began in Honolulu in July, 1928. His wife-to-be, Helen Cavaco, who accompanied him to Pauoa grade school, remembers that "Bobo was a tough, skinny kid who had three sisters and a father who was a detective. Today Bobo's father is a Treasury agent and has a Japanese wife who loves my husband as a son. But his real mother is Annie Olson, a beautiful Portuguese woman. Her father was a giant—6 feet 8. I think it's from that side of the family Bobo inherited his great strength."

When Bobo—the name is the result of

When Olson retires from the ring, he'll become a TV crooner—maybe

an older sister's inability to pronounce "brother"—was 12, his parents were separated. The boy quit school and went to work on a friend's farm. There he milked cows, rode horses—"For a while I thought I'd become a jockey, but I grew up too fast"—and developed muscles.

He was only 13 when the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor. By then he had reached his full height, 5 feet 10½, and for several years hardly a week passed without some serviceman calling him a "draft dodger."

On every such occasion Bobo and his fists went to work. "One time," his wife recalls, "we were riding on a trolley in Honolulu—Bobo was only 14, I think. A soldier called him a punk. At the next stop Bobo invited the soldier to step outside. Bobo threw one punch. That was the end of the fight."

A steady diet of this gave Olson a wary eye, lightning-fast reaction time, an affinity for the boxing ring. He began hanging around Honolulu gyms. In one of these he was noticed by Sgt. Sid Flaherty, then staging fights for Special Services.

"What I liked most about the kid," Sid says now, "was his eye. He had the wonderful alertness to see a punch coming his way and to avoid it. After watching him for a month, I told him if he ever came to San Francisco to look me up."

Bobo turned professional when he was 16. A year later he and Helen were married.

"We were as poor as church mice," Mrs. Olson recalls. "We received only one wedding present—a blanket from Bobo's sister.

"I think Bobo remembers our poverty more than anything. When we first came to San Francisco—I guess it was 1945—he fought 10 bouts at $25 a fight. You won't find those fights in the record books. But for us it was fight or starve. I remember now how downhearted we were when the California Boxing Commission learned that Bobo was under 18 and told him to go home."

Back in Honolulu, Olson agreed to be managed by a local dairyman, Herbert Campos, who soon shipped him to the Philippines and Australia. Bobo did well; when he lost to Dave Sands, the British middleweight champion, in Sydney, it was only his second defeat in 47 fights. Seven months later he lasted 12 rounds against Sugar Ray Robinson, the world champion, in Philadelphia.

"Maybe Robinson was the better fighter," Mrs. Olson offers. "I'm not saying he wasn't. A year later he took a 15-round decision from Bobo. But in that first fight I don't think Bobo would ever have been knocked out if he'd had enough to eat. The truth is that before the fight we didn't have enough money for food.

"After the fight we realized that something was wrong. Bobo had been fighting for six years and winning practically all of the time. Still we had no money. That's when Bobo decided to join up with Sid Flaherty."

When Olson signed with Flaherty in 1951—the agreement calls for Sid to get one-third of Bobo's take—the balding middleweight placed himself under the aegis of a sentimental, sagacious and scrupulously honest boxing manager.

His Fighters Also Work

Flaherty runs his string of fighters on the unusual premise that their welfare comes first. He keeps a seven-room apartment near the Golden Gate where various of his battlers live with him. He makes each—including Bobo—join local 860 of the teamsters union here. When they're not training or fighting he wants them to work at a gainful occupation.

When Sid got hold of Olson, Bobo was far from a polished fighter. He had a tendency to slap with his left and wait for his opponent to come to him. Flaherty turned him into the finest infighter and pacer in the game. Olson, in the words of one expert, "fights when he has to and never retreats by stepping back. While he doesn't possess a terrific knockout punch, he's a superb boxer who can wear any man down with his telling body blows and his great stamina."

Outside the ring he suffers from an inferiority complex motivated in part by his Hawaiian accent and his limited formal education. He dislikes being interviewed without Flaherty's permission for fear he'll say the wrong thing. "I don't talk so good," he explains. "Gotta get an education. Maybe it's too late for me. But not for my kids. They're gonna get an education. Every one of 'em."

Olson has three boys and a girl, on whom he lavishes all the affection denied him as a child. After the Turpin fight, an attempt was made to kidnap his oldest boy, Carl, Jr., then 6. The Olsons quickly began searching the San Francisco suburbs for a new home. A few months ago they found a three-bedroom ranch house for $47,000 in Hillsborough, sometimes called the "millionaires' community."

In this house Olson wrestles on the floor with his offspring, sleeps 10 hours a day and, when not in training, enjoys the life of a 26-year-old nouveau riche. He owns a 1954 Cadillac, two horses and, of course, an extensive collection of trophies. He gives handsomely to charity.

His wife, a 100-pound brunette of Portuguese extraction, lights candles for him at the local Catholic church before each fight—alone.

"Before each bout," she explains, "Bobo moves into town and sleeps at Sid Flaherty's apartment. When I get to see him, the fight's all over, and he's very relaxed.

"He comes home and plays with the children and sings with our friends. In fact, Bobo's got a very good voice. When he retires he'll still be a young man. That's why I keep telling him to take singing lessons. He's much better than most of the crooners on television. And he very easily could become a well-known singer."

Does Bobo think so too? Questioned, the middleweight champion of the world breaks into a small, diffident smile.

"You shouldn't listen to Helen," he says. "She's loved me since I was a kid." ■

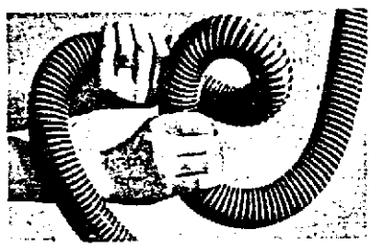

FAMILY MAN Bobo poses with most of his brood: Vincent (on his lap), Brenda, Mrs. Olson, Arthur. Missing when this picture was taken: oldest son Carl, Jr.

Chocolate Swirl Cake

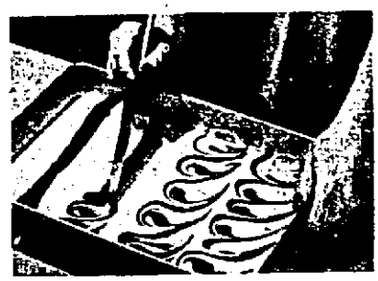

THE CAKE-EATERS in your family will love this new, beautiful version of four-layer marble cake. It's so easy—made by the dish-saving one-bowl method (as is the frosting) and with only one pan to wash! Serve it to climax this family dinner: grapefruit juice; meat loaf with tomato sauce; baked potatoes and Brussels sprouts; shredded raw carrot and raisin salad.

CHOCOLATE SWIRL CAKE

- 1 ¾ cups sifted cake flour
- 1 ½ cups sugar
- 2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
- ¼ teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ cup shortening (at room temperature)
- 1 cup evaporated milk, undiluted
- 2 eggs
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 squares unsweetened chocolate

Measure sifted flour, sugar, baking powder, soda and salt into flour sifter. Place shortening in mixing bowl; stir to soften. Sift in dry ingredients. Add ⅔ cup milk; mix until all flour is dampened. Beat 2 minutes at low speed of electric mixer, or 300 vigorous strokes by hand. Add eggs, remaining ⅓ cup milk and vanilla. Beat 1 minute longer in mixer or 150 strokes by hand. Melt chocolate. Pour batter into greased and floured 13" x 9" x 2" pan. Pour melted chocolate in four even rows across batter. With a table knife, cut through batter along these rows, in continuous circles, to make swirled pattern. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 35 to 40 minutes, or until done. Cool. Cut cake in half crosswise; split each half, making four layers. Spread Fluffy Brandy Filling between layers and around sides. Chill well before serving.

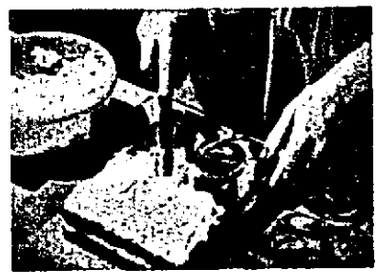

FLUFFY BRANDY FILLING: Combine in small mixing bowl: 1 ½ cups vegetable shortening, 1 cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup water, 1 teaspoon brandy flavoring and two eggs. Beat at high speed of electric beater (or with sturdy egg beater) about 10 minutes, or until smooth and fluffy.

POUR melted chocolate in four rows across the batter. Cut through the batter in continuous circles, for swirls.

AFTER the cake has cooled, cut the loaf in half crosswise. Then carefully split each half, to make four layers.

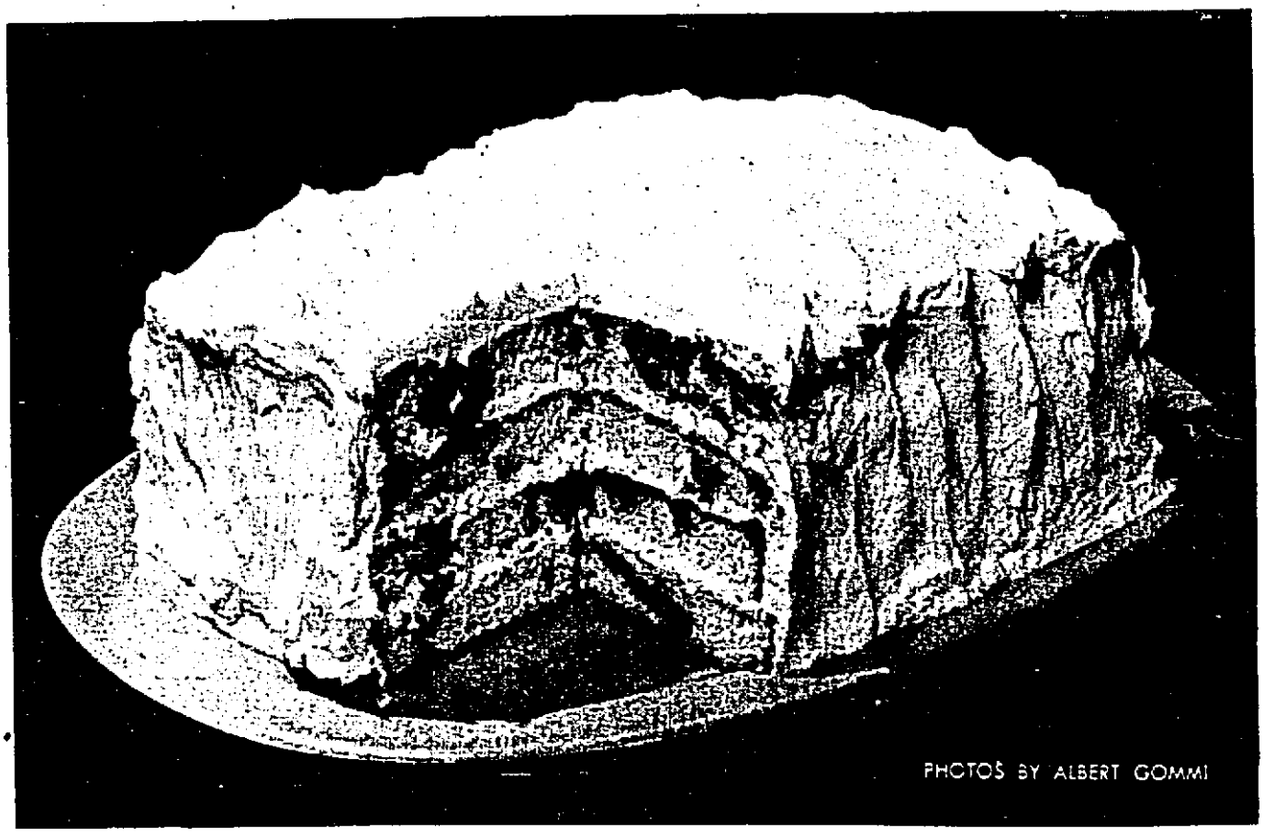

SPREAD Fluffy Brandy Filling between the layers, saving enough for the top and sides. Serve cake cut in squares.

KITCHEN HINT:

When melting chocolate, place the squares in aluminum foil in top of double boiler; set over hot water. When melted, lift out in foil. No pan to wash!

Goddard has no grades, no exams, no athletics.

PLAINFIELD, VT.

NO IVY TWINES along the weather-beaten walls of Goddard College near here. The omission is significant; it shows just how far Goddard—enrollment 70, faculty 20—has gone in its break with the time-honored traditions of the academic world. For Goddard, housed in a cluster of farm buildings—the president's office is in a silo—has none of the things people associate with campus life.

There are no grades, no credits, no "required" subjects, no lectures, no exams. There are no fraternities, no athletics. There are no diplomas.

A great many people—including educators—might add: no education, either. But Goddardites tell you passionately that theirs is the ideal U.S. college. For proof they point to the recommendations of the President's Commission on Higher Education. Only Goddard, they claim, jibes with the report in every particular. They quote at random:

Small enrollment: Goddard's planned maximum is 250.

Small classes: Goddard's largest is 20, its average 10 or less.

Individual curricula: Each student's program is drawn up according to his own needs and interests from a selection of liberal-arts, education and social-affairs courses.

Art courses: Goddard offers painting, sculpture, drama, music, dance.

Work as part of education: Every student has daily chores. There is a two-month off-campus work term.

Study in non-Western cultures: Goddard specializes in India, China, the Far East.

Courses related to a changing world: Each course is revamped annually in line with new developments.

College in the U.S.

Yet this Vermont school claims to be America's 'ideal college'

Democratic government: Students and faculty have equal footing in a weekly "town meeting" that governs the campus and was responsible, among other things, for abolishing diplomas, athletics, fraternities.

What's behind this odd college that refuses to act like a college? Two things: a man and an idea. The man is Dr. Royce S. Pitkin, an ex-prep school headmaster and disciple of "progressive education" pundit John Dewey, who came to withering Goddard Seminary and Junior College in 1935. After a series of talks with other educators and prominent Vermonters, he shook the school to its century-old foundations by substituting a whole new approach to education.

Out went the old traditions as more hindrance than help. "Take exams," says Dr. Pitkin. "A student doesn't study to learn, but to make a grade. What he really studies is not the subject, but the teacher." By Pitkin standards, learning is an individual—and full-time—process, not to be determined by number of credits or classes.

In came three new traditions: individual attention, democracy, informality. The casual air is important in Goddard's scheme of things. Instructors are called by first names. (Dr. Pitkin is "Tim.") Faculty and students eat together, work together in the kitchen, study together, play together.

Once a coed bringing her parents for their first tour met Instructor Robert Mattuck along the road. Mattuck, bare-chested and puffing a pipe, wore his college running shorts. "This is Bob, my literature teacher," said the girl. Mattuck nodded, puffed and jogged away. The parents began to see why Plainfield refers to "those loonies on the hill."

For whiter teeth change to Pepsodent

Look in your mirror . . . See the promise of whiter teeth come true!

...because of all leading toothpastes...

Nothing gets teeth as clean...as white... as Pepsodent!

Only in Pepsodent do you find the world's most effective tooth-cleaning ingredient. It is "I.M.P."... Insoluble Meta-Phosphate ... and it is found only in the Pepsodent-Irium formula because Pepsodent uses the entire world's supply.

That's why nothing . . . no other leading tooth paste . . . gets teeth as clean, as white as Pepsodent. Lever Brothers unconditionally guarantees that you will see this promise of whiter teeth come true—or will gladly refund your money.

Remember, too, cleaner, whiter teeth means less chance of tooth decay—and a sweeter breath with that clean mouth taste that lasts for hours. Why not change to Pepsodent today?

Have you tried Pepsodent Chlorophyll? Stops mouth odors instantly. Keeps your breath fresh for hours—yet won't stain!

SQUARE DANCING, students and faculty take time out togethe for recreation. Other Goddard pastimes: singing, winter sports

Goddard means democracy, responsibility, independence— and a good deal of hard work

TRANSPLANTED to a class, this old-shoe air keeps the atmosphere friendly, relaxed and conducive to study. "Discussion groups" meet under a tree or around a fireplace. The student says what he pleases. The instructor doesn't lecture; he simply keeps the discussion in order.

Once a week, each student sits down with his faculty counselor to knit together loose ends of his study and to map out his future program. The talks are intended to help a student over the rough spots; but often they veer off into personal problems or just plain bull sessions.

At the heart of Goddard's system is the relationship of student to community—the college community and the community at large. The "town meeting" is part of this training. Arguments are hot and frequent; a perennial bone of contention is whether pets should be outlawed on campus. So far, the pro-dog faction has managed to beat off all "attacks on our personal freedom."

Relations with the outside world are learned in the winter work term. During these two months, the student takes a job, preferably away from home; both he and his employer appraise his work afterwards. This, Dr. Pitkin thinks, teaches him independence and responsibility. And during his last semester he often eliminates classes entirely, chooses a research project that keeps him off campus most of the time.

What kind of students go to Goddard? An average group—"some geniuses, some dullards," says one faculty member. Students come mostly from the East, although one second-year student now is from Idaho. A limiting factor: Goddard's cost, at $1,100 a year tuition and $650 board, is high. But scholarships are many. Students themselves gather maple sirup, sell it, use the proceeds for the scholarship fund. Unendowed Goddard still winds up about $50,000 in the red each year, must scratch around for donations from friends.

Are students more serious at Goddard? They seem to be; but devotion to learning is "the thing to do" at Goddard, just as joining a fraternity might be at another school. Recreation is home-grown; square dancing, group singing and winter sports are favorites. Often, students will drive to Dartmouth, 50 miles away, for a movie or a lecture.

But students enjoy their college days at Goddard; by worldly standards, most graduates have achieved success. Of course, Goddard does not measure success by conventional yardsticks. In its view, one gets a degree but does not graduate; learning goes on forever. ■

AUTHOR OF "AMY VANDERBILT'S COMPLETE BOOK OF ETIQUETTE"

When a Wedding Is on the Calendar

Q. In sending out an announcement of a secret wedding, is it necessary to state where the marriage was performed?—R.F., Akron, O.

A. Yes, it is necessary to state the place in which the marriage was performed, and the date. If it did not take place in a church, just the town or city and the date, including the year, are used.

Q. One of the girls in our shop was recently married and we men gave gifts that were beyond our means. It isn't that we regret this, but we now have another problem. The girl is now in her own home and has invited us to visit her. Is it proper for us to go empty-handed?—W.S.H., Portland, Me.

A. It is never actually necessary to take a "house gift." I am sure that your friend is already very appreciative of your generosity.

Q. My nephew is getting married and I am not to be in the wedding party, although I will be a guest. My daughter insists that I should not wear my best black dress—that black isn't proper at a wedding. I'd like to wear it and brighten it with a little pink. Would this be all right?—C.C.A., Chicago, Ill.

A. Yes, you may wear the dress you describe and brightening it with pink would make it more festive. It is only the women who are in the wedding party who may not wear black.

Q. Would it be all right for me to wear a suit to a five o'clock wedding?—S.J.G., Harrisburg, Pa.

A. Yes, if it is a dressy one—say, in silk taffeta, or even one of the new, very dressy, decorated wools, cut like silk. Wear dressy shoes and hat. A tailored suit would be inappropriate.

Q. I understand that when an engagement is announced, the boy's parents call as soon as possible upon the parents of the girl. But my case is very difficult. My daughter, who is announcing her engagement, lives with me and I am divorced from her father, who lives in the same town. We are fairly friendly. Would it be expected of us to receive this call together at my home? Should they ignore my daughter's father, or call separately?—D.W.W., Columbus, Ga.

A. Receive their call without your former husband. They may call on your daughter's father separately if he is still very much part of all of your lives. If they do call, they call jointly, or the boy's father may call alone on your former husband and perhaps, during the call, arrange for him to come and meet the new family.

Q. I am a young widow about to marry a divorced man. Should I formally announce my engagement? Do I send out announcements of the marriage, and if so, how does my name appear on them? Do my parents issue them?—Mrs. N.S.W., Sarasota, Fla.

A. Some widows do formally announce their engagements. But as you are marrying a divorced man, I would prefer to see you tell your friends informally that you are going to remarry. The marriage can be announced either by your parents or by you jointly with your new husband. In the first case, your name (e.g. Jane Ann Smith or Jane Brown Smith) appears without "Mrs."; in the second, you use your former husband's name (Mrs. John Warren Smith).

MOTHER and daughter: Mrs. Koford and Terry go shopping for a new hat.

Don't Raise Your Girl to Be an Actress

Terry Moore's mother says frankly, 'It isn't worth the heartache'

● In the past 50 years Hollywood has done more to perpetuate the Cinderella legend than any other force on earth. The girl who achieves screen stardom, we've been told, automatically wins fame, fortune and lasting happiness. This is not so.

In their personal lives, film actresses tend to fare rather badly. Those who place a career above everything else usually marry weak men. Those who are husbandless have great trouble finding worthy marriageable men. There are many happy couples in movieland—but, with a few exceptions, every top-flight Hollywood actress has been divorced at least once.

Terry Moore's mother, Mrs. Luella Koford, has been in and around Hollywood for almost 30 years. She knows all the angles. In this article she diplomatically skips over one or two, such as her daughter's brief, unhappy marriage to football star Glenn Davis; but her writing is truthful and refreshing.

by LUELLA KOFORD

HOLLYWOOD.

Several weeks ago I was sitting in the balcony of a television theater. The young man beside me leaned over and said, "What a pig they've got on this show!"

I waited.

"Terry Moore. She's also a lush," he added. "A few years ago I saw her carried out of a bar in New Orleans."

I waited no longer. "I'm Terry Moore's mother," I said flatly. "We're Mormons, and Terry doesn't drink or smoke. What's more, she's never been in New Orleans in her life."

"Oh, yes, she has. I saw her—"

"Look," I exploded. "We're going backstage. I want you to tell that to Terry face-to-face!"

We went—and Mr. Know-it-all promptly backed water. "I'd like to apologize," he muttered. "It wasn't Terry. It was some other actress . . . "

That's incident No. 1. Multiply it a thousand times while I tell you about incident No. 2.

To entertain our servicemen in Korea during 1953, Terry gave up her Christmas holidays and a good deal of money. In Korea she appeared in a one-piece ermine bathing suit. Back in the States, some of the columnists denounced her for being "risqué." Some even implied that she had jeopardized the morals of our soldiers.

The servicemen didn't think that. When Terry returned to the States, hundreds of them wrote her thank-you notes. "If we're old enough to fight and die for our country," said a typical one, "then we're old enough to see a pretty girl in a bathing suit."

Incident No. 3 occurred this past December 16. The Air Forces asked Terry if she would take her own troupe overseas and spend Christmas entertaining our boys in Iceland and Scotland. Terry agreed.

She gave up everything—Christmas shopping, TV appearances, interviews, parties, dates—to choose a good group. She interviewed dozens of girls, some of whom she turned down. One of the latter, a dancer, then announced that she had been fired from an overseas entertainment unit because Terry Moore objected to her costume—a bare-midriff, split-skirt affair.

The fact is that Terry turned this girl down because she was Cuban—and thus would have had trouble getting a re-entry permit into the U.S. Yet in several quarters they called Terry a jealous cat!

Life in a Goldfish Bowl

These three incidents are pinpoints in a pattern. The girl who becomes a successful actress leads her private life in public. Thereafter, she is fair game. No matter how innocent her behavior, she must be prepared to defend her every word and movement.

Such a "goldfish" existence obviously is abnormal. If Terry had to do it all over again, she would never become an actress.

But, you say, if she feels that way, why did she get into film work in the first place?

To begin with, it was accidental and circumstantial. It was not a case of psychological projection. I never have been a frustrated actress. I have never tried to re-live my life through my daughter.

What happened was that we moved to Glendale, a suburb of Los Angeles, because Terry in her young days was asthmatic. Glendale's climate was good for her. One of our neighbors, Ann Jensen, took a liking to Terry, so I gave her a picture of my little girl.

Unbeknownst to us, Ann sent the photo to the Wells Casting Directory. It was printed in their catalogue of players and seen by Owen MacLean of 20th Century-Fox. He phoned and asked me to bring Terry to the studio.

Terry was then 11, and like most mothers I was filled with pride and joy. I took her to the studio, and she was signed at $150 a week. That's how we got on the roller coaster.

Terry was at the impressionable age. Working with movie stars became the biggest thing in her life. From 20th she moved to Eagle-Lion, then to Columbia, then to RKO. Now she's back to 20th, where she recently finished Daddy Long Legs. It takes only a few seconds to mention the names of these studios, but Terry already has spent 15 years of her youth working at them.

Of course, being a screen actress has its rewards. Terry has learned to ride, speak, carry herself. She's traveled widely, and she's met fascinating people. Perhaps too fascinating.

'Big Names' Can Be Dazzling

Take a young girl and let her be directed by Elia Kazan, act with Burt Lancaster and Shirley Booth, have story conferences with Darryl Zanuck. Let her earn $1,000 a week. Then have her meet an average young man. Terry is sweet and relatively unspoiled, but subconsciously she'll compare the average young man to all the handsome, talented, exciting fellows she has worked with for 15 years.

Look at the girls who spent their early formative years in films: Shirley Temple, Deanna Durbin, Judy Garland. There are many others besides Terry. Their first marriages went to pot, because these girls did not have normal backgrounds to choose their husbands wisely.

Moreover, many worthwhile young men are afraid to date actresses. My Terry likes to stay home or go to movies. She has never been a night-club lizard. But the eligible young bachelor doesn't know that. He judges an actress by the buildup that's preceded her.

A girl—particularly a rising young actress—has got to go out, has got to be seen. So what happens? The actress falls back on fellows she's worked with or the handful of playboys who constantly circulate in Hollywood. We all become a part of what we tolerate. Sooner or later an attraction springs up, and there's the elopement to Las Vegas.

There is a lot of heartbreak in being an actress. I remember the time Terry was tested for a role in True to Life with Dick Powell and Mary Martin. One assistant director said she was too young, another that she was too old. She went through still tests, wardrobe tests, makeup tests. They dressed her with a wig, without a wig. She had to dye her hair, then re-dye it. In the end she didn't get the part. Instead she got one day's work playing a bit.

The night after she'd played her bit she came home, buried her head in my lap and sobbed. I tried to comfort her. "Darling," I said, "you must remember—adversity builds character." I'll never forget her answer: "Oh, Mama, I'm tired of building character!"

But Terry was in her teens by then, and despite all the heartache she refused to quit. Today, acting is the only skill she knows. She works at it with determination and persistence; but let the right man come along, and she will chuck it all for a home and a family. At least, she says she will.

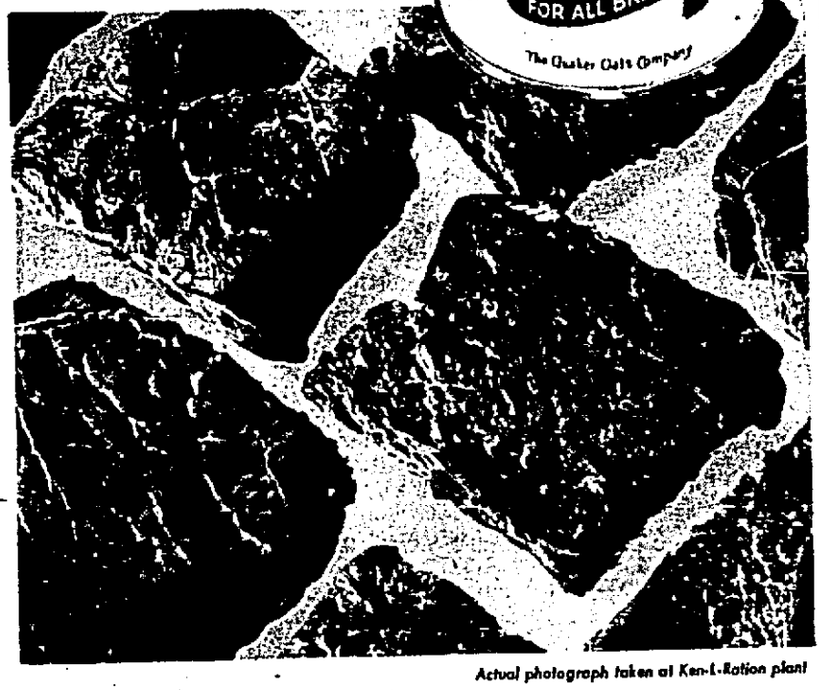

The tragedy in being a young actress is that the career virus gets such an early start. As it grows, it becomes increasingly difficult to stamp out. Sometimes it becomes impossible. ■

DIANNE FOSTER KNOWS!

There's No Easy Way to Stardom

By George Lait

DIANNE FOSTER, a brown-eyed, chestnut-haired beauty from Canada, is one Hollywood actress who insists that there is no easy way to stardom. Sheer hard work and the will to succeed are her recipe for film success. Not provocatively perching on a drugstore stool or wearing a Bikini bathing suit.

Costarring with Glenn Ford, Barbara Stanwyck and Edward G. Robinson in Columbia's recently released CinemaScope-Technicolor western, "The Violent Men," Dianne has climbed to the top without having to resort to the antics of many Hollywood cuties involving "cheesecake" poses and other off-beat shenanigans to attract attention.

Now under a long-term contract at Columbia, Dianne got her start doing minor roles on Canadian radio programs. Her ability and ambition finally earned her a reputation as Canada's best radio actress and eventually landed her a role on the London stage in Agatha Christie's "The Hollow."

Dianne's film career began, first in England, then in Hollywood, and with a solid background.

Hollywood pays, and pays well, for this type of background, because it is not attained easily. Beauty alone won't give it to you. Publicity alone won't give it to you. Only one thing will—work, and a lot of it, she acknowledges.

Dianne made her Hollywood debut co-starring with Charlton Heston and Lizabeth Scott in "Bad for Each Other." She next played the feminine lead opposite Mickey Rooney in "Drive a Crooked Road," and then starred opposite Robert Francis in Bryan Foy's "The Bamboo Prison."

A co-starring role followed in Columbia's "Three Hours to Kill," Technicolor Western with Dana Andrews and Donna Reed, and a loan-out to Hecht-Lancaster for the feminine lead opposite Burt Lancaster in "The Kentuckian," which was just shot on location in Kentucky.

UNLIKE some thespians who come to this country, Dianne is grateful to Hollywood. She says she thanks American film producers for "untyping" her. With Hollywood frequently accused of typing its actors, this is an unusual statement.

In every British film, Dianne says, she was cast as the "other woman."

Since her arrival in this country, Dianne has played nothing but sympathetic roles, such as her part in "The Violent Men," in which she plays the daughter of Barbara Stanwyck and Edward G. Robinson.

But Miss Foster is ready to exercise a woman's prerogatives and change her mind about her screen roles. She confesses that actually she's tired of being "untyped" now and wants to be "retyped." She feels there's more of a challenge in portraying a woman who is slightly evil.

She made her acting debut at the age of 13 in the role of Maggie, in Sir James M. Barrie's "What Every Woman Knows." She started her commercial radio career at the age of 14.

For a time, Dianne relinquished acting and worked as a fashion and photographic model. She likes sports, particularly swimming and the outdoors.

In looking over photographs taken during her modeling career, it is easy to say that figures don't lie. Any time Miss Foster chooses to join the "cheesecake" brigade, Hollywood's most highly touted "oomph" and "It" girls have a definite competitor!

Dianne says it's nice to be able to count on hidden talents —if necessary. But she's glad she didn't capitalize on her figure first.

Up-the-ladder Girl . . . that's Dianne Foster, who has climbed to stardom with sheer ability and hard work.

Mermaid . . . Dianne climbed to the top without having to join a "cheesecake brigade." She likes to swim!

Outdoor girl. . . . Her co-starring role in Columbia's forthcoming Technicolor western, "The Violent Men," fits right in with her love for the outdoor life.

Three Little Pigs Scout Ocean's Depths

By Jim Phelan

THREE little guinea pigs named Cousteau, Tailliez and Dumas recently successfully underwent a test that may help open vast territories of the undersea world to man.

They survived the equivalent of a deep sea dive to 1,010 feet —almost twice as far as any man has ventured into the watery depths.

The three animals made the "dive" without even getting their paws wet. They made it in a specially built pressure chamber on a patio overlooking Mandeville Canyon in West Los Angeles, miles from the ocean.

The experiment was performed by Parry Bivens, an engineer and veteran aqua-lung diver, and his fiancee, Zale Parry, who holds the women's record for the deepest aqua-lung dive. The experiment was one of a series that Bivens is making, preparatory to an attempt this summer to establish a new world record for an aqua-lung dive. The present record is 350 feet, set last fall by John Clark-Samazan off Catalina Island. Bivens intends to try for 400 feet.

The enormous water pressure of such a depth presents dangerous obstacles to the dive, and Bivens used the three little pigs as a sort of scouting party to test the reactions of living creatures to the great squeeze of the lightless deep.

Even in heavy full-dress diving suits, the deepest man has gone down into the sea is less than 600 feet (not counting Bathyspheres and similar equipment). Every 33 feet that he descends his body takes on an additional 15 pounds of pressure per square inch. As the pressure mounts, it forces gas into the blood stream, the way carbonation dissolves gas into soda water. Too much nitrogen in the blood produces a drunken sensation in the diver, and too much oxygen can poison him. A diver who goes below 200 feet on compressed air risks death. Deeper dives are possible on a mixture of helium and oxygen, which helps the diver avoid nitrogen drunkenness. But the use of helium requires a long and complicated decompression process. There is little data available on this subject for dives below 400 feet. The Navy has tested animals in a simulated 750-foot dive, but Bivens' guinea pigs were true pioneers, venturing into a region of pressure where no man or animal ever had gone.

BIVENS HIMSELF built the pressure chamber in which the animals were tested. It contained a thick plexiglass porthole in the top, through which he could observe the actions of the animals during the test.

"We put them under 450 pounds per square inch," said Bivens. "That's the equivalent of a 1,010-foot dive. We 'sent them down' in just 10 minutes. To avoid oxygen poisoning I cut down the mixture until they were getting only 6 per cent oxygen, compared with 21 per cent in normal air."

The tricky part of the test was getting the diving pigs "back up" after they reached the simulated 1,010 feet. It took them five hours to "surface." Bivens eased off the pressure slowly to enable the animals to decompress without getting gas bubbles in their blood—the cause of the dreaded diving "bends." Bivens kept elaborate charts on the timing of this decompression process and the different oxygen proportions used at various pressures, and he is making the data available to the Navy.

Bivens named his guinea pigs for those French pioneers in deep diving—J. Y. Cousteau, Phillipe Tailliez and Frederick Dumas. Dumas held the record for the deepest free dive—306 feet—for seven years until Samazen set the new mark.

How did the diving guinea pigs take their historic trip to 1,010 feet "under the sea?" They reacted with true Gallic savoire faire. They hopped about the chamber and happily munched lettuce, even when under pressure that would crush a steel ship's hull.

Cousteau, Tailliez and Dumas —the four-footed ones—have blazed the trail into the silent underseas world. From here on, it's up to man.

These little guinea pigs took—and survived—equivalent pressure of a deep-sea dive of 1,010 feet in chamber in which they are shown in photo above.

Their reactions are observed as more and more pressure is put into specially-built chamber.

Near Blythe, California, is one of the world's strange farms—a catfish farm. Here, workers net "breeders" in cages after eggs are laid, transfer them to big pools.

Catfish Farm

By Jack B. Kemmerer

ON THE RICH bottom lands of the lower Colorado River near Blythe, California, lies one of the world's oddest and most unique farms—the first and only commercial catfish farm existing anywhere today.

The idea for such a venture was conjured up by a group of Texans headed by P. H. Hill, former auto dealer of Abilene, who had dreamed of the unusual farm since the late 1940's. Hill's biggest problem was in locating a suitable site for the project.

Their several years search ended when an associate accidentally stumbled on the virgin lands on the Mojave Indian Reservation along the Colorado River.

When first approached about the land lease, government Indian officials thought the idea incredible and asked "Why would anyone want to raise catfish?"

There was a good reason at the time of the farm's inception and an even better one now. In certain sections of the United States catfish are a favorite food — to Southerners and Midwesterners the catfish is a gastronomic triumph and rates far above fried chicken or country ham and hot biscuits.

Most catfish for the commercial market are caught in the Mississippi River and its tributaries and commercial fishermen have never been able to meet the demand. Here was the market for which Hill was aiming.

Before any fish could be harvested off the farm, however, an unanticipated market changed the whole complexion of the sales plan. It turned out that there is just as much a demand—if not more—for live catfish. The embryo fish farmers were deluged with orders from operators of commercial fishing ponds in Southern California and Arizona. This unforeseen, and far more lucrative, market is so vast that there is small possibility of the farm ever attempting to supply the retail meat market.

Getting the operation into high gear was no simple operation. The 640-acre land lease was broken up into ponds which had to be scraped, leveled and then sloped to permit complete drainage at hafvest time. All the ponds had to be connected by canals with the river more than a mile away.

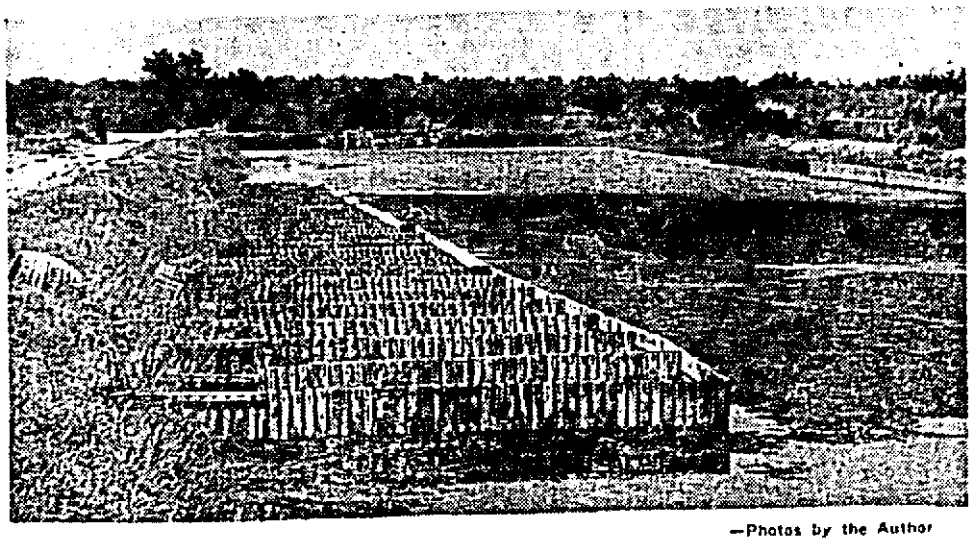

The work was accomplished in record breaking time and the farm is in full operation.

Despite precautions, some minnows get into catfish ponds, are harvested and sold to anglers for bait.

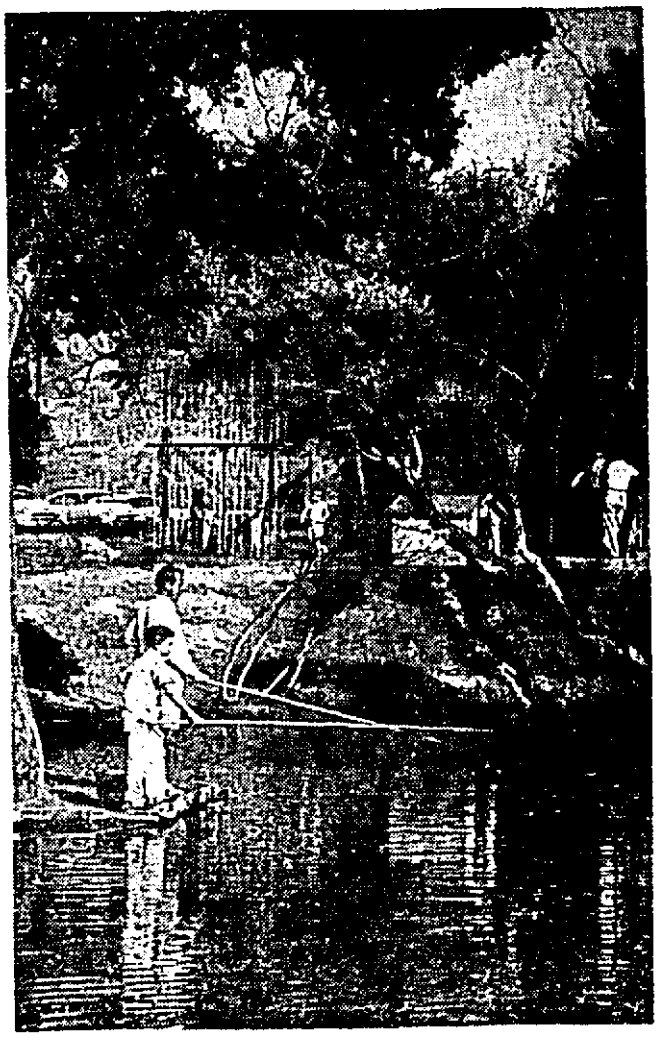

Catfish are so ugly that, in a way, they're attractive. This big channel 'cat' has typical head like a shovel, gash for mouth, whiskers—but he's good eating!

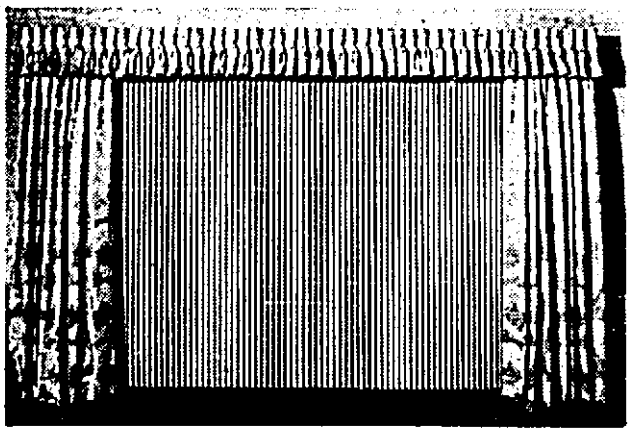

—Photos by the Author

Here is a general view of the catfish farm, showing "maternity ward" where eggs hatch. Fish are paired like purebred stock, spawn in fenced-off coops.

Intending to supply fresh fish market, catfish farmers found biggest trade in live fish for commercial fishing clubs, like above. Income from this harvest is higher.

"You Can Stop Smoking the Same Way I Did!"

— Says C. P. Van Schaack, Jr.

Amazing New Formula Helps Break Smoking Habit in 5 Days Easily and Pleasantly

Read Mr. Van Schaack's True Story!

Mr. C. P. Van Schaack, Jr., is a leading Chicago business man. He is an attorney-at-law and a member of the Chicago and American Bar Associations. To encourage others who want to give up smoking, he tells below how Bantron helped him to quit.

"Our family doctor advised against smoking cigarettes and told me that I would be much better off if I quit for good. Time and time again I tried to stop. Each time I became so irritable and nervous, that I started again. It seemed the lesser of two evils.

"One day a business friend told me about Bantron. I said to myself, 'If he can, I can!' With Bantron, I was amazed how easy it was for me to stop smoking without the nervousness and irritability that accompanied my previous attempts to quit. After five days I had lost all desire for cigarettes, and just didn't want them any more. And how much better I feel!"

In a series of dramatic tests scientists proved that in 83⅓ (4 out of 5) of the cases, Bantron helped men and women to stop smoking in 5 days. And here is the wonderful thing. Bantron is easy and pleasant to take. It has no unpleasant after-effects and is not habit forming.

Bantron was discovered in the research laboratories of a great American university. It comes in tablet form. You just take 1 tablet with water after each meal.

This new scientific formula does not work by making you dislike smoking. It does not interfere with your taste for smoking, or for anything else. Smoking establishes a craving in your body—Bantron helps relieve that craving. Because of this, many people use Bantron to help them cut down smoking.

We Guarantee Results

Purchase one box of Bantron and take as directed. If you feel Bantron has not helped you stop or cut down smoking within 5 days, just send us the empty box and we will refund your full purchase price.

Bantron is recommended to the thousands of men and women who can benefit from stopping or cutting down smoking. If your doctor advises you to stop smoking, try Bantron.

'Next to Heaven' for Sick Kids

By Caroline Coleman

David Smith, 18 months, takes 40 winks in dreamland in tiny bed in Seaside's Children's Hospital.

IT'S ALMOST next to heaven to be sick in Children's Memorial Hospital, housed in the Magnolia Ave. wing of Seaside Hospital.

Children lie in little white beds, looking at murals of well-loved nursery rhymes.

When they get a little better, they play in the children's playroom equipped with TV sets, radios, a lighted aquarium with a variety of fish, record players, a fine electric train, doll houses with furniture of corresponding size, dolls, pandas, books, magazines, puzzles.

There are 50 beds in Children's Memorial Hospital. Most are two-bed rooms; then there are a 12-bed nursery and a six-bed nursery.

A FAIRY TALE castle mural serves as an introduction to Children's Memorial Hospital, and room murals include Peter, Peter, Pumpkin Eater, Little Miss Muffet, Goldilocks and the Three Bears, Little Red Riding Hood, Jack and Jill, Little Boy Blue, Humpty Dumpty, Bo Peep, Simple Simon, the singing cats, Pluto and Bambi. There is a room for Boy Scouts and one for Girl Scouts.

The Auxiliary to Children's Memorial Hospital has been responsible for equipping the hospital, and the Auxiliary shares with Seaside Hospital the responsibility and medication for children whose parents can not afford to pay for it.

As a matter of fact, the Auxiliary provides $25,000 a year for the Children's Memorial Hospital—$2,000 a month for hospitalization and medication for little patients in Children's Memorial Hospital and up to $150 a month for medication for patients in the children's clinic of Seaside Hospital.

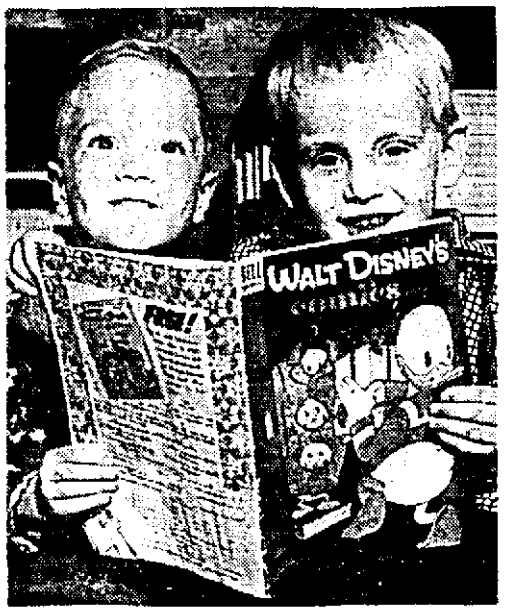

One event through which the work is financed is the "Have a Heart and Help a Child" carnival, the next of which will be held from noon to midnight, Feb. 5 in Lakewood Country Club. Forty organizations will have booths, says Mrs. Guy Barton, press chairman. There will be a children's merry-go-round, and a variety of games and a 1955 two-door Chevrolet sedan will be a prize.

Two other events which help to finance the work are a date week calendar sale in the fall and a "Gaslight Revue" presented in Balboa Bay Club.

President Mrs. Thomas J. Taylor says that in the eight years it has been in existence, the Auxiliary has furnished almost $300,000 for the hospital of the little ones.

DAME NATURE and the simplest of cameras can make artists of any of us in the snow season if we just treat our subject and our equipment right. With this in mind, take your camera along when you go to the mountains to see the snow, to ski and toboggan — then you can make a permanent record of some of winter's fleeting beauty.

Snow pictures in endless array have won ribbons and prizes. Even if they are taken only to show people having fun in the snow, such pictures are great to look back to at a later date.

Snow comes to life under bright sunlight. It isn't photogenic in the usual sense on dull days. But when the sun sets it asparkle — that is certainly time for picture taking. On days like that, snowy landscapes are filled with contrasts, offering ideal picture-taking conditions for either black-and-white or color film.

Sunlight and shadows bring out the texture of the snow and add appeal to your pictures. Don't just snap a picture and let it go at that. Look over your snowy landscape in the viewfinder of your camera . . . look at it from various angles, to see what forms the best picture.

Concentrating on what is framed in the viewfinder is important — just as in any type of scenic shot. If you shoot too fast, you may be disappointed. You may expect the camera to see everything that you saw with your eyes — and it can't, not all in one picture. Your eyes move, sweep the scene. The camera's eye doesn't. It sees just exactly what you see in the viewfinder. Keep that in mind and make beautiful snow pictures this year.

LONG BEACH CAMERA GUILD will have a black and white print competition at 8 p. m. Wednesday at Municipal Art Center, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd.

Winners of the recent color slide competition were Donald Hayward, first; Elva Hayward, second; Therese Whiteside, third; Edith Freeman, Dr. Francis Simpson, Max Henkey, honorable mention. Judge was Floyd Norgaard, past president of El Camino Real Camera Club.

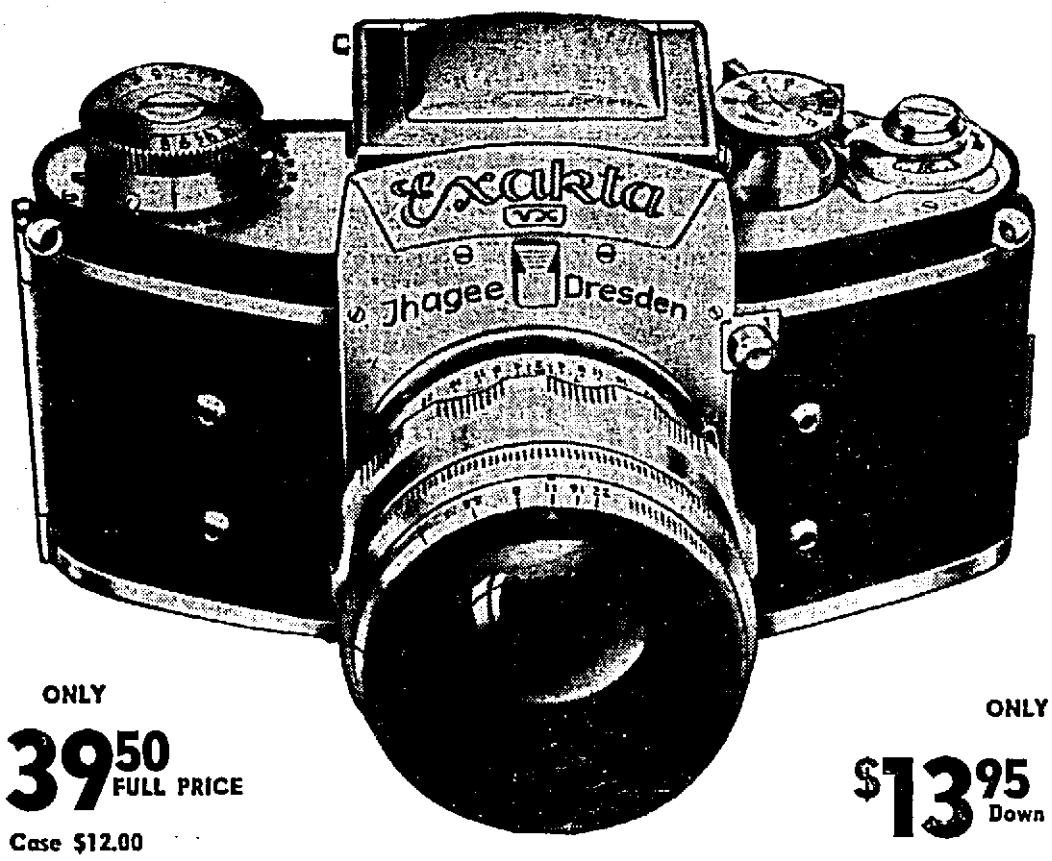

The Guild will have a field trip to Marineland Oceanarium Feb. 6. Members are asked to be there by 10 a. m., so they may take pictures before the crowd is too great.

Mother Nature creates many beautiful settings like this. All the shutterbug needs to do is see them, snap them.

Students at Gardena High School display the Beethoven portrait, which features their school art collection.

A School Collects Art

By Maymie R. Krythe

GARDENA.

NATIONALLY KNOWN, with a value of more than $50,000, is the distinctive art collection at Gardena High School, made possible through gifts of the senior classes. It is considered one of the three outstanding high school art galleries in the United States.

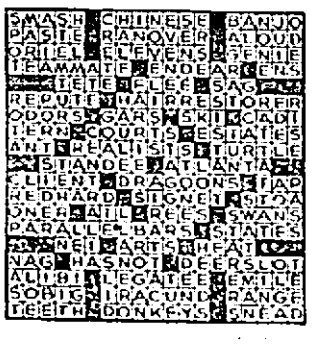

This fine tradition was started in 1919, when Principal John H. Whitely suggested that the graduating class start an art collection. During following years, under his guidance and that of such faculty members as Miss LaVeta Crump, seniors visited artists' studios, studied their works, and then voted on which pictures to purchase.

However, in 1928, at the suggestion of artist Hansen Puthuff, the seniors held a "Purchase-prize Exhibit" at Gardena High School. Outstanding painters were invited to submit canvases for a two weeks' showing. The first exhibit was so successful that it became an annual event. During the display, students study the pictures and have the opportunity of hearing them discussed by authorities. At first merely a school project, the exhibit now attracts community attention. Seniors help plan the events, which include an opening banquet and receptions attended by artists, educators and local club members.

WHEN WHITELY RETIRED in 1939, about 40 paintings had been given by the winter and summer graduating classes. He died in 1953, but will always be remembered for his vision. In the library hangs a portrait of this art lover, who helped so many students to a greater appreciation of art and its importance in every day life.

Frank X. Goulet, Whitely's successor, has continued to encourage this outstanding school activity, assisted by various faculty members. Each year interest in the gallery has grown until the entire community takes much pride in it, and the Purchase-prize Exhibit gives many the chance to see works of modern painters of high rank.

As the collection has grown, the idea has been not only to add exceptional canvases, but to make the display a well-rounded one. Naturally, there are several excellent paintings that show the widely differing terrain, coasts and moods of California. The first class, in 1919, bought Ralph Davidson Miller's "Valley of the Santa Clara," noted for its impressive skyline and cloud effects.

Another much admired California scene, "Lingering Snows," by Jack Wilkinson, is a High Sierra landscape of dazzling lights and melting snows. The famous painter, William Wendt, is represented by "Along the Arroyo Seco," while "Desert in Bloom" is the work of F. Grayson Sayre, noted for his excellent delineation of desert scenes. Such paintings as "On the Road to San Gabriel," "Mount Lowe in Winter," "Towering Peaks — Sierra" (considered one of the strongest canvases here), "In Palm Canyon," "Monterey Pines" and "Two Eucalypti" reveal the varied scenery of the Golden State.

WESTERN CHARACTERS are well depicted in Frank Tenny Johnson's "The Cowboy," Maynard Dixon's "Men of the Red Earth" and "Chief Bullchild" by Kathryn Leighton.

Other localities are seen in the collection, too, including "Grand Canyon, Betatakin Ruins," in Arizona; "Mount Moran — Teton National Park" and scenes in Mexico and Germany. "Cornish Inn," a charming study of a quaint hostelry in Ipswich Village, Cornwall, is an excellent example of an American artist's work — W. Elmer Schofield.

There are several fine seascapes in the gallery, some excellent studies of animals and flowers, distinctive still life pieces, and among the religious works are "The Return of the Prodigal" and "Weeping Over Jerusalem." "The Portrait of a Young Girl," "The Girl in Brown" and "Ted Shawn" furnish good examples of portrait painting.

Most critics consider Carl Wostry's "Beethoven" the outstanding portrait in the collection. Here the great musician makes his way along a narrow street, and the artist has well depicted his strong face, the eyes in deep contemplation; he shows the hope, the suffering, and the ideals of that indomitable will.

As visitors stand before this arresting canvas, they can almost believe they are seeing the famous composer himself, and the story goes that the model for this portrait wore clothes that had actually belonged to Beethoven. This picture, painted more than 40 years ago in Vienna, was bought by seniors at Gardena High School after it had been exhibited both in Europe and New York.

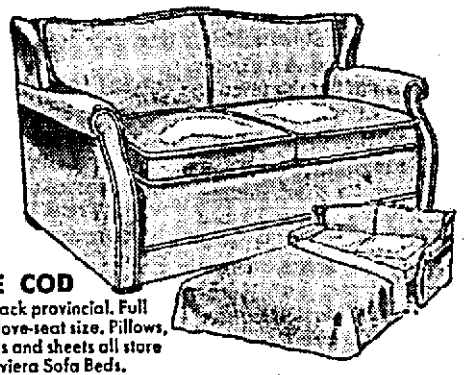

It is a privilege to visit the gallery and to study the rich heritage the young collectors have left their alma mater. This permanent tribute inspires and draws together in a common bond the students of this democratic high school with its varied types, for "Art knows no race, creed or nationality."

Arizona Scoffs at Winter

SOME BRITISH SCIENTISTS have recently advanced evidence that Arizona was once the site of the North Pole. This is nothing for the chamber of commerce to get upset about, however, for that would have been six hundred million years ago.

In 1954 things are quite different out that-a-way. Today Arizona is the site of one of the most flourishing winter resort areas in the country, and this is chiefly because of the warm, beaming sun which shines 86 per cent of the time, the dry, balmy climate and the magnificent scenery.

The enterprise of resort operators and civic groups has given this natural endowment a great assist—it is only within the past 20 years that the desert has bloomed into a thing of beauty and profit.

And air travel had added the final fillip, serving to make this playground of the Southwest nationally and internationally known and to bring it within a day's travel of any part of the country. Trans World Airlines, for instance, which has been serving the Southwest on transcontinental routes since 1929, schedules nine Constellation flights through Phoenix daily five of them low-fare Sky Tourist services.

A VACATIONING COUPLE, whether for a weekend or longer, may stay at the really plush luxury resorts for up to $80 a day for a suite, including meals, or a fine motel for $8 a day. The motel guests will have a patio, lawn furniture, flowers and a swimming pool and be within easy reach of good restaurants and all the sports and entertainment with which the Phoenix program is crowded. The luxury resort guests — who will find the top prices considerably reduced at the beginning and end of the season—will usually have the use of a golf course, riding horses, swimming pool, tennis courts, and will find steak fries in the hills, desert horseback treks, barbecues, poolside buffets, square dancing and various parties thrown in for the price of his accommodations.

Visitors to the Valley of the Sun find its informality and hospitality among its chief charms. Everyone dresses informally and casually for comfort. Blue jeans or levis, sports shirts, simple frocks or sweaters and skirts, are the rule for daytime wear, and dress is informal for nearly all evening occasions. One may lounge in the daytime winter sun in shirtsleeves; a coat is needed for the evening chill after sundown.

CROSSROADS OF THE MEDITERRANEAN, by Hendrik de Leeuw (Hanover House, $3.75).

SAVAGE PAPUA, by Andre Dupeyrat (Dutton, $3.75).

SAHARA, by Rene Lecler (Hanover House, $3.95).

All three of these volumes are excellent accounts of far places, carrying the armchair traveler into excitement and glamour, much of the glamour easier on the eye from the printed page than on the sensibilities of the inexperienced traveler. The Mediterranean people are the descendants of the ancients, and their ways are strange and exotic. It is a savage world as de Leeuw found it and fabulous as an Arabian nights entertainment.

Father Dupeyrat takes the reader into New Guinea, one of the last true dangerous areas in the world. This is an account of twenty years with the Papuans, the good father's adventures with real cannibals and with the evil of witchcraft will stir the reader with horror and fill him with admiration for the men who so venture for their faiths.

The Sahara has a long history of violence, both from nature and from man. The area is a killer. Never completely conquered, it has spawned some of the wildest and most competent fighting men in history. This is the story of it, from ages past to the present.

To Ceylon for a Suit

ONE OF THE FAVORITE shopping bargains for tourists to Ceylon is the purchase of tailor-made white sharkskin suits, according to flight personnel of Trans World Airlines.

Crew members of the Constellation flights which TWA began on weekly schedules in 1953, linking United States cities and Ceylon with direct service, are keeping the local tailors busy with orders for the suits. Within 24 hours, the crew members report, one can have a well-tailored suit of sharkskin made up for about $40, including an extra pair of trousers.

Hand-tailored suits in rayon tropical fabrics cost about $20.

Ceylon has long been popular as a resort island with residents of the Middle and Far East, especially with American and British nationals stationed at industrial and diplomatic outposts in those areas. With the advent of direct air service from the United States via TWA's routes through the British Isles, Europe, North Africa, the Middle East and India, it is expected that many American tourists will include Ceylon on their itineraries.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH

"Do you know a reliable car rental agency in London? Where do we get road maps of Scotland and England?"

There are as many car hire agencies as there are in the American cities. I'd let your hotel recommend one. The British Tourist Office in Pall Mall or New York will give you one too. Also road maps.

However, when you get your car, a membership in one or both of the automobile clubs usually goes with it. This gives you all the maps you need. Your car carries an emblem. And the uniformed motorcycle man on the highway is not a cop. He is an emergency repair man for the club. You'll recognize him because he'll toss you a salute when he spots your emblem.

"We are spending July and August in Europe on a limited budget. What do you estimate the cost per day?"

ROUGHLY, I figure $10 per day a person minimum in France and England. About $5 in Spain and Portugal. Somewhere between those figures in Switzerland and Italy. Add $2 per day in London, Paris, Rome, Madrid, Lisbon and Geneva. This is just living of course. Not including transportation or buying presents.

"A hotel in London that is not too expensive. . . ."

I'm still looking for a good hotel myself. But I was talking to a number of correspondents a few weeks ago flying to New York. Most of them thought the Connaught was the best with the best price.

The Savoy is the American favorite. But I think the price will run about $12 or better a day. The prices drop in the country. But London is a fairly expensive town.

"Is it worth while to buy foreign exchange in the United States before going abroad?"

Sometimes. Most exchange houses post the open rate here and the official rate. Right now, for instance, French francs are selling here at 375 to the U. S. dollar. Compared to 350 at the inside France rate. You can't take in all you want legally.

It often pays to buy in the winter. When the tourist season starts in summer, the country is flooded with dollars and the price goes down. I was only getting 360 in Geneva last summer.

You can only take 10 pounds into England. The Swiss franc and Portuguese escudo are hard. No advantage in buying anywhere but in those countries. You can take in 10,000 legally.

Ever wonder how the news correspondents make their air reservations, change their foreign money, work in other languages? A roving reporter whose beat covers the world will answer your questions when you plan to travel. Send a stamped envelope to Stan Delaplane, exclusive in Southland Magazine.

No matter what else you do for a cold

...LISTERINE Quick!

Listerine Does What Non-Antiseptic "Cold Tablets" Can't Do—Kills Germs Instantly—By Millions

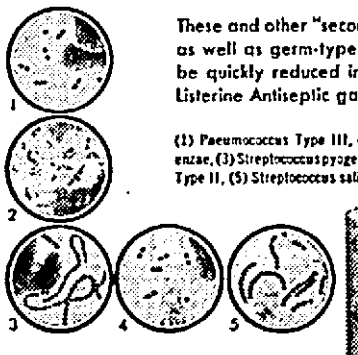

When you feel a cold coming on, go right after the germs that can cause so much of the misery . . . with Listerine Antiseptic! Non-antiseptic "cold remedies," nose drops, and aspirin may relieve some of the symptoms, but they don't kill germs the way Listerine Antiseptic does. Listerine gets way back on throat surfaces and kills those germs, instantly, by millions!

So, remember, no matter what else you do when you fight a cold, you need an antiseptic to kill germs.

Why take unnecessary chances with a cold? Closely supervised tests over a 12-year period showed that those who regularly reduced germs on mouth and throat surfaces with Listerine Antiseptic twice a day had fewer colds and sore throats than those who did not. The minute you feel a cold coming on, gargle Listerine Antiseptic early and often.

NO MATTER WHAT ELSE YOU DO FOR A COLD YOU NEED AN ANTISEPTIC

to kill germs like these!

These and other "secondary invaders," as well as germ-types not shown, can be quickly reduced in number by the Listerine Antiseptic gargle.

New Ways to Serve Apples

By Mildred K. Flanary

Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

Applesauce cupcakes are a taste delight as prepared. above, by Mrs. W. S. Grant. Her recipe makes 30 cakes.

FROM ADAM to the atom era, apples have played a major role in the life of mankind and today--in raw form, baked, apples, sauce, scraped or any other way they can be prepared—apples are a top item in the diet of humans. They are especially good for growing youngsters and they are marvelously good for after-school snacktime.

Long an advocate of the old adage, "An apple a day keeps the doctor away," Mrs. W. S. Grant, 1381 Bryant Rd.; has some very delectable apple recipes up her sleeve; for instance, Applesauce cup cakes with creamy icing. Her recipe, which is featured elsewhere on this page, makes 30 medium-sized cup cakes. The creamy icing formula:

Creamy Icing

2½ cups sifted confectioners sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 egg
2 tablespoons water
¼ cup granulated sugar
½ cup shortening
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix confectioners sugar, salt, and egg. Boil the water and granulated sugar together for one minute, then blend with the sugar and egg mixture. Add shortening and vanilla. Beat until creamy.

Apple Pie With Cheese Apples

Pastry (All Measurments Level):
2¼ cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon salt
¾ cup shortening
5 tablespoons water

Mix flour and salt in bowl. Cut shortening into flour with pastry blender or two knives until the pieces are the size of peas. Blend together ½ cup of this mixture and 5 tablespoons water. Add to remaining flour mixture and mix wtih fork or fingers until dough holds together. Shape into a round flat mass.

Roll half of dough to a circle about 12" in diameter and ⅛" thick. Line pie pan. Trim edges to ½" beyond rim. Add filling.

Roll remaining dough. Place over apples. Fold lower edge of dough over top crust and flute edges with finger. Slash top to permit escape of steam. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees F.) about 40 minutes or until brown.

Apple Filling:

Combine: 3½ to 4 cups sliced apples (about 5), 1 cup brown sugar, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, ½ cup chopped raisins, 3 tablespoons tapioca or flour, 2 tablespoons molasses. Pour into pie pan. After baking and cooling, decorate with "apples" of yellow cheese rolled in paprika. Add green leaf stems.

Makes one 9-inch pie.

Cider Applesauce

Boil cider to one-half its original quantity. Pare and quarter apples. Cover with cider. Simmer until tender and cider is nearly absorbed. Sweeten to taste while hot with brown sugar. Cold applesauce may be served dusted liberally with powdered sugar.

Cottage Cheese Waldorf Salad

3 apples, diced
1 cup diced celery
½ cup sliced stuffed olives
¼ cup French dressing
Salad greens
1 pt. cottage cheese
½ cup chopped salted almonds
Salad dressing or mayonnaise

Combine first four ingredients. Place greens on each salad plate and shape cottage cheese in a ring with apple salad and sprinkle with chopped almonds. Pass dressing. Serves 6.

Apple Relish

1 cup finely chopped unpared apples
1 cup finely shredded cabbage
½ cup finely chopped celery
1 tabelspoon chopped green pepper
½ cup sugar
3 tablespoons vinegar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ginger
¼ teaspoon mustard
Dash of cayenne pepper
1 tablespoon chopped canned pimiento

Mixed apples, cabbage, celery, and green pepper.

Combine sugar, vinegar, spices, and pimiento. Add to apples and vegetables and mix lightly but thoroughly.

Yield: 2 cups.

Baked Apples De Luxe

Start with crisp spicy red Jonathan apples. Fill the center cavities with orange marmalade and bake. Just before the apples are ready to come out of the oven, place a marshmallow on top of each apple and return to oven just long enough for the marshmallow to brown lightly.

Mrs. Grant's Applesauce Cup Cakes:

Measure into mixing bowl: (All measurements level)
2½ cups sifted cake flour
1⅔ cups sugar
¾ cup applesauce
⅔ cup shortening
1 teaspoon salt

Beat vigorously by hand or mixer (medium speed) for 2 minutes. Stir in: 3½ teaspoons double-acting baking powder*.

Add: ½ cup thin tart applesauce
3 whole eggs
1 tablespoon grated orange rind

Beat vigorously by hand or mixer (medium speed) for 2 minutes. Fill ½ full medium cupcake pans which have been rubbed with shortening and dusted with flour. Bake at 400° F. for 15 to 20 minutes. Ice with creamy icing.

*With tartrate type, use 4½ teaspoons.

Makes 30 medium cupcakes.

Kitchen Tips:

Mrs. Grant's Kitchen Tip: Pie meringue will cut easier if a little granulated sugar is sifted over it just before browning. Gives a pretty crust, too.

'This Old House'

A hallway created by the Robertsons to give the house better circulation is wide enough for storage and desk.

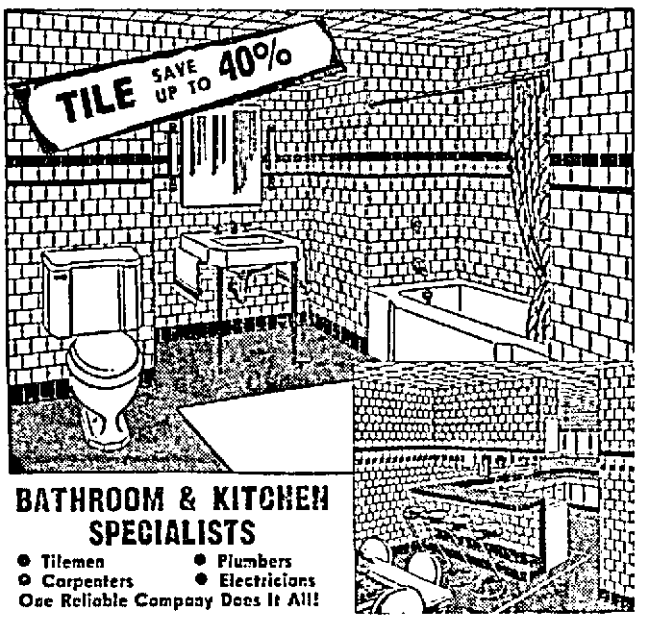

By Eileen Ball

IT TOOK more than a simple job of redecorating to rejuvenate the little house that Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Robertson decided to buy at 109 W. Home St.

The little bungalow they bought last September was a sorry sight, indeed, with its lack of paint and sagging roof line. The years — some 25 of them — had not been kind to the shabby little dwelling. It had many of the aspects of "this old house" of the currently popular song.

Fortunately, Mrs. Robertson is one of those rare individuals who can see some good in anything,

Has Been Fixed Up New Again!

A new coat of barn-red paint, trimmed with white, has given the Robertson home a new, needed lease on life.

including old houses. Something about the way the little house sat in among a lofty assemblage of eucalyptus trees was appealing. Its corner lot had merit. Mrs. Robertson visualized the house under a coat of spanking new paint.

Prompted by the power of their convictions, the Robertsons bought the house despite the pessimism of their friends.

What has emerged as a result of their combined efforts is both gratifying to the Robertsons and proof to the dissenters that paint brushes and hammers can, after all, work wonders.

THE EXTERIOR was painted barn red, trimmed with white and topped with a new roof. Shrubs were pruned, a new lawn seeded, and flower beds were lovingly plotted and spaded.

Not to be outdone by the exterior, the inside came in for its share of the overhaul. Now, three months from the date of the purchase, the little house is pleasantly livable, inside and out.

Deep green was chosen to decorate the living room. This area, furnished in rattan, is 14x18 feet — spacious enough for informal entertaining.

One of the original peculiarities of the house was the arrangement of the bedroom in relation to the rest of the house. It was formerly necessary to walk through the bedroom to get to the kitchen or the bath. Consequently, the Robertsons' first major task was to create a more plausible link between these living rooms.

THE ORIGINAL DOOR between the living room and bedroom was walled. A corridor was created from the living room directly through to a short hallway connecting the bath, kitchen and second bedroom.

This short corridor was made wide enough to provide storage all along one wall. In addition to enclosed storage units, a small desk has been built in. The pine paneling used for the cabinets and wall facing has been coated with clear shellac.

Possibly the most startling rejuvenation has taken place in the kitchen. This large room, 11x15, had its countertops tiled in stark white with blue trim. The walls are in Wedgewood blue and the cabinets white. A pleasing illusion of warmth was introduced by the application of old brick wallpaper along the wall that extends from the preparation area into the dinette.

Set into a free standing counter island is a built-in electric range. Near by is the built-in oven.

An unusual iron and plastic dinette set, the top decorated with an abstract leaf design, furnishes the pleasant dining nook which overlooks the yard through corner windows.

White nylon tiebacks with flounces of blue and white striped chintz complete the clean, typically Dutch color scheme.

THE MASTER BEDROOM originally was in the sorriest condition of any section of the house. Here, the shed roof leaked copiously and the walls were waterstained and peeling.

Now, under the security of a new roof, this spacious 10x20 area has become an enviable bedroom-sitting room combination. Further improvement was created, of course, with the elimination of this room's extra function as a pass-through. To create continuity, Mrs. Robertson elected to paint this room a deep green, harmonious with the living room. The ceiling is papered with a green, gray and white medallion paper. Crisp, white organdy tiebacks dress the windows.

A bedspread of white plisse and the predominantly green carpet give final emphasis to the simple green and white color scheme.

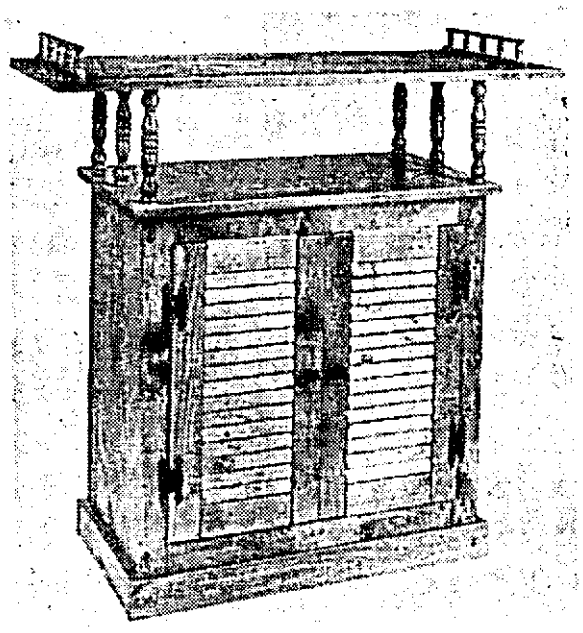

Grouped together, a pair of boudoir chairs and a rocker give added purpose to this room.

A smaller second bedroom serves as guest quarters. Located between the master bedroom and the kitchen, it is convenient to the newly decorated bath. Still in the process of being redecorated, the guest room awaits completion of a quilted bedspread and matching cornice boxes. Who is making them? Mrs. Robertson, of course.

San Diego Serenaders will be one of the quartets taking part in Barber Shop song event here next Saturday.

Close Harmony

By Vera Williams

THEY may be modern songs, but they'll be sung in the style of the gaslight era when Papa and Grandpa sang "You Were Sweet 16" and "When You Wore a Tulip."

That means close harmony.

Two hours of this type of spirited and spine-tingling singing will be offered in the Harmony Festival at 8:30 p. m. Saturday in Municipal Auditorium, under the auspices of Long Beach Chapter, Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, Inc.

In addition to many barbershop quartets, there will be a chorus of 40 barbershop voices and one of 35 Sweet Adeline voices; then they will combine for a mixed-voice presentation.

You don't know what a Sweet Adeline is?

Sweet Adelines, feminine, are not auxiliaries to the SPEBSQSA —there are those initials again! —but women's groups dedicated to the promotion of the close harmony style of singing, reminiscent of the Gay Nineties, which means the same type and time brought to life by the men.

Bob Moffat will be chorus director.

Quartets slated to appear include the Long Beach Four Bits of Harmony, made up of Charles Hopper, lead, Charley Pursglove, tenor, Don Nunez, bass, Dick Montgomery, baritone; the West Coasters from San Gabriel, the San Diego Serenaders, the Crown City Four from Pasadena and the Verdugo Dons who naturally enough are from Verdugo. The West Coasters took the Far Western district championship last October.

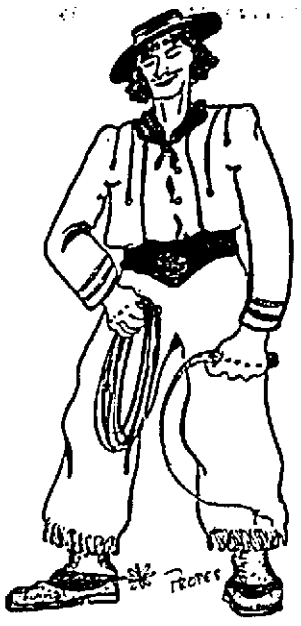

Sweet Adelines will include the True Shades from Arcadia, who last summer took third place in competition with Sweet Adeline quartets from all parts of the United States and Canada. They have appeared on the TV Breakfast Club show in Chicago.

The True Shades of Arcadia are a topnotch singing group. Feminine counterpart of SPEBSQSA called Sweet Adelines.

CALIFORNIA YESTERDAYS

The Gaudy Vaqueros

—Drawing by the Author

First of western cowboys were California vaqueros.

By Clarence Bernard Propes

MOST PEOPLE find it easy to leave grizzly bears alone. This wasn't true of the early California vaqueros. They had a particular fondness for roping these bears and then chaining them to equally wild range bulls.

The California vaquero was the first cowboy to appear on the American scene. These colorful figures were old men before the Texans started harrying their longhorns. The vaqueros were gaudy characters who would be laughed off any television screen or rodeo arena. They liked silks and satins of the brightest color. Even their riding gear was encrusted with silver and semi-precious stones.

The vaquero's hair was long and done up under a silk scarf or pinned under a flat-crowned hat. His shirt was silk, and his trousers and jacket satin. His spurs were huge—so big he couldn't walk when they were on his feet.

HIS WEAPONS were simple but effective. He carried a riata, a huge knife, and, at times, a lance. On the whole an unimpressive display of arms but with these same weapons vaqueros routed the army of Gen. Kearney at San Pasquale. The Americans suffered terribly while the Californios did not lose a man.

They were magnificent horsemen and stayed on their mounts every possible minute. It is said they even churned butter by riding. It was simply a matter of tying a keg of cream to the saddle and letting the horse jog about all day. Horses were always available. On a long ride cowboys simply exchanged horses at ranchos as their animals became exhausted.

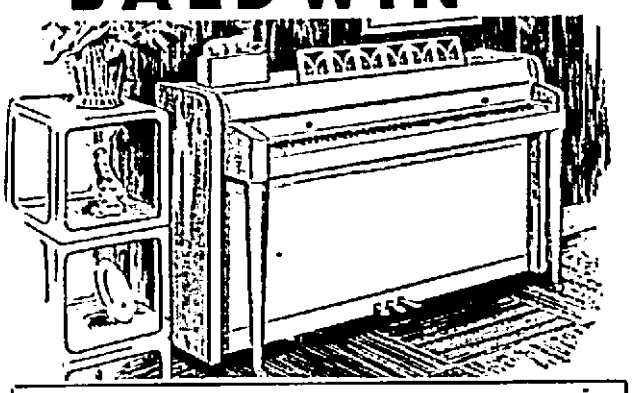

According to one authority the vaquero was not considered a full fledged cowboy until he had killed a grizzly in hand-to-hand combat. The story is unlikely, for it is doubtful if he would get off a horse—even to fight a silvertip.

There are few grizzlies left now, but in the early 19th century they were surprisingly numerous. One Rocky Mountain trapping party saw as many as 200 in a single day. The California variety must have been huge, for he had plenty of beef and horse meat to feed on.

ONCE A BEAR was spotted by a vaquero he was usually in for a bad time. Cowboys would immediately toss their loops around the bear's neck and legs. A simple-sounding operation, but bears do not like to be roped, and horses have an undying hatred of bears. A single miscalculation would mean a dead or badly mauled vaquero.

The roped grizzly presented a transportation problem, as the cowboy would want to get it to the home rancho corral. Grizzlies do not lead well. This problem was solved by pointing the bear in the proper direction and letting one of the horsemen tease it into a charge. Every charge led it that much nearer its destination.

It was a cruel and bloody age, but the bear was allowed to die fighting. One of its front paws was chained to the hind legs of a range bull and they were allowed to battle it out. This was repeated until the bear was killed.

THE VAQUERO'S LIFE was a happy and exciting one. There were fiestas to attend and robust games to play. There was little work as we now know it.

Stock were so thick that the ranchers found it profitable to butcher them for hide and tallow. It was the vaquero's duty to get the stock to the skinners and then killed. They turned this into a smooth and effortless procedure. They would run an animal toward the skinning crew and, when it was close enough, kill it with a knife thrust through the back of the neck.

Skinning and rendering was for peons and not for these gentlemen on horseback.

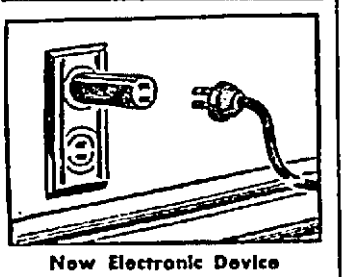

This would seem to be a waste of good beef. However, the market for meat was practically nonexistent and the herds of cattle and horses were great. During drought periods uncounted thousands of head of stock were killed by running them over cliffs into the sea.

THE VAQUEROS had a number of games and competitions, and all were played from horseback. A ring-around-the-rosie type game was played by mounted men who tagged one another with a club.

Tailing the bull was an exciting competition. A number of cowboys would pursue a range bull. The one who caught it would grab its tail, wind it around the saddle horn and flip the bull on to its back.

A chicken was sometimes buried in the ground. Only its head showed. The object was for the vaquero to pluck it from the ground while his horse was at a full run.

The California vaqueros were the first and probably the finest of American cowboys. They vanished with the coming of the Easterners. Big ranches were split up, and profitable stock raising methods were introduced. There was no place left for these lusty men with their wild ways.

Bit of soil or peat moss placed in aluminum foil and pressed in abalone shell depression make these planters.

Sea Shell Planter

By Eileen H. Schilz

SOME of the most pleasing decorative arrangements can be achieved through the use of sea shells, and even though you do not often go to the ocean to collect your own shells, many varieties can be purchased for a few cents each.

Almost every household has at least one abalone shell, and it can be transformed into an intriguing planter very easily. The only extra materials needed are a small piece of aluminum foil and some wire.

Thread a three-inch piece of wire through two of the holes in the shell and twist the ends together in back to form a loop. Put a small nail or hanger into the wall where you wish to place the planter and hang the loop of wire over it. Hanging the shell from the wall in this manner will provide a shallow basin at the bottom—just enough to hold a small foil cup filled with soil.

To make the foil cup place two tablespoons of damp moss or soft soil in the center of a 6-inch square of aluminum foil. Press the foil up tightly around the peat, and squeeze it into the bottom area of the abalone shell. Be very careful not to puncture the foil. Crimp the top edges of the foil down evenly to about one-half inch above the soil.

SEVERAL TYPES of plants do well in a restricted area such as the dwarf ivy, or the creeper commonly know as wandering jew. If you plant slips be sure at least one joint is covered with soil as these plants root at the joints. As the plant grows it can be trained through the holes at the top of the shell.

A plate of succulents is enhanced by covering the soil with shells. The shells used in this manner are those of razor clams, cockles, scallops, mussels, sea slippers and drills. Besides being decorative the shells tend to hold the moisture in the soil.

These are just two of the many possibilities that sea shells offer. If you experiment you may create an original arrangement that will be an outstanding conversation piece.

Humboldt's 60 Billion

Humboldt, northernmost but one of California's coast counties, in 1953 was reported to have 60 billion feet of standing timber—more than any state other than Idaho, Washington, Oregon or California. It is one of the largest lumber producing counties in the United States.

The county's commercial forest land occupies over 2,700 square miles of which 35% is Redwood and 60% Douglas Fir. About 25% of all forest land is under public ownership.

Our timberlands are located in Humboldt County, and are under a far-sighted plan of reforestation which will furnish us with a perpetual supply of logs, to provide lumber for continuous building of homes in Southern California and elsewhere.

PET PARADE

Margay, the Merry Meddler

By Eleanor A. Price

IF YOU have ever harbored a hankering to set out on an adventurous safari into an unknown jungle to study wild animals, chances are you would enjoy the adventures of raising a margay such as Diabla, seen on this page, or one of her beautiful cousins, the ocelot, jungle chati and other small jungle cats. Few pets can equal their mischievous, fascinating personalities and all around vim, vigor and vitality.

Diabla, age about one year, is owned by Beverly and Reed Caughey, 232 Prospect Ave. She was captured in the jungles of Nicaragua when approximately 3 months old, and the Caugheys purchased her about a month later. Life for the Caugheys took on an abrupt new pattern when Diabla became a member of the family, but the Caugheys have enjoyed every moment of it.

Diabla, naturally inclined toward agile climbing, soon selected a curtained transom window for her sleeping quarters. Here up against the ceiling, she can look out undisturbed upon the trees and greenery of the outdoors, or she can survey the rumpus and living rooms. She can also get pleasant gulps of fresh air.

As a rather feeble gesture to protect drapes in the living room, the Caugheys moved a high stepladder into the room, and their jungle pal loves to perch on it. The Caugheys are probably the only people in Long Beach who can boast of having a stepladder as part of their front room furniture!

DIABLA also loves to ride around on Beverly's shoulder when Beverly vacuums and otherwise cleans the house. Yes, the margay has claws, but Diabla tries very carefully to keep hers sheathed unless provoked. She can unsheath one claw at a time if she so desires. But she is not deliberately destructive. Of course, if a vase or knickknack gets in her path, she calmly knocks it out of her way rather than going around it.

Diabla is inordinately fond of water and loves to sit in a damp basin, and has even plopped herself bodily into the water closet. She enjoys going along with the Caugheys when they take their boat out in still water. She will go under water after food, especially if it is a green vegetable. She especially relishes celery, and all house plants are choice morsels to her. Consequently, there are no longer any house plants in the Caughey domicile.

Her main diet, and she eats an amount equaling one-tenth of her weight per day, consists of meat such as cooked beef heart, powdered milk and boiled eggs. Horsemeat or beef in most any form is acceptable. In its native habitat, the margay will catch mice, birds and small monkeys and kill them before feasting. Diable pounces on her cooked meat and bats it around to "kill" it. No rubber toys are permitted, for she consumes them.

THE TRAINING and care of one of these beautiful leopard cats are not too difficult. They can be housebroken readily to sawdust, sand or newspaper. They are susceptible to pneumonia and cat fever and should receive shots the same as a domestic cat. They can be trained easily to a leash, and respond to the tone of his owner's voice. Bodily punishment should be avoided if at all possible. Beverly has found that Diabla can best be corrected by a puff of cigarette smoke.

Some owners of these cats have their pets' claws removed and the points of the teeth filed flat. If there are small children in the family, these procedures should probably be considered.

Seldom can the margay or ocelot be successfully bred in captivity. San Diego Zoo reports but one litter and Griffith Park Zoo none. Breeding must be accomplished when the animal is quite young.

The margay is a thinner and smaller animal than the ocelot and weighs around 10 to 12 pounds. The tail is longer than the ocelot's, and the brown translucent eyes are larger. Spots are solid, whereas the ocelot has hollow spots. Both are beautifully patterned. The cost of either is about the same as that of a very fine dog.

Anyone who purchases a small wild jungle cat would enjoy belonging to the American Ocelot Club which meets in various places in Southern California once each month.

THE SILVER BAY Kennel Club of San Diego presents its winter all breed dog show and obedience trial in the Electric Building, Balboa Park, San Diego, on Sunday, Feb. 13. Get your entries in not later than midnight, Monday, Jan. 31.

A WHILE BACK, this column carried an article on the rare Chinese Crested dog. It has come to our attention that Mary Griffin, 1203 W. Anaheim, Wilmington, has two of these dogs and would be happy to show them.

HOW TO Reupholster Dining Room Chairs, Do a Professional-Looking Job

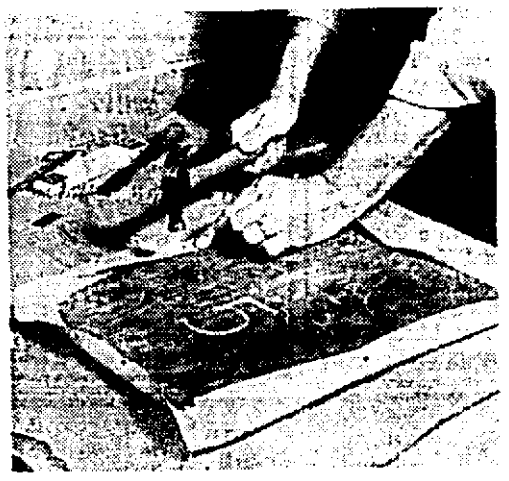

1. REMOVE CHAIR SEAT. When the seat covers of your dining room chairs begin to fray and tear at the edges or to wrinkle up over the padding, it's time to reupholster. If the seats are screwed to the frame—and most are—you can reupholster them yourself. First number seats and frames with chalk so you can reinsert the seats correctly. Then take out corner screws. Soft padding under chair protects finish.

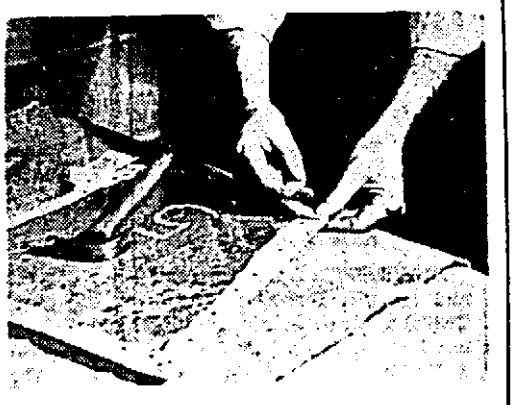

2. REMOVE OLD UPHOLSTERY. Lift out tacks carefully with a wood chisel so the material doesn't tear. Smooth the padding after cover is off. If it has worn thin, cover it with a layer of cotton felt. If it's badly worn, build up bare spots with upholsterer's curled hair before you cover it with felt. Worn padding is penalty for delaying the reupholstering job too long.

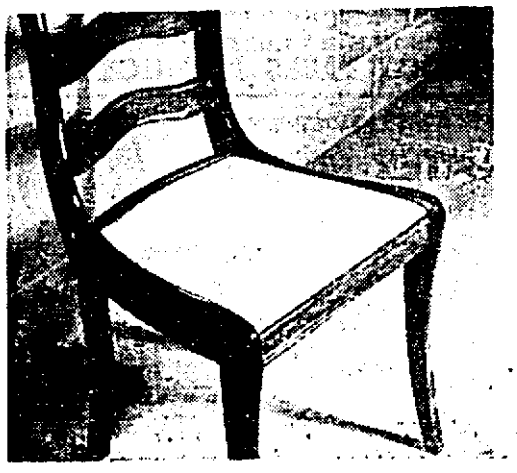

3. MARK AND CUT NEW COVER. Use the old cover to plan the amount of material you'll need. Upholstery material is sold by the yard in 36, 48, 50, 54-inch widths; decide from which it will be most economical to cut the covers. After you buy the material, smooth out the old cover and use it as a pattern. Mark the outline on the material with crayon or dressmaker's chalk. Then cut carefully with heavy scissors along the lines marked.

4. BEGIN TACKING. Sand down all sharp corners of the seat frame so that the new cover can be fitted smoothly. Place the material face down on the padding with the seat over it face down. Put one tack in the middle of the straightest edge of the seat (we started with the front). Draw the material snug and put another tack in the opposite side. Tack the other two sides in the same way. Be sure the upholstery material is straight. (Check this from the top side of the seat.) Then tack all along the sides, again starting with the most regular edge. Leave 1½ inches free at corners.

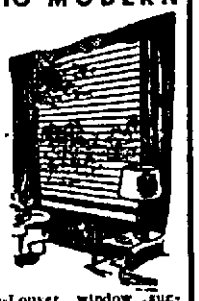

5. TACK CORNERS SECURELY. Fold under extra upholstery material at the corners. Refer back to the original seat cover to see how it was engineered. All the folds must be neat and securely tacked, or they will pucker later. The secret in getting a professional-looking job is to fit the upholstery as tightly and neatly as you can. The result will be worth the extra-careful work.

6. RESET SCREWS. Your upholstering job is finished. Test all screw lengths before you put any of them back in the chair. The screws should be about ¼ inch longer than the thickness of the corner block so that they will hold the seat firmly without splitting through the padding or upholstery. Since screw lengths may vary in the different chairs, keep the screws in a small sack tied to the chair frame from which they were taken, to avoid mixing.

Outdoor Planters Are Popular

By Bob Gilmore

DURING the past few years outdoor planter boxes have become one of the most popular features of modern landscaping. They appear especially valuable as a setting for tropical plants. Their widest use at present is with homes classified as having modern architecture. However, outdoor planter boxes will fit in with every type of home.

Growing ornamentals in planter boxes requires a culture entirely different from that recommended for the general garden. Because of the limited root area available, the plants are actually captives. They cannot grow as freely as in their native habitat and consequently compensating factors must be provided.

Your first consideration should be the growing medium and you will be wise to utilize what is known as a planter mix. Do not use soil, even potting soil, as it tends to cake and crust over when wet. Excess watering causes soil to sour, thus inhibiting healthy plant growth. In addition, where adequate drainage is lacking, moisture will accumulate in the bottom of the box and ultimately will drown your plants.

A PLANTER MIX is a growing medium formulated especially for captive plants growing in either indoor or outdoor planter boxes. This medium is also valuable for potted or boxed specimens. It has none of the faults of ordinary soil and contains such products as peat humus, redwood leafmold, oak leafmold, perlite and charcoal, all of which provide an excellent medium for plant growth.

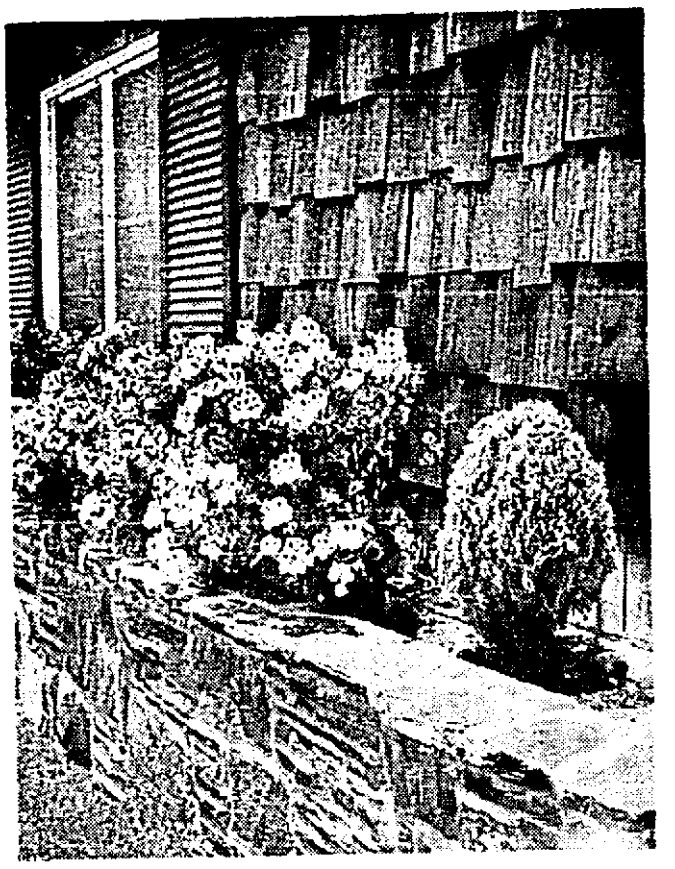

Watering or lack of it can easily make the difference between success and failure but is largely a matter of local growing conditions. Factors that determine the method of watering to a large extent are exposure, humidity, temperature and wind, as well as the demands of the individual plants. Some ornamentals are heavy drinkers, others go a long way on just a little.

You can consider that watering time has arrived if the surface of the planter mix appears dry. The best time for watering is early in the morning, using water that is just slightly tepid. A yellowing of the leaves usually indicates lack of moisture although plants grown in soil may show the same symptoms if drainage is inadequate.

FEEDING PROBLEMS also must be solved. Plants grown in outdoor planter boxes should be fed regularly. Be cautious and do not overfeed. It is better to err on the side of too little, rather than too much food. The easiest, safest and cleanest method of feeding these ornamentals is with a liquid food, especially one of the new leaf-feeding products.

The leaf-feeding nutrients are almost instantly available. They are also water soluble so you may apply them with a sprinkling can. The excess dripping off the leaves will be absorbed by the roots. When properly applied, leaf-feeding products will not burn the plant tissues.

The weed problem should be practically non-existent. Those that appear should be pulled out when young. As a matter of fact, this is good gardening procedure even in the outdoor garden. Flowers should be removed before going to seed to prolong the flowering period.

Flowering subjects as well as foliage ornamentals may be grown to good advantage in outdoor planter boxes.

Tips on Gardening

TIPS FOR THE WEEK . . . Try planting a citrus. For a lawn specimen select the tangelo, a cross between a grapefruit and a tangerine. The fruits are juicy and delicious. The trees exceedingly ornamental.

Avocados also deserve your attention if you have the room for them. Be sure to provide adequate drainage. Encourage a husky spring growth by feeding all your plants with a well balanced commercial plant food.

Don't relax for a moment your vigilance on garden pests. Spraying is no longer an irksome job. Utilize the sprayers that may be attached to the water hose. The pressure does all the work. All you have to do is direct the flow of the spray.

Lilac-Hued

Rose Twilight

DEVELOPED from grey pearl and lavender Pinocchio strains, Twilight, a new hybrid tea rose has been announced by Jackson & Perkins Co. Twilight has a pastel shade of lavender lilac with a light silvery reverse. The bud is pointed and the flower opens gradually to a high centered bloom. It is expected to meet wide favor among professional and amateur arrangers. Flowers are usually borne singly on 12-15 inch stems on a plant that grows to about two feet high and has good foliage. Color is best under normal, not extreme conditions. The developers claim Twilight to be an outstanding novelty and a further step toward blue roses.

Sweet Peas From Overseas

—Bodger Photo.

Everlasting Sweet Pea, a native of England that's adaptable to Long Beach gardens, is a perennial.

By Murtha Hurley

ONE OF ENGLAND'S most popular native flowers is Everlasting Sweet Pea, Lathyrus latifolia, a medium sized trailing plant both ornamental and hardy.

It blooms in summer and grows easily from seed.

Long Beach gardeners hardly know the pretty plan although seed stores display it.

If you seek a graceful, decorative vining plant of medium height, 5 to 8 feet, this perennial sweet pea will delight you.

In late summer the plants, with foliage and stems like sweet peas, bear countless large clusters of flowers resembling sweet peas. They continue to bloom until fall if wilted flowers are kept snipped. For training on a trellis, a wall or fence, a pergola or archway or down a bank or sprawling over rocks, Perennial Sweat Pea will serve well. Flowers are white, pink and reddish purple.

It is a quick, vigorous grower, very hardy.

Long Beach climate, with warm summers and deep, cool, fertile soil that does not dry out too readily is ti the liking of this perennial.

Give the plants a slightly shaded location and generous watering in hot weather and they will prove to gladden the summer garden, year in and year out.

Sow the seeds in pots or flats in late winter and transplant seedlings into the garden in early spring. Put them where you wish them to stay permanently, since they do not like to be moved.

A weak solution of liquid manure, given every two weeks assures generous blooming and sturdy plants. Also a mulch of well rotted cow manure is good in summer.

. . . A SHRUB TO BEAUTIFY YOUR GARDEN

. . . DELICIOUS CHERRIES FOR THE FAMILY

All you need to enjoy home grown cherries is one of these good looking shrubs, just the right size for any sunny corner of your garden. Snowy white cherry blossoms line each branch in early spring, and you'll pick delightful crops of cherries in mid-summer.

KOREAN CHERRY NO. 20

The taller growing—5 to 6 feet. The fruit is excellent with just enough tartness to make this the best for pies and cherry preserves. Bears best if No. 60 is planted nearby for cross pollination.

Bare root plants 2 to 2½ ft. $3.75 each

KOREAN CHERRY NO. 60

Lower growing (3 to 4 feet). The large fruit is deep maroon, sweet, and richly flavored. Resembles everyone's favorite, the Tartarian cherry in color and flavor.

Bare root plants 1½ to 2 ft. $3.75 each

Slick and Deadly

By Fred Taylor Kraft

Independent-Press-Telegram Book Editor

PROBABLY the slickest of the slick card sharps on the grand gambling circuit of the hell-roaring west of the 1870s and 1880s, with no less than 16 notches in his gun, John Henry (Doc) Holliday was a good bet to be an enemy of the law and die with his boots on.

And yet he wasn't and he didn't. True, he defied sheriffs and lawmen generally until he showed up in Dodge City, a wide-open, shoot-'em-up railway terminus for fabulous trail herds moving up from Texas. There he met Wyatt Earp, a U. S. marshal, and these two took a liking to each other. Thereafter, when Earp was in a tight spot, Holliday was at his side with his nickel-plated .45.

Doc drifted west from Georgia with what doctors said was only a few months to live with consumption. They called him Doc because he was a dentist — well educated, with fine manners — but he drank two or three quarts of liquor a day and even rugged individuals with a killing toothache hesitated to step into his chair. Finally, outliving the time doctors had given him here on earth, he invaded the worst gambling dens. He coughed incessantly and his hands shook, but not when dealing or with a pistol in his hand; then, he was cold, calm and deadly.

It was Doc Holliday who helped Earp clean up Dodge and it was Doc who came to his rescue in Tombstone's O. K. Corral, against the Clanton gang, which was made up of some of the toughest hombres who ever lived. And, finally, it was Doc who saved Earp from the hangman's noose. A little later, after lingering for months in a sanitarium, he went to his own "Boot Hill."

Women were a species which bothered Doc not at all; that is, no woman except Big Nose Kate. She was in and out of his life for years, this tempestuous creature of the red-light district. But finally the cunning Doc figured out a way to get rid of her.

It's all told in "Doc Holliday" (Little, Brown, $4.50), a beautifully written book by John Myers Myers. You're going to sit up late with this one.

MORE AMERICANA: The saga of country towns of midwest America from the Civil War to the present is told with humor, tolerance and considerable affection by Lewis Atherton in "Main Street on the Middle Border" (Indian University Press, $6). Vivid writing is provided in Atherton's description of how boys learned the facts of life in the village livery stable.

A KING LOOKS BACK: Cannon boomed in the courtyard and within the royal palace in Belgrade, solemn toasts were raised on a September day in 1923 to the new-born heir to the throne of Yugoslavia. At age 11 he was to become king of a nation of 16 million people; at 20 he was to be a king without a country. Peter II of Yugoslavia tells the story in his autobiography, "A King's Heritage" (Putnam's, $5).

SECOND NOVEL: Garald Lagard, 432 Redondo Ave., whose "Scarlet Cockerel" was an alternate selection of the Literary Guild, will have his second novel published in the spring. William Morrow & Co. announces his book, "Leaps the Live Thunder," which has a War Between the States setting, will be published May 25. Lagard's short stories have appeared in leading magazines. He is instructor in creative writing in Long Beach City College's School for Adults.

NEW PAPERBACKS you'll like: "Dakota Rifle," a western by Frank O'Rourke (Dell First Edition, $.25); "How to Help Your Doctor Help You," a guide to health by Dr. Walter C. Alvarez (Dell, $.35).

FRANK RICHMOND
Ummm. Good

MONSIEUR Frank Jimmy Richmond, major domo at the superb Francois Manhattan Restaurant, 1909 E. 4th St., has done it again.

Now he's serving another new entree which draws applause from his patrons.

This dish is Stuffed Mushrooms and it's guaranteed to put new life into any jaded palate. The mushrooms are three-inch giants grown especially for the Manhattan in a small cavern in Laguna Beach. They are stuffed with succulent chicken livers and sliced chicken, baked under a copper salamander and served with rice, piping hot, topped with a delicious Hollandaise sauce. Each patron gets six of these brobdingnagian (that's a word?) delights, or 10 or 12 of the medium-sized ones. (The size of the mushrooms depends on what's available each week at the Laguna cavern.)

Costing only $2.50 complete, the Stuffed Mushroom dinner includes the Manhattan's lavish tray of chilled relishes, all the soup you can eat served from a tureen left at the table, a big fancy salad, dessert and coffee.

Another Manhattan dish which is a favorite of the patrons is Beef Stroganoff, which is $3.25 on the same fine complete dinner. The Stroganoff includes onions simmered in white wine and then added to the sauteed beef and sour cream.

Incidentally, splendid bluepoint oysters and cherry-stone clams arrive at the Manhattan twice weekly, rushed by air express from Maryland.

The Manhattan serves luncheons daily from 11 a. m. to 4 p. m. and dinners from 4 to midnight. Sunday hours are 4 to 11 p. m. The restaurant is closed Mondays.

A New Kind Of Proven Medication

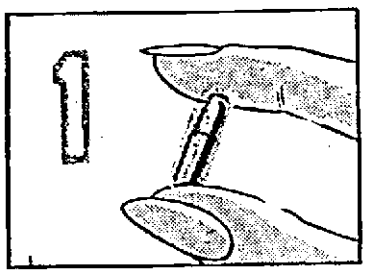

FOR PEOPLE WHO REALLY SUFFER FROM HEADACHE!

New sentrol analgesic capsules contain Salicylamide—amazing scientific ingredient proved three times more effective than aspirin!

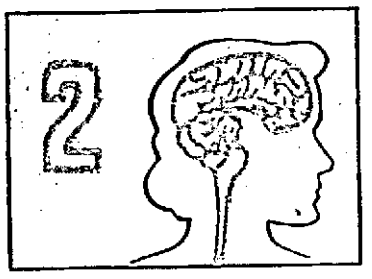

sentrol

relieves headache pain where other remedies often fail, because . . .

Sentrol is not a pill . . . not a tablet . . . but a high-potency capsule containing a newly-acclaimed scientific ingredient called Salicylamide—proved three times more effective than aspirin, yet as safe as aspirin.

Sentrol relieves pain faster because the amazing ingredient, Salicylamide, reaches the headache zone faster. It loses no time in the bloodstream . . . goes directly to soothe the central nervous system.

Sentrol is compounded for the express purpose of bringing relief to people who really suffer from headache pain. Sentrol is tasteless . . . so easy to swallow . . . does not upset the stomach.

Sentrol is a different type of medication . . . a new formula never before available . . . using a newly-acclaimed ingredient, Salicylamide, proved three times more effective than aspirin, yet as safe as aspirin.

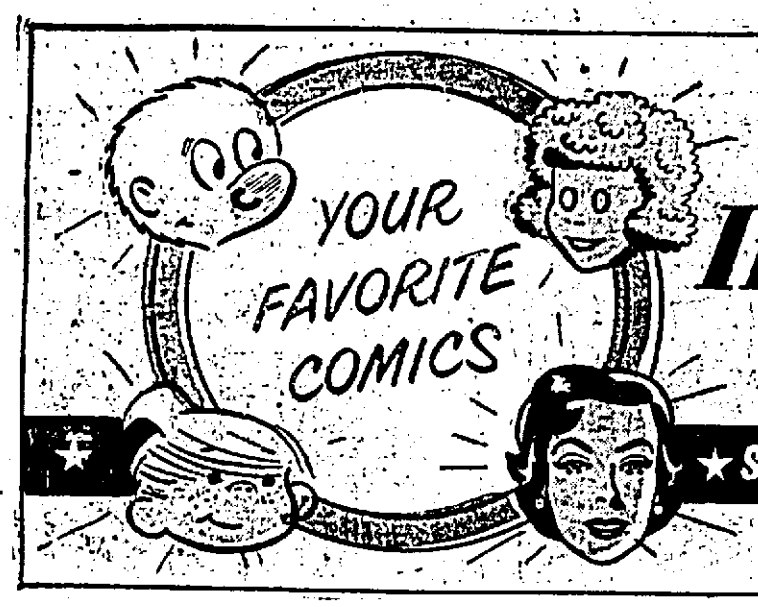

So if you get the kind of simple headaches that make you really miserable with pain, and aspirin doesn't help, you'll be grateful for the blessed relief that Sentrol brings you quickly.

Don't wait until your next headache has you suffering again. Prepare for it by getting Sentrol high-potency capsules today—at all drug counters in handy vials at 33¢ and 59¢.

Sentrol is a trademark of Hudson Products, Jersey City, N. J.

SO EASY TO SWALLOW . . . TASTELESS . . . DOES NOT UPSET STOMACH.

The Once Upon-A-Time-Low-Down on "Cinderola And The Three Bears"

HELLO THERE, CRUEL STEPMOTHER, HOW IS YOU AN' ALL MY BOTH UGLY STEP-SISTERS THIS LOVELY TUESDAY MORN?

HOWDY, CINDEROLA, YOU BEAST. WE HATES TUESDAY SO THE DEAR LI'L DOLLS IS STILL IN BED.

1-30

IS THEY SICK OR IS THEY TIRED?

THEY IS SICK AND TIRED BOTH AN' EACH--- TUESDAY GIT 'EM DOWN SOMETHIN' DREFFLE.

MEBBE IF I POURS SOME OF THIS HOT GRUEL ON 'EM IT'LL ROUSE THEM SCAPERS.

DON'T DO THAT, DAUGHTER! THAT STUFF'LL HARDEN AN' FREEZE THEM LOUTS INTO THE KIVVERS FOR TWENTY-TWO WEEKS.

I BEEN WATCHIN' YO' HAIR, DOLL, AN' IT SEEM TO ME IT'S A MOVIN' EXPERIMINTS TO BEHOLE SUCH LOVELY LOCKS--- WHERE'D YOU GIT SUCH HAIR?

IT MOUGHT BE MOVIN' 'CAUSE A MOUSE LIVES INSIDE, NAMELY ME.

MICE OR NO MICE I WANNA KNOW WHERE YOU GITS SUCH HAIR?

SAME PLACE YOU GITS YOURN--- OUT IN THE BARN--- I JES' CUTS MYSELF A PIECE OF HAYSTACK AN' THERE I IS---

BUT YOU ARRANGES YOUR'N DIFFERNT-- IT KINDA SWIRL AROUND.

THAT'S 'CAUSE I ALLUS PICK A HUNK WHAT BEEN USED BY THE CHICKENS FOR NESTIN'.

DON'T YOU FIND THAT KIND OF EGGY AN'-- FEATHERFUL?

THIS DUST SOUP IS DELIGH.

OH, IT GOT IT'S HAZARDS.

SEE THERE NOW?!

PEEP?

I'M A FATHER! I HATCHED THIS YOUNG 'UN WITH MY OWN BLOOD'S HEAT--- GIT SEEGARS--- CALL MOM IN SAM FRANCISCO--- GIT HOLE OF THE ST. LOUIE POST DISPATCH! THIS IS THE FIRST CHICKEN IN OUR FAMILY SINCE COUSIN HERM MARRIED A GUINEA HEN----

OH PEEP!

WINTER SURE IS A MISERABLE SEASON!

..NOTHING BUT ICE, SNOW AND GOOSE PIMPLES!

YOU CAN GIVE ME SUMMER EVERY TIME..

..WITH ITS SUNNY DAYS AND BALMY EVENINGS!!

Although we did have a bad heat wave, remember? Went up to 106°...

It sure was hot and sticky... when I got up from the table the chair got up with me....

And those nights... sleeping on the window sill... hoping for a puff of fresh air...

The mosquitoes were terrible.... I had more holes punched in me than a bus transfer..

And that awful sunburn I got.... I was so full of fire that I glowed in the dark!

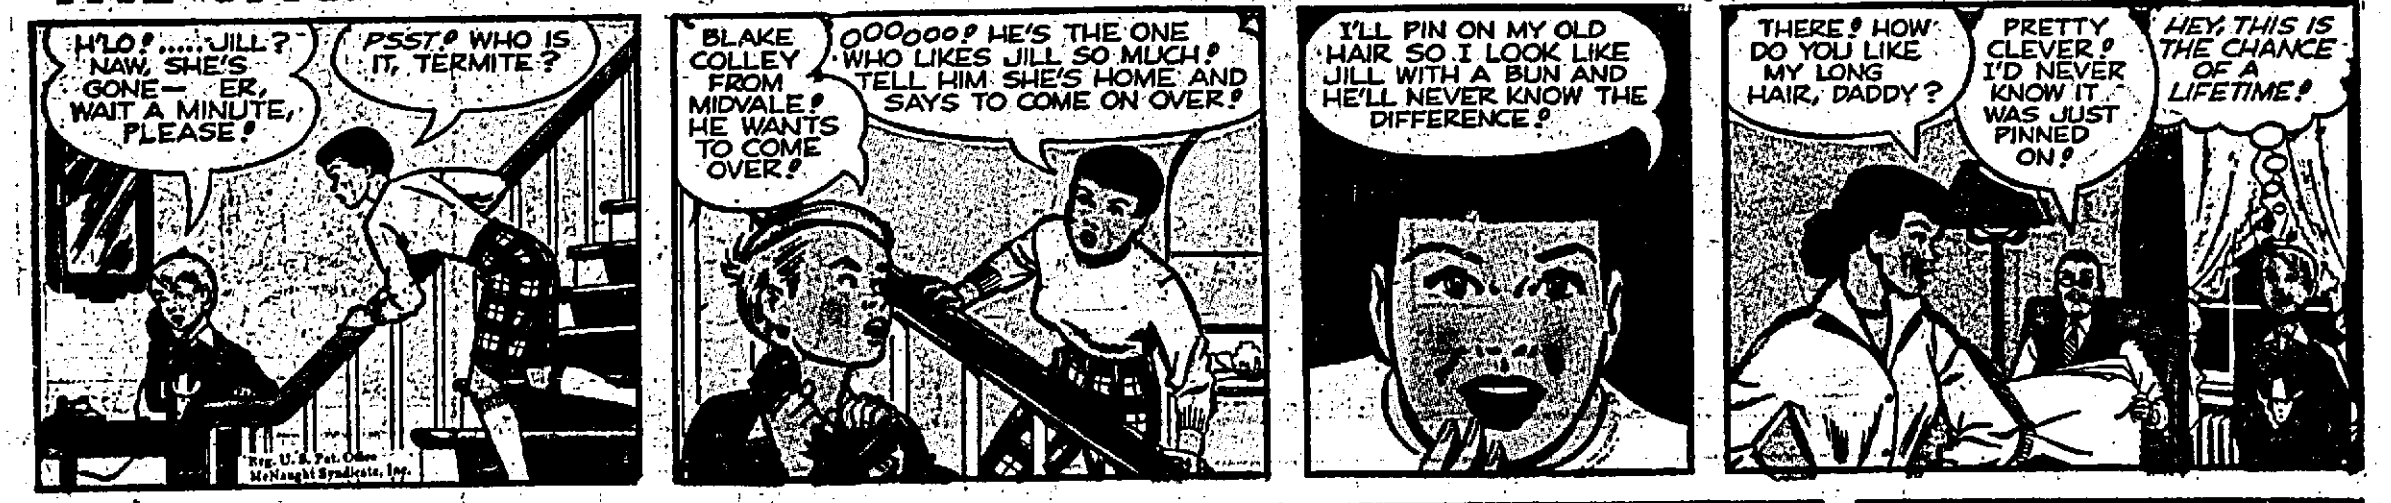

AHH, WINTER!! WONDERFUL, BEAUTIFUL WINTER!

Caramel Popcorn Balls

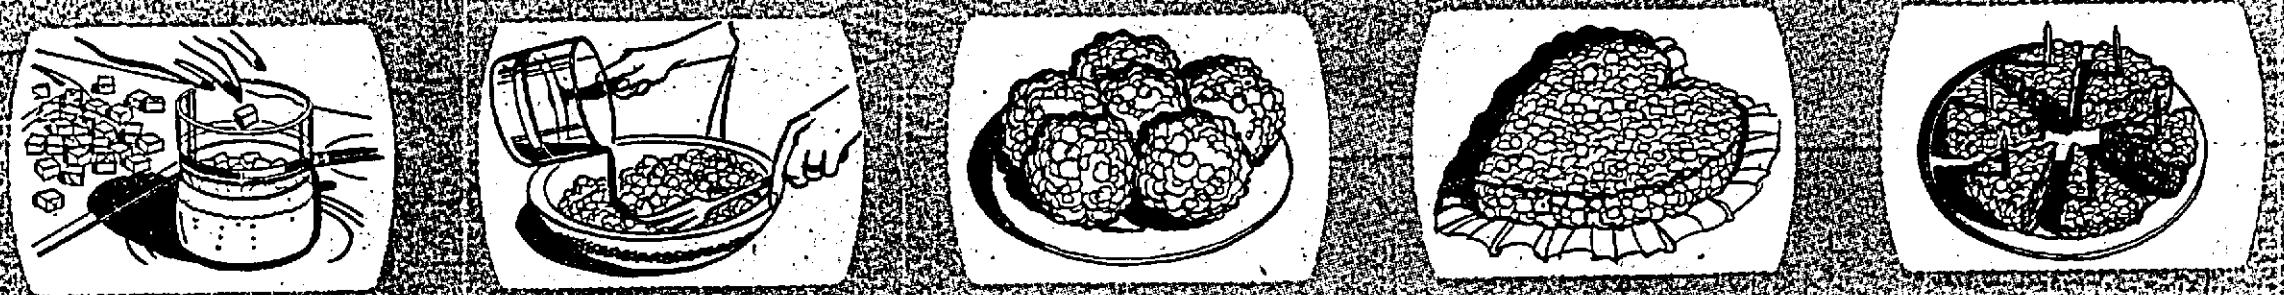

You and Mom can make 'em in a jiffy with

Kraft Caramels

Enjoy Kraft Caramels "as is." Soft-chewing, delicious! Wholesome, too—1⅗ pints of milk go into every pound.

LOOK HOW EASY IT IS TO DO—AND THE OTHER TREATS YOU CAN FIX!

1. Place ¼ lb. Kraft Caramels and 2 tbsps. water in top of double boiler. Heat, stirring frequently, until caramels are melted and the sauce is smooth.

2. Pour prepared caramel over 2 quarts of popped corn, which has been placed in large bowl. Stir thoroughly with fork until every kernel is well coated.

3. Form into balls by shaping with your hands which have first been slightly moistened with cold water. Let stand until surface of each is dry to the touch.

Valentine Hearts. Cook, stir 1 pkg. Kraft caramel, package, into 6 cups popped corn. Press into 9" heart-shaped pan. Cool. Cut into wedges.

Celebration Pie. Press mixture into 10" pieplate, rinsed with cold water. Let surface dry. Cut into wedges. Remove to serving plate. Invert any cracked...
